AGENCY WILL SPEED LIQUIDATION

hington, Jan. 4.—Creation of w clearing-house office which ld speed the liquidation of ergency" government agencies is eing considered by the Senate Committee on Goverment Reorganization.

The Senate Committee, headed by Senator Byrd, Virginia Democrat, has been at work on the problem of overlapping federal bureaus and agencies ever since Congress adjourned last summer. Two other committees—one named by the President and one by the House of Representatives—also are studing the situation.

Under the proposal now pending before the Senate Committee, the reorganization plan would include the establishment of a new egency charged with the task of eliminating the over-lapping- and refining the functions of the agencies which are to remain in existence.

The reason for this new agency, as it was explained to the New York Herald-Tribune by a member of the Byrd committee is this:

Experience has shown that temporary agencies cannot be trusted to liquidate themselves, the tendency being for the temporary government functionaries to conjure up arguments for continuing their jobs.

SELLING CARS FOR HAYES CHEVROLET CO.

Mr. L. Dewey Hughes, of Cooper, announces that this week he began work for Hayes Chevrolet Company as salesman for new and used cars. Hughes is well and favorably known over Chilton county—especially in the southern part of the county. He has been traveling for Cooper Mercantile company for some time.

Mr. Melton Hughes, son of L. D. Hughes, also is connected with Hayes in the same capacity as his father. He has been working there now for a few weeks.

STORE IS LOOTED

Prattville, Ala., Jan. 4.—Sheriff Allen Stewart, of Autauga County, Sunday night was conducting an investigation into the robbery of the Prattville Drug Company Thursday night, in which more than $2,000 worth cigarets, knives, drugs, merchandise and postage stamps were stolen. The robbery occurred some time after 11 p. m. Thursday night, the sheriff reported.

A BARREL OPEN AT BOTH ENDS

To the Editor:

It seems that the taxpayers have a large barrel into which they pour their money down in Montgomery. It seems that both ends are missing, and the people pour their millions into this barrel, yet it is always empty. We find at the lower end of this barrel a great army of suckers with their mouths open, to catch every dollar poured in at the top.

We would be glad if we could get some man who could put a head in one end of the barrel, at least. We elected Mr. Graves thinking he could do the job, but the leaks are worse than ever. We did hope that when our officials at Montgomery provided all their kinfolks and friends with good, fat jobs they would stop creating useless offices and let the taxpayers have a breathing spell, but it seems there is no end.

Every time we find a place where we can get new taxes there is someone who has a friend or a relative that does not have the ability or will to work and make a living, and needs a job. Our ship of state has become so heavily loaded with barnacles that cleave to her bottom until she is hard to move, and if the people do not scrape those barnacles off her bottom she will get so heavy she will not be able to move, but will stick in the mud, causing a mutiny on board, and then the devil will be to pay and no pitch hot.—From Birmingham News.

CONSUMERS ANTI-SALES TAX ASSOCIATION OF ALABAMA

Montgomery, Ala., Jan. 4.—Plans for a state-wide holiday to enable Alabama merchants, farmers, workers and consumers to march on the State Capital here next Wednesday and protest substitution of the Chichester 2 per cent sales tax for the recently enacted Ellis one and one-half per cent gross receipts levy were being completed here today by Jeff P. Beeland, of Greenville, president of the Consumers Anti-Sales Tax Association of Alabama.

Upwards of 10,000 or more are expected to appear here for a hearing before his prediction on a flood of telegrams and letters received from all sections of the state. At the same time, Beeland reiterated denials of reports, which he said, were being ulated that merchants were in favor of substituting the sales tax bill the gross receipts measure.

CAMPBELL-EWALD COMPANY

Detroit, Mich., December 31, 1936.

Union-Banner, Clanton, Ala.

Gentlemen:

I was thumbing through a copy of Ralph Waldo Emerson the other day and I saw a phrase which started me thinking about my many years of friendly association with advertisers and publishers and which prompts me to write you this letter of greeting.

The phrase was as follows: "The silence that accepts merit as the most natural thing in the world is the highest applause."

Now, that sentence may be perfectly true. It certainly expresses the attitude which almost all of us have taken in the past toward many people and many institutions that we admire and appreciate the most. But I believe that the troublous years which we have now happily put behind us have altered that attitude and made all of us a bit more ready to think of the other fellow and to applaud the job that he is doing, not just silently, but out loud so that he can hear and know!

And so I am writing to you and to a number of other publishers throughout the country today to congratulate you on the splendid job which you have been doing and to thank you for the fine contributions which you have made to the growth and prosperity of the Campbell-Ewald Company and its clients.

All advertising media are important, of course, but the Campbell-Ewald Company has always considered the newspaper the most vital factor in influencing the local market for a national producer, and we and our clients continue to hold this same conviction today.

Our largest individual client, the Chevrolet Motor Company, has just completed the most successful year in its history. It has sold 1,125,000 1936 Chevrolets, taking first place in both passenger car and truck sales for the seventh time in the past ten years. It has also sold more than 2,000,000 used cars, breaking all previous sales records in that important field as well. All of which, you will agree, is a magnificent selling achievement.

In that achievement, the newspapers of America — your newspaper — have played an important part, and I want to thank you most sincerely on behalf of the Chevrolet Motor Company and my own organization.

All of our other clients, in many lines of business, have likewise enjoyed a highly successful and profitable year, as has the Campbell-Ewald Company itself.

In the achievements of these organizations also the newspapers of America — your newspaper — have played a leading role and I want to thank you on behalf of these clients, too, for the fine support and co-operation which you have always given to them and to us.

This has become a rather long letter, but that line of Emerson's did start me thinking and did cause me to decide to make my appreciation evident.

My thanks to you again and my very best wishes for a Happy, Prosperous New Year in 1937.

Sincerely,

H. T. EWALD, President,
Campbell-Ewald Company.

RETURNED FROM TRIP TO MEXICO

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Hollis and children, Misses Sarah, Deara and Betty Boo, returned Tuesday from a visit to old Mexico. They left their home at Mitchell Dam on Christmas Day, making the 4,000-mile trip in their new 1937 Chevrolet. Mr. Hollis reports only one mishap, that being when they ran over and killed a mountain goat somewhere on the way.

The Hollises all report a most enjoyable trip, and they have lots to tell their friends about the many curious and interesting things they saw. Mr. Hollis has kindly agreed to write us a story of the trip to be published next week.

WARNS CRITICS OF HIGH COURT

New York, Jan. 4.—A public warning to beware of those who would "pack" the supreme court with judges responsive to the demands of political leadership was issued here recently by Federal Judge John Knox, of the United States District Court.

The court needs no defense against men who really believe in the fundamentals of the American Government and who are competent to criticize the court freely and fairly when they honestly believe it mistakenly passes judgment," he said.

The danger lies in the machinations of those persons who have a philosphy that is patterned after the doctrine of government to which Hilter and Mussolini subscribe. They would have us believe that what is in reality the stronges' barrier between the maintenance of individual rights and their destruction by arbitrary power is actually the last obstacle that lies between a distraught people and its attainment of Utopia.

These persons fear to submit the worth of their proposals to the sound economic sense of the American people. Instead it is suggested that the court be packed with judges responsive to the demands of political leadership and that the tribunal be shorn of its present form.

AMERICAN LEGION POSTPONE MEETING UNTIL FEB. 14TH

The American Legion Post Commanders' and Adjutants' Conference, scheduled to be held in Montgomery, on January 10th, has been postponed until Sunday, February 14th.

The National Commander is spending the week of February 13-19 in the Southern Departments. All Alabama Legionnaires are invited to attend the Conference on the 14th of February, to meet and hear the man who is leading the American Legion in 1937.

TOLL OF 449 LIVES TAKEN ON ALABAMA HIGHWAYS IN 1936

Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 31.—Highway accidents took a toll of 449 lives in Alabama during 1936, statistics from the State Highway Patrol showed Thursday.

Traffic crashes also put 349 persons in the hospital with serious injuries, and another 823 with slight hurts, the records showed.

Alabama motorists spent $172,191.50 on highway smashups in damaged cars and hospital bills.

Captain Potter Smith, of the highway patrol, said Health Department statistics showed 502 traffic fatalities, but pointed out that this difference was due to the fact that all deaths from highway accidents were included in the department's figures, whether or not the accident occurred in Alabama. Statistics for the highway patrol listed Alabama accidents only.

Captain Smith said he was opposed to the present state law which does not set a speed limit on Alabama highways.

Fifty miles an hour is fast ough for anybody to drive, he sai Faster than that, a motorist can control his car in an emergency.

The law says as long as a car is driven reasonable and prudently it may go at any speed. But it is neither reasonable nor prudent to drive at 60 or 70 miles an hour.

Peoples Bank Has Passed Million Mark

County's Oldest Financial Institution Is Justly Proud of its Long Record of Service

The Peoples Savings Bank is this week issuing a statement as of December 31, 1936, and in this statement is found a row of figures establishing a precedent in Chilton County. It goes over the one million mark for the first time in its history, and even for the first time in the banking history of Chilton County. To be exact, the total of the bank's resources is $1,021,378.60.

And in establishing this precedent in banking in Chilton County, it might not be amiss to retrospect a little and review some of the high spots in the past life of the institution, covering thirty-six years.

The Peoples Savings Bank has the distinction of being the pioneer financial institution of Chilton County, it having opened for business as the first and only bank in Chilton County on December 7th, 1901. Mr. W. E. Holloway was the first president, followed in 1904 by W. T. Callen. Mr. Callen remained at the head of the bank until 1922, when his son, Frank Callen, stepped into his father's shoes. The same sound financial principles were carried on as before.

In 1926 Mr. H. G. Boyd, a banker of much experience, became president, and these sound and well-grounded banking principles which had become synonimous with the Peoples Savings Bank continued on under the new head. Again in 1930 the presidency was given to Frank Callen, who has held it ever since.

Early in 1935 officials of the bank decided their facilities were inadequate for present-day needs, and set out to make necessary amends. The needed additions were provided by the building of a new home, which had its opening on Thursday, October 10, 1935. That day was made visitors day, and about two thousand people inspected the new home of the institution. There were visitors from the states of Tennessee and Kentucky to inspect the beautiful and impressive building. Six hundred cold drinks were served visitors during the day.

The present officers of Peoples Savings Bank are: F. J. Callen, president; N. S. Johnson, vice president; H. G. Heflin, cashier; W. L. Smith, assistant cashier. The Board of Directors are: N. S. Johnson, H. S. Shaw, H. G. Heflin, W. L. Popwell, F. J. Callen and G. C. Harris.

Clanton and Chilton County are proud of the Peoples Savings Bank and of the important part it has played in the development of the county. "Safe Since 1901" has been established as the slogan, and that is a mighty good one. To say that no person has had just right to refute the words of this slogan, is the least that can be said of Peoples Savings Bank, which means much toward the building of such a sound and trustworthy financial institution.

The Union-Banner is proud to carry the announcement to the public of the Peoples Savings Bank by which another precedent by be established, to write its total of assets in excess of The one million mark has been reached by a financial institution in Chilton County.

SOUTHERN SEED & PLANT CO. WILL CONTINUE TO OPERATE

The Southern Seed & Plant Company, of which Evan Parrish was operator, will continue to do business about the same as before the death of Mr. Parrish. The business will be run by Mrs. Parrish, assisted by her brother, Julian Evans. Julian has been working at the place for the past two years. About the same help will be used in the store as heretofore.

FIELD SCOUT EXECUTIVE WILL SPEAK IN CLANTON

Reese Mullins, Jr., scoutmaster of Clanton troop, announces that on Monday night, January 11th, at seven o'clock Mr. C. G. Lackey will conduct investiture service for scouts of Clanton troop at the city hall. Mr. Lackey is field scout executive of this district.

Also at this meeting badges and registration cards will be given out. An invitation is extended to everybody, and parents of scouts are especially urged to attend.

Mr. Mullins has been doing a splendid work for the troop here during the three or four months that he has been scoutmaster, for which efforts he is to be highly commended. This is a fine work for the growing youth, and it is fine that somebody like Mr. Mullins takes such active interest in the work.

Bro. Quarles, from the State Department of Education and Training, will be with us, and we are expecting some wonderful things from him. Also, officers for the year beginning April 1 will be selected at this meeting. We trust that you will have every Union in this Association represented at this meeting.—J. L. Yates.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by J. W. Fant, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County

THE FARM HOME

Facts of the farm home, it's people and the part each of us play in the world today as they should be known.

In the beginning, let me say each of us are just a part of this great universe, like the sky dotted with stars, so are the homes and our families. We make the homes beautiful and welcoming with sunshine or dreary and merely a place to eat and sleep. Through this great organization of ours, the home demonstration clubs, we have never before had so great a chance to be happy and successful.

By belonging to a home demonstration club, attending leadership meetings and working cooperatively we learn each others ideas and get the knowledge of how to beautify our homes and surroundings, how to arrange the furniture properly, how to feed the family properly, how to can, to cook and to sew, to save and spend our money advantageously.

Picture to your self a visit—come with me and let's go into the homes of those who are active club members and those who have never belonged to the clubs. Notice the difference in the woman's conversation, her dress, her outlook on life. The club woman is a thrifty person. We have our department of agriculture, which spends thousands of dollars in each state of the United States to give the men, women, boys and girls this simplified information, to those who may never get to attend college and who may be an outstanding success if they will use their time to best advantage. Practice reading so much daily, practice what they have learned through their reading, through their club and through their daily experiences.

Since life is what we make it let's work with an understanding, let's fight for what is right, let's keep our homes the most sacred place on earth, let's keep and bind our families with that beautiful bond of love and understanding so that when the children leave their fireside they will not be careless and negligent, they will not let this wonderful family spirit divide and lose its honor it's pride, it's strength. Let's not have our country weakened by the common law marriages, let's not have our boys and girls of tomorrow with loose morals, low principles, but let's fight for what is right. Let's strive to build such a strong foundation that the homes of tomorrow will have so strong a foundation that even through the storms of troubles and trials comes sweeping in we can sit steady and comfortably knowing that we are doing our duty, that we are worshippers of a true and living God and not mere idols.—Meta E. Grace, Home Demonstration Agent.

FARM CREDIT MEETINGS BEING HELD IN THE STATE

The first meeting was held in Bay Minette, Saturday, January 2; the second at Ozark on Monday, January 4; the third in Auburn, Tuesday, January 5; the fifth at Anniston, Wednesday, January 6; and the remaining meetings are being held at Huntsville, Thursday, January 7; Russellville, Friday, January 8; Demopolis, Saturday, January 9; and Montgomery, Monday, Jonuary 11.

Farmers attending the meetings are advising with production credit officials on ways of improving and expending credit loans.

COMMITTEE IS HOLDING FARM TENANCY MEETINGS

Auburn, Ala.—Five regional hearings are being held this week and next by President Roosevelt's committee on farm tenancy in an effort to find ways of solving the farm tenancy problem.

The first meeting was held in Dallas, Texas, Monday, January 4; the second in Montgomery, Ala., Wednesday, January 6; and the other three will be held in Indianapolis, Ind., on Thursday, January 7; in Lincoln, Neb., Saturday, January 9; and in San Francisco, Cal., on Tuesday, January 12.

The committee plans to submit its report and recommendations to President Roosevelt by February 1.

ALABAMA'S 1936 CROPS VALUED AT $165,499,000

Auburn, Ala.—Crops valued at $165,499,000 were produced by Alabama farmers in 1936. This is an increase of 20.8 per cent over the $137,017,000 worth of crops produced in 1935.

The average farm value of crops harvested per acre in 1936 was $20.76 compared with $17.44 in 1935, reports J. C. Garrett, state and federal agricultural statistician.

Average crop yields in Alabama this year, based on averages of 33 important crops, were the fourth best in the United States, being exceeded only by Mississippi, Lousiana, and South Carolina.

The friends of Mrs. Horton Walker regret to know that she is ill at her home on the Maplesville highway.

Miss Sara Colley, Reese, Ed and John Mullins were visitors in Montgomery Sunday.

Tisdale Brooks of Andalusia returned to Tuscaloosa, where he is a sophomore at the University, after spending several days here with Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hayes.

FARMERS COOPERATING IN CONTROLLING EROSION

Auburn, Ala.—Farmers in demonstration projects and camp areas of the Soil Conservation and Extension Service in Alabama have signed cooperative agreements to put into effect erosion-control practices on a total of 307,118 acres, according to O. C. Medlock, acting State coordinator.

The purpose of these demonstration areas, Medlock explained, is to give farmers in the entire section represented by each area an opportunity to see these methods in actual operation on the farms of cooperators under conditions similar to those found on their own farms.

FARM TENANCY

Two of every three farmers in Alabama are tenant farmers. One of every five farmers in Alabama has less than $400 a year income, including the value of goods produced and consumed at home, on which to support his family.

Between 1930 and 1935 the total number of tenant farmers in Alabama increased from 166,000 to 176,000. And in this period thousands of Alabama farms were lost to their owner-operators through mortgage foreclosure and delinquent tax actions.

These are high spots of the farm tenancy situation in Alabama as the federal government takes hold of the problem in a serious way—putting farm tenancy on the spot before President Roosevelt's special committee at Montgomery, Wednesday, January 6.

Appointed by the President last November, this committee was charged with the duty of determining the course the governent may take in a long term program to eliminate the evils of the system of tenancy that for half a century has proved itself harmful to tenant and landlord alike. Its prevalent at a high rate not only in the South but in all other agricultural areas. It is recognized by the President and his committee as a nat- and not a sectional problem. ad not a sectioal problem.

BRIEF FARM FACTS

The American Farm Bureau Federation endorses the efforts being made by the Tennessee Valley Authority toward the production of new types of prosphatic and nitratic fertilizers in an effort to lower costs to farmers of plant food production and to produce improved products, particularly any product of high plant food concentration.

Setting out black walnut seedlings, or planting the nuts in fertile spots about over the farm, is a profitable investment, reports Lyle Brown, extension forester, in pointing out that there is always a strong demand for black walnut timber and the nuts are valuabe for home use and for sale.

Rural fires in recent years have taken annually an average toll of 3,500 lives and piled up a property loss estimated at $100,000,000.

Every sheep brought into the flock should be inspected for scabies and certified by a competent inspector, warns the Bureau of Animal Husbandry in advising that sheep scab mites are usually brought into a healthy flock on community bucks, feeder sheep, and other new animals.

It now seems possible that cattle tuberculosis—which once cost farmers millions of dollars a year—will eventually disappear from all dairy and beef cattle herds in the United States.

FRUITS NEED PLANTING BEFORE HEAVY RAINS

Auburn, Ala.—Fruit plants should be put out before heavy spring rains begin so that the soil will be firmly settled around the roots by the time the weather warms up enough for growth to begin in the spring, advises Hubert Harris, instructor in horticulture at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

It is very important that trees be set in a good location, he further advises. Plants set near the farmstead should not be put in too close competition with shade trees.

Where fruit trees are set the soil should be at least fairly fertile, and it should have a fairly deep, rather heavy and well-drained sub-soil.

MT. PLEASANT SWAMPS THOMAS JR., 43-7

The Mt. Pleasant Yellow Jackets continued their winning ways recently when they swamped Thomas Jr., Yellow Jackets by the lop-sided score of 43 to 7.

Coach Curlee's Jakets built up an early lead, and then a whole sub team took the court. Melton led the Jackets with 12 points, although in the game only a small part of the time. Every man on the Jacket team got a chance, and gave a good account of themselves.

Thomas Jr., put a scrapping team on the floor, but they were helpless before the air-tight defensive game the Jackets put up. Wilson scored four of his team's seven points with two field goals, Rollan scored a field goal, and Brown got a 1-pointer from the foul line, to finish their scoring.

Coach Burt Curlee has one of the smoothest working Junior combinations it has ever been our pleasure to watch in operation. In basketball there are things that a team must have—good passing, an eye for the basket, and a tight defense, together with speed and deception, and the Jackets are replete in all these departments.

So far this season the Jackets have lost only one game, and that to the strong Mitchell Dam Cardinals. And the Cardinals have plenty of respect for the Mt. Pleasant Jackets, according to their own statement.

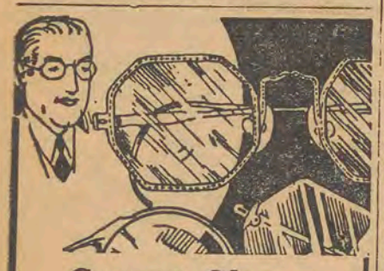
BOB JONES



COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

The doctrine of the new birth should be emphasized in the modern world. Jesus said, "Except a man be born again he cannot see the kingdom of God." It is absolutely impossible for unregenerated man to apprehend the supernatural. After Elijah was translated the world inquired, "Where is Elijah?" Elisha was in position to tell them. He saw Elijah go to heaven. Elisha apprehended the supernatural. No man can be a prophet of God who is unable to apprehend the supernatural in God's universe. No man can even see the kingdom of God unless he is born again. The opinion of worldly-wise men about spiritual things has no value. An unconverted banker may know the laws of banking. A lawyer who is not a Christian may know the principles of law. A Godless astronomer may be able to measure the distance between stars but only saved people can understand things in the realm of the supernatural.

The new birth is absolutely necessary for three reasons. First, no man can understand God unless he is born again. Nicodemus reached certain intelligent conclusions about Jesus. He said, "We know you are a teacher from God. No man could do these miracles that thou doest except God be with him." Nicodemus was an intelligent man. He knew that Jesus was doing what nobody else could do, therefore, he concluded there must be some unseen power back of him. Unconverted men reconize the fact that back of this universe there was a God. "Who made those?" asked Napoleon as he pointed to the stars one night. Even wicked men must come to the conclusion that back of the universe there is a creative power. But no man can understand God except those who have divine life. They call God "Father." Second, no man can obey God unless he is born again. Unregenerated man cannot keep the ten commandments. No man in his own strength has ever kept them. Remember, sin is in the nature of the heart. You can put a man in jail and keep him from killing someone, but you can't keep him from being a murderer at heart. Men are not made good by law. They are restrained by law. Men are made good by the grace of God and by the power of the new birth. Third, no man can please God unless he is born again. We read much in the Word of God about the flesh. Flesh in the Bible means mans natural unregenerated state. "All of our righteousness is as filthy rags." When we are born again we have a new nature. We have the nature of God imparted to us. Then we can please God. No unregenerated man by any good deed can please God.

We may judge the importance of a Bible truth by the number of times we find the truth mentioned in the Word of God. When God says a thing one time it is just as true as if He said it one thousand times, but it is most important when God repeats His statement concerning a truth. The Bible says that Jesus was born of a virgin. That is clear and explicit. However, the Bible does not put very great emphasis on the birth of Jesus. The Bible emphasizes the death of Jesus. The truth about His birth is as genuine as the truth about His death. However, Jesus came to die. That is what He said. "For this hour came I into the world." Jesus should have known why He came to this earth. Modernism emphasizes the ethics of Jesus, the life of Jesus, the teachings of Jesus. Orthodoxy emphasizes the death of Jesus. Before Jesus died He set up an ordinance. We call it the Lord's supper. He asks His Church to celebrate the Lord's supper until He comes again. In other words, Jesus says, "Don't let them forget that I died." We celebrate Christmas, but Jesus did not tell us to celebrate His birth. He did tell His Church not to forget and not to let the world forget that He died.

Why was the virgin birth necessary? Couldn't God have come into this world some other way if He had wanted to? That is what the modernists say. I suppose God could have come into the world any way He wanted to come, but He chose to come into the world by way of the body of a virgin. "What difference does it make? somebody asks, whether He was born of a virgin or not? Here is the difference. The Bible says He was born of a virgin. If He was not born of a virgin, the Bible misrepresents the facts about the birth of Jesus and the Bible is supposed to be an authoritative birth, how can we believe what it says about the Sermon on the mount? How can we believe what it says about His miracles? How can we believe what the Bible says about anything else? "I except Jesus for my authority," some modernists say. "The Sermon on the Mount is my religion," other modernists reply. All right, the same writer who records the Sermon on the Mount says that Jesus was born of a virgin. The modernists accept what the writer says that Jesus said in His Sermon on the Mount, yet the same modernists refuse to except what the same writer says about the birth of t... preacher whose sermon the ... quotes. How Much Is A Million Dollars? How Long Is Thirty-Five Years?

On December 7, 1936, this bank was THIRTY-FIVE years old. Can you visualize the changes that have taken place in this period? In 1901 William McKinley was president of the United States. Theodore Roosevelt, Taft, Wilson, Harding, Coolidge, Hoover and Franklin D. Roosevelt have followed. In 1901 the United States was emerging from the after effects of the war with Spain. Time has passed, depressions have come and gone, the world has gone through the worst war in its history. In Clanton in the year 1901 there were three brick buildings, no paved streets or sidewalks, no automobiles, no water works, no electric lights, no radios. There was one bank in Chilton County, a little bank in a little village. The village has become a city, the bank has grown with it and has become an institution of total resources of a MILLION DOLLARS. The growth of the community is reflected in the growth of the bank. The figures in the statement below show a new all time high mark for Chilton County Banks. This statement is the first ever to be published by a Chilton County Bank showing total resources of a MILLION DOLLARS. How much is a MILLION? Place a million dollars end to end and they will reach five hundred thousand feet, almost one hundred miles A path of one dollar bills reaching from Birmingham to Montgomery would be quite a stretch of cash. Naturally we are proud of the PEOPLES SAVINGS BANK and we feel that you, too, are proud of the fact that Chilton County has a million dollar institution. The officers, directors and stockholders do not deserve the credit. It is you good people who, by your achievement through the years, have made it possible. We have only guided the bank's policy, it has taken your efforts to build the community, to build the agricultural and industrial interest of Chilton County and to build its banks. The bank is a public servant, if the community prospers, the bank prospers. We contend that our community has prospered. The figures in the statement show that this bank has prospered. We publish below our first statement, Dec. 31, 1901, and our current statement, December 31, 1936; compare them.

CARD OF THANKS

God, in His infinite wisdom, saw fit to take from us our husband and father. The loss of our loved one, and our bereavement is most difficult to bear, but we wish to take this means to express from the bottom of our hearts the appreciation we feel so keenly, for the efforts of our friends in their words and deeds of kindness, and their helpfulness when we needed them most. This friendship and kindness will ever linger in our hearts as the years go by, and we pray that God will bless each of you for extending a helpful hand and sympathetic heart to us in this hour.—Mrs. Evan Parrish and Helen.

POLITICS' PET FALLS DOWN

Theoretically, municipally owned electric plants should be able to undersell private plants by a wide margin. Municipal plants are free from almost all taxes—private plants are among the heaviest taxed of industries and pay various special taxes in addition to regular taxes. Municipal plants generally escape state regulation — private plants are regulated most comprehensively. A large number of municipal plants are publicly subsidized, directly or indirectly—a private system receives no subsidies, but, on the contrary, must pay heavy taxes, and also make both ends meet or go bankrupt.

Yet, according to a breakdown of Federal Power Commission statistics made by Robert C. Cleminson, municipal rates are almost invariably higher than private rates.

Taking the United States as a whole, municipal plants undersell private plants in but one consumption bracket, 25 KWH per month, and then by but a margin of 8 cents. This amount of electric usage is far below the average family's.

For 40 KWH per month, the municipal plants charge an average of $3.21 as against $3.20 for private systems. For 100 KWH, they charge $5.73 as against $5.47. For 250 KWH—a consumption which permits the use of a few labor saving devices—the municipal plants charge $11.01 where the private companies charge $9.38. So it goes, with the difference in favor of private systems mounting with higher consumption.

In some states, the private utilities undersell the municipal plants in all brackets, even the unimportant one of 25 KWH monthly.

Here, certainly is the answer to the charge that the private power industry charges excessive rates. Thiugh it is heavily taxed and stringently regulated, it manages to consistently undersell its untaxed and unregulated competitor!

The new Russian constitution seems to give the Russian voters political freedom so long as they vote the Communist ticket.

RADICALS ARE ON THEIR WAY

In spite of the fact that they claim to have been a major factor in bringing about the November New Deal landslide, the radical groups, including the Farmer-Labor party, are not entirely satisfied. They are planning for something bigger and better. Minnesota is the native, or at least the adopted home of the Farmer-Laborites. The following editorial in the Minneapolis Tribune under the caption: "Third Party in the Making," is therefore especially interesting:

"Promoters of a national Farmer-Labor party are taking nothing for granted. They are making ready to launch the movement on a grand scale, regardless of the attitude of the Democratic party on issues.

"It is quite evident that the New Deal falls far short of satisfying the leftists who supported President Roosevelt in the late campaign. Their determination is either to force the New Dealized Democratic party further to the left, or else to step out with their independent movement and leave the Democrats flat.

"President Roosevelt went a long way to placate such leftist elements as Mayor La Guardia, John L. Lewis, the La Follettes, and the Farmer-Labor party of Minnesota. His design, unmistakably, is to hold them and to fuse them into a reformed Democratic party.

"With the left wingers, however, loyalty was limited to the 1936 campaign. They are 'raring to go' by themselves next time, and have little confidence in the remaking of the Democratic party into a permanent element of economic liberalism."

Along with these statements come reports from New York of action taken by the prominent Socialists looking toward further co-operation with the Farmer-Labor group in the 1938 congressional elections. The National Executive Committee of the Socialist party met recently at the home of Norman Thomas, many-time candidate for president, and in a statement expressed willingness for the creation of a Farmer-Labor party on a nation-wide scale. The Socialists, it was said, would participate in the movement even though they maintained their party independence. On the political situation the statement said:

"On the political field the near future is likely to see the launching of numerous local or state Farmer-Labor movements. Such movements are among the mass organizations within which Socialists must be prepared to work. For the past 15 years it has been the settled policy of the Socialist party that it stands ready to take part in the organization and operation of such Farmer-Labor parties, provided that they are definitely divorced from all connections with capitalist parties and their candidates and seem likely to command the support of significant sections of the masses of the workers.

"The time is now at hand for Socialists to put this policy into effect. Where genuine Farmer-Labor parties are projected, Socialists should make every effort to secure the right of federated membership for the Socialist party."

The radicals seem to be on their way. Where they will go, nobody knows.

The average motorist pays more in taxes for the first year's use of a light automobile than his insurance bill on that same car. It has been estimated that taxes on such a car cost the owner more than $62 during the first year.

MACHINES AND JOBS

The American automobile industry offers refutation of the theory that the machine age imperils the security of labor.

William J. Cameron of the Ford Motor Company reveals that building of an automobile requires the labor of more men than the same job required seven years ago.

Specifically, it takes the services of 98 men to put out an automobile in 1937 whereas 74 men did it in 1929.

The reason, according to Mr. Cameron, is: "The new cars take more fitting, more finishing, more time and better work in every way because they are better cars."

At the same time these better cars, offered at better prices, are giving the buyers more value for their money than ever before. There is no reason to doubt that this experience will be duplicated throughout the employing industries of the nation.

Belief that machines will eventually do all the work, and that production by human hands and brains will dwindle accordingly, is the refuge of the hopeless and helpless.

History has proved, and will prove again, that inventive genius provides work for men to do. The menace of technological unemployment has been vastly exaggerated, as the automobile industry so effectively proves.

It is a matter of industrial history that more efficient production opens up new fields of employment. It has done that in all periods of industrial history in America. And it will continue to do it.—The Washington Herald.

INTOLERABLE!

Writing in the New York Herald Tribune, Nicholas Roosevelt recently said: "If the tax problem is to be solved a nation-wide re-appraisal of the functions of government, local and state, as well as national, is necessary. In particular do we need a careful study of all proposed expenditures, and their classification into compulsory and secondary categories. Obviously, such expenditures as the salaries of school teachers, policemen and other public servants cannot be cut. But equally obviously many millions of dollars are being spent by government for unnecessary purposes. These expenditures should be reduced or eliminated.

"The process will be painful, but until it is faced, there can be no hope for reduced taxes. And so long as taxes remain at their present high levels the average man and woman will be devoting nearly two months of each year's work to earning money to pay taxes to support politicians. This is clearly intolerable."

In other words, we must do something beside talk about taxes—we must act. We must approach the problem scientifically and logically. We must demand that our representatives in public office follow the path of economy, efficiency and fiscal reason.

There is hope that the next congress will attack the problem of federal taxation and expenditures with a view both to reducing the cost of government, and more wisely allocating the money spent. It is proper that congress take the lead in such a vital program—and then all other units of government should fall in.

While executive salaries and bonuses in American industry amount to only 3 per cent of total payrolls, taxes on the same companies average 34 per cent of payrolls, a recent study by the National Association of Manufacturers disclosed.

less than 1 per cent of the workers in manufacturing industries are under 16 years of age.

Nearly three-quarters of all child labor in the fields of agriculture, forestry, fishing and mining. Communication, transportation and trade account for 9 per cent; 7 per cent are in the domestic service and 3 per cent in professional or clerical jobs.

These figures bear out what enlightened industrialists have long known—that the great bulk of American industry is unalterably opposed to child labor and that American industrialists have freely and without compulsion steadily reduced the number of minors employed in manufacturing plants.

In spite of the fact that less than 1 per cent of manufacturing workers are children, the job of doing away with child labor is not finished. Industry has taken its stand without equivocation on this point and will not rest until the figure is even further reduced.

MAKING THE RULES

May congress abdicate or transfer its lawmaing power?

Article I of our Constitution gives congress, and congress only, the power to make laws.

Congress, representing the people, cannot transfer this power to others. But while it must set the limits, it need not prescribe the details of administering the law. The Supreme Court interprets this liberally when it declares, "We have repeatedly recognized the necessity of adapting legislation to complex conditions involving a host of details with which the national legislature (congress) cannot deal directly . . . . .

"The Constitution has never been regarded as denying to congress the necessary powers of flexibility and practicality, which will enable it to perform its function in laying down policies and establishing standards while leaving to selected instrumentalities the making of subordinate rules within prescribed limits and the determination of facts to which the policy as declared by the legislature is to reply."

In short, congress may leave details to others. But congress itself must set down the rules, establish the standards, prescribe the limits and provide the penalties. It cannot transfer these essentials of law-making to one man nor to a bureau not directly answerable to the people in periodic elections as are the members of congress.

Our first prophecy of 1937—British historians of the future will speak of 1936 as the year of the three kings.

A lot of folks thing a man is a standpatter if he minds his own business and leaves other people's business alone.

24,000 LIVES

There could have been saved 24,000 lives and nearly a million injuries between 1926 and 1935 had the national trend in motor vehicle accidents kept pace with the reductions made in states having standard drivers' license laws, according to the National Safety Council.

This conclusion is reached in a new study of license regulations, entitled "Saving Lives Through a Drivers' License Law," prepared by the Council for free distribution.

Here is irrefutable evidence that the human element, not the mechanical, weather or any other agency, is the principal cause of highway slaughter. In many states without adequate drivers' laws—and unless such laws are periodically overhauled to keep pace with changing conditions they are almost certainly inadequate — persons who are congenitally careless and incompetent have accident after accident, and they keep on driving. Furthermore, almost anyone can get a license to drive, irrespective of his qualifications.

The standard drivers' license law, which has been adopted by a number of states, does not demand too much. It simply requires that no one shall drive an automobile who is physically or mentally incapable of operating it safely—and that all drivers shall, through tests, show that they are reasonably competent to handle a car, and have a good knowledge of traffic laws and regulations. Also, a sound drivers' law must provide for the automatic revocation of licenses of motorists who refuse to abide by traffic rules, or who are continually involved in accidents.

The cold statistics prove that a modern license law will save lives and property. Every state should have such a law.

MEETING THE REAL LANDON

Gov. Landon did a perfectly natural thing when he accepted an invitation to attend the Gridiron dinner in Washington last week. And during his stay in Washington, he conducted himself in a perfectly natural manner. Free of counsel and cross-counsel, and of the responsibility of a party standard bearer, he bore himself as Alf M. Landon, and as Alf M. Landon he captivated all of Washington.

The praise the governor is receiving must surprise him. Laurels are being tossed at him all over the land for sportsmanship, dignity of bearing, and perfect taste. This must surprise him, because, for the first time in a long while, the governor was being just himself.

If the plaudits persuade him in any future political activity to follow his own judgment primarily in what he says and does, then the Gridiron dinner will have served a purpose even more useful than demonstrating to a censored, dictated world how American contestants for the highest office can accept the people's verdict in fraternal peace, and then sit down to laugh at a satire on themselves.

For the personal impression gained of Mr. Landon in this conspicuous instance was that he is in every way a citizen of great public value, and, as himself, can serve his country usefully and well. This is said without reference to any future presidential aspirations the governor may have.

It was the morning after his heavy defeat by the president that Mr. Landon was invited to attend the Gridiron dinner. He replied that he had always wanted to go, and would particularly like to do so on this occasion if the idea was entirely agreeable to the president. It was. Mr. Landon came.

Throughout an evening in which—being personally a stranger to most of his fellow guests and the fresh victim of a political disaster—he was the center of interest and appraisal, the governor was completely admirable. As a man, the Republicans were proud of him. And as a man, the Democrats liked him immensely.

Mr. Landon stood quietly as individuals and groups came up to shake his hand, or chat, or listen to what he and others were saying. He smiled when a smile was due, and often when he was speaking — a modest, unusually winning smile. When his face was in repose, there was a look upon it which can best be described as pleasant.

His voice in conversation is agreeable — wholly unlike the tones that came over the radio. He remembers those whom he should remember, and astonishes others by recalling almost chance meetings, saying when and where they occurred. His glance is direct and clear.

In every private attribute, the governor of Kansas revealed while in Washington there was an explanation for the devotion of his old friends and the personal enthusiasm of those who met him for the first time during the campaign.

Gridiron speeches are made under the rule, and of the content of Mr. Landon's speech, as of the president's, the club permits no publication. But it is within the rule ("reporters are never present") to say that the governor spoke easily, wittily and like a sportsman, and by no means came off second best in comparison on the Gridiron formula with the president himself.

The level-headed man of business, so publicized during the campaign, was also dfeinitely to be seen. But the "country boy" of equal propagandizing, was not here. Here was a cultivated, well-groomed, socially experienced American gentleman of the best type. All of this was no surprise to those who knew the governor or even had met him before. But some of it was a pleasing revelation to those who knew Mr. Landon only through the medium of the newspaper, newsreel, radio or campaign pamphlet.

There are very many men in the United States with qualifications such as his fellow diners and those who chatted with the governor that evening were able superficially to note as among his own. There are doubtless a few who could have carried off as well an occasion where false self-consciousness, bad taste or complexity of disposition would have been fatal. But none could have done it better than Mr. Landon. And the demonstration which has drawn widespread praise, both public and private, was made through performing the simple act of being himself.

Enough and more than enough has by this time been written and said about the democratic spirit implicit in the entire Roosevelt-Landon incident of last week. Certainly the foreign diplomats who came and saw and listened were duly impressed. Some of them thought well of the spirit and its revelation; others were merely entertained, and probably some were disapproving.

But it might be noted in passing that the episode solved one puzzle presented by the campaign: the "American way" has publicly been demonstrated and revealed as the equal possession of both the recent major candidates for the presidency.

SALES TAX PASSAGE EXPECTED

Montgomery, Jan. 4. — With the legislature back at work after their holiday recess, several solons, including one prominent administration leader, Rep. George O. Miller, of Sumter, indicated the lawmakers might agree to demands that a 2 per cent general sales tax be substituted for the 1½ per cent gross receipts levy which became operative January 1.

Rep. Miller, one of the governor's House leaders, said merchants of his county as well as hundreds throughout the state have expressed preference of the outright sales levy to the gross receipts tax.

"In fact," he added, "many business men have suggested raising the rate to 5 per cent and at the same time abolish all ad valorem taxes."

Rep. Lee Hanks, of Talladega, expressed similar views.

Commenting on declarations by merchants in scattered sections of the state that they would refuse to pay the gross receipts tax, several lawmakers recalled that similar statements were made several years ago when the tobacco tax was enacted. It may also be recalled that merchants of Mississippi raised an awful howl five years ago when the Mississippi sales tax was proposed, but they actually agreed after the measure was law, and no effort was made to repeal it while the legislature was in session last year.

Most important measures confronting the legislature this week are the substitute repeal bill drafted by a Senate recess committee headed by C. M. A. Rogers, of Mobile, and the homestead exemption measures on the calendars of both houses.

After years of bickering, the wets have finally made peace in their ranks as indicated by formal statements of Sen. Archie McDowell, of Barbour, and Sen. Ike Dorsey, of Lee, that they were willing to abandon their opposition to certain features of the state store liquor bill and join their colleagues in rushing through any reasonable sort of repeal measure.

Lesson for January 10

NEW LIFE IN CHRIST

LESSON TEXT—John 3:1-17.

GOLDEN TEXT—Verily, verily, I say unto thee, Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God.—John 3:3.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Answering a Man's Question.

JUNIOR TOPIC — the Most Important Question.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How the Christian Life Begins.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—New Life in Christ.

The only entrance into the Christian life is by the door of the new birth. Regeneration is the act of God whereby the divine nature is imparted to the believing sinner and he becomes the child of God. He who has not entered by this way has not entered at all. He is still dead in trespasses and sins, without God and without hope (Eph. 2:1, 12).

Men are seeking to enter the household of God by almost any other means—culture, reform, character building—and are neglecting God's way. This lesson should therefore be studied and taught with earnest prayer that this foundation truth may lay hold upon the hearts of the hearers of the Word. Let no one who is not born again attempt to teach it to others, lest the blind attempt to lead the blind, and both fall into the ditch (Luke 6:39).

The coming of Nicodemus to our Lord took place at the time when he was in Jerusalem for the Passover. Jesus had chosen six of his disciples, had been at Cana of Galilee, where he performed his first miracle, and had made a brief visit to Capernaum, after which he came to Jerusalem for the feast. In high and holy indignation he had driven the money changers out of the temple. The Pharisees who looked for the coming of the Messiah as a secular conqueror wondered at this new spiritual leader. It was probably as much on their behalf as his own that Nicodemus came to inquire of Jesus. In answering his questions Jesus reveals the necessity, the nature, and the method of regeneration—in other words, the Why, What, and How of the New Birth.

I. Why? (vv. 1-7.)

Jesus was not unduly impressed by the dignity and high station of his visitor, nor by the visitor's courteous acknowledgment of his own position as a great teacher. With decisive boldness Jesus declares that this man, a cultured and distinguished ruler of the Jews, must be born again, if he is to see the kingdom of God.

God is no respecter of persons. This "doctor of divinity" must be born again, just as was the illiterate fisherman. D. L. Moody once said that he was thankful it was to such a man as Nicodemus that Jesus presented the necessity of the new birth—or men would have said that only the down-and-outer needed to be saved.

Two reasons are given by our Lord for the "must" of verse 7: (1) The Kingdom of God is a spiritual kingdom, and cannot be entered by way of our human nature; and (2) "That which is born of the flesh is flesh" and is radically and essentially bad. To learn why the flesh is bad read Jeremiah 13:23, and Galatians 5:19-21.

II. What? (vv. 8-13).

The new birth is a divine mystery, not fathomable by human reason. Those who insist that all spiritual truth be put through the little norm of their intelligence will never understand it or receive its blessing. The striking illustration of the life-giving and energizing wind used by our Lord is most illuminating. Wind is unseen, but the results of its movement are evident.

III. How? (vv. 14-17.)

Just as there was healing and life in a look at the uplifted serpent (Num. 21:8), so there is life for a look at the Crucified One. Faith receives God's perfect provision for sin.

Verse 16 may well be regarded as the greatest sentence in the greatest Book in the world. It presents the whole plan of salvation—its source, its ground, its recipients, its condition, and its result.

This glorious salvation is for all men — "whosoever" — but some reject it. Notice that God does not condemn them. Their own evil works and desires condemn them (vv. 17-20). God in his grace is ready and willing to save, but men love "darkness rather than light"; for their works are evil.

God's Mercy

O God, the whole world is as a drop of morning dew. But Thou hast mercy upon all . . . For Thou lovest all things that are, and abhorest nothing that Thou hast made . . . But Thou sparest all, for they are Thine, O Lord, Thou lover of souls.

Doing Well

He doeth much that doth a thing well. He doeth well that rather serveth the commonwealth, than his own will.—Thomas a Kempis.

SIXTH VICTIM OF BLAZE AT SELMA CLUB SUCCUMBS

Selma, Ala.—Death early today claimed its sixth victim of the fancy dress costume blaze at an exclusive holiday ball here last Tuesday night in which 12 prominent young Selma matrons were severely burned.

The sixth victim to die was Mrs. Fredericka Williams, who succumbed at 1:25 a. m. at Vaughan Memorial Hospital, where her husband, Dr. J. Richard Williams, is house physician.

With the death of Mrs. Williams, two other fire victims were left in hospitals under treatment for serious bruns. They were Mrs. Clarence Agee, whose condition was said to be critical, in Vaughan Memorial Hospital, and Mrs. Lucile Rowell, in King Memorial Hospital.

Funeral services were held yesterday for Mrs. Ed Smith, who died Sunday. Saturday funerals were held for Mrs. Tyler Wilby Cleveland, Mrs. Alston Keith and Mrs. Bernard Reynolds, formerly Miss Belle Heart of Birmingham.

Mrs. T. C. Gayle, the first victim to die, succumbed early Wednesday morning, a few hours after a match struct to light a cigaret had ignited the Russian Cossack costumes of the young women as they lined up for the grand march at the exclusive Phantom Club ball at the Selma Town and Country Club, turning the scene of holiday gayety into one of sudden horror.

Mrs. Williams, daughter of J. C. P. Heinz, leading furniture dealer of Selma and Central Alabama, is survived by her husband, her father and mother, two brothers, Chris Heinz, president of the Exchange Clubs of Alabama, and Melvin Heinz, and a sister, Mrs. Roscoe Hinson.

Funeral services for the latest victim were held at 4 o'clock p. m. Tuesday at the Church Street Methodist Church.

Roosevelt Birthday Ball At City Hall

Thursday Night, January 28th Is Date; Proceeds Go To Paralysis Victims

Announcement is made by Dr. V. J. Gragg, local chairman, that a birthday ball for the president will be held at the city hall in Clanton on Tuesday night, January 28th, from nine until one o'clock.

This ball is being held in connection with similar events that week end all over the country, the proceeds from which goes to the Infantile Paralysis fund.

Seventy cents of every dollar, Dr. Gragg says, will remain in the local community for the treatment and rehabilitation of resident infantile paralysis sufferers under direction of the local birtday ball committee. Thirty cents of every dollar will be turned over to the national committee for delivery to the president, to be presented by him to Warm Springs Foundation. This fund will be used in the national fight against infantile paralysis.

The Bama Skippers have been procured to furnish the music for the occasion. Everybody knows about the Skippers and the way they perform. Ladies will be admitted without charge.

Infantile Paralysis Among most Ancient Diseases

Infantile paralysis, against which modern science wages a courageous but so far not completely victorious battle, is not, as many have supposed, a disease of modern times. It did its fatal work in ancient Egypt and in medieval Europe, according to a survey recently made by Dr. LeRoy W. Hubbard, director of the extension work of the Warm Springs Foundation of New York.

Only in recent years, however, and since the disorder has from time to time reached epidemic proportions in parts of the United States has the medical fight against it been scientifically directed. Medicine in the United States has been assisted by the contributions of the people of the country through the annual birthday balls in honor of Mr. Roosevelt, and this year it is expected further sinews of war will result from the parties to be held on January 30.

In his review of infantile paralysis in ancient and modern times Dr. Hubbard points out that Dr. Clarence Victor Vaughan, the medical historian, found definite traces of the results of the disease in Egyptian mummies.

The first big modern epidemic in the United States, Dr. Hubbard writes, occurred in 1916. It reached every state in the union and struck down more than 25,000 persons, the majority of them children.

The difference between the situation of the Egyptians and that of Americans is that sufferers in 1937 are treated with all the skill of modern science which continues a pointed-up research in an effort to stamp out the disease to the extent of the interest and funds supplied by the public, largely through the President's Birthday Balls.

TRIPLET BLACK WALNUTS

Mr. Charley O. Bell of Lomax reports another set of triplets from his place. A few months ago he brought to the Union-Banner a set of triplet hickory nuts. Last week he brought in a set of triplet black walnuts.

Nature seems to most prolific these days. Children come in fours and fives, and the plant kingdom tries to follow suit. Well, lots of funny things are happening these days.

CHARLEY COX GAVE HOLIDAY PAY TO LOCAL RED CROSS

J. Mell Martin, local disaster relief chairman of the Red Cross, releases the report that Representative C. B. Cox turned over to the Red Cross his check for $56, which he received as pay for fourteen days, on which the State Legislature was recessed for Christmas holidays. It will be recalled that Representative Cox voted against the allotment of this pay when the question was up before the House. Mr. Martin says that, as per Mr. Cox's request, all of the $56 will remain here for local benefit.

Mr. Martin also recounts that this is the largest single contribution that has been turned in to him for the Red Cross.

BASKET BALL GAME AT MITCHELL DAM TONIGHT

There will be a basket ball game at Mitchell Dam tonight, Thursday, January 14th, beginning at 7:30 o'clock. The Mitchell Dam team will play the CCC team from Clanton. An interesting game is anticipated.

Tournament February 13th

It is also announced that the basket ball tournament will be held on Saturday, February 13th. If you are interested in basket ball, you should watch the papers for important announcements regarding approaching games.

NEARLY 15,000 CRATES OF STRAWBERRIES IN 1936 CROP

Revenue Passes $37,000 For Farmers In Vicinity Of Clanton

In a recent report complied by the Clanton Berry Growers Association, for the crop of 1936, it is revealed that 14,914 crates of berries were shipped through the association last year. The revenue derived from the sale of this crop amounted to $37,-113.27.

The berry crop is a great help to the farmers of Chilton county. And the above figures must be only about half of the entire production for the county, as Thorsby must have shipped about as many berries as Clanton. The sale of strawberries is a great boost to the business of the county.

Tom Taylor and O. D. Deloach New Owners; W. F. Irvin Is New Manager

A business deal Monday morning was consummated which affected two of the leading grocery stores and markets of the city, when Clanton Cash Store bought out the Wade Grocery and Market, lock, stock and barrel. The Clanton Cash Store is owned jointly by Tom Taylor and O. D. Deloach.

When everything in connection with the deal is completed, there will be quite a difference in the arrangement of things in the vicinity of Peckerwood corner. Clanton Cash Store has been needing more room for a long time, and this change is going to furnish this much needed addition. Both places will continue to be operated as Clanton Cash Store, merely being two different entrances. The two places will be connected in the rear, since the little Johnson building now occupied by Schmith's Shoe Shop, which extends back of both places, has been rented and will be used as a passage way between the two stores. This building will be used to store feed also.

The new addition to the business will be in the charge of Mr. Floyd Irvin, a veteran in the grocery store and market business. Mr. Irvin has formerly been connected with Taylor Grocery and Market as manager.

The Clanton Cash Store for the past several years has done a tremendous business in groceries, meats and feeds; and this broadneing out will mean a much greater capacity and a much greater business in these lines. The gentlemen behind this concern are business men of the highest integrity, and they have established for themselves a friendship in this community and county that is unsurpassed. Their many friends will be glad to learn of this recent addition, making broader their capacity to serve the trade which they have built up in Clanton.

The personnel in the main store will remain the same as heretofore, but it is not certain what arrangements will be made about the helpers for Mr. Irvin in the new department.

THREE PROBATE CASES TRIED

Three cases were tried by juries in Probate Court, by Judge Smith, Monday and Tuesday. All three were non compos mentis cases; one of which was placed under a guardian, the other two resulting in mistrials.

Funeral Held For Power Co. Official

Pioneer Alabama Electrical Developer Buried In Eufaula Tuesday

Col. Reuben Alexander Mitchell, pioneer in Alabama's electrical development and senior vice-president of the Alabama Power Co., died Sunday at his home in Birmingham, after a lingering illness. He was 84.

Funeral services were held at 11 a. m. Tuesday at Highlands Methodist Church, of which he was a member. Burial in Eufaula at 11:30 a. m. Tuesday.

Colonel Mitchell and his associates built the first line for the transmission of power between cities in the state. It connected Talladega, Anniston and Gadsden.

By the purchase of utility companies in several North Alabama cities and towns, Colonel Mitchell and his associates formed a nucleus for what became one of the key parts of the Alabama Power Co.'s statewide system of distribution.

Colonel Mitchell, a native of Dadeville, was grandson and namesake of Reuben Jordan, who served in the war of 1812 under Andrew Jackson and in the war against the Creek Indains in 1814.

He is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Franklin Harper Elmore of Montgomery; a brother, Sidney Z. Mitchell, New York City; a grandson, Fern Wood Mitchell, student at the University of Alabama.

Dr. Marvin Franklin, pastor of Highlands Methodist Church, conducted services Tuesday, with Wallace C. Johns directing.

Active pallbearers were: Thomas W. Martin, T. D. McGough, Thomas Bragg, O. G. Thurlow, T. D. Johnson, Robert H. Mangum, M. E. Wiggins, M. P. Randall, M. M. Hood, John A. Mitchell and Fern Wood Ham.

A Practical New Year's Resolution

(By Roger W. Babson)

First, let me say that I am not interested in any Church or institution just to keep it alive. Unless it performs a real service, it — like the famous fig tree — should die. There are so many good ways in which to use our time — and of time we have but a very limited amount — that we can do only a fraction of what we would like to do. Furthermore, I do not attend Church primarily to be entertained or even "inspired". An eloquent preacher, an enticing choir, or a beautiful auditorium are all to the good; but they are not essential to me. Certainly no radio or magazine can take the place of any Church with a consecrated minister, priest, or rabbi. Why, then, do I go to Church?

I perhaps go to Church for selfish reasons. I enjoy my Church as I enjoy my daily walk. I never listened to any priest or preacher from whom I could not learn something. I even enjoy a plain service of worship from the Prayer Book without any sermon. Yes, I sometimes attend a Quaker meeting with only silence. But to get good from church going one must make it a habit. It is the systematic daily walks that do us good — not the occasional walk. Church going is like advertising in one way. We must keep constantly and incessantly at it to make it pay! Then we can be guaranteed good dividends. In fact, were I a preacher, I would offer to refund in full the annual subscription to the church of anyone who, after attending 75 per cent of the Sundays, feels that he has not got his money's worth.

There is another reason why I go to some church Service every Sunday. This is to encourage my children and grandchildren to acquire the habit of church going. We oldsters may check out before real trouble comes to our nation. But let me tell you that the younger generations will need to have something more permanent than real estate, bank accounts, insurance, or even democracy. Unless they have a sane spiritual foundation, they are licked. We can do for them far more by setting them an example of church going than by bequeathing them land, securities, or any other property. Moreover, I am just talking hard-boiled common sense. Go to Sunday School with them. Take an active interest in the Young Peoples' Work of your Church. It's the biggest thing you can do for your family.

Finally, I feel that it should lengthen your life to attend some Church Service regularly! When I say this, my business friends laugh at me; while my ministerial friends call me worldly minded for "giving a material reason why people should acquire the church-going habit." However, from many years' study of Church attendance statistics, I am convinced that this habit tends to prolong the lives of regular churchgoers. But do not take my word for it. Study the experience tables of your own denomination. Yes, friends, make a New Year's Resolution to acquire the Church-Going Habit.

—ROGER W. BABSON.

P. S.—One thing more: Use your influence to have your children and grandchildren attend a small college of high standing, one to which your Church denomination contributes. Avoid big colleges, especially those "popular" colleges which have thrown religion out the window.

FINE BOY SCOUTS MEETING HELD HERE MONDAY NIGHT

Scoutmaster Reese Mullins Jr., reports that the local boy scouts troup held an enthusiastic meeting at the city hall Monday night. Mr. Lackey, Scout Executive, was present and conducted the investiture services. Nine boys had passed the tender-foot test, and were issued cards and badges.

BLACKBIRD KILLED WEARING METAL BAND

A blackbird was killed out near Liberty Hill Monday of this week, with an aluminum band around its leg. The band bore a number, and the notation: "Notify Biological Survey."

This band was left with The Union-Banner, and we have mailed in the number to the Biological Survey at Washington, D. C. As soon as the information is returned to us, we will publish what the Survey had to say about the bird. It was turned loose somewhere at some time; that information will be forthcoming.

Rev. J. S. Holland announces his removal this week from Clanton to Pepperell, Ala., which is a cotton mill town out a few miles from Opelika, Ala. Rev. Holland will continue to take care of his churches in Chilton County at Liberty Hill and Mulberry.

The Union-Banner regrets for Clanton to lose Rev. Holland. He has been living in our city now for about two years, and has been preaching at Liberty Hill for ten or twelve years. He has become to seem like one of us in Clanton, and we will miss him. He is a good man and a good preacher.

B. LAWRENCE DOING NICE BUSINESS ON SELMA HIGHWAY

In an interview with Rev. Buford Lawrence this week, it was learned and noticed that he is doing a nice business at his store and feed grinding mill out west of Clanton on the Maplesville road. The store department has had to be enlarged so as to take care of the growing stock that is necessary; and the grist mill and feed grinding machinery are kept busy almost night and day taking care of the constantly increasing orders.

Happy Feed Added

Mr. Lawrence is this week, in a large adv. in The Union-Banner, announcing the addition of the famous "Happy" line of feeds to his stock of goods out there. This line consists of horse feed, dairy feed and chicken feed, and is said to be among the best on the market. Mr. Lawrence is highly pleased to announce that he will carry a full supply of these feeds in the future. This feed is manufactured in Memphis, Tenn.

Mr. Locklear adds: "These new prices are invariably lower than those usually prevailing in Clanton, and we are greatly pleased to pass this saving on to our Clanton customers."

The Clanton A & P store is quoting some few prices in their adv. in The Union-Banner this week. Turn to it and see what they are offering.

LEVINE BROTHERS CONDUCTING CLEARANCE SALE THIS WEEK

The Union-Banner calls attention to the special prices offered by Levine Brothers, the occasion being a clearance sale for Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Messrs. I. S. and Sol Levine say that they are mighty well pleased with their business since opening up the new store. "It has been above our expectations," say Messrs. Levine, "and in view of this, we are filling up our shelves with all kinds of merchandise.

"The time is here to lay in a supply of spring goods, hence the Clearance Sale which we are advertising. We must make room. Already we have in stock what we believe to be the largest line of spring wash dresses in Clanton."

Levine Brothers invite you to come to see them while in Clanton. Read their adv. on the comic section of The Union-Banner. It contains an interesting message this week.

Thos. W. Martin To Be Kiwanis's Guest

Large Crowd In Attendance at Recent Meeting Held on Ladies Night

A total of fifty people attended the Kiwanis meeting last Thursday night, when annual ladies night was observed. The occasion was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

The work of the Club this year is getting started off in a big way, under the management of the new president, Mr. J. W. Fant. The organization is almost perfected, and much good work is anticipated for the year both for Clanton and Chilton County.

Thos. W. Martin To Be Here

An interesting item on the Kiwanis roster in the near future is a visit to the Club of Hon. Thos. W. Martin, president of Alabama Power Company. Mr. Martin will be the honor guest of the Club on or about their first meeting in February, when he will address the members. A number of other citizens of the city will be invited to hear Mr. Martin.

The Union-Banner wishes to congratulate the Club on having Thomas W. Martin as their guest and on procuring him to make an address. It is not often that we have the privilege of hearing a man of Mr. Martin's ability; and we feel that it is a distinct honor to have him visit our fair city.

We people in Chilton County feel very closely related to Alabama Power Company—in fact, we feel that it almost belongs to us, since two of its largest hydro plants are in our county. This in turn causes us to feel a rather close intimacy to its distinguished president. Therefore, we all join in extending Mr. Martin a warm welcome to our county; and we thank the Kiwanis Club for making his visit here possible.

LOCAL CCC BASKETEERS TO PLAY FT. McCLELLAN SATURDAY

The basket ball team of the local CCC camp will play the strong team from the supply company of Fort McClellan on Saturday, January 16, at 2:00 p.m., at Maplesville. This game is expected to be a thriller, as these two teams have had strong competition in the district league.

The locals, after a slow start, have shown wonderful improvement. During the last week they served notice that they will be hard to stop this year. They won four during the past week, including C. C. H. S., Billingsley, and Weogufka Saturday in the initial CCC league game with this team, running over them 51 to 8. The first team was used but a part of two quarters.

Coach Walker is desirous of playing teams here on any nights except Friday and Saturday, as the league games will be played on Saturday.

NEEDY MAY GET NEARLY BILLION

President Sends Request To Congress; Business Again Warned

Washington, Jan. 11.—President Roosevelt asked Congress today for $790,000,000 for relief and related projects in the next five months and warned business again that relief costs can be reduced only by private re-employment.

The President's request for a deficiency appropration to provide funds for the remainder of the fiscal year from Feburary 1 to June 30 was addressed to Speaker Bankhead of the House of Representatives.

The problem of relief has diminished, the President said. He estimated that at the beginning of this winter 6,000,000 more workers were employed in non-agricultural jobs than in March, 1933. He said more than 1,000,000 of these re-employed persons had found jobs with private industry during the last year.

But the President complained that recovery has been accompanied recently by a "tendency toward a longer work week" and he charged that some employers "who are working their employes unreasonably long hours are failing to co-operate with the Government and their fellow citizens in putting people back to work.

The letter to Speaker Bankhead said Bureau of Labor Statistics showed the average industrial work week had increased 20 per cent from 33.3 hours in September, 1934, to more than 40 hours in October, 1936.

It will be necessary this winter to provide employment for 2,580,000 persons, Mr. Roosevelt reported, representing a net reduction of 800,000 from the relief load of 3,400,000 persons provided by the works program of last March.

$77,000,000 Poured Into State Since 1935

The Federal Government poured $77,200,001 into Alabama under the relief acts of 1935 and 1936. There is still $6,162,868 to be expended in the state.

SENSATIONAL OFFER TO BATTERY BUYERS

The B. F. Goodrich Company Representative Here Tells of Guarantee as Long as Owner Drives His Car

The most amazing development in the history of the automobile battery business is now available in Clanton, according to George C. Polk, of the Polk Bros. Motor Co., located at 206 South 6th Street, representatives here of the B. F. Goodrich Company.

"This new battery," declares Mr. Polk, is the leader of our line this fall. We are certain it will interest every motorist in this vicinity. It is the Goodrich Kathanode Electro-Pak, the only battery in the world with the sensational new Kathanode construction and patented power-saving top of the Electro-Pak.

It is gauranteed not to cost the passenger car owner who installs it one cent for repairs or replacement during the entire time he owns the automobile, even if that period be any number of years, or if the car is driven hundreds of thousands of miles.

The long life of the new battery is made possible by the Kathanode principle, previously employed effectively on many special batteries, including those for railway and naval operations, giant power plants and electric trucks. It comes from the use of flexible, porous mats made of finely spun glass placed against both surfaces of the positive plates. These prevent the lead particles in the plate upon which the electrolyte acts from dropping away during normal wear and vibration, and yet permit a free supply of the electrolyte to reach the plate surfaces.

The new Kathanode Electro-Pak batteries are made in four sizes to fit nearly every make and model car.

We also have a stock of Goodrich Kathanode batteries made especially for late model Fords and Terraplanes, which possess the same features as the Electro-Pak, except for the top cover.

Ten Years Of Electrical Progress In Alabama

A Review by Thomas W. Martin, President, Alabama Power Company

TEN YEARS AGO the annual use of electricity per residential customer was only 391 kilowatt hours. The average for the year ending November, 1936, was 1,133 kilowatt hours per residential customer.

Ten years ago the average price per kilowatt hour for residential electric service was over 7½c. The average today is only about 3¼c, and many customers purchase much of their electricity at 1c. The decrease in average price has been 58½%. (Note: The average price declined in EACH of the 10 years.)

Ten years ago we had 4 home economists to assist customers in getting the greatest use at lowest cost from their electrical equipment. Today there are 20 of these talented women at your call.

Ten years ago electric light was just electric light. Today the principles of scientific lighting are embraced in modern lamps—I. E. S. Lamps—and you get more and better light for less money. 22 lighting specialists are at your call. Ten years ago there was none.

Ten years ago electric water heaters were in the experimental stage and expensive to use. Today they provide the accepted method of heating water in thousands of homes and the electricity for operating them comes at the lowest price.

Ten years ago a practical electric dishwasher was the inventor's dream. The clumsy, imperfect models of a decade ago have been perfected, the price is within reach of modest incomes, and the most distasteful and unsanitary of kitchen tasks is doomed to become a thing of the past.

Ten years ago a "modern" electric range cost $150; today a much better range—faster, prettier, more efficient—costs only $75.

Ten years ago 374 miles of rural electric lines served Alabama farms. Today there are 3,850 miles of such lines and 1,000 additional miles will be built during 1937. The number of miles of rural lines has increased each year of the decade—due to this company's long interest in rural electrification.

Ten years ago our taxes amounted to approximately $837,000 for the year, or about $15 per customer. For 1936 they will be about $2,600,000 or about $23 per customer. The average amount of money we receive in a year from residential customers is about $37 each. (More from some; much less from others.)

Ten years ago the huge Martin and Jordan Dams in Tallapoosa and Elmore Counties had not been completed, although construction was in progress. Construction had not yet started on Tallassee and Thurlow Dams. Gorgas No. 2 Steam Plant in Walker County was still in the blueprint stage.

Ten years ago we had already established the policy of lowering rates as often as prudent business judgment would permit; we had established and were pioneers in the electrification of rural Alabama; we were among the few statewide agencies promoting the development of Alabama's agricultural and industrial resources; we had already developed a "grid system" in Alabama and in cooperation with electrical transmission systems in neighboring states.

Many of these things became possibie because imaginative minds in this great industry are constantly at the service of the public.

We look back on this record with justifiable pride, some of which you will perhaps share because these activities have been largely instrumental in making Alabama one of the foremost electrically-minded states in the nation and making simpler and easier many irksome tasks in the home.

We expect to continue these progressive policies, so that ten years from today, you and we may again look back and say, "Well done!"

Lesson for January 17

JESUS THE WATER OF LIFE

LESSON TEXT—John 4:7-26.

GOLDEN TEXT—Whosoever drinketh of the water that I shall give him shall never thirst. John 4:14.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Answering a Woman's Question.

JUNIOR TOPIC—How a Stranger Became a Friend.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Jesus Meets My Greatest Needs.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Jesus Meets Our Deepest Need.

Life, light, water, bread are elemental, fundamental things. Life must come from God. But it can exist only where there is light, and only God gives light.

It is therefore a blessed and significant fact that Jesus was declared to be the life of men. He also says of himself that he is the "light of the world" (John 9:5); "the bread of life" (John 6:35). In our lesson today we see Him as the one who gives "living water" (v. 10).

The incident at Jacob's well in Sychar took place when Jesus, leaving Jerusalem because of increasing hindrance to his work, goes up to Galilee. Unlike his Jewish brethren, who detoured around the land of the hated "half-breed" Samaritans, he "must needs go through Samaria," for there was a sin-sick soul that needed him.

Space will not permit a full consideration of all the beauty and the depth of spiritual truth found in this story.

I. A Sinner Tactfully Approached (vv. 7-15).

Every Christian is by his very calling a soul-winner. We dare not delegate this responsibility to the pastor or missionary. As soul-winners we are vitally interested in our Lord's approach to this woman who was far from God, apparently hopelessly involved in sinful associations, a citizen of a hostile nation and an adherent of another religious faith.

By asking a favor of her he tactfully placed himself (as does any petitioner) for the moment, on her own plane. He was not a distant, learned religious leader deigning to cast a bit of religious philosophy to her. He was a tired, thirsty man asking for a drink of water.

But he was more! He was the gracious Son of God, ready to give the water of life.

II. A Moral Problem Faced (vv. 16-18).

One may speak knowingly of the promises of God's Word, and may understand the "way of salvation," but one will never find peace and joy until there is a frank and open facing of sin in the life. Let us make no mistake at this point, for the moral law of God is the same now as it was on that far-off day when Jesus brought the woman of Samaria face to face with her own sin.

III. A Theological Problem Solved (vv. 19-24).

Possibly in an effort to evade her moral problem by theological discussion (a common practice in our day, too!), and partly because of her ignorance of true worship, she asks a question about a controversial matter relating to outward ceremony. Is it not a singular thing how men who know nothing of spiritual life delight in the propagation and defense of organizations, and in the conduct of outward religious exercises?

True worship is revealed (v. 23) as being (1) "In spirit." We do not cast aside all external helps to worship, but real worship goes through and beyond both place and symbol to real soul-communion with God (2) "In truth." Sham, superstition, hypocrisy, have no place in true worship. We can worship in truth only when we really know the truth. MacLaren rightly said, "The God to whom men attain by any other path than his historical revelation of himself is a dim, colorless abstraction, a peradventure, an object of fear or hope, as may be, but not of knowledge." Truly spoke Jesus — "We know what we worship" (v. 22).

IV. The Messiah Declared (vv. 25, 26;.

Jesus honors this poor fallen woman by making to her his first declaration of himself as the Messiah. He is the high and exalted one, but he is at the same time the friend of sinners. To the learned ruler of the Jews, Nicodemus, he spoke of the new birth. To the poor woman of Samaria he declares his Messiahship.

And she forthright left her water pot and went to bring others to him.

Height of Our Destiny

It is from out of the depths of our humility that the height of our destiny looks grandest. Let me truly feel that in myself I am nothing, and at once, through every inlet of my soul, God comes in, and is everything in me.—W. Mountford.

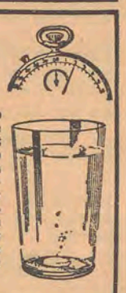
Love and Fears

The warm loves and fears, that swept over us as clouds, must lose their finite character and blend with God, to attain their own perfection. —Emerson.

Mrs. J. B. Tiffin is convalescing at her home, following an operation at St. Margaret Hospital, Montgomery.

BOB JONES

COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.



We read in Proverbs 9:8 "Reprove not a scorner, lest he hate thee: rebuke a wise man, and he will love thee." According to this statement, the test of a man's wisdom is his ability to take a rebuke. Sometime ago the writer wrote an old friend a friendly letter critisizing this friend about certain things of which he is reported to be guilty. The writer appealed to the friend to return unto the Lord and be restored again to the old time Christian fellowship. It happens that the friend to whom I wrote resented what I said. I have been greatly tempted to write him a letter and ask him to read Proverbs 9:8. A boy at a country school got a bumble bee, put it in a box, put a lid on the box and put the box in his hip pocket. He went into the schoolroom after the lunch hour. The lid came off the box. The bumble bee began his operations. The teacher kept ordering the boy to sit still. The boy tried to sit still but he couldn't. The teacher said, "Didn't I tell you to keep still." "Yes, you did, teacher, but there is something going on here you don't know nothing about." A man who resents the effort of a friend to help him spiritually usually has something in his life he doesn't want the world to know anything about.

"I don't like his methods." That is what a lady said about a certain minister who was doing a wonderful work for God. "His style doesn't appeal to me," she continued. The preacher she was criticising was a good man. He was natural and easy and had his own peculiar way of preaching the gospel. This lady was not really an enemy to the preacher's method. She just didn't like the preacher's message. A hungry man will eat food brought to his table by a waiter whose style does not appeal to him. Men and women who are hungry for the Word of God may prefer a certain style of preaching, but when the Word of God is brought to them they will accept it regardless of the style of the man who delivers the message. It is all right to argue about principle and sometimes a man's method may be such that principle may be involved. No man has a right to do evil that good may come. However, the writer has learned from preaching the gospel in many sections of the world that hungry hearts will always accept the gospel though they may not greatly admire the style of the preacher. I would accept a beautiful diamond brought to me by the most awkward person in the world. His method of presenting the diamond might not be according to the best style, but he brings a diamond and I accept the diamond. The Bible says, "they that know God hear us." If a man will preach the gospel of Jesus Christ in a community and keep on preaching it and live the life a preacher should live, the saints of God regardless of denominational affiliation will accept his message. Opposition to the gospel is not opposition to the messenger. It is opposition to the message.

During the Christmas holidays many friends were made happy to greet Mr. and Mrs. Sam Wesley Adams, now of Lawrence, Kansas, and party. They motored to Alabama from Kansas, and brought with them to spend the day in Clanton and Chilton County, Mrs. Annit D. Adams, Mrs. Cade Varner and young son, Cade, Jr., of Tuscaloosa.

University News

University, Ala., Jan. 11.—Two-thirds of the state's workers will not be covered by unemployment compensation, said Dr. Burton R. Morley, professor of economics at the University of Alabama, and an authority on industrial and labor problems.

Agriculture accounts for the majority of these workers.

Dr. Morley estimated that the minimum number of workers to be protected by unemployment compensation in Alabama would be 216,000, with the actual figure probably falling between 250,000 and 275,000.

The figures were taken from a report complied by the University professor for a committee of the Social Science Research Council, New York, and published in the University of Alabama Business News, publication of the Bureau of Business Research here.

Melvin Israel, Tuscaloosa, known all over the state for his announcing of sports and news events, has landed a job with the Columbia Broadcasting System as announcer.

Israel stepped almost directly from Law School at the University, from which he received his degree last June, to a job with the national chain. He has been employed this year as full time instructor of public speaking at the University.

He won his post in an audition in which six other announcers from all over the country competed.

Leaders of high school youth, meeting in the Youth's Conference at the University of Alabama, expressed a preference for business as a vocation.

More students registered for vocational guidance groups discussing business than for any other vocational group. The number registering was 47.

Other favorite vocations were teaching with 29 registerng, engineering 27, home economics 24, and journalism 23.

Business and teaching have always been favorite vocational choices with young people. The perference for journalism and home economics is comparatively recent.

1. Free opportunity for farmers to organize.
2. Fair and stable income for the farmer, on an equal with city income.
3. Supplies of farm goods adjusted to adequate home needs and foreign demand.
4. Foreign policies to encourage peace with other countries and an expanding market abroad for American farm products.
5. Conservation of soil and other natural resources.
6. Turning below-standard land to non-farm uses.
7. Crop insurance, to cushion the shock of drought, flood, frost and plague, combined with the ever-normal granary.
8. Better opportunities for the man with the hoe to own his land, and increased security for tenants and owner-operators.
9. A higher standard of living for the poorer farmers.
10. Industrial policies to insure abundance for wage-earners and farmers alike.

CLANTON, ALABAMA

SEED OYSTERS AND SHELLS ARE BEING PLANTED

Montgomery, Ala., Jan. 11.—A. J. Bride, chief enforcement officer for the Alabama Oyster Commission, reports that up to December 12, a total of 189,554 barrels of seed oysters and shells had been planted in State waters under the WPA oyster rehabilitation program.

Of this total the WPA purchased 45,000 barrels of shells and the State furnished 100,403 barrels of shells and 44,151 barrels of seed oysters.

The plantings in Mobile county waters totalled 132,976 barrels of shells and 31,986 barrels of seed oysters, while in Baldwin county waters 12,427 barrels of shells and 12,165 barrels of seed oysters were planted.

The percentage of the plantings in Baldwin county was curtailed, Mr. Bride said, by discontinuance of WPA labor and lack of rental equipment.

The commission, at a recent meeting, authorized the purchase of a 62-foot auxiliary schooner for patrol duty in State waters. Purchase of a boat was made necessary by the destruction of the Patrol Boat Vera Quin in Mobile Bay last summer. Fire spreading from a stove on the Vera Quin caused an explosion which completely wrecked the craft.

BRIEF FARM NEWS

Eighteen farm leaders of the Alabama Experiment Station and Extension Service are scheduled to appear on the program of the 38th annual convention of the Association of Agricultural Workers in Nashville, Tenn., February 3-5, to discuss various agricultural subjects and problems.

Alabama's eight production credit associations loaned farmers of the state over $2,500,000 in 1936. The amount of loans by associations follow: Auburn, $237,000; Anniston, $168,000; Bay Minette, $146,000; Demopolis, $430,000; Huntsville, $348,000; Montgomery, $850,000; Ozark, $178,000; and Russellville, $186,000.

Kudzu crowns — 3,455,000 of them —have been allotted for erosion control plantings in demonstrations and camp areas in Alabama. These crowns will be set by cooperating farmers working with the Soil Conservation Service and Extension Service.

The Farm Credit Administration of New Orleans is holding a number of farm meetings in every Alabama county during the latter part of January and the first of February. At these meetings farm credit officials will explain how loans are being made to farmers to assist them in their farming operations.

County soil conservation associations have been organized in 37 Alabama counties to assist farmers in terracing their lands, in setting trees, and in growing soil-conserving crops.

A conservation program for the naval stores industry for 1937 will be offered producers, announces the United States Department of Agriculture.

THE PIG CROP REPORT OF DECEMBER 1, 1936.

The fall pig crop in Alabama is estimated at 486,000 pigs, which is an increase of 73,000 or 18 per cent over the fall pig crop of 1935, according to the December 1 pig crop report of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. This report is based upon returns from the December Pig Survey made in cooperation with the Post Office Department thru the rural carriers.

The number of sows farrowed this fall in Alabama is estimated at 90,000, or an increase of 15 per cent over farrowings in the fall of 1935. The average number of pigs saved per litter this fall is estimated at 5.40 as compared to 5.30 per litter in the fall of 1935.

They also wish to thank Brother Burnett, fo rhis kind and thoughtful talk.

A precious one from us has gone,
A voice we loved is stilled;
A place is vacant in our home,
Which can never be filled.
God in his wisdom has recalled;
The boom his love has given,
And though the body slumber here,
The soul is safe in heaven.
—B. R. Lewis and children.

Mrs. W. W. Fox, has returned after several days spent in Birmingham.

Friends of Percy Pitts Jr., will be glad to know that he is rapidly improving after a serious attack of pneumonia.

HOME DEMONSTRATION NEWS

During the month of December 13 method demonstrations have been given, with an attendance of 522 present; 14 method demonstrations have been given to adults, with 261 present; these demonstrations have been given on foods; 20 conferences have been held, with 53 present. Each of the clubs, in addition to demonstrations, have held Christmas programs, having either Christmas trees or Christmas boxes which held the Christmas gifts, which were exchanged among members, visitors and friends.

The last annual report has been completed and mailed. The leadership school has been held; the handicraft club has been started; 12 homes have been visited; 7 articles have been written for the local papers by the home agent, and 4 circular letters have been written, with 505 copies mailed, and 500 copies handed out. The letters written were as follows: Special Recipes for Balanced Meals, Christmas Suggestions and Ideas, Handicraft Plans for the Market, and Prevention of Forest Fires. Extension circulars sent have included the pamphlet, Planning Three Meals A Day, Cook Book, and Save the Soil and the Saplings. The press articles written were special letters from club women: How I Live At Home, a health play was given by the Baker 4-H Club, and Santa Goes Around the World in Three Minutes, by the Thomas Jr. 4-H Club, What's Going On Among the Clubs, and What to Read, When to Read, and Let's Read During the New Year.

Major Projects—Women's Work—Food

Special menu planning for balanced diets has been given in addition to a study being made of food values. The various types of foods were classified under the groups and order in which they come. When the club women planned special menus from these foods, these were given prior to the leadership school, as a foundation for studying the best methods of cooking; 14 clubs, with 261 present attended these demonstrations.

Leadership School

The leadership school was held at the Clanton Baptist church, on preparing balanced meals. A balanced breakfast, dinner and supper was prepared. The home agent was assisted by Mrs. Margaret Hutto of the Alabama Power Co., who cooperated by furnishing the power and equipment, also the groceries for the demonstration; 28 leaders attended this meeting, in spite of the downpour of rain.

Foods—4-H Girls' Work

There have been given 13 demonstrations to 522 club girls. The study of food values and the classification of foods have been given the girls. They held Christmas programs in connection with their December meeting. The Baker club gave the winning play, which was a health play, and Thomas Jr. club gave the winning Christmas play and program. Special food charts and bulletins were studied and discussed. A special program for the holidays for the 4-H club girls to hold in their homes and communities was given. Home work was given them to be carried out, by the agent asking them to plan menus after they had studied the classified foods, to list and name the special ways foods and various methods could be used, and to plan the menus for their homes for a week, using the various ideas they had learned from their 4-H club lesson. The work done at home will be handed in and credit will be given them toward securing their certificate in the spring. All the girls seem interested in getting the certificate, and it is believed that a large percentage will be entitled to the certificate. Each girl was asked to cook and serve one outstanding dinner during the holidays.

Minor Projects—Handicraft

Special handicraft ideas and patterns were distributed during December, and as a result a survey was made among the ladies who do first class handiwork. At present 20 club ladies entered the handicraft club which is under way in Chilton County. Each lady is to make special samples of articles which will be placed for the public to take orders wrom which pin money can be made by the ladies at home. The articles made were ties, handkerchiefs, infants' clothing, bags, sweaters, and novelties. A sample of these articles will be sent to Miss Dorothy Dean, Auburn, who plans to send them to the exhibit in Nashville in February. It is hoped that a sort of roadside market can be built up in Chilton County by the club ladies, as this seems to be an appointed place, being centrally located from Montgomery, Selma and Birmingham.

Boys' 4-H Club Work

The Cooper 4-H club held a meeting on Friday morning at 10:30 o'clock. The house was called to order by the president, the roll was called, and each member gave his part well, which was on the acre of poultry. Mr. B. N. Ivey, assistant county agent in 4-H club work, gave a good talk on general care of poultry. The meeting was closed in order, and a song was directed by the song leader.

"LARGE END UP" RULE SAVES HATCHING EGGS

Hatching eggs, to be hauled or shipped to the hatchery should be packed snugly into the case with the large end up, says Berley Winton, in charge of the poultry office of the Bureau of Animal Industry, as hatching eggs are less likely to be broken when in this position than if they are packed with the small end up.

Each normal egg has an air cell at the large end, Mr. Winton explains, and it is necessary that the membrane separating the inner portion of the egg from the shell membrane neither be broken loose nor shaken loose. Research at the National Agricultural Research Center, Beltsville, Md., has shown that eggs with tremulous air cells hatched only two-thirds as well as the eggs with normal air cells. The packing of the eggs with the large end up removes the pressure from the inner membrane.

Be Sure They Properly Cleanse the Blood

YOUR kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as nature intended—fail to remove impurities that poison the system when retained.

The Hollises' Visit To Mexico

I have been requested to give a brief outline of the trip that my family and I took to Mexico City, Christmas.

We left Mitchell Dam the morning of December 25, going by way of Meridian, Miss., spending the first night t Monroe, La., and on to San Antnio, Tex., the next. All the way it was interesting to note the interest that was taken in the towns and cities all along the way in their Christmas decorations. In Monroe, La., there was $500 in prizes for the three homes that were selected as the outstanding Christmas lighted homes and lawns.

We spent the greater part of the day Sunday in going through the Japanese sunken gardens, the Alamo, Ft. Sam Houston, and many other places of historic interest, ending the tour at the famous Buckhorn Curio Store, where there are hundreds of the largest and said to be the finest collection of horns in the world, mounted in the center of the building; and on a table was a long horn Texas steer mounted, with a horn spread of 8 feet and 3 inches. Mounted above the bar was the longest and largest set of steer horns in the world, weasuring 8 feet and 9 inches straight across from tip to tip, and were 27 inches in circumference. They also display what they claim to be 10,000 rattle snake rattlers, and I did not question the count. We spent the night in the famous Grande Courts, 2 bed rooms, kitchenette, bath, modernistic furniture, beauty rest mattresses, clean and comfortable in every respect, and—oh yes, electric refrigeration too—for $4.00 a day.

And now to be on to the border city of Laredo, Tex., 150 miles south of San Antonio, and when we arrived at Laredo we had traveled through about 300 miles of prairie, with many fields of spinach.

Laredo is more Mexican than American, and all business house employees have to speak both languages. I found it very easy to arrange for the necessary papers for the family, our car and baggage to leave the U. S. A., and after passing through a number of inspection stations we were given the approval of the Mexican government to enter that country, and when these inspections were completed we were at the south end of the bridge of the Rio Grande River that separates the U. S. from Mexico; then entering the city of Nuevo Laredo, where one finds the contrast between Mexico and the U. S. within a stone's throw.

Once through the city of Nuevo Laredo you enter the land of cactus and mesquite as far as one can see, with small huts built of bamboo and covered with thatch, with the earth as the floor, hidden back off the highway. About 100 miles south of the border you reach the first range of mountains, and of course they are a beautiful sight to see. We did the same thing as we learned later that many others do, that is to stop and take pictures, thinking that we were in the high range that we read about and are told about by others; the next day we found out that we had passed over only a little of the hilly country.

We reached Valles, 465 miles south of the border that night, where we found extra nice accommodations at a new and modern tourist camp just completed, with good eating place also. South of the border 336 miles, and about 12 miles south of the city of Ciudad Victoria, we crossed the Tropic of Cancer. We left Valles early the next morning to start the climb that took us from 50 feet above sea level to 8,300 feet above, and over a highway that is said to be a highway engineering feat with no equal. The scenery was one of rare beauty, and words cannot paint the picture that one views as he winds up, up, up to where you look down and cannot see the bottom and up and cannot see the top. Thousands of acres of corn was being gathered, planted or cultivated along the side of the mountains, and the only tools used were a machete and a stick about 4 feet long sharpened at one end. These people who live along this part of the Sierra Madre Mountains are all Mexican Indians; they are small, but can carry as much on their back, with a band or wide, flat platted rope going around the head to support a part of the weight, as the burrow can carry on his back.

The people seem to be living as they did 200 or 300 years ago—no progress. After crossing over the first range and down into the valley, where farms or ranches are, here it is necessary to irrigate the lands in the dry season from October until April. After leaving this valley you again start to ascend, and reach the same heighth, and down again to a 7,500-foot elevation, and into Mexico City, D. F., a city of 1,250,000 people.

NOTE—The Union-Banner is quite sure its readers will thoroughly enjoy this most interesting story of the trip to the far West, written by Mr. John Hollis, of Mitchell Dam. Due to lack of time, Mr. Hollis was unable to furnish us with copy for the complete story, but we will try to get the rest of it for next week's issue, sure that our readers will look forward to it with much interest.

SEND IN NEWS EARLY

There is lots of news that comes in to The Union-Banner Tuesday that could just as well be written and sent in Friday or Saturday of the previous week. Where such is possible, please help out the publishers by getting your copy in just as early as possible. If the article is of such nature that it can be written and turned in Friday or Saturday, then greatly oblige us by doing it then instead of waiting.

We will more than likely be in a rush for the next several weeks, and will need the cooperation of our friends. You can greatly facilitate the publishing of the paper by getting your copy in early. We are depending on you from now on.

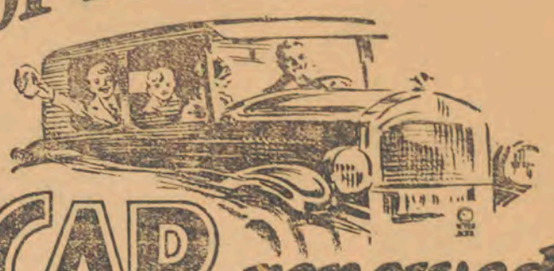
REFUGE



Health of this community is very good, something for which we should be most thankful. Let's try to be on time for Sunday School. Especially, we hope the teachers will be present and on time, for the class is always looking for their teacher, if they don't know they are providentially hindered. It is a sad thing for us to take our children and just merely visit on Sunday. When there is a service that we could go and carry them.

We should stop and think, that when God permits them into our hands there is a great responsibility on our part.

So while there is time, let us be good and go to Sunday School, and preaching services. Don't forget the Sunday School at ten o'clock.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

Since the December meeting of the Republican National Committee was announced for Chicago—a meeting in which the committee quite properly voted to continue Chairman John M. Hamilton as helmsman of the national organization of the party—we have heard a great deal of talk about the necessity for new leadership within the G. O. P. The question of leaders has been emphasized so much that one who depended on the headlines for his information might be inclined to forget that a political party, like an army, requires something more than leaders—it needs followers. In the 1936 election, the elephant had more than sixteen million followers, but the election proved that even this number was insufficient. So if the Republican party is to do better in 1938 and 1940 it must get additional followers as well as more leaders.

Perhaps those who are prone to emphasize personality above principle will be inclined to answer that if we get a new leadership the party will get enough followers. It is quite true that a political party can be sadly handicapped and defeated if it has the wrong kind of leadership. But to come to the conclusion that new leadership will solve the question would be to make a serious mistake. The Republicans could not have won in the recent November election had they been piloted by ten national chairmen rather than one.

It seems to be a sizeable opinion that the Republican party needs liberalizing and that this can be done only by the casting overboard of time-tried principles. Let us not forget, therefore, that the G. O. P. started as a liberal party to fight the reactionaries of the 1860's, and that its first leaders were pilloried as radicals. Just how much has it actually changed since that time, in principle? The question is not one that can be answered by appealing to frenzied political claptrap. It is worth a little serious study, and this study might be a profitable pastime for its friends as well as its critics on these long winter nights that have descended upon us.

There are Republicans of various shades of opinion just as there are Democrats of all kinds. It is impossible to measure all Republicans by a yardstick. Yet there are some well defined political principles which have always held the followers of the political elephant more or less loosely bound together.

For example, a protective tariff sufficient to equalize the difference of cost at home and abroad has always been a cardinal Republican tenet. Republicans have generally believed that the home market should be protected for the home producer and that the latter should not be forced to come into unfair competition with the peon and peasant labor abroad. The Republicans have always stood for a system of sound money, assuring for the American people confidence in the future of the government and its people. They have maintained also that we ought to avoid membership in the League of Nations and entangling alliances and commitments with alien nations. And there are newer issues which can be handled in a sane and constructive way, without reaction or radicalism.

Now certainly these principles do not need liberalizing. They have been promulgated not for the tariff baron but for the American worker and farmer, not for the bloated bondholder, but for the average citizen who invests in life insurance, government bonds and savings banks certificates, not for the narrow minded bigoted isolationist but for the man and woman who desire to keep their sons working peacefully in America and not fighting to help settle foreign quarrels in Europe and America.

What the Republicans seem to need most, therefore, is to settle down to first principles, and to show to the average Americans that they stand not for reaction, but for the best interests of all the people who are genuinely desirous of living consistently with the best American tradition. What is required, therefore, is not intra-party revolution, but a campaign of education. There is plenty of time ahead for a campaign of this kind. The Republican ship must return to its moorings. It was designed to be an ocean liner, and not a submarine.

One of the remarks we most frequently hear in any discussion of the future economic condition of the country, is that the day of the small business man is over. This is the era of great corporations we are told, and there is cited to us the development of the big manufacturing and mercantile industries of the nation. We are even going in for farming in a big way, on giant farms, we are told.

Perhaps our economic students have been dazzled by the success of our great utilities and our industrial plants, to say nothing of the tremendous department stores which tower above us in the retail districts when we visit our nearest large city.

But as a matter of fact the day of the small business man is not over. And while the towering stacks of the great factory and the great shopwindows of the department store make an impression on us, we ought not to blink the fact that on every hand in business and industrial districts we see the establishment of the small business man.

It is therefore not true that the day of the small business man is over. It is a fact that certain activities seem to require great aggregations of capital for the carrying on of their business. Even here, however, it is the little fellow who often owns most of the shares and furnishes a great deal of the money needed to feed the industrial giant.

That the little business man is not discouraged is indicated by the fact that in every state in the Union, we see him engaging in new enterprises by the hundreds. The new little manufacturing plant, and the new store with its recently finished building or its freshly painted front are very much in evidence.

Just as it is true that certain lines seem to require great capital and large units, so it is true that there are a great many where bigness cannot take the place of the personality, the character, and the individualism of the man who has a personally conducted enterprise.

Take the retail field for example. The chain store is not going to put the individually operated store out of business. It may require the little fellow to brush up a little, modernize his shop and do some much needed advertising in his local paper, but he has the assets of his own personality, and initiative, which are priceless, and for which no substitute has yet been found.

America has been made great by the little fellows. True it is that success has made many of them the heads of giant business enterprises. But American ambition and perseverance are not to be thwarted. That is why so many new businesses by so many little fellows are started each year. The United States is not Russia. It may be that the former subjects of the one time czar prefer a subordinate place in economic activity. But the average American wants to be in business on his own hook if he can, to rise if possible through his own efforts. That is why the day of small business in the United States is not over. And it will not be ended so long as we can keep America the land of freedom and enterprise.

What Uncle Sam as a government can do is to see that small business gets an even chance to succeed and a full chance to work out its own destiny. Then it will be up to the small business man himself, and if he keeps abreast of the times, he is not going to lose his place in the economic sun.

AN ALL TIME HIGH

The latest report of the Civil Service Commission shows federal jobholders at an all time peak, in spite of recent orders for retrenchment. During October there was a gain of 5,313 over the number on the September payroll, and the total stood at 941,017 on November 1. This is about 23,000 more civilian employes than the government had at the top point of war time activities in 1918, when there were 917,760.

In the District of Columbia are 114,510 of these present employes; 841,017 are in the field. Nor does the establishment of the Social Security Board account for all the additions of personnel. The new establishments put on only 2,994 employes in the last four months. In the four months preceding November 1, the personnel of regular federal departments and offices increased 15,680.

The announced policy of retrenchment and economy apparently is working in reverse.—Los Angeles Times.

There is a great deal of talk about new leaders for the Republican party. It might be a good idea to arrange for some additional followers. Even 16 million doesn't seem to be enough.

"WAKES UP" FIRE—SIX DIE

In the early morning a father was struggling to get some heat from the kitchen stove. Exasperated by the balky fire, he said: "I'll wake it up!" and seized a can of kerosent. Then the sleeping giant did awake. In the explosion and fire that followed, the entire family of six were killed.

Fire accidents are particularly prevalent in the cold season, says the National Board of Fire Underwriters. People become impatient, try to quicken the fire with kerosene or still worse, gasoline. Needless to say this is a practice that is never safe.

Fatal accidents from dry cleaning with gasoline, benzine and other inflammable liquids are also apt to occur. Housewives who have been attempting their own dry cleaning with these dangerous fluids in their back yards are forced to go inside by the cold weather. Here an explosive mixture of gasoline fumes and air is quickly formed in the confined space and only a tiny flame or spark is required to cause an explosion and fire.

Ten thousand people lose their lives in fires annually, while an equal number are seriously injured. The property loss from fire averages about $300,000,000 each year.

For the good of all, the National Board issues its warning. Take every care to avoid fire and its painful and disastrous consequences.

HOOKING SUCKERS

They're at it again — salesmen peddling phoney or near phoney stock. They are seeking out widows, those who saved a little nest-egg one way or another. The phoney stock salesmen are calling attention to the fact that this, that and the other fellow made a lot of money by some lucky hit on the mearket. Of course they did; and others lost a lot of money; the phoney salesmen don't tell that. Good stock doesn't have to be peddled. Keep that in mind when the stock salesman comes. Buy no stock from any peddler. In this town there are hundreds of men who never buy any speculating investments of any kind. They are well known; they are prosperous; they are leading citizens. If you have a little nest-egg or windfall of inheritance, ask these cautious, conservative, perhaps tightfisted citizens where to invest. They will tell you the truth; and the truth is that a speculative investment, any investment that yields more than 4 or 5 per cent, is a dangerous investment in these days. How many poor suckers in the 1920's lost their all by listening to the stock and bond salesman? Don't do it now. The up-turn has come. The same danger lurks in the siren song of the stock salesman. He is probably dumb enough to believe what he says. But take a look at him. Would you trust very much to his judgment if he hadn't flattered you by a call? Don't be a sucker. You'll pay for it with your hide.—Emporia Gazette.

It is said that when he went to Florida on a fishing trip, Gov. Landon made his desire for sea-food secure by taking a can of sardines along with him. That is what we call sane conservatism.

Mary Garden is probably right in insisting that singers shouldn't drink, but we'd be very well satisfied if drinkers didn't sing.

Somebody wants to know what has become of the 1936 campaign songs. They have gone with the wind.

THE WALLACE FARM PROGRAM

With the objectives for American agriculture outlined by Sec. Wallace in his address to the American Farm Bureau Federation convention in Pasadena there will be little or no disagreement. American agriculture ought to be, must be, made a paying business for at least enough farmers to supply the nation's needs—business from which they can reap rewards commensurate with the effort and intelligence they must put into it. At the same time farm soils must be conserved and built up so that they will be continuously productive. In general, that is the program to which Sec. Wallace declares the administration has dedicated itself.

But it is a question if these desirable objectives are attainable by the roads he maps out, and if these do not, in fact, lead in the opposite direction. He is the old time prophet of the AAA, still regretful that it was nullified by the Supreme Court; he insists that the administration will give the nation a similar but more far-reaching program.

In other words, as a solution of the farm problem, he offers management from Washington, backed up by the resources of the United States Treasury to insure the continuance of a gentle rain of checks upon the just and the unjust, or, in non-biblical language, upon the efficient and non-efficient.—Los Angeles Times.

It is reported that the Republicans used the radio more during the recent campaign than did the Democrats. Maybe that is why the voters gave them the air.

President Roosevelt had a very successful trip to South America but it would have been even more successful if King Ed and Wally hadn't crowded him off the front page.

We have heard a great deal about the house that Jack built but nobody has ever said whether it stood up on its foundation until Jack got the last instalment paid.

GREEN FIGS ON BUSH

Mr. Rufus Powell handed the Banner man Tuesday two sprigs from his fig bush, on which were two green figs about the size of a large marble. They are said to be the second growth this season.

About the time Mr. Powell handed me the figs, a man was passing by and said that he had Irish potatoes up six and eight inches high; and that if it remained warm, he would be gathering potatoes soon.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

Since the December meeting of the Republican National Committee was announced for Chicago—a meeting in which the committee quite properly voted to continue Chairman John M. Hamilton as helmsman of the national organization of the party—we have heard a great deal of talk about the necessity for new leadership within the G. O. P. The question of leaders has been emphasized so much that one who depended on the headlines for his information might be inclined to forget that a political party, like an army, requires something more than leaders—it needs followers. In the 1936 election, the elephant had more than sixteen million followers, but the election proved that even this number was insufficient. So if the Republican party is to do better in 1938 and 1940 it must get additional followers as well as more leaders.

Perhaps those who are prone to emphasize personality above principle will be inclined to answer that if we get a new leadership the party will get enough followers. It is quite true that a political party can be sadly handicapped and defeated if it has the wrong kind of leadership. But to come to the conclusion that new leadership will solve the question would be to make a serious mistake. The Republicans could not have won in the recent November election had they been piloted by ten national chairmen rather than one.

It seems to be a sizeable opinion that the Republican party needs liberalizing and that this can be done only by the casting overboard of time-tried principles. Let us not forget, therefore, that the G. O. P. started as a liberal party to fight the reactionaries of the 1860's, and that its first leaders were pilloried as radicals. Just how much has it actually changed since that time, in principle? The question is not one that can be answered by appealing to frenzied political claptrap. It is worth a little serious study, and this study might be a profitable pastime for its friends as well as its critics on these long winter nights that have descended upon us.

There are Republicans of various shades of opinion just as there are Democrats of all kinds. It is impossible to measure all Republicans by a yardstick. Yet there are some well defined political principles which have always held the followers of the political elephant more or less loosely bound together.

For example, a protective tariff sufficient to equalize the difference of cost at home and abroad has always been a cardinal Republican tenet. Republicans have generally believed that the home market should be protected for the home producer and that the latter should not be forced to come into unfair competition with the peon and peasant labor abroad. The Republicans have always stood for a system of sound money, assuring for the American people confidence in the future of the government and its people. They have maintained also that we ought to avoid membership in the League of Nations and little fellow who often owns most of the shares and furnishes a great deal of the money needed to feed the industrial giant.

That the little business man is not discouraged is indicated by the fact that in every state in the Union, we see him engaging in new enterprises by the hundreds. The new little manufacturing plant, and the new store with its recently finished building or its freshly painted front are very much in evidence.

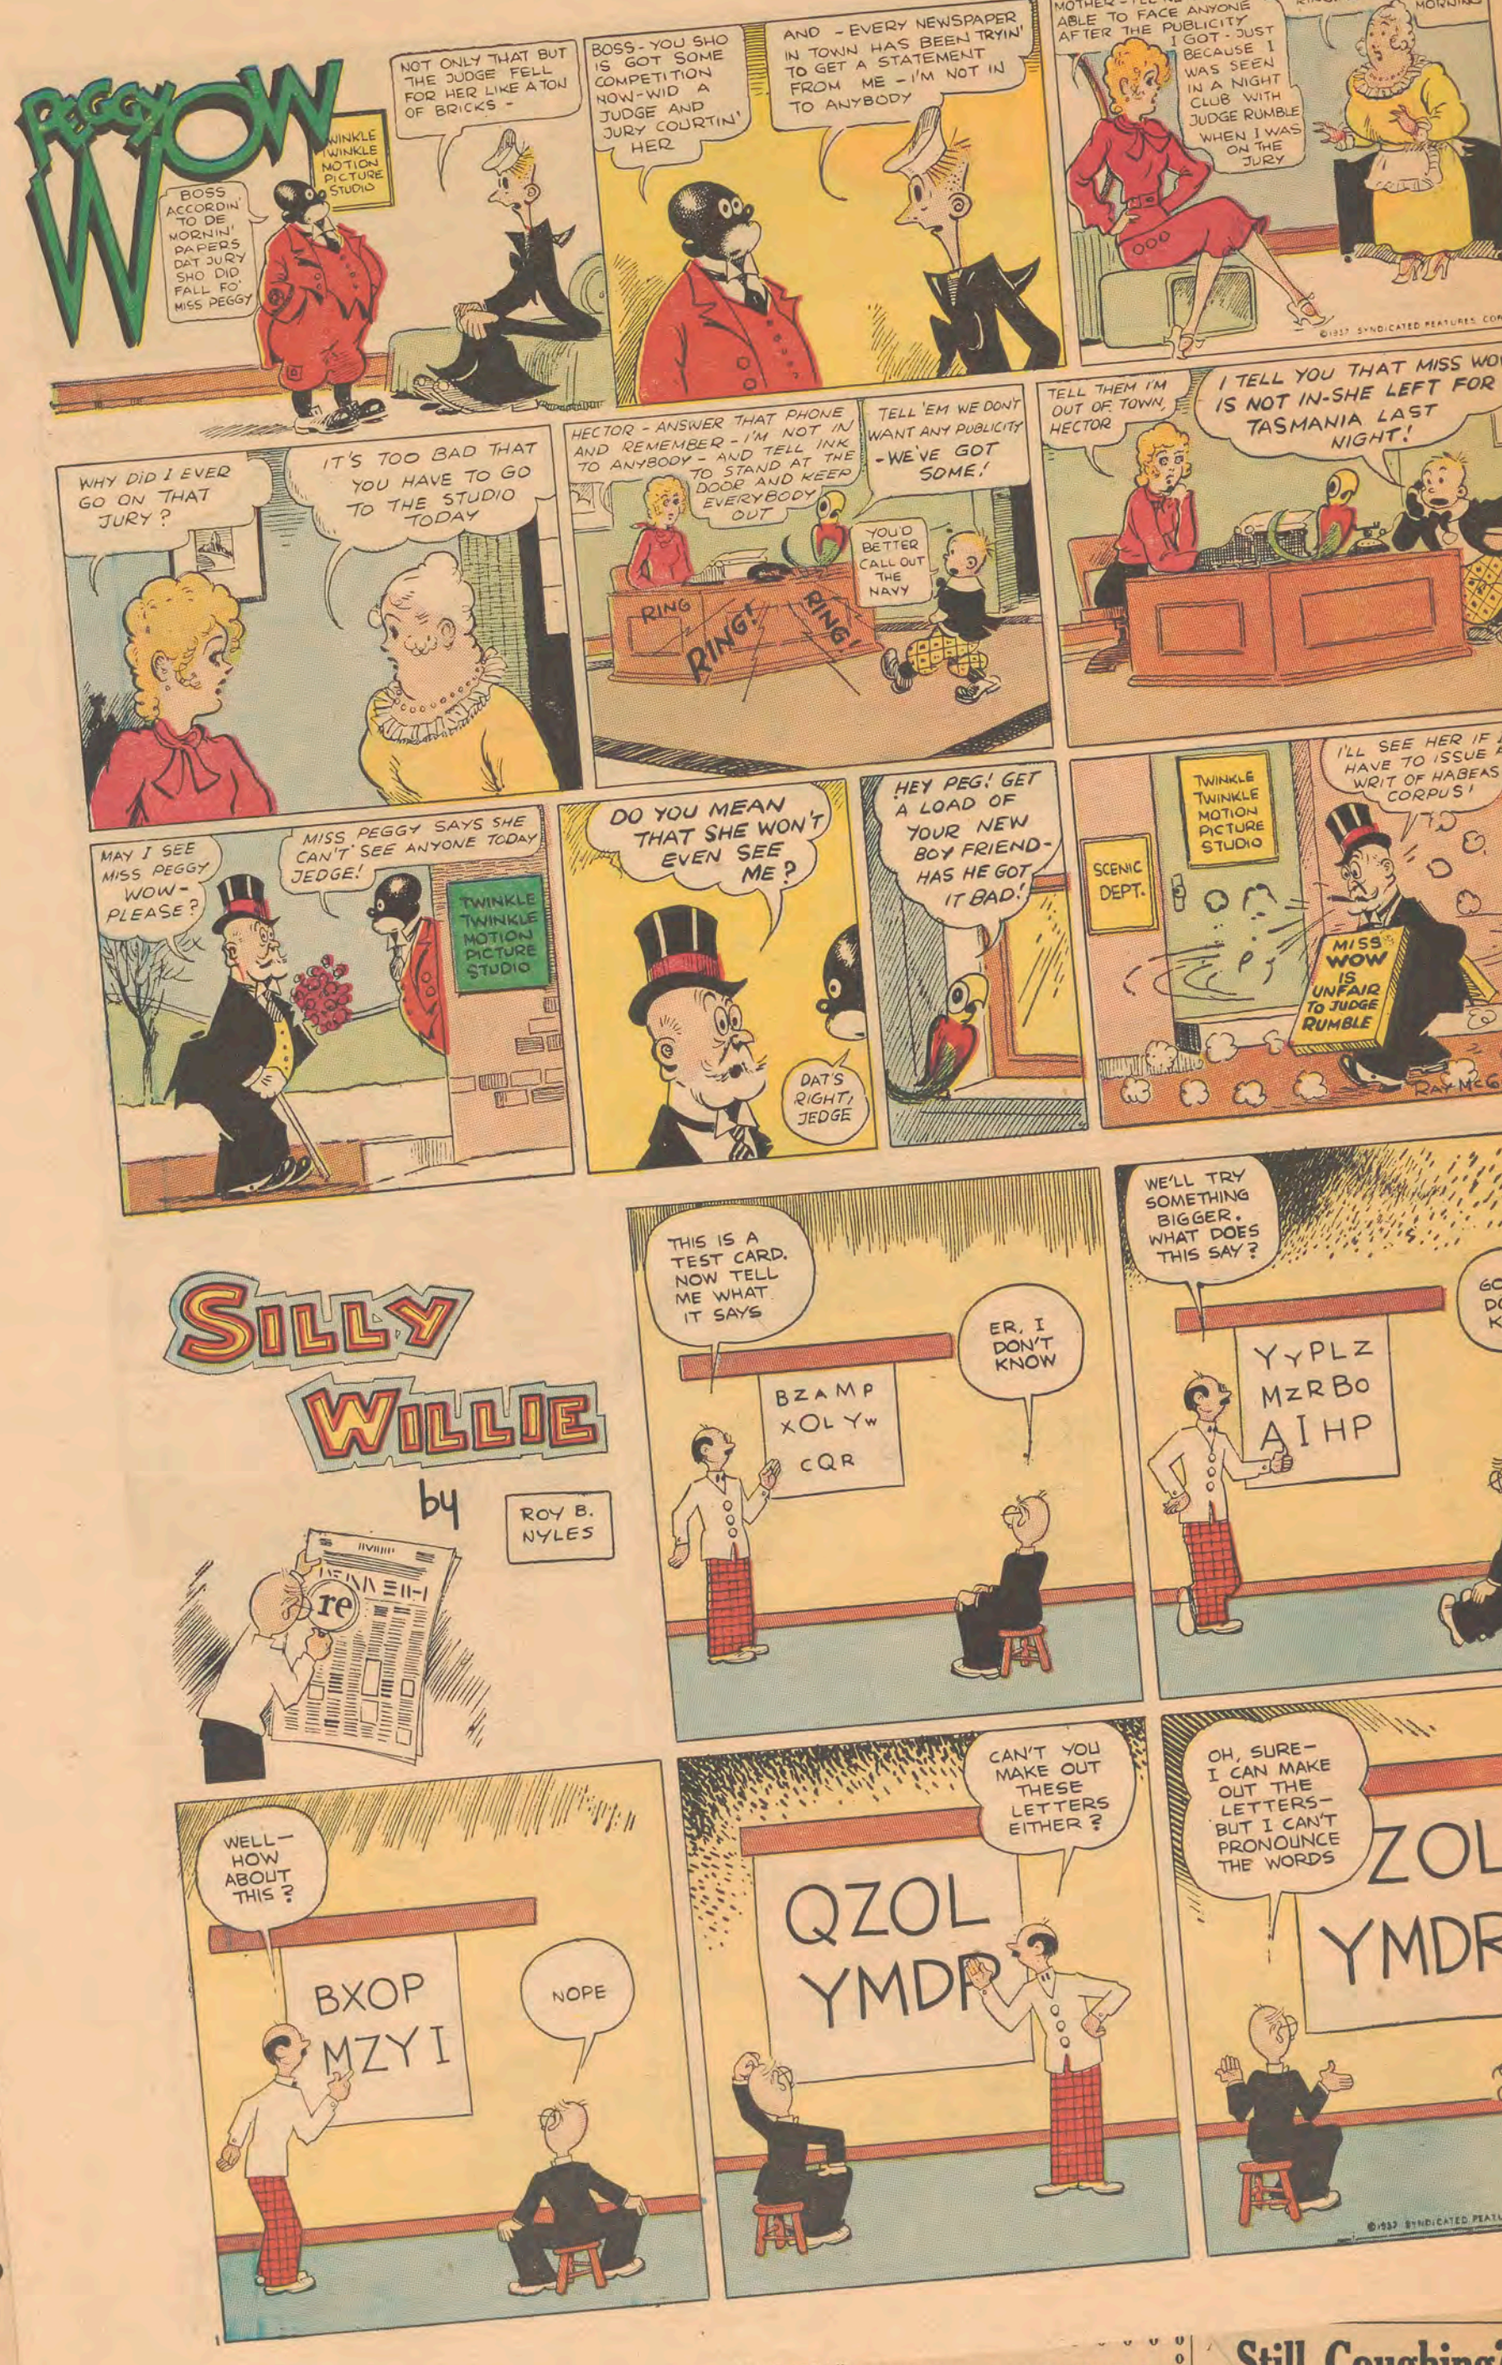
Just as it is true that certain lines seem to require great capital and large units, so it is true that there are a great many where bigness cannot take the place of the personality, the character, and the individualism of the man who has a personally conducted enterprise.

Take the retail field for example. The chain store is not going to put the individually operated store out of business. It may require the little fellow to brush up a little, modernize his shop and do some much-needed

"WAKES UP" FIRE—SIX DIE

In the early morning a father was struggling to get some heat from the kitchen stove. Exasperated by the balky fire, he said: "I'll wake it up!" and seized a can of kerosent. Then the sleeping giant did awake. In the explosion and fire that followed, the entire family of six were killed.

Fire accidents are particularly prevalent in the cold season, says the National Board of Fire Underwriters. People become impatient, try to quicken the fire with kerosene or still worse, gasoline. Needless to say this is a practice that is never safe.



Fatal accidents from dry cleaning with gasoline, benzine and other inflammable liquids are also apt to occur. Housewives who have been attempting their own dry cleaning with these dangerous fluids in their back yards are forced to go inside by the cold weather. Here an explosive mixture of gasoline

Gross Receipts Tax 'Big Stick' Says Clay

Birmingham, Ala.—Pointing to the split in the ranks of administration forces responsible for new taxation because of alleged differences over division of the proceeds, T. L. Clay, Tarrant grocer and member of the executive committee of the Consumers Anti-Sales Tax Association, Monday declared he was ready to prove the gross receipts tax had been passed solely as a big stick over the heads of the merchants of the state.

"I was present at a conference at Montgomery when it was conclusively shown the general sales tax measure had been written and was ready for introduction even before the Senate had concurred in action of the House on the gross receipts measure," Mr. Clay declared.

Mr. Clay said he was at the Whitley Hotel in company with W. A. Webber, president, and Sig Weil, vice president, Montgomery Merchants Association and J. F. McGraw, prominent Vincent, Alabama merchant when the group was asked to a conference at the Gay Teague Hotel.

"Arriving at the Gay Teague," Mr. Clay said, "we found Ben Leader and John D. Hill, Birmingham attorneys; Harold Black, Birmingham merchant and Lloyd Foster, of the Birmingham Chamber of Commerce.

Clay charged Mr. Leader was attempting to extoll the virtues of the sales tax as compared to a gross receipts tax when Mr. Hill declared his firm had drawn a sales tax bill and Mr. McGraw asked that it be read.

Mr. Hill was reading the bill, Mr. Clay declared, when Roy Albright, Mobile druggist; Probate Judge Moore, of Fayette County; Representative Staples of Mobile; Cy Brown, chairman of the Montgomery County Board of Revenue, and W. H. Holcombe, former sheriff of Mobile County, entered the room.

Mr. Albright informed us, Mr. Clay declared, "that he was just from the governor's office, and that the chief executive was going to pass the gross receipts tax without alteration or amendment if we did not get up a sales tax measure satisfactory to him that day."

Mr. Clay declared Mr. Webber told the meeting the visitors seemed to be representing a group of larger merchants; that he would have no part in what they were about to do and excused himself.

"I told them," Mr. Clay declared, "I would like to be excused for the same reason, and was joined by Mr. Weil and Mr. McGraw, and we all left the conference."

This happened, Mr Clay declared while the gross receipts measure was before the Senate and after it had been passed by the House.

WOMEN OF ALL AGES

Mrs. Ellen Walker of 19 Shady Ave., Mill Village, Birmingham, Ala., said: "Before I was married I was very delicate, I became so thin and pale and everything would upset me. Every Farm Should Have A TELEPHONE

A farm without a telephone is so isolated, that once you have a telephone on the farm, you'll wonder why you ever tried to do without it. A telephone call will often save many miles of travel.

And, as one farmer says, "the telephone not only keeps us in touch with the market for farm products and able to call the family doctor or the veterinarian, but it adds happiness to our home in being able to sit by our fireside and talk to our friends and loved ones."

A single sale of some farm product, made at the right time with the aid of the telephone, might pay a year's cost of the service. In case of fire, summoning help by telephone may be of priceless value.

To order your telephone, just get in touch with the telephone business office when you're in town. You'll find the cost is so reasonable that you really can't afford to try to do without it.

The Congregational congregation went into their new Church building last Sunday. All was not completed, but they were anxious to be in their own quarters. The heating of the church is by furnace with the addition of a blower, which we hope will keep the building at an even temperature. National Leaders Plan Gigantic Ball to Honor President and Raise Infantile Paralysis Fund

A group of proteges of the Warm Springs, Ga., Foundaton, where infantile paralysis sufferers are treated. Below, President Franklin D. Roosevelt, whose birthday January 30 is inspiration for the nation-wide parties to raise funds for the fight against infantile paralysis, and Colonel Henry L. Doherty, national chairman of the ball for the fourth year.

The nation's biggest social event, the celebration of President Franklin D. Roosevelt's fifty-fifth birthday anniversary, is set for January 30, with more than 5,000 communities throughout the country planning parties to raise funds for the philanthropy closest to the Chief Executive's heart, and for infantile paralysis sufferers.

Colonel Henry L. Doherty, for the fourth year chairman of the national celebration, is being assisted by many of the country's foremost leaders in plans for the events. Among those on his committee are: Vincent Astor, Postmaster General James A. Farley, Ambassador Joseph E. Davies, Will H. Hays, Carl Byoir, general director, Colonel Edward M. House, Edsel B. Ford, Walter P. Chrysler, Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, Patrick Cardinal Hayes, Bishop William T. Manning, Harvey S. Firestone, Keith Morgan, General John J. Pershing, Owen D. Society leaders, radio, motion picture and theatrical stars are joining forces to make the celebrations the greatest series of parties ever staged.

Meantime in cities, towns and hamlets throughout the nation millions of Americans are making preparations for parties that will eclipse in size and colorful entertainment those of any previous year.

Alabama Wets Are Losing Repeal Hope

Referendum Would Lose, It Is Believed. Sales Tax Is Almost A Certainty

Montgomery, Jan. 18.—With the legislature in recess until January 26, prospects were none too bright today for passage of a repeal measure of any sort.

The legislature adjourned for a week to give Gov. Graves and legislators an opportunity to attend the inauguration of President Roosevelt in Washington Wednesday.

The Senate, backed by the governor, is not likely to yield in its demand for submission of repeal to a referendum. House wets, on the other hand, feel that repeal has none too good a chance to pass at a referendum, and many prefer to kill the measure entirely.

The dispute over repeal has weakened support of the two per cent sales tax, but it is still conceded more than an even chance to be adopted in place of the existing one and one-half per cent gross receipts tax.

THIRTEEN TAKEN INTO CUSTODY BY SHERIFF AND FORCE

Since last Tuesday, January 12, there have been a total of 13 arrests made by the Sheriff and deputies of Chilton County. Five were for driving a motor vehicle while intoxicated, four of whom are out on bond and one remains in jail.

There have been two arrests for petit larceny, both of whom remain in jail. One arrest was made for transporting more than five gallons of liquor; this defendant is out on bond.

There was one arrest for arson, the case having been nol prossed in Justice court. One is in jail and one is out on bond under the charge of violating the prohibition law. One is in jail charged with assault with intent to murder.

There was one arrest for public drunkenness. This case was tried in Justice court, and the defendant paid off.

MILKED DRY BY POLITICS

Montgomery.—Alabama stands before the nation today as a sorry spectacle of a state milked dry for the benefit of a group of pie-hungry politicians. This is true to such an extent, with the Graves administration or machine so firmly enthroned because of the dispensation of jobs by the thousands and political patronage in other forms, political observers this week estimated that taxpayers would suffer for at last 10 years after the governor leaves office.

This certainly may be expected if he is able to force through his tax and liquor programs, it was pointed out. The enactment of either measure, as now drawn, would give his machine momentum to operate for years, and the enactment of both would create such a situation as to make it almost impossible for the electorate to regain control of the state government until the people make a general house cleaning not only in the capitol but in virtually all the county governments.

The governor's program is for an endless political chain, with the pending sales tax bill and the liquor measure to furnish the money and jobs to keep it functioning, and to perpetuate his machine for years to come.

Only a complete reawakening by the people and immediate action to let not only the governor, but many of our state senators and representatives, know in unmistakable language that Alabama will not stand for such a gigantic tax steal, nor for machine control, will avert this catastrophe.

Mr. O. J. Eiland, of Montgomery, representing Ala. Machinery & Supply Company, was in Clanton the first of this week.

TWO KILLED BY "JEALOUS MAN"

Couple Found Murdered in Briars Back of Montgomery Cemetery

Montgomery, Jan. 18. — A jealous man, possibly a maniac, was blamed by Coroner M. P. Kirkpatrick for the double murder of Mrs. Dora Bullard, 22-year-old textile worker, and L. K. Nichols, 37, whose bodies were found today behind a cemetery here, their throats slashed.

The bodies of the pair were found in a briar patch path on the outskirts of the city by John Moseley. He said they were lying 30 feet apart.

Mrs. Bullard, a pretty blond, was said to be an employee of a textile mill at Boylston, suburb of Montgomery. Police said her husband had not been seen here for several months.

The man, Coroner Kirkpatrick said, was almost decapitated. The girl's body and throat were brutally hacked.

Nichols was the brother of a city policeman, A. G. Nichols. He was divorced two years ago. His former wife and four children live here.

Coroner Kirkpatrick said all evidence in the case indicated that the couple had been surprised in the briar patch behind Oakwood cemetery. Nichols was still holding the girl's coat as if he had used it to protect her from a man armed with a knife, the coroner said.

Alabama Power Co. To Spend Huge Sum

$2,500,000 to Be Spent to Build New Rural Lines; Other Items to be Pushed

The Alabama Power Company's 1937 budget calls for expenditures of more than $3,700,000 for additions and betterments, Thomas W. Martin, president, said last Thursday, following a meeting of the board of directors.

Of the $3,700,000 in additions and betterments during 1937, Mr. Martin said, $2,500,000 will be spent for extension and improvement of the distribution systems of the company over the state. Included in this are 1,000 miles of new rural line to serve approximately 4,500 additional customers. Mr. Martin said that it has been estimated 6,650 new rural customers will be added to existing and new lines in 1937.

It is expected that the upward trend in the use of electric energy so evident in 1936 will continue, according to Mr. Martin. In order to assure satisfactory service to all present and prospective customers of the company, it is necessary continually to improve and enlarge the system to take care of demands for electric service.

NRA SETUP NOW IS HELD IMPOSSIBLE

Washington, Jan. 21.—After a three-months investigation, a group of lawyers, including many noted professors and legal advisers of labor, have decided that Congress cannot restore objectives of NRA without a constitutional amendment or crippling of the Supreme Court, Representative William I. Sirovich (D., N. Y.) revealed today.

The lawyer group includes one of the most prominent advisers of the committee set up by George L. Berry and Sidney Hillman, prominent labor leaders, for the express purpose of seeking legislation to restore NRA objectives.

As a result of the decision, Sirovich said, a drive will be opened in Congress for one or more amendments to the constitution to give Congress authority over wages, hours, child labor and unfair trade practices.

NATIONAL LEGION CHAPLAIN EXPRESSES VIEWS ON LIQUOR

Familiarly known to his buddies as "the buttermilk chaplain," the Rev. Bryan H. Keathley, recently elected national chaplain of the American Legion, recently left no doubt in minds of his fellow Legionnaires as to his stand on the liquor question.

"I hate whiskey," he said, in response to a query from the National Voice News Bureau. "I have never drunk it and am not tempted to do so. I do all I can to combat the liquor traffic. I shall never let up in the fight.

"The American Legion saw fit to elect me as the national chaplain, thereby giving me a contact with a million men. I accepted the honor in good faith and I pledged myself to be loyal and faithful to the men who so trusted me. I am their chaplain, and not their reformer.

"I am not asking men to accept my creed, but my Christ; not my moral standard, but my giver of morals, even my Christ."

FROM DOWN AT CORINTH

As you have no doubt noticed, the weather has been rather warm for the time of the year for the past few weeks. A man out working could easily get up a sweat the same as in the summer time. Mr. Calvin Jones did get hot and thirsty the other day while working, and went to the spring to get a drink of water.

As Mr. Jones raised up from the spring he saw a squirrel nest. He being in the habit of making fuss under such conditions, grabbed a muscadine vine and began shaking it. While the shaking was going on, his companion, Alphus Jones, saw a possum raise up his head from the squirrel nest. The latter Jones, being a natural-born climber, scaled the tree and soon reached the nest. Snugly sleeping there side by side lay one big gray possum and one black one. But their day dreaming was molested; both occupants of their jungle neighbor's abandoned habitat were thrown to the ground, gathered up and carried to a different kind of resting place.—Willie A. Jones.

A NEW M. D. FOR CLANTON

Opening up an office last week in Clanton was Dr. C. T. Martin, from Atlanta, Ga. Dr. Martin's office is in the Mullins Building, over J. R. Mullins & Sons store.

Dr. Martin is a graduate of the University of Georgia School of Medicine, and served two years rotating internership in one of the South's leading hospitals. He is a member of the Georgia State and Alabama State Medical Societies.

Dr. Martin has been practicing medicine in Atlanta for about eight years. He and his wife have already moved to Clanton, making their residence in the Wright building, next door to the home of Mr. and Mrs. V. J. Elmore.

The Union-Banner and others of Clanton extend a cordial welcome to Dr. and Mrs. Martin to our fair city. We are glad to have them as our citizens.

AIRPLANES FROM MONTGOMERY VISITED CLANTON SUNDAY A. M.

Last Sunday morning a group of nine airplanes from Municipal Airport, Montgomery, had everything all set and primed for a trip to Clanton. The weather down there looked a little threatening, so three of the pilots declined the idea of trying the trip; six of them headed out with Clanton as their destination, some leaving in one direction and some in another. After coming up this direction fifteen or twenty miles, the mist began to look thicker and lower, so eventually three of those that started turned around and went back to Montgomery. So, there were only three of the nine planes that actually landed in Gragg Field.

The weather was really bad up here, the rain falling fast and the mist being dense. Two of the planes, one piloted by J. W. Allen, arrived at Gragg Field about 8:30, close together. The third plane to come here was thirty or forty minutes behind; but all three left Montgomery at the same time. The pilot of the third plane turned around and went back part of the way a time or two, but finally decided to man the fog and come on in to Clanton.

All of the planes were privately owned and piloted by more or less amateurs in aviation from the Montgomery Airport.

BLOODIEST TRAFFIC YEAR DRAWS TO TRAGIC CLOSE

Police and motor vehicle officials in the 48 states have closed books on the bloodiest year of traffic fatalities in the history of the nation, according to estimates compiled by the National Voice News Bureau.

With the Christmas holiday chalking up nearly 300 violent deaths, most of which were attributed to reckless or drunken driving, and New Year's Eve yielding an even greater toll, the 1936 traffic death toll was expected to top the 38,000 mark.

During the first 10 months of 1936, the National Safety Council has computed traffic deaths at 29,680, with the death toll increasing as the year wore on. In 1934, there were approximately 36,100 traffic deaths, and in 1935, approximately 37,000, showing a steady gain that has paralleled the increased use of intoxicants by automobile drivers since repeal, according to the National Voice News Bureau.

FEDERAL DEBT IS SET AT $34,232,200,000

Washington, Jan. 18.—After the completion of all aspects of the December financing program, the gross public debt on December 15 was estimated by the treasury to be $34,232,200,000.

This raises the debt to about $44,000,000 in excess of the $34,188,543,494 estimated by the president on September 1, as the total for the end of the fiscal year on June 30 next.

The treasury department hopes on March 16 to scale the debt total again below the president's estimate when it expects to retire, through the use of tax receipts and without additional cash borrowings, about $300,000,000 in treasury-bill maturities of that date which meanwhile will have accumulated.

The treasury summary gave the net increase in public debt, as estimated for the period from November 30, 1933, to December 15, this year, as $10,698,100,000.

The funeral was held at Woodlawn Baptist church at 10 o'clock. Burial was at Rockford, beside her first husband. Others attending both the funeral and burial from Clanton were: Mrs. W. D. Spigener, Mrs. Warrene Farrior, and Mrs. Lena Jones.

Temperance Groups Merged For Fight

To Combine Press and Radio In Nationwide Campaign During Coming Year

Members of local church and temperance organizations will be interested in news of the merger of two nationally known temperance organizations, contained in radio announcements made simultaneously by Sam Morris, the Voice of Temperance, and Ethel Hubler, publisher of the National Voice, who have just combined their forces in order to launch a nationwide radio educational campaign beginning January 1.

Miss Hubler's news commentaries on the liquor question, Repeal News Flashes, are now released to approximately 60 radio stations in 29 different states. Mr. Morris, whose Voice of Temperance broadcast has been a regular radio feature for several years, now presents a program three times a day over XERA, a 350,000-watt station, at 6 p.m., 10:45 p.m., and 4:45 a.m., central standard time.

As a result of the merger just effected, the Voice of Temperance and National Voice will coordinate their radio commentations on the liquor question, in conjunction with the National Voice, national tabloid weekly, which will continue to be published by Miss Hubler.

Because of the tremendous power of XERA, the radio station over which the Voice of Temperance-National Voice feature is broadcast three times each day, these talks now have a regular audience in every state in the nation, in Canada, and in Mexico, as indicated by the hundreds of letters received from radio listeners each week.

A recent feature of the program has been an open forum during which the young people are given an opportunity to express their views on the liquor question.

'The Great Ziegfeld' Showing Here Soon

Most Elaborate Production In History of Talking Screen; Shows Here 27th-28th

At last, the perfect entertainment picture has been achieved!

It is Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's musical extravaganza, "The Great Ziegfeld," coming to the Wadesonian Theatre, in Clanton, on Wednesday and Thursday, January 27 and 28.

It is a picture that possesses all, and even more, than its advance notices have claimed for it.

This giant musical, suggested by the life of the world's greatest showman, the late Florenz Ziegfeld, can be termed The Greatest Show On Earth. Not alone is it crammed with drama that tugs at your heart strings, but it overflows with comedy, music and beautiful girls.

First, there is the star combination of William Powell as Ziegfeld, Myrna Loy as Billie Burke, and Luise Rainer as Anna Held, and right there let us predict for this vivacious Viennese star a future as great as Greta Garbo's. Within two American productions she has leaped to the top as the most sensational star of the screen in the past ten years.

Sharing honors with the three stars is a veritable army of first rate entertainers—Fannie Brice, queen of mimicry, singing the song that made her greater than she ever was, "My Man"; Harriet Hoctor, America's own famour ballerina, in the most spectacular musical number possibly ever filmed; Virginia Bruce, former Ziegfeld beauty, in another musical number, "A Pretty Girl Is Like A Melody," that challenges description; Ray Bolger, spectacular dancer of the Broadway stage, in another dazzling number, "You."

Besides these stellar entertainers, "The Great Ziegfeld" has Frank Morgan as Ziegfeld's friendly enemy, Nat Pendleton as the great Sandow, strongest man in the world, Reginald Owen as Ziggy's business manager.

Not only does this amazing film unfold the life of Ziegfeld, but it presents a cross section of the American theatrical world for the past quarter of a century.

The settings alone, designed by Cedric Gibbons, are unsurpassed in film history. They begin with the World's Fair of 1893, and include gorgeous theatrical settings of the many theatres that served as Ziegfeld's glamorous world.

In no picture to date have so many beautiful girls been assembled as was done for "The Great Ziegfeld". As Ziegfeld would have glorified them, so have they been glorified in the film.

The direction is superb, with Robert Z. Leonard reaping the laurels for the dramatic sequences, and Seymour Felix for the dance and musical spectacles.

"The Great Ziegfeld" adds another triumph to Hunt Stromberg's long list of successes, and to him goes a big hand for his courage in producing a musical picture on such a stupendous scale, and making every foot of it entertainment in the highest degree.

BUY A TICKET TO BIRTHDAY BALL

Editor Union-Banner:

Just a few lines, please, regarding the birthday ball for the president. Certainly all who care to dance or to attend a ball where others are enjoying dancing, should attend. But we should look on this attendance as a secondary matter. Our first thought should be that, if we do not care to attend the ball, we should by all means buy a ticket just the same, and go elsewhere or stay at home as we may like, remembering that every penny of this fund is applied to the treatment of infantile paralysis victims. Out of each and every dollar so spent, 70 cents goes to our local sufferers, and 30 cents goes to the Warm Springs Foundation. Don't miss the opportunity to help the crippled who need your help, and be thankful that you, yourself, are not so afflicted.—V. J. Gragg.

J. L. WILSON BOUGHT OUT GULFPRIDE SERVICE STATION

Mr. J. L. Wilson a few days ago purchased of Mr. A. D. Scott the Gulfpride Service Station, at the intersection of Selma Highway and Birmingham Highway. The station will be operated by Mr. Jack Armstrong and Mr. Theo Wilson.

These two young men, as well as the new owner, invite you to come to their place when your car needs attention. They are prepared to do any kind of work your automobile happens to need.

The Hollises' Visit To Mexico

(By Mr. John Hollis, Mitchell Dam)

Last week's issue is from Alabama to Mexico City. I will now try to picture to you a few of the sights of interest and my observation of Mexico City and the towns within fifty miles of the city that we visited.

As we came near the city limits of Mexico City we had passed through the great fields of Maguey. This is the plant that looks similar to what we know in the States as the Century Plant. One can see hundreds of acres of them lined up like soldiers along both sides of the road. The center of this plant is cut out and a rock is placed over the bowl, that is then opened up like a large crock. The sap from the leaves drain down into this bowl; in some plants several quarts a day for several months, until the plant finally bleeds to death. It looks and tastes much like coconut water, only worse. This sap when treated ferments and produces a dirty white liquid with a forbidding smell and of about the same alcoholic content as beer. This is what they call pulque. Then when distilled, tequila or mescal. This is one of their largest cultivated crops of the Aztecs and a very popular drink.

Passing from these fields and a very short drive off the main highway are the pyramids of Teotihuacan Sacred Shrines of Guadalupe, and the Monastery of Acalman; the pyramids of the Sun and Moon being the largest, the pyramid of the Sun, about 1,000 feet at the base with 247 steps, a height of about 225 feet, all built from 200 to 400 years ago. It's well worth one's time to drive out to these shrines.

Then on to the city trough the ruins of the old forts, through a long isle of stately trees and to the gate entrance of old Mexico City. Here one has to stop, have his papers checked, give his driver's license number and such other information as is necessary for tourists to enter. The officers are very courteous to you, will help you find such accommodations as you desire, and even telephones, and have them reserved for your inspection. By accepting their advice we were fortunate in getting to stay in a wealthy Mexican nobleman's mansion who was giving over the first and second floor of his mansion to American tourists at a most reasonable rate that his two sons who were in college might learn their English first hand from the contact made with Americans in their home.

After we were established in our place to call headquarters for our stay we were off for a place to eat, then a night of sleep under three heavy blankets, to be up the next morning when the sun was up with the finest spring morning one could want, with a Senorita for our guide to see as many places of historic interest as we could. Many bronze statues, convents, temples, cathedrals, government buildings, through the native market places, curio shops, in the old city, then through the new city, are the beautiful parks, the flower market of great marble columns, steps and seats, with tile roofs, large fine colored glass lights, and across the street is the Palace of Fine Arts started in 1900 and dedicated in 1934.

Then a drive of about 35 miles south to the city Xochimilco, the floating gardens and Indian life. One can hire a boat with an Indian boy to propel the boat with a long pole through the canals of these islands where the finest vegetables and the most beautiful flowers grow. The native women in small dugouts paddle along beside your boat and cook you a meal over a small charcoal stove and serve it as you glide through this panorama of romantic beauty. For a peso one can rent a boat with an orchestra of native music, which will glide along with you to add to this romantic setting that nature has so wonderfully set. Then after you have spent a few hours here and are in your car leaving this Indian village and start your drive to the city, looking out to your right, there opens up to your eyes some 30 miles distance, and at an altitude of 18,000 or 19,000 feet above sea elevation the snow capped Papocatepetl and the Ixtaccihuatl, called by the natives the mountain who smokes and the white sleeping woman or (Popo and Sleeping Woman) then on in to the city. And now it is time to eat again, so up town by way of Paseo de la Reforma, the main boulevard, or the Broadway of Mexico City, to the house of tile built in 1500, and used as a residence until 1900, and was bought by an American, a Mr. Sanborn, and made into one of the finest and most picturesque eating places in Mexico City, and is called Sanborn's. Here one can get American cooking or Mexican; and drinks, well! your thirst is the guide.

After dinner, a stroll around the parks and shops to drink in all their customs, as the shops there are open at night longer than in the States. And here I might tell you something about one custom they have which I very much like.

They say Mexico is a land of tomorrow. Well the only people you see in a hurry are those in automobiles and I though at first that they were all either going to a fire or that a revolution had broken out on the other side and each were trying to get in front of the other to get away, for I had to drive some several miles it seemed to me, before I could ever find a hole on either side that I could feel that I could beat the other fellow into, that I might stop to try and get some information as to where I was going. The fellow that was a little late was either minus a wheel, fender, or the whole car. But other than those in cars no one seemed to be in any hurry at all. The point that appealed to me was that everything closed at 1:00 o'clock to have lunch, and didn't open until 3:00 o'clock, after they eat they must rest. It seemed to me I could fill that two hours of the day.

On the 31st, about 9:45, we left Mexico City to start the 2,000 mile drive home as quickly as was possible with safety to get home for school the 4th. On our first day of the return trip we experienced our first trouble. While starting the ascent of the second range of mountains some 150 miles from Mexico City we drove into the clouds and were in them down some sixty miles, worse than our fog, and to add to the danger we were passing through where it seemed that there was no bottom on one side and a sheer wall with no top on the other. The thoughts of sleeping in the car that night and the thoughts of that is what made me keep easing along every little bit I could. We drove out a little before dark and passed through the worst of the jungle territory we saw after dark, with deer, tigers and many others of the cat family in the road, their eyes like so many small amber lights shining ahead. We made Valles again for the night stop. It being New Year's Eve we were treated to an all night celebration of shooting, singing, music and drinking.

Leaving Valles early the next day for the States arriving at Nuevo Laredo about 4:30, and then a scramble of all to buy our last souvenir and get through the inspections. I might say that the inspection on your return by the U. S. Custom officers leaves your baggage, car, and what you bring back with you in such condition that you had just as soon dump it into the river over the bridge. I found extreme courtesy on the entrance to Mexico and extreme authority covering everything when I came back to the States. We again spent the night in Laredo, Texas, and were off early Saturday morning, taking the southern route home by way of Skidmore, Victoria, Rosenberg, Houston and Beaumont, Texas, spending some time in both places which are both beautiful cities. In Houston I had my first experience with the much talked of parking meters, which are both convenient and expensive. It appeared to me to be the last word in tax suckling, while I sat in my car and every twenty minutes got out to feed this tax machine with another nickel, with a policeman marking time to see that I didn't let this little machine run past its feeding time, another uniformed man was busily operating on this tiny box mounted on its little steel pedestal removing the nickels so there would be no chance he would be over fed and have to refuse the next offering. So you see it was necessary for me to stand by the car and slip it nickels while the family window shopped and wished.

We spent Saturday night in Lake Charles, Louisiana, a little city built along one of Louisiana's many lakes. Sunday morning we were off looking over every hill to see the lights at Mitchell Dam for which we had to put behind us 650 miles first. We traveled through great oil fields of Louisiana, with their towers by the hundreds, and here and there was one afire with its billows of smoke winding their way to the clouds. There beside it a gas well burning with only a long clean flame, no smoke running here and there like the tongue of a snake looking for something to strike. Then into sugar cane everywhere and a sugar refinery to make it into the finished product. We were then on a four-lane concrete highway bearing the same name as all the bridges we saw in Louisiana, of which there were hundreds, and on each end "Huey P. Long and O. K. Allen." One would have thought they had the contract for the building of the state. I learned the people of Louisiana built them, and Mr. Long and Mr. Allen hung their shingle on them, which is good advertisement. We crossed the "old man river" at Baton Rouge on the ferry, with about a hundred other cars. There stands a magnificent structure hunting its way to the clouds some thirty odd stories high, which can be seen many miles before you reach the river, that $5,000,000 Huey P. Long state capitol of Louisiana. We drove up through as beautiful grounds as one can see, on up the 48 steps that go from Washington to Maine to Florida to California and then into one of the prettiest buildings I have ever seen. The fifth floor is done complete in Alabama marble and I was told that Alabama supplied the most of both marble and limestone. Then way down in the center of the capital grounds was the area surrounded in cut flowers, where Senator Huey P. Long was buried.

After leaving Baton Rouge we only stopped to eat and gas the car, sighting those brilliant "Reddy Kilowatts" that are so cheap in Alabama. We arrived home about 11:15 Sunday night and gave thanks for a trip of safety and education; 4,000 miles and ten days filled to the brim, is all anyone could want of Santa Claus.

DOES BLADDER IRRITATION WAKE YOU UP?

It's not normal. It's nature's warning, "Danger Ahead". Make this 25c test. Use buchu leaves, juniper oil, and 6 other drugs made into little green tablets, to flush out excess acids and impurities. Excess acids can cause irritation resulting in getting up nights, scanty flow, frequent desire, burning, backache, and leg pains. Just say Bukets to your druggist. In four days if not pleased your 25c will be refunded. Upchurch Drug Co., and Alred Drug Co. 1-7-4t

DUCK HUNTING

Montgomery, Jan. 18.—Duck hunters, if the sale of duck stamps is any indication, were not as numerous in Alabama this past season as they were the year before.

A report of the Biological Survey to the State Conservation Department, covering sales of migratory bird hunting stamps for the fiscal years of 1935 and 1936, showed that only 1,403 duck stamps were sold in the state as compared with 2,553 during 1935.

An early season survey by the Conservation Department disclosed ducks to be rather abundant along the gulf coast, but cross winds kept the inlets shallow, and the hunters, who did not venture out, had difficulty in the mud flats.

Weather and tide conditions improved considerably toward the end of the waterfowl season, and it is possible that a greater demand developed for the stamps.

Duck hunting at its best, however, furnishes little competition for bird hunts, dove shoots, deer drives, and turkey hunts in Alabama. Even with the scarcity of wild waterfowl in recent years, this state has had more than enough to supply the demand.

The answer seems to lie in the abundance of the other game species and the more popular sport they offer.

REV. HOLLAND, STANTON PASTOR

The Union-Banner wishes to correct a statement made in last week's paper about Rev. J. S. Holland continuing to serve his two churches in this county after his removal to Pepperell, Ala. We stated that he would continue to serve Liberty Hill and Mulberry. This should have read Liberty Hill and Stanton. We are sorry of the error, and are pleased to make the correction.

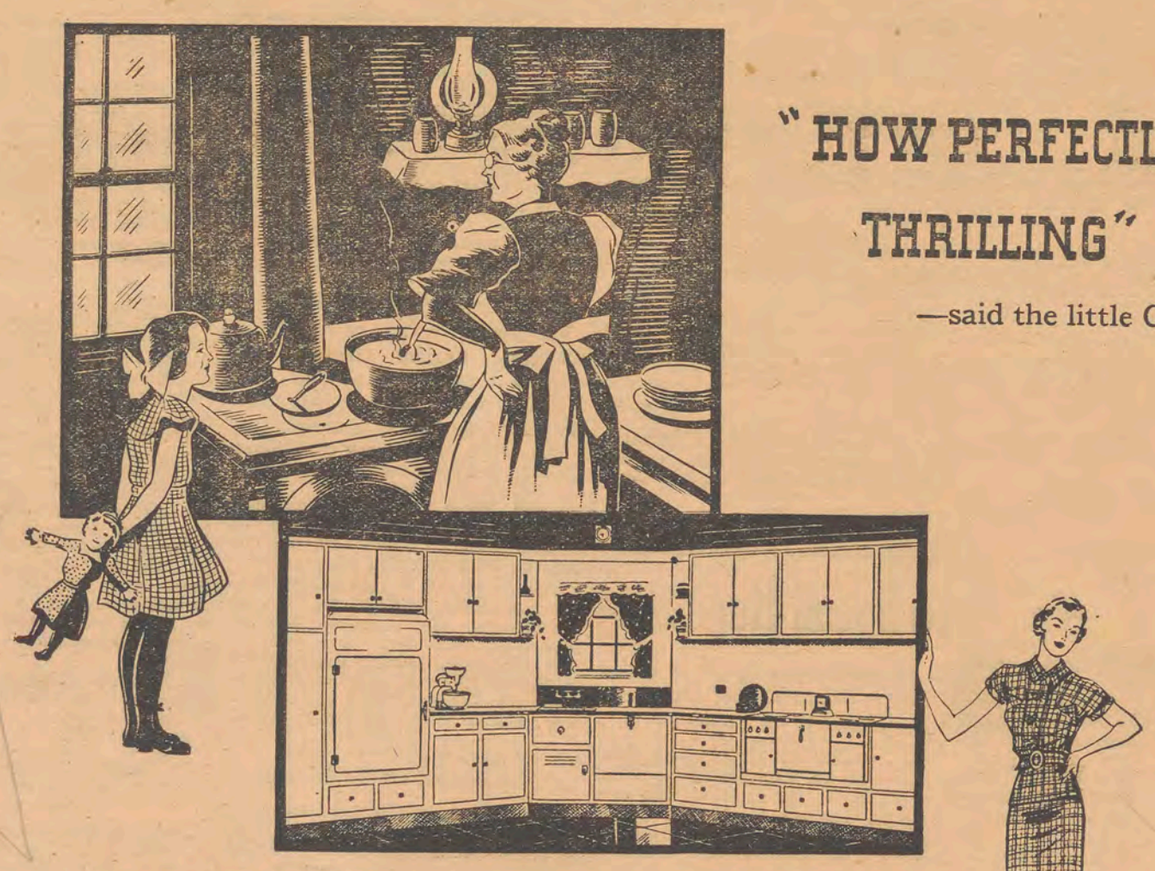
Oscar Island, of Montgomery, was in Clanton on business Tuesday.

IN MEMORY

On Thursday, January 14th, the death angels visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter W. Popwell, and carried away their loving daughter, Mrs. Lula Jones, age 15. Weep not, dear ones, she is sleeping in heaven. To know her was to love her, for she was so kind and wore a smile for everyone. No one knows how she suffered. But she bore her pain with courage. She is gone, but not forgotten. We hope to meet her some day.

She leaves to mourn her death, her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Walter W. Popwell, her father, two sisters, one brother, and a host of relatives and friends.—Mrs. Josie Gore.

CARD OF THANKS



We wish to express our sincere thanks to neighbors, friends and relatives for the splendid assistance and deeds of kindness extended us during the extended illness and death of our dear husband, father and grand father. Every consideration was extended us that we could possibly wish for, and we appreciate it all. May the loving and Almighty God bless you all is our ardent prayer.—Mrs. John C. Calloway and family.

MARS HILL

I take this plan to thank the good people of Mars Hill for the many nice presents delivered to me at the church on my last preaching day. May God bless the ones who gave them.—J. N. Green, pastor.

"GRANDMOTHER SAID

"SOMEDAY someone will invent a wonderful kitchen-range —it will be beautiful, it will be cool, it will be clean, it will save time, it will cook better—and it will be economical."

"HOW PERFECTLY THRILLING"

—said the little Girl.

SOMEDAY IS HERE!

TODAY the "little girl" is the proud owner of an ELECTRIC RANGE. She enjoys "Miracle" electric cookery . . . meal-getting is so simple and easy for her that it is really a pleasure. Unlike grandmother, who spent tedious hours over an old-fashioned stove—watching, waiting and basting—she places a complete meal, including meat, vegetables and dessert, in the big automatic oven of her electric range and then forgets it until meal time.

Her range is so clean that her cooking utensils are as bright and shiny as the day she bought them. She never ceases to marvel at the speed with which electricity cooks. She tells her friends how low her electric bill is. HOW HER HUSBAND PRAISES HER WELL-COOKED PALATABLE FOODS! She is teaching her little girl to want an electric range when she grows up!

Electric Ranges of excellent quality are available at terms as low as $2.50 DOWN and a small amount monthly

4-H CLUB BOYS

On Thursday morning, at 8 o'clock, B. N. Ivey met with Stanton 4-H club at Stanton Jr. High School.

There were 45 boys present. There was not any business to come before the club. Several boys discussed how to care for poultry.—Willard Huff.

ENTERPRISE CLUB MEETS

The Enterprise Home Demonstration Club met Wednesday afternoon, January 6, at the home of Mrs. C. L. Wilkins. The weather was rough, but there were several members present. The club is growing nicely. New members are enrolled at most every meeting.

Our lesson at this meeting was on balanced diet. Miss Grace made a very interesting talk on this subject. This is something that all wives should be interested in, for the sake of their families.

Mrs. Wilkins and some of the other ladies prepared a balanced dinner, which as served to all present. This was a very nice and wholesome meal, and everyone seemed to enjoy it.

At our next meeting, February 3, we will have a balanced breakfast; all are asked to try to be present.

We are sorry to lose our former president, Mrs. Aubrey Neeley; hope she will visit us sometime. Mrs. J. C. Boockholdt was elected new president.

TWO HOG SHOWS AND SALES ARE PLANNED

Auburn, Ala.—Prizes will be awarded at hog shows and sales will be held in Montgomery September 1 and 2, and in Birmingham September 8 and 9, announces F. W. Burns, extension livestock specialist.

It is hoped that these shows and sales can be used to stimulate hog production, Mr. Burns said, in setting out the following purposes:

1. To encourage the production and marketing of hogs by farmers and 4-H Club boys.

2. To teach the fundamentals of proper feeding, breeding, and management in the production of market hogs.

3. To teach farmers and 4-H Club boys the advantages of producing the type of hogs wanted by the pork trade.

Entries may be made through county agents or assistant 4-H Club agents.

LEASED FARM LAND SHOWS 14 PER CENT GAIN IN 35 YEARS

Auburn, Ala. — The percentage of land operated under lease in Alabama increased from 35 per cent in 1900 to 50 per cent in 1935, and the percentage of farms operated by tenants and croppers increased from 58 per cent in 1900 to 64 per cent in 1935, reports the Bureau of Agricultural Economics to Dr. L. N. Duncan, director of the state extension service.

During the same period the percentage of farm land operated under lease in the United States increased from 31 per cent in 1900 to 45 per cent in 1935, and the proportion of the nation's farms operated by tenants or croppers increased from 35 per cent in 1900 to 42 per cent in 1935.

The bureau says increasing portions of the farmers are becoming tenants in the regions where commercial agriculture is dominant, and increasing proportions of the tenants are becoming share croppers or wage hands in the South. This trend is profoundly affecting both the present and future welfare of the rural people.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our friends for their kindness to us during the illness of our son, following a severe accident when a dynamite cap exploded in his hand. He is now improving steadily.—Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Knight.

BRIEF FARM NEWS

Alabama included, 41 states have adopted the national poultry improvement plan. Alabamians interested in obtaining a list of the names of hatcherymen and breeders taking part in the plan in Alabama may obtain such a list free from home agent, county agent, vocational teacher, or by writing R. B. Jones, Montgomery, or John E. Ivey, Auburn.

The 12,106 clients of rural rehabilitation in Alabama used a total of 12,000 tons of 6-8-4 fertilizer under their cotton in 1936; 9,825 of the 13,500 clients also used pure varieties of cotton seed recommended by the state extension service and experiment station.

The Dixie short course in dairy manufacturing will be held at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, January 25-30. Members of the faculty for the short course come from a number of states.

Veterinarians from a dozen states are expected to attend the 1937 short course for practicing veterinarians to be held at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, February 8-13. The Alabama Veterinary Medical Association will meet concurrently with the short course.

Dale County farmers this month celebrated 21 years of successful hog marketing with a big barbecue, entertainment, and addresses by farm leaders.

PREPARE LAND NOW FOR SETTING KUDZU

Auburn, Ala. — Farmers who are planning to plant kudzu for erosion control this year should make plans now for breaking the land several weeks before planting is to be done, according to R. Y. Bailey, regional agronomist of the Soil Conservation Service, and J. C. Lowery, agronomist of the Alabama Extension Service.

If time does not permit the breaking of the entire area, a strip at least 5 feet wide along each row should be thoroughly broken before planting and the strip between rows should be broken as soon after planting as is possible. It is advisable to plant a cultivated crop between the kudzu rows the first year to insure cultivation.

Rows should be laid off 10 or 15 feet apart with a middle buster or a pair of wings that will make deep furrows. Drill in a liberal application of stable manure, if available, and approximately 200 pounds of superphosphate per acre in the furrows and bed on, running four furrows with a light turnplow to form a low, flat bed.

Strong first year growth has been shown to be dependent on proper land preparation, fertilization, planting and first year cultivation. Plantings made on poorly prepared land without fertilizer have made little growth during the first two years, and in many cases have been virtually choked out by broomsedge.

Lesson for January 24

TWO MIRACLES OF MERCY

LESSON TEXT—John 5:2-9; 6:8-15.

GOLDEN TEXT—The same works that I do, bear witness of me, that the Father hath sent me. John 5:36.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Feeding Hungry People.

JUNIOR TOPIC—A Boy Who Gave Away His Lunch.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Why Did Christ Work Miracles?

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Significance of Christ's Miracles.

The world is looking for supermen, those who can work "miracles," and thus afford an easy solution for the problems of the home and of the nation. Men are ready to marvel at and follow in almost abject submission those who promise riches without labor, food without toil, short cuts to comfort and satisfaction. Often they are content if they only have something over which they may exclaim "Wonderful!" whether it be useful or not.

The miracles of God, through his servants and the Lord Jesus Christ, are not mere marvels or wonders. They are not for the advancement of the cause of any man or for personal glory. They are the mighty signs of an omnipotent God wrought for the good of men, for their spiritual enlightenment and as a testimony to the one true God.

The two miracles of our lesson present Jesus Christ as a Lord of mercy and grace—ready to meet the needs of men. Deep and real was his compassion as his heart yearned over needy humanity

It is suggested that in the study and teaching of this lesson we vary our plan somewhat and present seven seed thoughts found in the two portions assigned. It is also urged that the context in both chapters be read with care.

I. We Are Impotent Folk (John 5:2).

The words well describe not only those who lay helpless about the pool of Bethesda but they fit us as well. Oh, yes, we are strong, capable, fearless, but only until we meet some great elemental problem. Then we see that we are indeed "a great multitude of impotent folk." The gently falling snow stopped the undefeated Napoleon. The silent fog can paralyze a nation. Death, sickness—who can stay their hand?

II. Despair Spells Defeat (v. 7).

Long familiarity with his weakness had bred in the man with the infirmity a sense of despair. Such an attitude invites defeat. It is unbecoming to a Christian. Let us not forget in the darkest hour to "keep looking up."

III. God Answers the Weakest Faith (v. 8).

Jesus evidently saw in the man's despairing reply a spark of faith. He who believes honors the name of God. We may need to cry "I believe, help thou mine unbelief," but if we believe God will gloriously meet even our faltering faith.

IV. God's Command Empowers (vv. 8, 9).

Jesus told the man to "Rise—and walk"—the very thing he could not do for his thirty-eight years of life. But when the Son of God speaks to us he gives the power to respond to his command.

V. Works Follow Faith (v. 9).

The man arose, took up his bed, and walked. Man's faith in God and God's response to faith lead to man's action on God's command. Too many are they in the church today who have never stood up and walked for God.

VI. Look to God, Not at Your Resources (John 6:9).

Humanlike, the disciples counted their money and found it was not enough to supply food for a multitude. And then there was a boy, but he had only five barley crackers and two little fish. It almost sounds like a church-board deciding to close the cross-roads church and let the Devil have the boys and girls, because it costs too much to keep up the work. God help us to trust and go on for him. "Little is much when God is in it."

VII. Followers for Bread Not Wanted (v. 15).

Those who follow Christ because of business advantage and social prestige know nothing of what it means to be a Christian. He is not a bread-making king; he is the bread of life.

Essence of Prayer

Prayer in its essence is not so much the expression of our desire for things at all as of our desire for God Himself.

Discourtesy

Discourtesy occasions not merely suffering, but sin; and Christian courtesy is a "means of grace" to all who have the happiness to receive it.—R. W. Dale.

The Day's Work

Let us make haste to live. For every day is a new life to a wise man.—Seneca.

Grieving for Wasted Time

He who knows most, grieves most for wasted time.—Dante.

Miss Ruby Connatser of Birmingham spent the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Connatser.

University News

Major Edgar H. Underwood, for six years commander of the military unit at the University of Alabama, has just had his detail to the University renewed by the War Department.

It is unusual for an officer to remain at one school more than four years, but the War Department has permitted Major Underwood to remain at Alabama at the urgent request of the president of the University.

Prof. Frederick Archer, professor of education in the extension division of the University of Alabama, will deliver the commencement address at the mid-year commencement at the University.

Dr. Richard C. Foster, now president of the University, will preside at the commencement services on January 23.

Prof. Archer's subject has been announced as "A Design for Living."

Kay Kyser's nationally known dance orchestra will be the center of attention at the University of Alabama's mid-term dances on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week. Miss Alice Street Robertson, Clayton, will lead the dances with Eris Paul, Elba, chairman of the Cotillion Club committee which sponsors the dances. Phi Delta Theta fraternity will entertain with a house party during the dances, on January 25, 26, and 27.

Frances Greenwood, instructor in the Department of Physical Education at the University of Alabama, has been named national chairman of the National Watersports Committee. Miss Greenwood, long prominent in national aquatic activities, was appointed by the chairman of the Women's National Officials Rating Committee.

A meeting of swimmers and swimming instructors from colleges all over the South will be held at the University next month.

MANY MARES COMING INTO STATE IN 1937

Auburn, Ala.—"We expect to place approximately 3,000 mares with rural rehabilitation clients in Alabama during 1937," states Julian Brown, state director.

"More than 40 cooperative jacks will be placed in the counties where these mares are placed in order that each client having a brood mare will be able to raise a mule colt. Mares are recommended instead of mules because of the tremendous shortage of good mules in this state."

Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Billingsley and son, Allen, and Mr. and Mrs. William Billingsley of Clanton attended services at the Baptist church in Thorsby Sunday.

CHILTON COUNTY CLUB LADIES DEVELOPING HANDICRAFTS

Anixous to develop their talents and otherwise, articles that may be used for the home and at the same time hoping to make pen money to be added to the income for the family. Numerous ladies have sent samples of work to the office of the Home Demonstration Agent, who expects to demonstrate same to the public in every way possible, and also to send a special exhibit of the articles to Miss Dorothy Bean, State Specialist in handicraft. She expects to send the exhibit to the exhibition held in Nashville Tennessee, in February. It has been suggested by the State Specialist that Chilton county would be a good place in which to form a Handicraft organization and it is hoped that the women will perfect their work to the highest basis possible so that they will pass the high standards of workmanship that has to be met before the article will sell.

Those having sent in samples of their work are:

Mrs. G. E. Stutt, Clanton, Ala. R. 6, makes lovely hankerchiefs for both men and women; Mrs. A. N. Laurell, Thorsby, Ala. R. 1, of the Minooka Club sent in a very attractive man's tie; Mrs. Horace Popwell, Clanton, Ala., does beautiful crochet work, having sent in bags in different styles and also infants' sweaters; Mrs. George P. Notice to Clanton Study Club—

Owing to the inclement weather many have not yet had a chance to put out crepe myrtles for our "More Beautiful Clanton" trail. The Civic Committee wishes to again urge everyone to get their trees out at the first opportune moment, in order that the coming summer may find them well on their way to beauty. Mrs. Annie Thacker has a limited number of trees to offer for 20 cents a dozen.

The committee also wishes to call attention to club members and the general public of their sale of blind made goods. This sale will be conducted in the near future, and the only profit derived from this sale by the club is the deep thanks in their hearts that they are privileged to do this small service for our dear blind at Talladega, so anxious to help themselves. Let's make it a great success. —Mrs. Macy Jones, president; Mrs. John Mullins, Mrs. G. Heflin, Mrs. Hugh Jones, committee.

THROUGH BROAD AND BEAUTIFUL ENTRYWAYS VISITORS WILL PASS TO THE NEW YORK FAIR

NEW YORK, (Special).—Forty thousand persons an hour—visitors from every state and every nation—must be accommodated in comfort at but one of the entryways to the New York World's Fair of 1939, according to arrangements the Fair Corporation is completing to handle a maximum daily attendance of 800,000. The artist's drawing, as reproduced above, calls for a magnificent double-decked entryway with underpasses, overpasses, pedestrian walks, bus terminals, comfort stations and bridge connections assuring comfort while providing an area of architectural splendor. Shown is a ramp leading from the exposition grounds toward the I.R.T.-B.M.T. subway terminal, at a point where it is necessary to cross over the Long Island railroad tracks and to avoid undue congestion of pedestrian traffic. Shown in the left foreground is a domed restaurant within a fountain basin and a concourse bordered by grown plane-trees, and, nearer, an open-air cafe and an information kiosk. Along the flanking walls the artist has delineated the Fair's world concept which looks to the building of a peaceful, happier World of Tomorrow.

Roosevelt Birthday Ball At City Hall

Thursday Night, January 28th Is Date; Proceeds Go To Paralysis Victims

Announcement is made by Dr. V. J. Gragg, local chairman, that a birthday ball for the president will be held at the city hall in Clanton on Tuesday night, January 28th, from nine until one o'clock.

This ball is being held in connection with similar events that week end all over the country, the proceeds from which goes to the Infantile Paralysis fund.

Seventy cents of every dollar, Dr. Gragg says, will remain in the local community for the treatment and rehabilitation of resident infantile paralysis sufferers under direction of the local birtday ball committee. Thirty cents of every dollar will be turned over to the national committee for delivery to the president, to be presented by him to Warm Springs Foundation. This fund will be used in the national fight against infantile parralysis.

The Bama Skippers have been procured to furnish the music for the occasion. Everybody knows about the Skippers and the way they perform. Ladies will be admitted without charge.

Infantile Paralysis Among most Ancient Diseases

Infantile paralysis, against which modern science wages a courageous but so far not completely victorious battle, is not, as many have supposed, a disease of modern times. It did its fatal work in ancient Egypt and in medieval Europe, according to a survey recently made by Dr. LeRoy W. Hubbard, director of the extension work of the Warm Springs Foundation of New York.

Only in recent years, however, and since the disorder has from time to time reached epidemic proportions in parts of the United States has the medical fight against it been scientifically directed. Medicine in the United States has been assisted by the contributions of the people of the country through the annual birthday balls in honor of Mr. Roosevelt, and this year it is expected further sinews of war will result from the parties to be held on January 30.

In his review of infantile paralysis in ancient and modern times Dr. Hubbard points out that Dr. Clarence Victor Vaughan, the medical historian, found definite traces of the results of the disease in Egyptian mummies.

The first big modern epidemic in the United States, Dr. Hubbard writes, occurred in 1916. It reached every state in the union and struck down more than 25,000 persons, the majority of them children.

The difference between the situation of the Egyptians and that of Americans is that sufferers in 1937 are treated with all the skill of modern science which continues a pointed-up research in an effort to stamp out the disease

How to EASE a COLD FOR 15¢

TWO SIMPLE RULES

INSTEAD of buying costly medicines to relieve the discomforts of a cold, try the way almost any doctor you ask will approve as the modern way — genuine BAYER ASPIRIN. It now costs only 15¢ for a dozen tablets, or two full dozen for a quarter.

The way you use it is this: Two BAYER tablets the moment you feel a cold coming on, taken with a full glass of water. Repeat, if necessary, according to directions in package. If at the same time, throat is sore, gargle with three Bayer tablets in ½ glass water for almost instant relief. Bayer Aspirin acts to fight fever, and the aches and pains of a cold. Relief comes quickly. Ask your druggist for genuine BAYER ASPIRIN by its full name — not the name "aspirin" alone.

ALABAMA EDITORS HAD MEETING

Montgomery, Jan. 18.—Alabama editors, who attended the mid-winter convention in Montgomery last week, are back today in their offices determined to carry out the most ambitious program ever outlined at a state press session.

To a committee of 10 has been entrusted the work of setting up machinery and plans for carrying out the purposes of a resolution presented by the executive and program committee and unanimously adopted by the association after two hours of discussion Friday afternoon.

Briefly, the resolution provides that (1) Changing the state's per capita wealth (it ranks 46th among the states) to a place comparable with the state's natural resources and possibilities; (2) Presenting of Alabama's resources to the outside world; (3) Encouraging the location of new industries of all kinds in every part of the state; (4) Fostering the adoption of legislation favorable to the location of new industries; (5) Seeking the elimination of any unfair or discriminatory taxes which might handicap the state in its bid for new industries.

DESTRUCTIVE USE OF THE ROADS

Supervisor Warns Against the Heavy Hauling, Destroying the Roads. Alabama Law Cited.

Section 37, Chilton County Road Laws, states as follows: "No person shall run or operate a vehicle, either motor driven or horse drawn, carrying a load of more than 800 pounds on or along any public road, in Chilton County, upon which a rain of twenty (20) minutes or more shall have fallen, until the expiration of twenty-four (24) hours after such rain shall have ceased to fall, during the period of the year from the 1st day of May to the 1st day of December; nor until the expiration of thirty-six (36) hours after such rains shall have ceased to fall, during the period of the year from the 1st of December to the 1st of May. Provided that the hauling of lumber, logs, timber, cord wood, cross ties, or minerals along the public roads after such rains during such periods is absolutely prohibited. Provided, this section does not apply to automobile trucks or other vehicles used exclusively for transferring children to and from school."

Violation of this law is subject to a fine of $100 as provided in Section 2 of an Act (No. 505) by the Legislature of Alabama, approved September 22, 1915, providing rules, regulations and laws governing Boards of Revenue, Courts of County Commissioners, or other like governing bodies of the several counties, as follows: "That it shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to violate any rule, regulation or law which may be adopted or promulgated by the Court of County Commissioners, Board of Revenue, or like governing body, of any county, under the authority conferred by this act, relating to the use, control, care, operation or maintenance of any such public road, bridge or ferry, and any person, firm or corporation violating the same shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not more than one hundred dollars ($100), and may also be sentenced to hard labor for the county for not more than thirty (30) days, either or both, and each violation thereof, shall constitute a separate offense."

In many sections of the county our roads have been impassable due to their destructive use by heavy trucks loaded with logs, timber, cross ties, wood, and iron ore, during the past few weeks of rainy weather. In some places these trucks having destroyed one road, shifted to another route in order to continue their hauling, completely blocking such roads as an inlet or outlet to that particular area. The office of the Road Supervisor is constantly called upon by the rural mail men and school bus operators about this condition, a condition almost impossible of repair during this rainy weather. So the Road Supervisor, having no other recourse, is forced to invoke the law against such practices of heavy hauling, and all are warned that, effective now, all public roads are placed under patrol throughout the county, so that we may keep the roads open for the mail carriers and bus drivers transferring the children to and from schools. The Supervisor asks the cooperation of all the citizens of Chilton County in his effort on this matter.—Thomas J. Arledge, Supervisor.

Nations of World Allot Year 1939 To New York Fair

World Exposition Already Growing Up; Seeks Active Participation of State

NEW YORK, (Special).—The New York World's Fair, in which every state in the nation must inevitably take small or prominent part, is out of its infancy

Preparatory construction goes on night and day at the Flushing Meadow Site of 1216½ acres at the geographical centre of New York City. A steady flow of activities and announcements emanates from the Fair Corporation headquarters on four floors of the Empire State building. Judging from all of these, the Fair is a lusty growing institution that will reach full maturity—no question about it—by the scheduled opening day, April 30, 1939

The task of grading the site is about half completed. Battalions of men with trucks have already moved over 3,000,000 cubic yards of dry fill in the process of turning the waste marsh lands of the Flushing River basin into park ground. Other battalions are scooping out "meadow mat" for use as fertile top soil for the made lands, and in so doing excavate the beds for the two large lagoons featured in plans for the Fair.

The first of the 300 structures which, according to estimates, will house the 1939 Fair, has been completed and is ready for occupancy. This is the headquarters building for the field forces of today and the employment department of the exposition period.

Scheduled for early in the new year is the start of actual construction of the $900,000 Administration building. The designs for this structure, let under architectural contract a few weeks ago, are nearing the day of their approval in the Corporation's offices. Upon completion of this building, late in August, 1937, the Fair headquarters, bag, baggage and sales offices, moves to the exposition site.

"The most splendid and significant edifice projected for the 1939 international exposition," the Theme building, as described at Fair headquarters, is also well along in its contractual period. The estimated cost of this great building for the "Thematic Centre" of the exposition is set at $1,200,000. The preliminary designs are to be finished in about eight weeks and the final plans submitted within four weeks thereafter. Construction is scheduled to start immediately the designs are completed.

From this Theme centre will radiate all that is to be the 1939 Fair as conceived by its founders and rendered into concrete terminology and model by the Fair's Board of Design.

"Our job from now on is to give physical expression to the plan and theme of the Fair as announced and as set down on paper in our headquarters," says Grover Whalen, President of the Fair Corporation.

"Starting next April 1, we plan to complete the design of one major building every ten days for a period of seven months. In all, we expect to design no less than 30 major buildings to house the exhibits from every part of the world. Some 300 structures, in all, are planned for the Flushing Meadow site, within a few minutes' ride from Manhattan."

Without solicitation on the part of the Fair, more than 250 American business house and instituttions have begun preliminary conversations regarding their participation and are already planning exhibits. Five of the great nations of the world have already assured the Corporation that they would erect their own buildings, while no less than 32 other nations have informally indicated their desire to participate.

And then, on top of all this display of keen interest, comes the announcement that the International Convention Bureau, meeting in Paris, has allocated the year 1939 to the New York Fair. This means that the New York Fair has exclusive ranking as the "one international exposition" of 1939, and assures it of the active support of the 21 nations signing the agreement.

President Roosevelt has just extended official invitation to the nations of the world. Governor Herbert H. Lehman, of the host State of New York, has extended invitation to the governors and residents of 47 states. Grover Whalen, likewise, has invited the governors in a letter pointing out that "the commercial consequences of the New York World's Fair are so great and important that they alone would justify the active participation of every state."

Fair Commissioners are already in South America and Europe. Still others are on their way to the Far East and other foreign shores. Major Dennis E. Nolan, retired, as head of the Department of Foreign, State and Municipal Participation, will himself make representation to the governors and legislatures of the various states.

Meanwhile, under the direction of Harvey D. Gibson, President of the Manufacturers Trust Company, and Richard Whitney, former president of the New York Stock Exchange, the prominent figures in the financial capital conducted a 28-day campaign to sell $27,829,500 in debenture bonds of the Fair to finance the construction period

Every confidence is being expressed that the Fair not only will "pay its way," but that it will bring a billion dollars more of revenue into Greater New York and stimulate American industry in general to an extent many fold that amount.

The total cost of producing New York's Fair, including collateral improvements, is set at $125,005,000. Statisticians estimate that the attendance will total more than 50,000,000 persons.

The City of New York, the State of New York, and the Government of the United States, according to expectations, will account for $35,000,000 of the total expenditures and thus lend an official backing never before achieved.

ALABAMA EDITORS HAD MEETING

Montgomery, Jan. 18.—Alabama editors, who attended the mid-winter convention in Montgomery last week, are back today in their offices determined to carry out the most ambitious program ever outlined at a state press session.

To a committee of 10 has been entrusted the work of setting up machinery and plans for carrying out the purposes of a resolution presented by the executive and program committee and unanimously adopted by the association after two hours of discussion Friday afternoon.

Briefly, the resolution provides that the Alabama Press Association undertake the tasks of: (1) Lifting Alabama from the cellar division of states in per capita wealth (it ranks 46th among the states) to a place comparable with the state's natural resources and possibilities; (2) Presenting of Alabama's resources to the outside world; (3) Encouraging the location of new industries of all kinds in every part of the state; (4) Fostering the adoption of legislation favorable to the location of new industries; (5) Seeking the elimination of any unfair or discriminatory taxes which might handicap the state in its bid for new industries.

Discussion of the resolution and its final passage consumed the entire session Friday afternoon after the editors had been welcomed by Mayor W. A. Gunter. A majority of those present expressed their views after the resolution had been presented by F. W. Stanley of Greenville. He was followed by Grover Hall, editor of The Montgomery Advertiser, Cliff E. Walton of Lafayette, and H. H. Golson of Wetumpka. Many other editors expressed favorable views and added suggestions on the call of Gaston Bozeman, president, for volunteer discussion.

MORE RELIEF ARROGANCE

The revolt of the ERA workers in New York City against the order that they take competitive civil service examinations to hold their jobs is simply another demonstration of the peculiar arrogance created by the relief program. Many of these sit-down strikers were picked from relief rolls to give them an opportunity to earn their living serving their fellow victims of the depression. Others, to be sure, were chosen, regardless of need, for their experience and ability in the field of social service. And still others, of course, were appointed for political reasons. Yet, whatever the occasion of their connection with the ERA payroll, they are dominated by the notion that they have a proprietorship in their jobs. Even the suggestion that they should justify their incumbency meets with violence.

American society, it seems to us, has a very definite duty in the circumstances, and that is to set its face against any pretensions of the sort.—New York Herald Tribune.

CURTAILING PUBLIC WORKS

The progress of recovery has now eliminated further need for expansion of public works or for federal subsidies for construction to states or cities. Private construction, especially of residences, requires skilled labor, which should now be released by curtailment of all but the most urgent public works. A shortage of skilled construction labor is already noted in many parts of the country, a fact which may limit the speed of recovery in private building.

Those are the conclusions of the public works committee of the American Association for Labor Legislation. They are doubly significant because of their source, for the committee has not been opposed to the large public works policy of the past, but, on the contrary, has recommended and warmly approved it, and even now recommends that the PWA be retained as a permanent agency, ready for the next depression. But for the present, it holds, the pump has been primed, and recovery is in full swing. — New York Times.

CONSTITUTION CHISELING

Radical forces in our country are endeavoring to accomplish through what they hope will prove to be a subservient majority in congress that which they are sure the people never shall initiate: i. e., many radical changes in our Constitution, writes Dr. R. J. C. Dorsey in The National Republic. There were at least 72 joint resolutions introduced during the last session of congress to amend the federal Constitution. Of these, 18 were introduced in the Senate and 54 in the House. Joint resolutions are used where congress desires to propose amendments to the Constitution, for this type does not require the approval of the executive. Before any such resolutions become a part of the Constitution they must have received the approval of two-thirds of the quorum present in both houses and the ratification of three-fourths of the state legislatures of our nation. The adoption of some of these suggested amendments would so encroach upon the fundamental principles of our federal Constitution that our present form of government would be completely disrupted. The most drastic of these proposed changes are undoubtedly the result of the acceptance of false doctrines. Many of these radical theories have apparently seriously impaired the sound reasoning mechanism of some of our legislators. They have insinuated themselves on many ingredient members of our body politic, and through the subversion of our youth may seriously threaten the welfare of future generations. Through ridicule there is a concerted attempt to deprecate the men who framed the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution of the United States, and the justices of the Supreme Court, our highest tribunal.

On September 17, 1787, delegates from 12 states attended the constitutional convention in Philadelphia and affixed their signatures to the seven articles then contained in the Constitution. In all, 65 delegates had been appointed, 55 attended, and 39 signed. In order to preclude the possibility of a publication of a mental effusion entitled "Fifty-five Old Men Who Framed the Federal Constitution," allow me to suggest that the average age of the delegates was 43, which one must admit is not supreme senectitude. John Francis Mercer was 28. Benjamin Franklin was more than 80. Gen. George Washington was 55. The New Jersey plan was brought forth by William Patterson, who was 42. The Virginia plan was proposed by Edmund Randolph, who was 34. Charles Pinckney, whose plan played a great part in forming the Constitution, was only 29. The Connecticut compromise was largely the work of Oliver Ellsworth, who was 42. The man who contributed more, possibly, than any other to the daily labors of the convention was James Madison, who was 36. Gouverneur Morris, who headed the committee on style which made the final draft, was 35. There we had the experience of age, the desires of youth, and the balance of the two, the middle aged. What they accomplished has already lasted for 150 years.

The largest single item in the American household budget is neither food, nor rent, nor clothing, a recent study has revealed. It is taxes. Our annual tax load is $12,000,000,000, as compared with $11,500,000,000 for food, $10,000,000,000 for rent, and $6,000,000,000 for clothing. In other words, the cost of government is more than the cost of the food we eat, 20 per cent more than we pay the landlord, and twice as much as we pay for our clothing.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert)

The Supreme Court has again upheld the right of free speech and assembly, this time in the unanimous decision rendered on January 4 in the appeal of the conviction and 7-year jail sentence assessed against Dirk de Jonge in Oregon for alleged violation of the state's Criminal syndicalism law.

De Jonge's conviction was upheld in the state courts, it was said, not because he had made revolutionary or inflammatory remarks but because the Communist party, under whose auspices the meeting was held, was said to be an advocate of criminal syndicalism.

In touching on this finding the Supreme Court of the United States said: "The holding of meetings for peaceable political action cannot be proscribed. Those who assist in the conduct of such meetings cannot be branded as criminals on that score.

"While the states are entitled to protect themselves from the abuses of the privileges of our institutions through an attempted substitution of force and violence in the place of peaceful political action in order to effect revolutionary changes in government, none of our decisions go to the length of sustaining such a curtailment of the right of free speech and assembly as the Oregon statute demands in its present application."

Justice Hughes in reading the decision, stated that the rights of free speech, free press and peaceful assembly may be abused by press or assembly to invite violence or crime, and, he continued:

"The people through their legislatures may protect themselves against that abuse. But the legislative intervention can find constitutional justification only by dealing with the abuse. The greater the importance of safeguarding the community from incitements to the overthrow of our institutions by force and violence the more imperative is the need to preserve inviolate the constitutional rights of free speech, free press and free assembly in order to maintain the opportunity for full political discussion, to the end that the government may be responsible to the will of the people and that changes, if desired, may be obtained by peaceful means. Therein lies the security of the republic, the very foundation of constitutional government."

The written opinion, which is a lengthy one, was concurred in by the entire membership of the court. It contains a clear and careful analysis of the relation between free speech, a free press, the right of peaceful assemblage, and the preservation of constitutional government against the attacks of incendiarism and revolution.

It is interesting to note, in considering the decision, that the Communists themselves, who have in this instance, as in many others, fled under the folds of the constitutional banner for protection, are usually the first and the busiest to denounce constitutional government as a sham and a fraud, and an instrument designed by capitalism to preserve itself against the proletariat.

There could perhaps be no greater tribute to the Constitution, considering the motive of those who take part in agitating against it, than this action of so many extreme radicals, at the first sign of danger, in running for protection to the custodians of this charter, which they are always the most eager to denounce. Had the Communists themselves any sense of humor, they might easily laugh themselves out of court, although revolutionary activity of course is no laughing matter.

The difference between constitutional America and autocratic Russia, which the Reds worship, can be envisioned from this decision of the Supreme Court. In Russia those taking part in a political meeting unfriendly to the government could not plead effectively the right of free speech or free assemblage. They would go not to the Supreme Court, but to Siberia.

GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP

If the radicals are permitted to put in the new congress three bills for the acquisition and operation of the railroads, introduced in the last congress by Sen. Wheeler and Reps. Maverick and Lundeen, and which it is now planned to introduce again, federal, state, county and local governments will lose in taxes a total of $3,221,997,920.

Many counties rely on railroad taxes for the major part of the money necessary for support of their public schools. All governmental units depend largely on railroad taxes to enable them to function. Nobody wants government ownership but the professional office-seeker element. They want it because they figure it can be exploited for the creation of new jobs.

The minute the railroads pass under government ownership, that minute all tax revenue from railroad-owned real estate stops. Property owned by the government is not subject to taxation. Railroads owned and operated by the government won't be subject to railroad standards of efficiency. A railroad job will become a political job. Employees won't be picked, as now, for their efficiency and attention to duty. They'll be picked for political reasons, and will become parts, not of a skilled working railroad personnel, but of a huge political machine. — Philadelphia Sunday Dispatch.

THE SWARM OF TAX-EATERS

The chances of bringing about any early and considerable reduction in the number of persons on the payroll of the federal government appear to be slim.

Getting people on the payroll, and getting them off again, are two different things, as Democratic experience proves.

The jobholders and their friends and relatives all have votes.

The senators and congressmen who have gotten their jobs for them, want those votes.

And the merchants in Washington whose business profits from a huge bureaucracy do not want the bureaucracy reduced.

When the jobholders themselves, their political sponsors, and the merchants of the national capital all stand together, they constitute a fairly strong opposition to cutting down the number of tax-eaters.—Detroit Free Press.

The old fashioned man who used to go about the courthouse square and pay his bills every Saturday night now has a son who buys everything in 18 monthly instalments.

France and England want the Spanish to take a vote to settle the issues of the war. The main trouble is that the side which loses probably will demand a machine-gun recount.

THE STATES AS LEADERS

An Associated Press survey reveals that good numbers of the states have been reducing their public debts as the country moved out of the depression, the total thus paid off amounting to more than 120 million dollars. Other states have found it possible to go through the entire depression without increasing indebtedness. It is not apparent that the full explanation of this has been a shifting of obligations to the federal government, though that may account for it in some instances. But, altogether, it should serve as an example to the government, which in recent years has assumed the role of leading the states.—Kansas City Times.

THE G. O. P.'S FUTURE

The hope of the Republican party lies more particularly in education than in organization. Until the people, the farmer and the laboring man, as well as the business man, reach the conclusion that they prefer the G. O. P.; until they are convinced that the Republican party and its principles are to their best interest, organization can do little.

Political movements of major importance come from the people. This does not mean that there must not be leaders, but a leader is secondary. When a leader is the proponent of ideas which have already germinated in the minds of the people, he moves forward. It is because a leader is imbued with these ideas that he is able to take the spotlight.—Washington Star.

THE NEXT DEPRESSION

The outlook for the future is not rosy. The new tax on undistributed earnings has forced many business institutions to stop trying to build up reserves for hard times. It was these reserves which went far in recent years to maintain employment. If we are now in the early stages of a boom, as many observers believe, we must expect a depression before many years have passed. In view of the rate at which the government is now depleting accumulations into tax exempt securities it is not easy to see how emergency needs in the future will be met.—Chicago Tribune.

TAXPAYERS CALLED UPON TO REGISTER BEFORE FEB. 1ST

Montgomery, Ala., Jan. 21.—Taxpayers throughout Alabama were called upon to register before February 1, so that they can express their opinion of promise breakers and high tax office holders at the poll this year, by members of the Consumers Anti-Sales Tax Association of Alabama in a new move in their fight to stop raids on the pocket books of the people of the state.

B. C. Apperson, secretary of the association, pointed out that those who wanted a voice at the polls should be sure that they are properly qualified to vote during the year.

Not only should the taxpayer, the consumer, the housewife, the laborer and the merchant qualify to vote but they should encourage their friends and relatives to qualify.

Only through the exercise of the ballot will we be able to stop raids like those that Bibb Graves has put under way on our pocketbooks.

The big stick that he has held over the merchants of Alabama, the Gross Receipts Tax, in the belief that he would be able to scare them from their stand against a general consumer sales tax, has been caught in a tangle of court action which we believe will show that the tax is unconstitutional.

Arguments for and against the measure have been made in Circuit Court in Montgomery County and Judge Jones is expected to hand down a decision during the week.

Bibb Graves, after giving the people of this state a written pledge that he would not permit a sales tax during his administration, even as a last resort, planned to club the merchants away from their stand and force them to ask for a sales tax as a relief from his ruinous gross receipts tax.

Members of our association heard the Graves lieutenants come into a meeting before the gross receipts bill was through the legislature and say they were just from the governor and he would help the merchants pass a sales tax if they wanted to be rid of the gross receipts tax.

Such trickery deserves drastic action. The people of this state who are not qualified to participate in government through not being able to vote, should qualify at once. As long as you sit without a franchise you will be raided, tricked and misused by these politicians who will do anything to create jobs and raise money with which to pay themselves and their friends.

The Consumers Anti-Sales Tax Association is fighting and will not stop fighting against increased taxation, the overworked bludgeon of government.

The Gross Receipts Tax will be fought in every court of the land. It is an unfair and ruinous tax. It must be taken off business.

But the association will not swap the confidence of the people who have supported it throughout the past years for a more expensive and so-called relieving tax.

The sales tax will be fought to the last ditch. Governor Graves will club in vain.

But the members of the legislature who were elected to represent the people of their counties, and who violate their solemn pledges to oppose further taxation, will reap a harvest of hate and earn a reputation for political dishonesty that will stalk them throughout life.

This business of flouting the people and expecting them to continue to forget has been overworked by politicians of the Graves elk and it will not be tolerated.

Protect your vote by properly qualifying. Continue to put the pressure of public opinion on your members in the legislature and call on the housewives, the laborers, the artisans, the white collared men and women of your community to actively fight this tax by meeting, signing petitions asking for action against these measures and letting the lawmakers in Montgomery know that you are not the dumb electorate that they think you are.

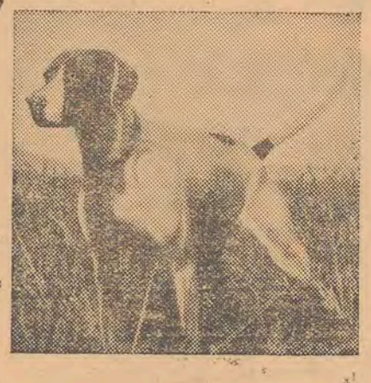
DEPARTMENT OF LABOR NEWS



Montgomery, Jan. 18.—The Alabama Department of Labor has saved the taxpayers of the state more than $1,000,000 during its first year of operation, the department's annual report revealed today.

In a summary of the department's activities, Robert R. Moore, State Commissioner of Labor, cited the economy of operation as one of the department's chief accomplishments during the year.

The report said that considering the tremendous handicap imposed by lack of funds, the department has had a very successful year by practicing the most rigid economy and employing the least possible number of workers (at no time exceeding 10) to carry out a practical problem.

With that tiny working force, it has tackled the problems of settling more than 50 major strikes involving 25,000 workers; saved the taxpayers more than $1,000,000 in preventing additional strikes; watched over the welfare of more than 3,000 working children in the state; made state-wide surveys and published for the first time in Alabama's history, accurate statistics on our labor disorders, the amount of unemployment, costs of strikes and other similar information of inestimable value to our industries.

Just as Nature favored Sulu, she favored Natural Chilean Nitrate of Soda. Just as Sulu has many elements in Nature's balance, so has this nitrogen fertilizer. This cotton at Aulander, N. C., got 400 lbs. 4-10-4 per acre and 100 lbs. Nitrate of Soda top-dressing. Where 100 lbs. Muriate of Potash was added to the top-dressing at left the yield was 1260 lbs. seed cotton per acre. Without extra potash at right the yield was 1070 lbs.

This corn at Callison, S. C., got 200 lbs. 3-8-5 per acre and 100 lbs. Nitrate of Soda top-dressing. Where 200 lbs. of Kainit was added at left the yield was 29.3 bushels per acre. Without Kainit at right the yield was 12.6 bushels per acre.

THESE SUCCESSFUL FARMERS STOP RUST and START PROFITS

Each year thousands more farmers discover that they can make a lot more money from cotton by using a lot more potash than the average fertilizer contains. Once they put extra potash on trial, they find it just the thing their cotton needs to pay them extra cash.

For instance, there is V. S. BICKLEY, of Lexington, S. C., who writes: "Last year I planted cotton on two plots of sandy land which formerly had shown severe Rust. Both received the same fertilizer and top-dresser, except that one plot got 100 pounds of NV Muriate of Potash per acre. On this plot the yield was 2,444 pounds of seed cotton per acre, while the other plot yielded only 778 pounds.

"My private gin showed 39% lint for the potash-top-dressed cotton as against 33% lint for the other cotton. The staples were 1 1/16 inches as compared to 15/16 inch. Before the cotton opened I weighed 50 green bolls from each plot taken from the same positions on the stalks. The potash bolls weighed 96 ounces and the rusty bolls 66 ounces. I just about broke even on the rusty cotton and made a profit of $76.24 per acre from the potash-top-dressed cotton."

Then there is MRS. PEARL POLLARD, of Wedowee, Ala., who writes: "For three years our cotton was ruined by Rust. One acre, where the old house and barn stood, was completely eaten up in 1935. Rust struck before a boll matured and what little cotton we did get was so terrible to pick, that we named it 'the old rusty acre.'

"My husband swore he'd never try this spot in cotton again. After it was planted in Austrian peas for corn, I asked to use it as a test plot. He and the two boys hooted at me but finally agreed. April 20 it was planted with the same variety of cotton seed it grew before, using 200 pounds of 6-8-4 in with planting. In June, after chopping out, we top-dressed with 200 pounds of NV Kainit. Our first rain came the 28th of July.

"In 1935, a good season, we made 500 pounds of seed cotton on this acre. In 1936, we picked 1,700 pounds of seed cotton and didn't find a speck of Rust, except on the four rows which we left as a check in the middle of the field without NV Kainit. We are convinced about NV Kainit for Rust."

W. A. GAINEY, of Dunn, N. C., wanted to plant a 9-acre field in cotton, but his children begged him not to. They said it would produce a lot of knotty, half-open bolls which nobody could pick, because it had always done this before. Mr. Gainey writes: "At an evening school our new agricultural teacher told us that plenty of potash would prevent Rust, so I decided to plant the 9-acre field. I used 500 pounds of fertilizer per acre and top-dressed with 100 pounds of Muriate of Potash and Nitrate of Soda.

"Where I used to get short, inferior staple from small, knotty bolls, I got a good staple cotton from wide-open bolls that were easy to pick. My field remained healthy and produced large well-matured bolls to the top of the stalk.

"Where I used to get about 200 to 250 pounds of low-grade lint per acre, I made slightly better than a bale of high-grade lint and I am satisfied that the 100 pounds of Muriate of Potash made the difference."

DANA A. WHITFIELD, of Ty Ty, Georgia, beat his Father growing cotton last year and NV Kainit was the difference. Mr. Whitfield writes: "My Father and I planted our cotton on April 1 with the seed bed in just fair condition. We planted my field first and then his field, using the same planter, same fertilizer distributor, same seed and same fertilizer. Everything was exactly alike, the fields being about the same, except that I top-dressed with 200 pounds of Kainit per acre right after chopping out and he didn't. My Father's cotton was practically dead from Rust by the 1st of August, but mine remained healthy right on through picking. There was no Rust or Wilt in my cotton. About one-third of the fruit on his cotton reached maturity, while all of mine was well matured. Our land was almost identical. We plowed and fertilized alike, except that I used Kainit and he didn't. I made 456 pounds of seed cotton per acre more than he did and extra Kainit was the difference."

Thousands of farmers throughout the South have found that the small extra cost of extra potash returns big dividends in increased yields of better quality cotton. Plenty of NV POTASH in your fertilizer or top-dresser PREVENTS RUST, helps control Wilt and produces vigorous, healthy plants, with less shedding, larger bolls that are easier to pick, and better yields of uniform, high-quality lint.

When you buy your fertilizer and top-dresser, tell your fertilizer man you want more NV POTASH. Plan now to top-dress with 100 pounds of NV MURIATE or 200 pounds of NV KAINIT per acre, or use a nitrogen-potash mixed-goods top-dresser containing 10 to 25% NV POTASH. If you prefer to use your extra potash at planting, select a fertilizer containing 8 to 10% NV POTASH. Where Rust has been very severe you may need both high-potash fertilizer at planting and potash top-dressing to STOP RUST and START PROFITS.

Beware The Cough

From a common cold

That Hangs On

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your cough, chest cold or bronchial irritation, you can get relief now with Creomulsion. Creomulsion not only contains the soothing elements common to many remedies; such as, Syrup of White Pine Compound with Tar, fluid extract of Licorice Root, fluid extract of Ipecac for its powerful phlegm loosening effect, fluid extract of Cascara for its mild laxative effect and, most important of all, Beechwood Creosote is perfectly blended with all of these to reach the source of the trouble from the inside. Creomulsion can be taken frequently and continuously by adults and children with remarkable results.

Thousands of doctors use Creomulsion in their own families as well as in their practice knowing how Creomulsion aids nature to soothe the inflamed membranes and heal the irritated tissues as the germ-laden phlegm is loosened and expelled. Druggists also know the effectiveness of Beechwood Creosote and they rank Creomulsion top for coughs because you get a real dose of Creosote in Creomulsion, emulsified so that it is palatable, digestible and potent for going to the very seat of the trouble.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs, chest colds and bronchial irritations and especially those stubborn ones that start with a common cold and hang on for dreadful days and nights thereafter. Even if other remedies have failed, your druggist is authorized to guarantee Creomulsion and to refund every cent of your money if you are not satisfied with results from the very first bottle. Don't worry through another sleepless night—phone or go get a bottle of Creomulsion right now. (Adv.)

Alabama Power President Announces $3,700,000 Improvement Program

1,000 Miles Of New Rural Line, To Serve 4,500 Additional Customers, Included

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—(Special)—Following a meeting of the Board of Directors of Alabama Power Company, Thomas W. Martin, president, issued the following statement:

"Alabama Power Company budgets for 1937 indicate anticipated expenditures of more than $3,700,000 for additions and betterments. This construction budget of $3,700,000 could easily be increased to $7,000,000 or $8,000,000 if the threat of subsidized government competition of the TVA were removed. This threat has made it impossible for the company to raise needed capital in the open market," Mr. Martin said. "Because of this difficulty, we are being forced to trim our expenditures to the bone and spend on new construction and expansion of facilities only what is actually necessary to maintain a high efficiency of service."

It was pointed out by Mr. Martin that the Northern subsidiaries of Commonwealth and Southern had been able to make substantial savings in interest through refunding operations. "If the government competitive threat was removed we could do as well as other companies in the system and save about $1,900,000 a year in interest charges," he added. "This saving could be passed on to customers, thereby lowering electric rates materially.

"In the interest of public service, security holders and employees of the private utilities, the T. V. A. problem should be settled at an early date," Mr. Martin declared. He expressed the belief that the Southeastern power pool, which has received emphasis from President Roosevelt, could be worked out for mutual benefit. "Our company will join with other utilities in cooperating with the government in perfecting such an arrangement," Mr. Martin declared.

Of the total amount, approximately 2½ million dollars will be spent for the extension and improvement of the distribution systems of the Company throughout the State. Included in this item are 1,000 miles of new rural line, to serve approximately 4,500 additional customers. It is estimated that 6,650 new rural customers will be added to existing and new lines during 1937. It is expected that the upward trend in the use of electric energy so evident in 1936 will continue. In order to assure satisfactory service to all present and prospective customers of the Company, it is necessary continually to improve and enlarge the system to take care of demands for electric service.

During 1937, the Company estimates that there will be added to its lines and placed in operation 4,350 electric ranges, 3,000 electric water heaters, 12,000 electric refrigerators and 150 air-conditoning systems.

The Company expects to spend approximately $70,000 during 1937 to make additions and extensions to its street-lighting systems, to meet the requests of municipalities for additional service under the new promotional street lighting rates.

Although no new generating plants are proposed for 1937, a number of important improvements will be made to facilities throughout the system in line with the Company's policy of meeting the power needs of its customers and being prepared at all times to render adequate and continuous service.

Alabama men and women will be employed almost exclusively in the program of the Company. Local electricians throughout the State will find employment in wiring homes and places of business, and local dealers will sell much of the wiring material, fixtures, and appliances required by customers.

Commenting upon the greater domestic use of electricity, Mr. Martin pointed out that the average consumption per urban domestic customer of Alabama Power Company during 1936 was 1149 kilowatt-hours. The average rate for urban domestic consumption for the month of December was 3.07c per kilowatt-hour. This is less than half the average rate of ten years ago and marks the progress which has been made as a result of the Company's continuous policy of selling electricity at prices which make it possible for customers to make complete use of the service, including a liberal use of the heavy appliances.

TELEGRAPH BIRTHDAY GREETING TO PRESIDENT

Arrangements have been made with the telegraph company whereby you can send the president a birthday telegram at a cost of only 25 cents each, and this goes, without further cost, to the relief of sufferers from infantile paralysis.

Let me make this perfectly clear. The Western Union will collect 25 cents from each sender. The company will not keep the money, but will transmit all funds so received to the National Committee. This committee will, in turn, send your local committee 70 per cent of all the money originating in our community as a result of this plan so that it may be used as we see fit here at home for our local cases. The remaining 30 per cent goes to the president for presentation to Georgia Warm Springs Fund.

Everyone, regardless of race, religion, creed, color or age, can do their bit in this fight against infantile paralysis; and I think that every preacher, teacher, and civic leader, regardless of color, should put forth a wholehearted and valiant effort in this great cause.—V. J. Gragg.

DEATH OF MR. J. C. CALLOWAY

The snowy white angels made a visit to the home of Mr. John Calloway on Sunday, January 10, and carried him to live with Jesus.

His death brought to a close the life of one of Chilton County's most honored, useful, and beloved citizens. If grand-dad had lived until February 5, he would have been 76 years of age.

In his youth he joined the Providence Baptist church. He lived a moral, Christian and faithful life. He was loyal to his fellow man, and had a kind word for everyone. To know him was to love him.

When we saw you in the casket,
Lying so still and quiet,
You seemed to be an angel
With snowy wings of white.

We loved you, oh, so dearly,
You were so kind and good;
Why you had to leave us
We have not understood.

The family circle has been broken,
And time can never mend,
But we put our trust in Jesus,
And on Him we can depend.

The flowers we laid on your grave
May wither and decay,
But the love we had for grand-dad
Will never fade away.
—Mr. and Mrs. Frank Calloway, Jr., his grandchildren.

PREACHING AT LIBERTY HILL CHURCH THIRD SUNDAY

The regular preaching day at Liberty Hill has been changed to the third Sunday in each month, instead of the second. All members please take notice.

UNCLE BILLY ADAMS DIED

On Thursday, January 14th, W. S. Adams, better known as Uncle Billy, answered the call to the Great Beyond. He had been suffering from rheumatism for about thirty years. His wife preceded him to the grave five years ago. He has been closely confined to his home for several years.

He has been so that he could not go to church, so services have been held at his home.

He would have been 65 years old, had he lived until February 4. He leaves two daughters—Mrs. Lisha Miner and Rosa Adams; one son, L. B. Adams. There are four brothers—Albert, Neelie, Tillman, and Samuel; two sisters—Mrs. Ada Mims and Mrs. Julia Henley. There are fifteen grand children and nine great grand children.

The remains were laid to rest at Providence cemetery, where he was a member, Friday, the 15th, Spigener in charge. Services were conducted by Rev. W. E. Robinson, Rev. R. M. Honeycutt, and Rev. Jesse Mitchell.

BOB JONES COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

Mr. Drummond said in substance, "A Christian is always a gentleman." Mr. Drummond was right. The most refining influence that can come into the human heart is the grace of God. To be genuinely courteous a man must be unselfish. Christianity produces unselfishness. Selfish men are sinful men. Christianity produces warmth. A warm heart usually does naturally the generous, hospitable and courteous thing. The writer knows a number of very outstanding, technical, professing Christains who are exceedingly pious in their language and theological terms, but who are cold and critical in their attitude toward people. They are not approachable. There is something wrong with such people. Christ was approachable. Anybody could get to Him. Little babies clung to His garments. Sinners of the underworld recognized Him as their friend and bathed His feet with their tears. We can not be like Christ by the power of our own resolution or by an effort of our will, but we cannot fellowship with Christ without to some extent at least becoming like Him. His heart was warm and tender. Beware of Christians who know none of His tenderness.

Jesus taught that some day people will come to Him and say in substance, "Don't you know us. We cast out devils in your name. We did wonderful works in your name." And He will say, "I never knew you." It is possible to be deceived about our salvation. We will have many surprises in heaven. It is the opinion of the writer that we are going to miss some of these cold, technical, dead, cynical, professing Christians who now hold high seats in the sanctuary. This is no reflection upon professing Christians. Many of them are sincere, warm, and consecrated. Men are not saved by what they do, but salvation in the human heart always produces certain definite results. Paul, before he met Jesus on the Demascus road, wanted to kill everybody who was a Christian. After he was converted he said in substance, "I wish all of you people were just as I am except I wouldn't put these chains on you." Before he was converted he hounded Christians. After he was converted, he wept over sinners. If there isn't a difference between what a man was before he professed Christianity and what he is after he professes Christianity, then the man hasn't any Christianity.

BALL GAME

The Jemison High School basket ball team will play the strong Corner High School, Jefferson County, Friday night, January 22, at the Jemison gymnasium. Corner has one of the best teams in Jefferson county, and should give the Jemison boys some keen competition.

The Jemison five has played fifteen games during this season, winning fourteen. The local team lost to the strong Mitchell Dam team, but came back to win from the Dammers on the return engagement.

The Corner-Jemison game will start at 6:30 p. m., because of another school program.—Z. H. Turner.

ISABELLA CLUB HAS MONTHLY MEETING

Balanced Meal Subject

The Isabella Home Demonstration Club held its January meeting in the Home Economics Department with Mrs. E. S. Jones presiding.

After singing a few "peppy" songs business matters were discussed. The meeting was then turned over to Miss Callen and Mrs. Fred Oden, who cooked and served a well balanced meal, which in this instance was supper.

In our opinion, you women who are not attending these club meetings are missing some very informational "get togethers." Let's all meet with Miss Grace next month and learn how to plan and serve an ideal dinner.

Let's see if we can interest our men folks in these meetings to such an extent that they will provide us with ways to attend. Remember the old saying, "The way to a man's heart is through his stomach."

The next meeting will be in the Home Economics department, the third Friday in February, with Mrs. Fred Oden in charge. Let's be one hundred per cent in attendance.

LAY DAM REVIEW

Wal, Christmas has come and gone (also most of our pay days for months to come) and the Year of the Lord 1936, and she was a pretty fair year after all, now wasn't it? I know, most of us had "pay as you use" bill collectors hanging on our tail like the proverbial old man of the sea—not to mention new car and insurance salesmen—and the correspondence school sharks, remember them? The back patting fraternity who promised you the chief electrician's job as soon as you completed their big new, completely revised course in Kilowatts and Volts—$10.00 down please. Then we all had the usual run of the mill luck, the vacation back home with the folks and the deluxe sunburn we got down Florida way, and let's not forget the sweat a lot of us were in about who was going to be our next president.

As for our local events—we had a big snow and general freeze-up in January which made the editor's sheet in box car letters—and then we had an airplane crack-up behind the Lay Dam power house that gave us news for a considerable spell (no pictures, the boss had broken his candid camera on the big snow).

On January 19th, No. 5 generator took a notion to take a rest or go on relief or something—any way she proceeded to scorch her armature and had to be rewound, which was a considerable job. Soon baseball was upon us, and although the Crit Jonesmen didn't win the national tournament, they did right well by themselves, and incidentally gave us our prize hold over John (Dusty) Tatum, of Stoney Point, Ala.—ace back stop and repair engineer etraordinary. We had one tragedy though to mar our good record, the July 5th double drowning of two fishermen in the tail race, an unforgettable accident that should be a grim reminder to the more careless among us.

Came August and the Texas Centennial, and then the World Series with its murderous row, which caused considerable change to pass from one to another among the wagering brotherhood—(ask Frank Greene or Supt. Bill Winston). Next was King Football, and from arguments pro and con it seemed that Alabama and Auburn were about the only pig skin greats on the map until—alas! the Rose and Sugar Bowl bids were given. And by the way, Kennel Clubbers, how was the Sugar Bowl game, any way?

We also had a couple of blessed events, fine male additions to the families of K. A. Hardy and Tommy Thomason. Old man promotion cost us one bang-up assistant superintendent in Whistling Bill and Mrs. Winston, but Tallassee got a fine super, which makes our loss their gain. But still in all we have one just as good in one of Lay Dam's almost native sons—that grinning Irishman of all work, Tommy Thomason (God rist him; he'll be bolder than he is now if he has us rough necks to worry about for very 'ong).

As for the System news, one of the company's monetary wizards lost a fine watch and his wallet out his bed room window past midnight. Seemed like a burglar was walking along with a fishhook on a cane and the above articles got caught on the hook or something. Then Martin Dam was officially dedicated. A very impressive scene to this country boy, who has alwas liked a parade. And right at last, word comes that Jimmie Thigpen, the crack dispatcher at Magella has been awarded the Silver Star award for extraordinary bravery during the late World War. Seems like he and a buddy of his rescued 17 doughboys from certain death, but due to misplaced World War records the citation only recently reached the sergeant. We are all very proud of you Jimmie, and wish you much luck. And why shouldn't we? Jimmie started working for the company at Lay Dam. But this correspondent, for one, is going to be mighty careful how he talks to that guy over the phone.

Wal, that's all, and here's hoping that the new year is even kinder to us than the one that just went over the hill.—Joe Rummel, Lay Dam, in Powergrams.

Mrs. D. B. Lowe underwent an operation at a Birmingham hospital on January 12th. Late reports say that she is doing nicely.

BIRMINGHAM-SOUTHERN NEWS

Registration for the second semester at Birmingham-Southern College will begin January 25 and continue through January 30. One of the new courses which is being offered the second term is Practical Photography. Students will learn how to make and develop pictures, and the chemistry and physics necessary for a background. An opportunity is given the winner graduates of high schools to take double courses in English, history and foreign language, and with the following summer's work to complete the first year of college work. Class instruction for the second semester begins Monday, February 1.

College Day was observed Sunday, January 10, in many of the Methodist churches in Alabama. This observance is in accordance with a plan of the Board of Christian Education of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, to bring the need of higher education with a Christian motive before the laymen of the churches. Religion has always fostered education, and the present emphasis on college training is an indication that there must be a religious motive behind such instruction.

Surviving are his widow and two sisters—Mrs. C. F. Manly and Miss Cledie Oliver, both of Birmingham.

H. B. Oliver has played an important part in the business affairs of Chilton county. Although not a church member, he has always contributed to the churches, and has always been ready to respond to all calls for help from suffering humanity. He built the annex to the Verbena Baptist church some ten years ago. During the past twenty years he sent twelve or more deserving boys and girls to college and assisted them in finishing their education.

NEARLY TON OF BANANAS SOLD BY CLANTON FRUITER

A new height has been reached in the sale of fruit in Clanton. Last Saturday Mr. John H. Gore of Little Fruit Store sold a total of 1,500 pounds of bananas. This must have been the biggest pile of bananas one most ever saw.

And the Union-Banner cannot refrain from taking to itself a little self-praise in this selling precedent. Mr. Gore advertised his bananas in the Union-Banner last week. The value of advertising is apparent. To say that advertising in the right way gets results is the least that can be said of the matter.

T. L. McKEE URGES VOTERS TO PAY POLL TAXES NOW

To the people of Chilton County:

February 1, 1937, is the last day you can pay poll tax and be a voter this year. It is a privileged right of the people to criticize public officials, and the closer your friendship the more you take advantage of that right, so let me insist that you pay your poll tax and stay a voter and citizen so that you will feel free to do as you please and be a part of your county's government.

All of you who have not registered can pay your poll tax and when the Board of Registrars meets this year you can register and be a legal voter. If you became of age before October 1, 1936, you would be due a poll tax to be a legal voter when you register.

Trusting your cooperation in this, I am, Yours very truly,—T. L. McKee.

SHAW-RUTHERFORD WEDDING

The many friends of the contracting parties in this section will be pleased to learn of the marriage last Friday night of Mr. Courtland Prentice Rutherford to Miss Lillie Pearl Shaw. The ceremony took place at the home of Mrs. W. H. Martin in Calera. Quite a few relatives and friends of the bride and groom attended the affair, which was a simple home wedding.

The bride is a charming and likable young lady of Calera, the daughter of Mr. Frank Shaw, and enjoys a large circle of friends both there and at Clanton. She attended college at Montevallo.

Mr. Rutherford is the son of Mr. Green D. Rutherford of Clanton. He is a printer by trade, having learned to operate a linotype machine at the Union-Banner some eight years ago. He worked at Montevallo, later going to Prattville. He now holds a position with the Prattville Progress.

Mr. and Mrs. Rutherford will make their home in Prattville.

Republicans Plan Year 'Round Drive

Permanent Headquarters To Be Set Up In Birmingham; Counties Are Assessed Expense Quotas

Alabama Republican state committeemen, at a meeting at the Tutwiler Hotel, Birmingham, Friday, January 22, voted to maintain year-'round headquarters in Birmingham to carry on a constant campaign to build up the party in this state.

The first speaker was Hon. C. O. Vardaman, state chairman of Young Republicans, who urged that the state and county organizations stand behind Hon. John Hamilton in his work as national chairman.

Mrs. Roy Wates spoke briefly along the lines of the ladies' work in conjunction with the regular organizations.

The approximately 50 committee members approved plans to raise $3,200 annually by subscriptions on a county quota basis to defray office and other expenses incidental to the campaign. W. E. Snead, Birmingham, was elected committee treasurer.

Oliver D. Street, Birmingham, who recently resigned as G. O. P. national committeeman from this state, after many years' service, sounded a strong plea for greater activity in behalf of the party in Alabama and the nation.

Thomas J. Kennamer, Mr. Street's successor as national committeeman, urged greater Republican activity in state politics.

Increasing of the state's tax burden by Gov. Graves and the Alabama legislature was condemned in a resolution adopted by the executive committee.

The Republican state chieftains also through resolutions called for legislative reapportionment, which was one of the Graves campaign pledges and which was defeated by the present legislature.

A secret ballot and voting machines were endorsed by the committees, but no discussion was given to the proposal now before the legislature to keep Republicans out of Democratic primaries.

The Republicans also avoided any discussion of the pending liquor question, although prior to the 1935 referendum the state committee went on record as opposed to repeal of the state's prohibition laws.

There are between 40,000 and 50,000 Republicans in Alabama normally.

Dr. J. C. Swann, Birmingham, chairman of the state committee, presided.

Those attending the meeting from Chilton County were J. N. Dennis, Paul C. Mims, T. E. Wyatt, and Clifford Manning.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Burnett of Montevallo, and Miss Ada Holcombe of Calera were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Marion Foshee Sunday.

CITY PAYS OFF $3,000 OF PUBLIC SCHOOL BONDS

Mayor C. Fenn Jones was pleased Tuesday to report the payment of three of the eight bonds of the City of Clanton for the Public School indebtedness. They were $1,000 bonds bearing 6 per cent interest. The eight bonds were issued in 1928 and were due in 1948. Mr. Jones points out that this is a saving to the City of $15.00 per month.

Since going into office October 1st, 1934, Mr. Jones and the present administration have retired a total of $17,500 in bonds, which speaks well for these public officials.

It is the humble opinion of The Union-Banner that a unit of government, like any individual, sometimes needs to borrow money, but we also believe it is a mighty good policy to pay up debts too. This is true of governments as well as individuals. Interest looks small when expressed in the rate of percentage, but when one goes to figure it on thousands of dollars, it soon climbs away up.

We congratulate Mayor Jones on his policy of retiring the City's bonds, whenever possible.

MRS. PETE JARMAN ATTENDED LUNCH AT THE WHITE HOUSE

At a luncheon given by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt at the White House on January 16th, four notable Alabama ladies were present, among whom was Mrs. Pete Jarman, wife of the popular Congressman from the Sixth District.

At this luncheon for diplomatic and residential sets, forty-four ladies were present. Ten were the wives of ambassadors, Etc., six were Senators' wives, and ten were wives of Congressmen. Only two were wives of new Congressmen — Mrs. Jarman of Alabama, and Mrs. Byrne of New York.

It is very unusual for the wife of a new Congressman to attend the First Lady's first luncheon, and it is quite significant that this distinct honor came to ours, the Sixth Alabama District.

A lengthy report of the luncheon appeared on the first page of the society section of The Washington Post, Sunday, January 17th.

Miss Sara Colley and Miss Margaret Floyd were visitors in Montgomery Saturday.

To the Citizens of Chilton County:

Having had the pleasure of serving you for the past two years as your Probate Judge, and as Chairman of the Commissioners Court, I wish to thank you for your wonderful cooperation and assistance in handling the affairs of our county.

I wish to call your attention to the condition of our county treasury. In the management of our county's affairs, its finances are of first importance. Like any other business, when its finances are properly handled, all goes well; on the other hand, if there is poor management at this point, trouble is certain to follow. In this connection, I am glad to tell you that your county is in excellent financial condition, as the figures herein, given to me by Mr. J. E. Easterling, our County Treasurer, showing the amount of money the county has on deposit in the First National Bank and the Peoples Savings Bank, of Clanton, Alabama, are as follows:

Road and Bridge Fund	20,310.28
Gasoline Fund	4,754.76
Fine and Forfeiture Fund	.54

Time Deposits	10,157.64
Total	$93,262.71

The treasurer has on hand and in sight sufficient revenue to meet every operating expense of our county, and add to the Sinking Fund to be applied on the bonded indebtedness.

The promise I made before I came into office, that I would not run our county into debt, is before me as this is written, and I assure you that with your continued cooperation in the future, as in the past, you will have no cause for worry as to the finances of our county. I want to say for myself, personally, as well as for my office force, that it has been a genuine pleasure to serve you. We are always glad to have you come to us with your problems; we are pleased to help you solve them when we can. Remember, this is your business, and we are running it for you. We want you to feel free at all times to offer suggestions for the public good and the betterment of the service we are trying to render. We welcome helpful suggestions and constructive criticism. Distress Call For Flood Relief Made

Citizens Of Chilton County Urged To Contribute Heavily To Red Cross

The Red Cross is calling for funds to help handle the distress situation in the flood areas of Ohio and Kentucky, the latest call from the nation being for $4,000,000. To turn the dial on the radio or read the daily papers will tell the story of the most destructive flood and the most horrible condition of human lives ever recorded in American history. In these two states 450,000 people have been compelled to abandon their homes, even whole cities have been completely evacuated.

But the point is this,—the local Red Cross officials are calling upon the citizens of Chilton County to lend financial assistance, and that at once. A strong effort is being made to fight off epidemics of disease in the devastated areas, and food has to be procured for the needy. That all takes money. The Red Cross is doing a wonderful job of it, and no one should hesitate to send in some money. See J. Mell Martin at once and give him your donation.

Clothing, Bedding and Food Needed

If you have any clothing, bedding or food to donate, get in touch with the Red Cross local officials and get instructions about how to get that handled.

These calls are most urgent, and should be done at the earliest possible moment. Do not wait for Mr. Martin or someone else to call on you for help, but bring it in to him or hand it to some other of the local Red Cross officials.

LOCAL RED CROSS OFFICIALS THANKFUL FOR DONATIONS

Mr. J. Mell Martin, local official of the American Red Cross, asks The Union-Banner to express the thanks of the local unit for all contributions already made toward the flood relief fund. Lots of nice gifts have been made unsolicited; but the emergency has not been met yet. Much more funds are needed, and Chilton County should keep responding right along. It is going to take lots of money to clean up and rebuild those flood-devastated areas even after the water has receded. Therefore, you are urged to send in your donation at the earliest moment possible. Send all money to J. Mell Martin, and if you can donate clothing, cots or bedding, get instructions about how to handle same.

TOP HOGS WORTH FOUR CENTS MORE THAN PIGS

Auburn, Ala.—Instead of selling pigs which weigh from 60 to 110 pounds for four cents per pound cheaper than top hogs weighing 180 to 240 pounds, Alabama farmers should think seriously about feeding out pigs and marketing them later in the spring, advises F. W. Burns, extension livestock specialist.

To assist farmers in making maximum profits feeding pigs, Mr. Burns makes the following suggestions.

1. Select thrifty, well-bred pigs as they make more rapid and econmical gains.
2. It will generally pay to give these pigs the worm treatment before starting on feed.
3. Put the pigs on feed gradually, taking about a week to get them on full feed. If a self-feeder is used the pigs will balance their own ration. If hand feeding is practiced and ear corn is used, it will pay to feed from a half to one pound of supplement daily per pig.
4. If possible let the pigs have access to a field of rye or oats, as this green feed will reduce feed costs and increase the rate of gain. If green feed is not available it will pay to feed some well cured leafy hay, such as soybean or peavine, daily in a rack.
5. Keep a mineral mixture of equal parts by weight of charcoal, slaked lime and salt before the pigs during the entire feeding period.

ATTENTION POULTRY RAISERS

The price of eggs has dropped, and the price of hens is fair. I believe it would be wise to cull out your low producing hens and sell them. Most every farmer keeps some poultry, and most of you are feeding some cull hens.

If you will follow the suggestions given below you will find culling to be a simple operation:

1. Cull hens that are molting.
2. If the hen's comb is pale, shrunken and scaly, sell it.
3. Pullets that have yellow legs and beak now will probably never pay for the feed it will take to get them to producing.
4. If the vent is yellow and puckered, the hen is not laying.
5. If the breast and pelvic bones are close together, the hen is not laying.

For your information, there will be a poultry car next week at the following places:

Clanton, all day Thursday, Jan. 28.
Jemison, all day Friday, Jan. 29.

It is my information that the following prices will be paid: heavy hens, 14c; leghorn hens, 11c; fryers, 1 1-2 lb up, 18c; stags, 10c; roosters, 8c; turkey hens, 15c; young toms, 13c; old toms, 10c; geese and ducks, 8c; guineas, 25c each.

This is an opportunity to sell some cull hens and other chickens, save feed, and realize some money with which to purchase other things. Clean up your poultry house, spray with old crank case oil, and put clean litter on the floor. It is easier to prevent mites from getting into the house than it is to get them out after the house is infested.

A little sodium flouride dusted on the setting hen will help control lice, and prevent the death of lots of baby chicks. Do this before the eggs hatch. Paint the roost poles with tobacco sulphate about an hour before hens go to roost to control lice.

Let's cull our flocks close and give this car a full load. Every chicken moved in this car will help our local market by not over-supplying it.—J. W. Fant, county agent.

WANTS AAA PROGRAMS TO REMAIN NATIONAL

Auburn, Ala.—Secretary Wallace believes that the provision requiring that administration of the Agricultural Conservation program be transferred to the states by January 1, 1938, should be postponed or repealed.

People interested in the present and future success of the AAA program, "believe that both national and local call for its continued administration as a federal program with farmers, farm leaders and state college representatives participating directly in planning and operation," he says.

Employment of more men in factories and other lines of industry is leaving fewer workers available as farm labor. Reports indicate a shortage of farm labor in some sections of Alabama.

PROPER PLOWING KEEPS TERRACES GOOD SHAPE

Auburn, Ala.—Terraces, like farm machinery and automobiles, require good care to make them give the best service. Proper plowing and a little work with slip scrape or shovel after every heavy rain are essential for keeping terraces in good shape, according to the Alabama Extension Service and Soil Conservation Service.

Terraces should be plowed out at least twice a year to keep the channel open. With proper plowing and a little repair work done by hand after rains, terraces remain effective for many years.

To plow the terrace start on the upper side and throw out a furrow to the top of the ridge, the engineers point out. Then step off the distance from the top of the terrace ridge to the bottom of the ditch. Then measure an equal distance above the terrace ditch and plow a second furrow, throwing the furrow up the slope or toward the top of the hill. Continue by plowing this land out, so the dead furrow will be in the terrace channel.

When the rest of the field is plowed, the terrace interval may be taken as one land and plowed by throwing furrows to the top of the terrace ridge from the lower side and to the edge of the plowed strip above the terrace channel.

While plowing it is a good idea to watch for low places or breaks in the terraces. These should be built up with slip scrape or shovel.

HIGH PRODUCING HERD GOT BALANCED RATION

Auburn, Ala.—Alabama's highest producing dairy herd in December was fed a grain mixture of 200 pounds of ground corn, 200 pounds of ground oats, 200 pounds of cottonseed meal, 200 pounds of Brewers grains, 100 pounds of soybean meal, 100 velvet beans, and 400 pounds of 20-per cent commercial dairy feed. In addition it was fed silage and lespedeza hay for roughage.

The herd belongs to R. B. Kent, Birmingham. It averaged 568 pounds of milk and 28.3 pounds of butterfat per cow for the month and had 20 quality cows that produced over 800 pounds of milk and 40 pounds of butterfat each during the month.

News Over Alabama

Alabama has 44 United States Certified and Approved Pullorum Tested hatcheries, reports R. J. Goode, state commissioner of agriculture, in advising farmers that they may obtain a list of these hatcheries by writing R. B. Jones, state poultry specialist, Montgomery, or John E. Ivey, extension poultryman, Auburn.

More general-purpose tractors and other farm machinery were sold during the past year than any year since 1930. Indications are that even more farm machinery will be sold this year.

Farmers probably will have to pay somewhat higher prices for fertilizers this year than last, reports the Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

SCIENCE STUDIES ALCOHOL AS "HIDDEN" DEATH CAUSE

"Few people realize how many persons die every year from alcohol or go into insane asylums, never to come out again," Dr. Edward Spencer Cowles, director of Park Avenue Hospital in New York City, told members of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, recently in session in Atlantic City, N. J.

"The actual mortality is as great, in my belief, if not greater, than from cancer," he declared. "Accurate statistics are not available. The reason for this is that the disease is regarded as a disgrace and the alcoholic takes on some other symptom, such as hemorrhage of the brain, delusional insanity, or infectious disorder, under which his death is recorded. Nevertheless, these patients have died from a diseased brain caused by alcohol.

"The history of a chronic alcoholic's case runs as a rule this way: 'I have been drinking to greater or less extent all my life. I stood my liquor perfectly until about five or ten years ago. Beginning at that time alcohol made me drunk. My whole personality was changed. I began to go on one debauch after another in spite of my resolutions. My personality would seem to change even a few days before I started to drink. I noticed a cunning quality in myself. I was restless and excited. I felt now that one drink would not trouble me; I felt certain that I could control it. I would resolve to mark the bottle and to take only two drinks, but when I had had the two drinks, the bottle was not enough. I then became lord of all; above the law, spending my money recklessly, ranging from one brothel to another. I was violently jealous of my wife, suspecting her of this or that, however good a woman she might be. At first I would go on a debauch only once in three months, then every two months, and now it is every week or every other week. I have no power to stop it. I cannot attend to business regularly. I lose one job after another. I am losing all of my decent friends. I am no longer to be depended upon'."

Dr. Cowles, well known for his research work in the field of psychiatry, summed up his remarks before the association by saying that if the medical can be made to understand that chronic alcoholicism is not a moral disease, but a brain disease, there will be less showing off in one individual vying with onother as to who can drink more.

ALABAMA W. P. A. NEWS

Montgomery, Jan. 25.—Persons and firms in need of help today were urged by A. P. Morgan, Jr., acting state administrator, to make full use of the Works Progress Administration reservoir of the unemployed, which includes labor of various skills.

While only a few farm families, and relatively few highly skilled persons remain on the rolls, a considerable quantity of common labor and employes of the white collar group are readily available, he said.

The method of obtaining labor from the W. P. A. is through use of the facilities of the State and National Reemployment Offices, where not only relief labor, but unemployed persons who have never been on relief, are registered and awaiting a call to work. The re-employment offices are units of the U. S. Department of Labor.

Any qualified employe requisitioned through the reemployment office who does not accept the job offered him will be immediately discharged by the W. P. A. if the wages offered are in line with those paid in that county for the type of work.

The reemployment services have representatives in almost all of the counties, and a complete record of each unemployed person is available for the prospective employer. Assignment of the unemployed is a responsibility of the reemployment service.

ARE YOU ONE OF THE "LITTLE GIRLS" of 30 YEARS AGO?

YES? Then perhaps you remember Grandmother wishing that someone would invent a cook stove that was clean and fast, and economical—one that would cook appetizing meals even when she was away, so she could be more regular in her attendance at church on Sunday, and at meetings of the Sewing Circle, or the Ladies' Aid Society during the week. And the cook stove she wished for would be so safe that she could visit a neighbor without worrying about you in the kitchen alone with the stove.

MANY GRANDMOTHERS LIVED TO SEE THAT WISH COME TRUE

IT WAS the grandmothers who bought the first crude Electric Ranges. Their daughters bought the improved models of a later day.

TODAY it is their granddaughters who can enjoy even more than Grandmother wished for—an ALL-ELECTRIC KITCHEN, with its health-promoting electric refrigerator; an electric range safer than any other cooking device—automatic, so that cooking goes on unattended (giving more time to do the things you like to do!)—economical, because with electricity so cheap in Alabama it is almost as cheap to cook electrically as any other way.

SO IS IT ANY WONDER?

So is it any wonder that the "Little Girls of 30 Years Ago" are today teaching their daughters, the Little Girls of Today, to want electric kitchens when they grow up?

Electric kitchen equipment—ranges, refrigerators, water heaters, dishwashers—can be bought at terms remarkably reasonable at furniture, department, hardware and electrical stores, or

BOB JONES COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

Recently, there came into the hands of the writer, a university magazine containing quotations from a world-wide minister concerning science and religion. The minister, according to the report, said in part, "The spirit of religion without the technique of science will not do it (that is, save the modern world,) and the technique of science without the drive and passion and altruism and dynamic and goal of religion, I don't think can do it either. You have got to have both." The writer has heard for a long time that this world-renowned minister is modernistic. If the minister is properly quoted in the article to which we refer, he is modernistic. There isn't one single thing that science can do to save the modern world. Science can destroy the modern world, and that is what science is getting ready to do. If the minister had said that Christianity is the only thing that can save us from the destructive power of man's inventive genius and scientific accomplishments, I would have agreed with him. Science can light your room at night, but it cannot light the human heart in the hour of sorrow. Science may add to the physical comforts of life, but it has no message for a broken heart. Science represents man's achievement. Salvation is God's accomplishment. The salvation of the human soul was bought with the blood which Jesus Christ shed on the cross.

Salvation is a fact. God in His infinite wisdom has formulated a plan by which He proposes the salvation of lost men. The plan began in the mind of God. If man had been the author of a plan of salvation, he would have made salvation depend upon man's achievement. The religions of the world say, "Do and live." The religion of the Bible says, "Live and do." The writer knows enough about human nature from years of experience in contact with men to know that the plan of salvation outlined in the Bible did not start with man. It is God's plan. It cost the lifeblood of God's Son. The spirit of God seals the contract and makes us know we are children of God. This plan of salvation is extended to the universal world. "Whosoever will may come." God has provided that which the human heart needs. His salvation is by grace. The gift of God is eternal life. Men cannot buy salvation. They cannot pay for it after they get it. They must accept it by faith. In the nail-pierced hand of Jesus, there is a pardon offered to all men. But this pardon has no value to the one who will not accept it.

"How did I do it?
"I just reasoned sensibly."

"FORTUNATELY, straight thinking told me that vitality and pep was produced by energy created from within... so was the skin beautified and made clear from within. I found the famous S.S.S. CLANTON MANAGER, OLD TIMER

By J. T. Alley

The first experience of T. L. Williams with a public utility was with J. Q. and A. C. Wade, who owned and operated the 150 K. W. steam plant at Clanton, Alabama. He went to work for the Alabama Power Company on June 11, 1917 at Lay Dam as an assistant operator and worked in this capacity for the first six months. He was then given a job as an operator which he held until May 1, 1920, when he was transferred to the high line crew of McDonald, at Birmingham, for experience in high line work. On June 1, 1920, he was sent back to Clanton to take charge of the distribution facilities, which were formally transferred to the Alabama Power Company June 8, 1920.

A 44 Kv line had been built from Lay Dam to Clanton and as the line and substation had been completed when this system became the property of the Alabama Power Company, current was furnished immediately from Lay Dam. Clanton was the only town served, but as the distribution system was in a rundown condition he was kept busy rebuilding it.

In the fall of 1925 a 6.9 Kv line was extended from Clanton to Thorsby and Jemison and in the spring of 1926 the Verbena-Marbury 6.9 Kv line was built serving that territory south of Clanton. The completion of this line made possible electric service in that section adjacent to the Birmingham-Montgomery highway for a distance of 28 miles.

In 1929 approximately 30 miles of 11 Kv line was built to serve the territory west of Clanton-Selma road and the towns of Maplesville and Plantersville.

From time to time rural lines have been extended and service was made available to the community of Billngsley, the camps near Mitchell Dam, Collins Chapel, and the Mims and Parrish communities. Mr. Williams is also responsible for the patrol and operation of the Lay Dam Vida 44 Kv line and service to the camps at Lay Dam and Mitchell Dam.

He is assisted in the operation of this district by Houston Nivens, J. L. Pilgreen, J. H. Roberts, A. W. Gore, and Miss Robinson. Through hard work this district has gradually extended its lines to the various communities, which are agricultural, and has made possible in them many of the comforts and conveniences of the city.

Mr. Williams was born and raised in Chilton County. He is a Kiwanian and takes an active interest in it and other civic affairs of this section. He loves to fish, going to the Gulf once or twice a year.—Powergrams.

GARDENING HINTS

How about the garden? Lets get it in readiness for Spring. The cabbage and onions should be out. The hot-bed should be made and the seeds should be planted. Asparagas beds should be planted and the new vegetables selected for the year. The garden seeds should be listed and ordered taking care to select the best improved varieties.

Don't forget the greens. Spinach may be grown as a Spring, fall or winter crop. It is also resistant to diseases and insects. Remember that tendergreen will stand more cold and heat than mustard. The best gardeners do not plant all their seed at one time but plant different plantings about every six weeks, to have fresh greens and other vegetables, likewise as tomatoes, corn, greens, peas, okra, Irish potatoes, Etc.

Irish potatoes require well prepared soil and heavy applcation of fertilizer. A 4-10-7 mixture should be used at the rate of 1000 to 1500 lbs. per acre. This should be applied in the drill and mixed wih soil before potatoes are planted. Only certified or disease-free seed should be used and it is not best to use barnyard manure as it causes them to scab. The Spring crop should be planted on light, well drained soil.

Alabama The Head or Tail?

A people of old, who had been the tail among nations and a derision of the wicked, was told that if they would hearken unto all the commandments of the Most High they should be made the head, and not the tail. (Deut.-28:13.) And history records that so long as Israel turned not aside from the paths of righteousness her glory increased until at the time of Solomon there was no nation on earth so rich and honored as she. All her former enemies looked on in wonder and amazement at the magnificent head that had once been the tail.

If Alabama remains dry, the eyes of the nation will soon become fixed upon her in admiration. As other states come back to prohibition they will have to admit that while they fell into liquor traps, Alabama sanely stood, refusing to be ensnared by the bait dangled before her eyes. Thus the state that has been called the tail in regard to the liquor question will become the head. And then will it be known to all, "the prophet that teacheth lies, he is the tail."

A careful survey of election returns throughout the country since repeal of the 18th amendment shows that the wet revolt reached its peak in 1934, and since then public sentiment has been swinging steadily back to prohibition. The only late wet victory was in North Dakota where wets had forced the eighth successive referendum.

Election returns of 1936 show that out of 21 states holding local option elections last year, the drys won hundreds of victories in counties, towns, and other units, of 18 states. Oklahoma voted dry in November by a majority of over 125,000.

Briefly given, here are a few of the many available figures from election returns which show the increasing dry sentiment in all parts of the country. This increasing dry sentiment is not of the sensational mushroom type, but is a steadily growing conviction in the minds of voters who have had a little experince with re-legalization.

Florida has 19 dry counties; last election November 17.

Illinois has 500 dry towns in 60 counties. In Chicago, 43 out of 88 precincts voted dry in November; previously 8 out of 11 precincts had voted dry.

Kentucky held 30 local option elections by counties in the last six months of 1936, and liquor forces were definitely defeated in 21.

Maine September elections showed 248 towns voting against beer, 321 towns voting against spirits and wine.

Mississippi has held 18 option elections by counties since her state legislature legalized beer, and 17 voted dry.

New York, 18 counties had previously voted dry for a period of 3 years, and in November elections 4 more towns voted dry.

Vermont, 126 out of 248 towns in the state are bone dry.

Wisconsin, home of Milwaukee brewers, has 192 towns, 13 villages, 1 city dry; all except beer voted out of 108 more towns, 36 villages, and 6 cities.

Texas has 100 bone dry counties; 37 others dry in the sum of their subdivisions.

Roosevelt county, New Mexico, is dry.

First 1937 report comes from Savannah, Tennessee, where the Hardin County Court went on record January 4th, as favoring a ban on all beer ales on Saturday and Sunday. (Beer is the only alcoholic beverage legal in that state.) And some of the members of the court expressed the sentiment that the sale of it should be done away with entirely, as no good comes from it anyway. Thus speaks the voice of experince.

Hail, Alabama! The head, and not the tail.

State Capitol News

Montgomery, Jan. 25. — Measures calling for prohibition repeal, a 2 per cent sales tax, exempton of homesteads from state ad valorem taxation, extension of the social security program, and a constitutional amendment prohibiting the diversion of gasoline taxes for purposes other than road building, are included in a total of 126 bills on the Senate and House calendars for Tuesday.

Chief interest will be focused on the Senate message to the House, amending the repealer by inserting the referendum clause. Over the week end opinion was sharply divided as to whether the House would strike out the referendum feature and send the measure back to the Senate for final passage in its original form, or be snuffed out on the floor of the upper house.

Even if the Senate should adopt the repealer, shorn of the referendum feature, it is not unlikely that Gov. Bibb Graves will veto it, in which event it would be as dead as Cock Robin.

Sen. Will O. Walton, of Chambers, said that the prohibitionists in Alabama certainly have no grounds for chiding the governor on the liquor question. The inclusion in his formal call for consideration of prohibition, which specifically demanded a plebescite, was made only after a considerable number of drys joined the wets for a show-down on the state's bone dry laws, and the refusal of juries throughout the state to convict dry law violators.

The concensus of other solons among the early arrivals was that sensible drys came to the conclusion that prohibition should be consigned to the legal junk yard and enact some sort of control system whereby the state might earn sufficient revenue to carry on the vital health and public welfare agencies, now sorely crippled for lack of funds.

In 1926 Alabama farmers produced 38,570,000 bushels of corn, compared with 41, 160,000 bushels in 1936.

SHILOH CLUB MEETS

The Shiloh home demonstration club met Friday afternoon, January 22, at the home of Mrs. Morris Keen, with several members present. Some new members were enrolled. Some visitors were with us at this meeting, and we invite them back.

Our lesson at this meeting was on a balanced diet. Miss Grace gave a very interesting talk on the subject. While Mesdames L. C. Keen, Morris Keen and other members of the club prepared a balanced dinner, some sang songs and played several interesting games. After this, the dinner was served to all present. This was a very nice and wholescme meal, and everyone enjoyed it very much.

At our next meeting, on Friday, February 26, we will have a balanced supper and breakfast. The club agreed to meet at the home of Mrs. W. F. Dobbs. All members are urged to be present.—Truitt Mullins, Sec'y.

Because of an unusually sharp decline in the prices of eggs a federal egg purchasing has been inaugurated to remove surplus eggs from the markets and to distribute them through relief channels. The egg purchases are being made by the Commodities Purchase Section of the AAA.

NOTICE! BOX SUPPER!

There will be a box supper at Cedar Grove Methodist Protestant church next Saturday night, January 30. Arrangements have been made for the musical program, and a cake will be given to the prettiest girl present. Everybody is invited to attend. Proceeds go for the benefit of the church. J. W. Enfinger, pastor.

How to EASE a COLD FOR 15¢

TWO SIMPLE RULES

INSTEAD of buying costly medicines to relieve the discomforts of a cold, try the way almost any doctor you ask will approve as the modern way — genuine BAYER ASPIRIN. It now costs only 15¢ for a dozen tablets, or two full dozen for a quarter.

The way you use it is this: Two BAYER tablets the moment you feel a cold coming on, taken with a full glass of water. Repeat, if necessary, according to directions in package. If at the same time, throat is sore, gargle with three Bayer tablets in ½ glass water for almost instant relief. Bayer Aspirin acts to fight fever, and the aches and pains of a cold. Relief comes quickly. Ask your druggist for genuine BAYER ASPIRIN by its full name —. not the name "aspirin" alone.

BUY A TICKET TO BIRTHDAY BALL

Editor Union Banner:

Just a few lines, please, regarding the birthday ball for the president. Certainly all who care to dance or to attend a ball where others are enjoying dancing, should attend. But we should look on this attendance as a secondary matter. Our first thought should be that, if we do not care to attend the ball, we should by all means buy a ticket just the same, and go elsewhere or stay at home as we may like, remembering that every penny of this fund is applied to the treatment of infantile paralysis victims. Out of each and every dollar so spent, 70 cents goes to our local sufferers, and 30 cents goes to the Warm Springs Foundation. Don't miss the opportunity to help the crippled who need your help, and be thankful that you, yourself, are not so afflicted.—V. J. Gragg.

THE ONE ROAD TO RELIEF

Most of the well-to-do citizens complaining about high taxes are those who have not learned the art of passing them on to the producers. They will learn in a little while. They always do. The sole relief that, in the long run the workers will ever get from government will come from stripping down government. In this state the taxes paid on tobacco alone are three or four times the income taxes paid by the rich and well-to-do. The workers pay the tobacco taxes and most of the income taxes. Franklin D. Roosevelt knew what he was talking about when he said that taxes are paid in the sweat of every man who labors. Most people refuse to believe even Mr. Roosevelt when he says what they do not like to hear.—Charleston News and Courier.

EQUAL BEFORE THE LAW

Premier Leon Blum, of France, speaking of the sort of government he has introduced, says that "the real significance of the present experiment has been to determine whether a governmental coalition of republican democracy and proletarian democracy would be capable of acting, and acting efficiently, within the framework of democratic methods, and without encroaching on the principle of liberty."

The purpose is good—the appeal is persuasive. But it is a false democracy in one particular, to wit, it recognizes class distinctions.

In a true democracy, there are no classes—no such things as republican democracy and proletarian democracy; ancient Rome was destroyed by class distinctions.

All men are equal before the law, with equal rights for all, and special favors to none.—Houston Post.

The treasury of the United States has moved four billion dollars worth of gold to Kentucky. The sum is so large it staggers the imagination. It would last you a couple of weeks at a Broadway night club.

A SOVIET BANQUET

Those liberated Russian workers who wear overalls for all occasions and dine sumptuously on cabbage boiled in salt water, washed down by flagons of unsweetened black tea, would be interested in accounts of the banquet held in Washington recently at the Soviet embassy, as a farewell dinner for Joe Davies, who was being shipped to Moscow as Uncle Sam's ambassador to the land of Stalin and the Third International.

Desribing the affair, Helen Essary, feature writer in the Washington Times, declared it was the sort of dinner to develop if not the gout at least some very opulent memories. She declared that about 75 important gentlemen plus 75 exquisite ladies sat at the long narrow tables, smiled brightly beneath high vases of pink roses and white chrysanthemums, ate food that Soviet Russia would have a struggle to imitate in the old country, and drank of fine vintages.

Miss Essary gave the menu in full, but some of the dishes had such rare names that an ordinary modern American typewriter would not spell them. Among the eatables and drinkables, however, were Canapes Delice Diane, Bouchees, Caviar, Martini and Manhattan Cocktails, Clear Green Turtle Soup a Madere, Barsac 1926, Diamond Back Terrapins with Old Sherry, Chauteau Kirwan 1926, Supreme of Guinea Hen Regence, Artichoke Clamart, Wild Rice, Moet and Chandon, White Seal, Baked Alaska with Cherry Flambe, and last but by no means least, even in the face of the wines that had gone before, Cognac, Champagne and Benedictine.

Here as a banquet fit for a king or even a czar. What a pleasant alternative to standing in a Moscow bread line for something even less palatable than sinkers and coffee. But news which goes back to Russia from the United States is well censored after it leaves Esthonia, and what you don't know won't hurt you.

Miss Essary says that in the final speech Ambassador Davies spoke easily and gracefully, and said that the founders of the Soviet Republic had the same purposes as the founders of the American Republic.

Maybe so, but if they did the American founders certainly fell down on the job. They forgot to assassinate King George; they neglected to liquidate the American kulak; they didn't even try to set in Washington an American International which could spend its time, with government assent, in plotting against the friendly governments of the world and seeking to start rioting and revolution everywhere; they failed to stamp out the religious faith of the colonists; they didn't even populate the salt mines and the wilderness with the liberals or tories who were too liberal or too conservative to agree with them. Washington and Jefferson were naive enough to believe in a free press, in free speech and freedom of worship. They thought that the United States ought not to butt into the affairs of other nations.

Perhaps the purposes of the founding fathers in America and Moscow were the same, but things sure have worked out differently.

One way to help your social security in this new year of 1937 is to spend a little less each week than you earn. But it isn't as easy as it looks.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

Suggestions of President Roosevelt for the reorganization of the government in the interest of efficiency has succeeded in throwing the United States Congress and official Washington into a turmoil. This was to have been expected. For years every chief executive has looked longingly toward a reorganization of government for the elimination of bureaucracy. But in each instance the president has failed of his purpose because of resistance from the vested bureaucratic interests in the government and the direct influence which they have always had on congress.

Briefly, the president has made five main proposals. These would consolidate all the boards, commissions and bureaus into 12 departments with two new cabinet officers; put all employees under the civil service; abolish the office of the comptroller general; strengthen the budget bureau and consolidate in a National Resources Board the task of national planning and improving governmental efficiency, under direct control of the president; give the president six executive assistants or deputy presidents to take work off his shoulders and act in a confidential capacity for him.

The changes suggested are so sweeping that for the moment they seemed to shock congress into an unusual silence. This was only natural because it will take some time to digest the proposals and arrive at some conclusion as to what result they will have if put into effect. From almost the first, however, it was evident that the president's proposals would have opposition, not only from the Republicans, but also in the Democratic camp. The enthusiastic followers of the president, who always seek to carry out all his wishes, commented favorably, but there was some criticism, even from the first.

There were many objections to the abolition of the comptroller general's office, on the theory that it is the last independent check on expenditure by the government, and that an auditing department in one of the executive departments would make it only a part of the executive system which does the spending. One of the critics of this proposed change is the independent Democratic Senator Harry F. Byrd, of Virginia, who added that a mere regrouping of agencies does not mean either simplification or economy. The same bureaus will have the same authority. What we need is a drastic overhauling of the government, the elimination of every useless agency, and to coordinate a balanced and business-like organization without expanding the present governmental structure. In short, Sen. Byrd seems to hold that to group a lot of bureaus into 12 divisions will not add greatly to cutting down expenses unless some of the bureaus themselves are abolished or curtailed. Sen. Byrd is head of the committee appointed by the Senate last year to investigate the situation with reference to the extent of federal agencies and bureaus, and to formulate a plan of simplification in the interests of efficiency and economy.

There seems to be a parallel opinion in the words of Sen. Vandenburg, of Michigan, prominent Republican statesman, who is quoted as saying: "The message in general holds out no hope for the elimination of existing instrumentalities of government. It merely contemplates consolidation of the various agencies under closer executive control. While that may be desirable, what we primarily need at this moment is elimination rather than consolidation. The primary need is a survey of some 50 agencies which have been set up during the emergency to see how many of them can be eliminated in the interests of economy. If the president means to curtail the powers of the general accounting office, to post-audit functions, it would put a muzzle on the only watch dog that's left around here."

Other comments were varied. Sen. Clark endorsed the suggestions while Sen. Borah remarked tersely that he saw no savings in sight. Sen. Shepherd declared it a fine message. Among House members the opinion was varied, too. Speaker Bankhead merely stated that the president's recommendations will be given proper attention as such, while minority leader Snell made the suggestion that the first thing for congress to decide in dealing with the president's message is whether we are going to follow the framers of the original Constitution or change the whole original conception of the nation. In other words, Mr. Snell thinks congress should first decide how many of the functions of these federal boards and bureaus should go back to the 48 states.

The comment is varied enough to indicate that the reorganization plan, as has been the fate of its predecessors, will have a tough time getting through without great alteration, despite the great majority the administration has in both branches of the national legislature. The battle will be worth watching. The result will probably be just as many bureaus as formerly, no matter how they are re-grouped.

CHEAP MONEY

Frequently we have had reason to comment upon the cheapness with which the United States government is able to borrow money. Such cheapness, apparently, is progressive.

This progressive cheapness of money is a phenomenon requiring some explanation. The situation is familiar in time of slump. Money rates, like other prices, tend to rise as slump turns into recovery.

Few persons deny that the recovery in the United States is now proceeding apace. Why, then, shouldn't the rate of interest harden? The reason is primarily that, in the present recovery, artificial factors are at work. Two are paramount—the unbalanced budget, and the constant accession to the country's gold stocks.

There are still those who think that the treasury is financed by taxpayers and bond buyers. The fact is that, for the money over and above the amount taken from the taxpayer, the treasury practically creates its own money in the form of bonds. For the bonds are mainly bought by the banks, and all that the banks do in paying for them is to open drawing accounts for the administration; that is, they create money for the treasury. Results—more money, and, in accordance with the law of supply and demand, cheap money. —Christian Science Monitor.

ORATORICAL CONTEST FOR 1937

Interest in this county is already strong in the oratorical contest for 1937, the basic subject for which is "Jefferson and Hamilton".

The enrollment for this county to date includes: Stanton Jr. High School, with Wm. F. Stone as principal. The contest in this school will be conducted by Mr. Stone. Also, Isabella High, Maplesville Route 1, with Curtis Matthews as principal; Mrs. Howard Boockholdt is contest director.

School eliminations throughout the state for the purpose of selecting each school's representative for outside competitions are to be held on or before February 26. County contests are to be held within the dates of March 29 and April 10, inclusive. The state finals will be held at Birmingham April 23. The winner of first place at the state finals will be state champion and will receive a cash prize of $100; second prize $50, third prize $25, and the six remaining state finalists will each receive $10. Railroad fare and hotel bill for each visiting state finalist and chaperon will be paid by the sponsors of the contest.

The contest is open to all Alabama high schools, public or private, accredited or unaccredited, junior or senior, and to grammar and consolidated schools doing junior high school work. Any bona fide high school pupil under 19, February 1, 1937, is eligible to participate. Enrollment must be by the school principal.

Contestants in past years are high in their praise of this contest as a means of overcoming self-consciousness, timidity, learning about government and citizenship, how to "think on one's feet", and because of other benefits to be derived.

The contest is sponsored by The Birmingham News and Age-Herald, and is directed by Artemus Calloway, a staff member of those newspapers.

ALABAMA DRYS WIN FIGHT TO KEEP PROHIBITION LAW

Dry leaders in Alabama are rejoicing over the action of the state Senate in voting down a proposed repeal bill 20 to 12.

The lower house in Alabama, under pressure of wet lobbyists, passed a measure to legalize the sale of intoxicants, but the legislature adjourned before the Senate acted on the bill.

In the interim, church leaders over the state waged a vigorous campaign urging their senators to respect their campaign pledges.

Alabama, dry for 21 years, is the only state in the nation which prohibits the sale of all intoxicants, including beer. In Kansas and Oklahoma, both under constitutional prohibition, 3.2 beer is generally dispensed on grounds that it is a non-intoxicating beverage, according to the National Voice News Bureau.

"It's pretty hard to beat NATURE"

SULU Bird Dog Queen — Sulu, deep liver-and-white pointer bitch, owned by A. G. C. Sage, New York. Handled by Clyde Morton.

HERE is an action picture of the famous Sulu, the pointer who swept everything before her at National Field Trials of 1936 at Grand Junction, Tenn. Sulu, the queen of them all!

Thousands of bird dogs range the fields... but there's only one Sulu. To this glorious creature Nature gave her greatest gift, a perfect balance of the vital elements; speed, scent, endurance, instinct and intelligence. Another pointer may be just as good to look at, but Sulu has that vital spark—everything in perfect balance. So Sulu is the queen; the other is just a dog.

Just as Nature favored Sulu she favored Natural Chilean Nitrate of Soda. Just as Sulu has many elements in Nature's balance, so has this nitrogen fertilizer. Nature aged and blended into Natural Chilean, more than thirty "impurities", or vital elements that your crops need to grow and to produce their best.

These vital elements are in addition to Natural Chilean's quick-acting nitrogen. That's why Natural Chilean is so good for your land and your crop.

Mitchell Dam 40 Bessemer "Y" 30

The Mitchell Dam Cardinals defeated the strong Bessemer Y. M. C. A. team on the former's court Saturday night, January 23, by a 40-30 count. The Cardinals got away to a 6-point lead in the first few minutes of the game, and were leading Bessemer 17 to 14 at the half. To begin the second half, however, the Y boys sprinted ahead with three fast field goals, but were unable to hold the slender 3-point lead with Cobb and his mates streaking the court, and Mayfield taking the ball off the board after nearly every one of the many good scoring chances Bessemer missed.

Dock Baker earned the plaudits of the crowd and the admiration of his opponents with his expert ball handling and deceptive passing. Melton, a junior high school lad, came in for much applause for his speed and accurate passing, as did the blond young Chambers, another junior high boy, for his great guard work. Except for brief instances, the Cardinals were in there showing the best of coordination and shooting ability.

The Y team also played a jam-up game, with Horne, Jacobs and Roberts taking honors. Cobb led the home team and the field with 11 points, closely pushed by Dutch Baker with 10. Jacobs had two beautiful long shots from near the center of the court, while Mayfield contributed a pair of long ones for the Cardinals.

This was a return game, the Cardinals having lost their recent game in Bessemer by a 45-35 count. It was a nip-and-tuck affair all the way until the last few minutes, when Mitchell Dam pulled away from their opponents for a fairly safe lead.

Two Games This Week End

The Cardinals go to Plantersville on Thursday night, January 28, to meet a fine team in that town. On Saturday night, January 30, the Cardinals take on the fast stepping Mignon Mills (Sylacauga) team in what should be a genuine thriller, at Mitchell Dam.

Public Invited

Officials at the Mitchell Dam plant, as well as the management of the Cardinal team, welcome visitors to all their games. This Mitchell Dam team plays a top loop game, comparable with the best to be seen anywhere. If you are a basket ball fan, you are invited to attend any and all Cardinal games.

Gold Medal Tournament

The annual Gold Medal Tournament date has been announced, and will be played on the Mitchell Dam court on Saturday, February 13. Several top rank teams are expected to be entered in this affair, including the fast Sand Mountain team from DeKalb County. Further details concerning the tournament will be released as soon as all entries are in, drawings have been made, and all plans have been worked out. Watch for further information about this tournament in your paper during the next few weeks, and plan to attend on February 13th.

FINANCIAL COST OF ALCOHOLIC BEVERAGES

LESSON TEXT—Proverbs 21:17; 23:20, 21; Matthew 24:45-51; John 6:26, 27, 35.

GOLDEN TEXT—Wherefore do ye spend money for that which is not bread? and your labor for that which satisfieth not? Isaiah 55:2.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Why a Servant Lost His Job.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Why a Servant Lost His Job.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Drink Really Costs in Dollars and Cents.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Alcoholic Beverages—a Financial Asset or Liability?

Temperance Sunday brings a greatly needed opportunity to consider the entire question of intoxicating liquors. When the prohibition amendment was under fire the proponents of repeal contended that it would reduce taxes, cut down unemployment, eliminate bootleg liquor, return men and women to temperate and decent habits. It is worthwhile noting that not a single one of these expected benefits has materialized.

Taxes on liquor have not reduced general taxes. After all, what decent American would want his taxes cut with "blood-money"? Bootlegging thrives more flagrantly than ever. Evasion of liquor taxes indicates that about half of America's liquor is "bootleg." The specter of unemployment still stalks the land. And are our people temperate? One could laugh if it were not so tragic! The consumption of liquor is fast becoming a national disgrace. And the tragedy is that Christians have for the most part supinely said "What can I do?" and have done nothing.

The repeal of prohibition was brought about by the indifference of American voters. The issue was finally settled by the votes of less than 23 per cent of the registered voters. Where were the other 77 per cent? Where are they now?

But our lesson goes deeper than the matter of intoxicating liquor. It deals with two contrasted modes of living. What a man is determines what he does. If he lives for the flesh he will pander to its tastes. If he lives in the Spirit he will not only be right in his attitude toward liquor but toward every phase of life, yes, even toward eating.

Let us consider these two ways of life—and weigh carefully our own life decision. In which way do I walk? Remember that one may live to the flesh even though he is not a winebibber. It is a matter of heart interest and relationship to God.

I. Living in the Flesh.

The word flesh in Scripture does not refer to our physical flesh and blood, except as it is dominated by self-will. But when self-will rules the body, and God's will is ruled out, a man lives in the flesh.

Our lesson gives a terrifying picture of such a life. It makes a man a senseless lover of pleasure for pleasure's sake (Prov. 21:17). He is a lover of wine, a glutton (Prov. 23:20, 21), careless (Matt. 24:48), disorderly and unfaithful (v. 49), and a professed follower of Christ because of what it brings him (John 6:26). His end even in this world is disgrace and poverty, and in the world to come, eternal judgment (Matt. 24:51).

II. Living in the Spirit.

"They that are Christ's have crucified the flesh with the affections and lusts" (Gal. 5:24). They are therefore admonished to "walk in the Spirit," that is, to submit their lives to the control and guidance of the Spirit of God. In other words seek God's will, not self-will.

What kind of men and women are those who live in "the spirit"? A re-reading of our lesson texts reveals them as, wise, faithful, diligent, temperate, not following the Lord because of any gain to themselves.

What is their reward? In this life they are entrusted with more work for their Master (Matt. 24:47). The reward for Christian work well done is more work. So if you are lazy, don't begin. But if the fires of holy ambition to serve him burn within your soul, go on, and he will lead you further on until at last in the world to come you will have the all-sufficient reward of his "Well done, good and faithful servant."

Scouts' Round Table Held Monday P. M.

On Monday evening at 7 o'clock an important meeting was held in the office of J. Mell Martin for the purpose of discussing the further promotion of Scouting activities in the Clanton area. This area includes all of Chilton County, however at this time only Clanton and Thorsby have active troops. In this meeting some plans were discussed with reference to the promotion of troops in at least two other centers.

Scouting is by no means a new adventure as a means of developing boyhood. This organization was incorporated on February 8, 1910, under the laws of the District of Columbia. It was chartered by the national congress on June 15, 1916. The development of this organization has been nothing short of phenomenal. Wherever you go, whether in Maine or Texas, Washington, D. C., or Florida, you find Scouts everywhere. In city, town or open country, Scout troops dot every corner of the nation, spic and span in their uniforms and honored because of their services. Approximately 50 per cent of the male students in our colleges today have seen actual Scouting service. Statistics reveal that this group excells in scholarship and in attaining success after leaving college.

In addition to the above brief facts, it is gratifying to know that this organization is to be found in 73 civilized countries. Scouting is possibly the greatest brotherhood of men and boys that can be found in the civilized world.

As the anniversary of this great organization is observed during the second week in February, every good citizen should consider it a patriotic duty to become familiar with the ideas and facts which make this the greatest organization in this country.

Those attending the conference on Monday evening included: C. G. Lackey, Regional Scouting Executive; Rev. Lawrence Stanley, Scoutmaster of the Thorsby Troop; Phares Raybon, Assistant Scoutmaster of Thorsby Troop; Leroy Peterson, Patrol Leader of First Patrol, Thorsby Troop; J. Mell Martin, Scout Committeeman; Reese Mullins, Scoutmaster, Clanton Troop; Ed Mullins, Assistant Scoutmaster, Clanton Troop; James Carl Martin and Paul Gowan of the Clanton Troop; J. B. Atkinson, Chairman of the Kiwanis Committee on Scouting; Luther E. Little, Chairman Area Committee.

SALES TAX "SNIPING" CHARGED

Birmingham, Jan. 23.—Sen. H. A. Taylor's sniping in behalf of the administration's proposed general sales tax today brought a storm of protest from merchants generally throughout the state, and roused the big guns of the Consumers Anti-Sales Tax Association of Alabama.

Citing what he termed irrefutable evidence to the contrary by Rep. Sparks, of Barbour, stalwart leader in behalf of economy, Jeff P. Beeland, Greenville, head of the anti-tax group, termed Sen. Taylor's letter to the state press an amazing proposal displaying an utter lack of familiarity with apparent facts in the case.

Sen. Taylor, himself a merchant of Greensboro, has directed a letter to the press, in which he outlines his father's mercantile career following the Civil War, with the disclosure that one day he did not sell a penny until about night when a small boy came in and bought a nickle's worth of candles.

"It is inconceivable that Sen. Taylor would want a repetition of this sort of business in Alabama," Beeland said. "His proposal that the merchants get together, 'smoke the pipe of peace', and put the sales tax over, is one of the surest ways I know to restore business in Alabama to post-war conditions.

"Sen. Taylor's letter to the press names the further disclosure that only about one-eighth of the people of the state pay any ad valorem tax, which he advocates abolishing in the next breath. Surely the senator must know why so few of our people pay any ad valorem tax. Certainly he is advocating the most direct move possible to further pauperize them and and make it impossible for them to accumulate a sufficient inheritance on which to ever pay a tax."

Beeland cited an analysis of the proposed sales tax by Rep. Sparks in which the Barbour representative emphasizes that the tax is not, in fact, as represented, but an additional privilege or license tax against the business men, levied not on a transaction but on gross sales or gross receipts as the case might be, and the sole responsibility of the merchant to pay into the state's already bulging coffers.

GAS TAXES FOR ROADS ONLY

Montgomery, Jan. 25. — Alabama's 300,000 automobile owners may be assured that the money they spend for gasoline taxes will be used solely for road and bridge building and retirement of highway bonds under provisions of a constitutional amendment pending in the Senate.

The amendment forbids the state and counties from using any part of the state gasoline tax levy for purposes other than road and bridge construction. It also applies to that portion of gas receipts which is divided equally among the 67 counties, amounting to about $8,000 a month.

REPUBLICANS PLAN MILITANT CAMPAIGN

Washington, Jan. 26.—The 89 house republicans embarked today on a militant campaign of opposition to any democratic proposals they deem inimical to the nation's interests. They instructed their leader, Republican Snell, of New York, at a conference last night to name a nine-man policy committee to work out a party program.

"We are attempting to organize a militant cohesive minority," said Snell. Several made it clear they considered this course the best basis for a drive to regain lost party power. They said their best orators would bombard administration action or legislation they considered unsound or unconstitutional. The group will hold regular conferences in line with a suggestion of John Hamilton, republican national chairman.

SENTIMENT GROWING FOR STATE COUNCIL SEEN BY PRESS BODY

Responsive Chord Struck By Alabama Press Association's Industrial Program

LaFayette, Ala., Jan. 27.—Sentiment for an organization of a state-wide character, incorporating all the interests of the State into a planning, active body is seen gathering more momentum in all sections of Alabama, according to statements from members of the Industrial Committee of the Alabama Press Association this week, following receipt of numerous expressions from business, educational, civic and agricultural leaders throughout Alabama. Such an organization, if approved by the Industrial Committee at its meeting Friday, January 29th, would be actively interested in selling Alabama's industrial possibilities to Alabamians and to the world, and to invite legitimate industries to locate in Alabama and to foster and promote those industries already located here. Members of this board or council would be composed of civic, educational, business, agricultural, and other leaders who recognize the possibilities and opportunities that may come to Alabama and her people through a sound industrial development of the State.

Approximately 50,000 graduates of Alabama High Schools annually begin seeking opportunities to earn a livelihood. Of this number only a very small percentage remain at home while the others are forced to seek their opportunities outside of Alabama and the South. The Alabama Press Association has started an active campaign to keep these fine young people at home, where their educations were received and where their natural interests should remain, by creating greater opportunities here.

EFFECTIVENESS OF DRY ERA IS SHOWN BY STATISTICS

Effectiveness of prohibition in drying up the nation's appetite for intoxicants is reflected in government statistics showing that the consumption of wine is now one-half gallon per capita, despite extensive advertising campaigns by vintners. This is practically total abstinence compared to France, where 40 gallons per capita are imbibed annually, according to the National Voice News Bureau.

State Liquor Law Killed Tuesday

Local Option Vote to be Held March 10. Passed Over Governor's Veto

Graves Loses New Referendum Plea; Both Houses Vote Wet

Montgomery, Feb. 2.—The county option liquor bill became a law at 3:44 o'clock yesterday afternoon when the Alabama Senate voted 20 to 13 to over-ride the Governor's veto. Some two hours previously the House of Representatives had taken similar action by a vote of 65 to 32.

Under the law, Gov. Graves must call an election for March 10, in which the State's 67 counties shall decide by their respective votes whether State owned and operated liquor stores shall be established in their borders. Thereafter stores will be opened in counties voting affirmatively. The other counties will continue under the provisions of Alabama's prohibition law which has been on the statute books for 22 years.

The bill which became a law was drawn by the Senate and House conferees last week when the House refused to accept the Senate's substitute for Representative Chichester's bill. The substitute called a Statewide referendum. The two houses adopted the conference roport too late for the enrolled bill to reach the Governor's office before the week end recess. It went to his desk soon after the Legislature convened yesterday at 11 a. m, and was returned to the House with a veto message at 1 p. m.

Governor Graves sent up an amendment reinserting the Senate's original referendum provision with the declaration that he would sign the bill with its adoption.

Leon B. Popwell Victim of Head-In Collision With Clanton Wholesale Truck

Leon B. Popwell, age 40, died at Central Alabama Hospital last Saturday night at 7 o'clock, following injuries sustained in an automobile-truck wreck Friday night previous at about 6:30 o'clock.

Funeral services were held at Thorsby Baptist church Sunday afternoon, conducted by Rev. M. I. McLeod and Rev. W. P. Lowery. Martin & Sons in charge. Pallbearers were: Enoch Cox, Ernest Porter, John Childress, Leonard Lowery, Jim Bell, and Nat Bentley.

The accident was a head-in collision between Popwell's car, a Chevrolet coach, and a truck belonging to Clanton Wholesale Grocery Company. Mr. Popwell was driving his car in which were riding four negroes. All of the negroes were injured—one seriously. The truck was driven by Cap Dickerson, colored employee of the wholesale company. The truck coming south and the car going north headed into each other almost in front of the E. T. Weldon home place on the highway a mile north of town.

Surviving are his wife, one son and three daughters; father, Ephriam B. Popwell; one brother, Raymond Popwell.

For the past several years Leon B. Popwell had been living at the old Winslow place just south of Thorsby on the old highway. He originally came from down in the southern part of Chilton County. For the past five months Mr. Popwell had been working at Murray-Bell Hardware Company in Clanton; he was on his way home from work when the accident happened which resulted in his death about 24 hours later.

Leon B. Popwell was a successful farmer and business man, always interested in the betterment of his community and his fellow man.

Mr. Martin reports that a close check is being made, and all donations not already sent in should be gotten in at the earliest possible moment. The headquarters are calling for funds every day, and the need becomes more apparent every hour of every day in every section of the flood area. Those people must have help, and lots of it.

NEGROES HAD SINGING JUBILEE AT COURTHOUSE

Pupils from Shelby County Training School vied with those of Chilton County Training School at the courthouse in Clanton last Sunday afternoon for the best jubilee singing. About fifteen or twenty music students from each school took part in the singing. A group of judges, consisting of white people, decided the winners, the verdict being two scores in favor of the Chilton group and one score for the Shelby group.

Around 150 colored people and about 50 white people were in attendance at the singing. Short talks were made by Mrs. S. J. Ezell and Mr. Wiley M. Bean. The decision of the judges was reported by Prof. Ed Glasscock.

All of the singing was very good, both classes showing great aptitude in following the directors and heed-their various motions and directions. The singing as a whole showed that much patience has been used by the teachers in training the pupils in this phase of school work.

As was voiced by all of the white speakers of the evening, it is feared that our white schools are neglecting this very important part of the education of our children. Singing good songs is a wholesome pastime for young people, both while they are learning and while they are putting their knowledge into practice. It should be encouraged more on our general school curricula.

3 SUSPECTS HELD IN GAS STATION THEFT

Montgomery, Feb. 2.—Two men and a woman suspected of stealing $40 at the E. E. Arrington service station at Bell and Gordon streets Monday were arrested shortly afterward at Clanton, according to information received at the sheriff's office. Names of the trio were given as Hugh Johnson, 26, O. E. Spikes, 19, and Catherine Neely, seventeen.

Policemen Stanley and Keener said Mrs. Arrington told them the trio stopped at the service station about noon to have a tire repaired. One of them went into the office and paid her $1.70 in pennies, and while she was counting the coins the car sped away, bowling over an attendant who was removing the jack from under the wheel.

Mrs. Arrington missed $40 which she had in her apron pocket, and called police. Officers Stanley and Keener, accompanied by State Highway Patrolmen Waites and Jones, chased the fleeing car to Prattmont, where one of the patrolmen called the Chilton county sheriff's office at Clanton. A short time later the local sheriff's office was notified of the arrests. Warden O. S. Shivers said Haygood Peterson would send for the trio immediately.—Montgomery Journal.

V. J. ELMORE MOVING WAREHOUSE TO NEW PLACE

E. L. Klinner Furniture Company Moving to Dick Kemp Old Stand

The V. J. Elmore 5 cent, 10 cent and $1 Stores is this week moving its warehouse from the Wade Building down near the railroad into the south half of the building now occupied by E. L. Klinner Furniture Co. It is understood that the Elmore organization will within the next few days take over the other half of the furniture place, and will use all of this building for their warehouse. The upper story of this building has been used for the Elmore offices for the past year or more.

This will greatly increase the warehouse space of the company, and will enable them to house a much larger variety and a more complete stock of their goods.

It is understood that the E. L. Klinner Furniture Company will occupy the building on Main Street 2 doors west of Big Four Hardware Company, which was formerly occupied by Dick Kemp. This will make the furniture company a nice location.

U. S. SENATE HITS SNAG IN DRAWING UP RELIEF BILL

Washington, Feb. 2. — A surprise proposal to require certificates of necessity from states and cities seeking help for their unemployed blocked the Senate action Tuesday night on the $900,000,000 relief deficiency bill.

After smoothing out all other difficulties, the Senate was ready to vote on final passage. But just then Sen. Bailey, Democrat, of North Carolina, rose to offer an amendment to require states and other political subdivisions to certify they had expended their own resources before applying for federal aid.

Sen. Robinson, Democratic leader, quickly moved to recess the Senate until Wednesday. With the money now available for WPA rapidly vanishing because of emergency demands for flood relief, administration chieftains had been pushing for a vote on the new appropriation Tuesday.

Robinson told newspaper men he had not the slightest idea that the Bailey amendment would be adopted, but he, and others, forecast the proposal would produce a warm debate Wednesday. Bailey said states and cities are now back on their feet and it is only reasonable to expect that they will provide the funds for their projects.

Mr. J. N. Scott of Jem'son was a business visitor in Clanton last Tuesday.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by J. W. Fant, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County

POINTS ON CURING MEAT

Every farm family wants home cured meat that is sweet, tender and juicy—meat that has a fine flavor throughout, with no over-cured or under-cured spots. You can always have meat of this kind, as no longer need home curing of meat be an uncertain, tedious, long-drawn-out job. Every important step in butchering, trimming and curing pork, to help you get the finest meat you have ever eaten, is important.

A cool, clear day, with your butchering tools all sharp and clean, plenty of hot water, and hops that have previously been put in a small pen close to where the butchering will be done, is the best way to start the job.

A meat pump and thermometer should be included with a set of butchering tools. This pump and thermometer will be worth many times their cost to you for the first season, and they will last indefinitely. You can obtain them from your dealer who sells meat curing products. The other tools may be purchased at any local store that sells hardware. A good sticking knife, boning knife, and butcher knife, with a steel on which to sharpen them, make the work a great deal easier; also, bell scrapers and a hog hook come in mighty handy.

It is nice to have a complete set of tools but it is not absolutely necessary as a good hatchet may always be used in place of a cleaver and a wood saw may be used in place of a meat saw.

Thrifty, properly fattened hogs, weighing from 200 to 250 pounds, and from 8 to 10 months old, are the best ones for home butchering. Hogs of this size are more easily handled and the meat chills out more quickly. They produce medium weight cuts that are more suitable for the average family, as they will cure quickly and more uniformly than heavier cuts. Also, medium weight hams, shoulders, and bacon are generally finer in grain and flavor and are of better quality than those from older, heavier hogs.

Hogs that are to be slaughtered should be confined in a small pen for two or three days, and for 24 hours prior to slaughter should not be given any food, but should have plenty of fresh water. The prevention of meat spoilage, and also the foundation of meat quality begin with the live hog. Hogs should never be slaughtered when they are overheated, excited or fatigued, and care should be exercised not to bruise them in any way. The primary cause of low quality meat and meat spoilage is due to allowing the natural forms of bacteria to develop and multiply. It has been proved that keeping hogs quiet and off feed for a day before butchering will reduce the forms of natural bacteria which are present in the blood and tissues of live hogs. The job of cleaning is also much easier when the stomach contains a minimum amount of food.

Quality meat that keeps well and has a rich, sweet flavor is always worth a premium, and it pays to do the job right and cure this kind of meat. The important factors in preventing spoilage and in turning out good meat are:

1. Hogs that are quietly handled.
2. Althorough bleed.
3. Quick and efficient chilling.
4. Pumping hams and shoulders.
5. Proper application of the salt.
6. Cleanliness in handling the meat.
7. Proper attention when curing.
8. Proper washing, drying, wrapping.

Meat should never be cut into pieces for curing until it has thoroughly cooled and all the animal heat is out. A good job of cutting cannot be done on warm meat. Neither should salt be applied on warm meat. Very often home cured meat has been made inferior in quality, and actual loss caused by cutting up and salting the meat while it is still warm.

Bone souring is often the result of meat not being properly chilled, or from applying salt on warm meat. Some folks seem to believe that meat should be cut up and salted as soon as butchering is completed, or it will not take the salt properly. Nothing could be farther from the fact than this because actual harm can easily be done instead of good.

When salt is applied on warm meat, it helps hold in animal heat and this heat, along with moisture, gases, and a little blood that is usually in the joints, makes an ideal combination for bone taint to begin, which in a short time may cause souring and spoilage.

A good chill is one of the foundation steps in turning out good meat, and the best results cannot be obtained when salt is applied to meat that is still warm.

Meat spoilage can be brought about by a number of causes. If the hogs are hot and excited when butchered the meat will be in a feverish condition, which makes it much easier for souring to start before the meat can take the cure.

If a good bleed is not obtained the excess blood around the joints can easily cause souring to begin.

If a good chill is not obtained the natural bacteria in the meat multiplies faster than the cure can take hold.

If salt is applied on warm meat this can cause souring to start, helping to hold the animal heat in the meat instead of allowing it to escape.

If possible, do not allow meat to freeze after slaughtering. A film of ice which surrounds the carcass prevents the complete elimination of animal heat from the deeper tissues which can easily cause bone souring after the meat has been put in cure.

Meat which has been frozen is much more difficult to cure and, as a rule, curing frozen meat is not recommended for home use.

Special care should always be exercised when curing pork, to prevent the growth of natural bacteria which is in the meat. A good bleed and a good chill retard the action of the bacteria and hold it in check until the cure has an opportunity to permanently offset further bacteria action. This is one reason why it is such sound practice to pump the hams and shoulders with a preparation that allows the cure to start from the bone area, curing outward, at the same time the salt applied on the outside of the meat cures inward.

You should have home cured meat that is sweet, tender and juicy; meat that has a fine flavor throughout — no over-cured or under-cured spots; meat that is just as safely cured next to the bone as at the outer edges; meat that has a mild, uniform flavor — not oversalty half way through in order to get the center portion safely cured; meat without any trace of bone taint or loss through souring when properly handled; meat that you are proud to serve and like to eat because of the high quality and fine flavor.

The roast meat thermometer is another guide to perfect toasting. Insert it in the fleshy part of the roast, so that the bulb reaches the center.

Pumping tender quick pickle along the bones prevents both worry and your meat from spoiling, and in this way over-salting may be prevented.

IRISH POTATO FACTS PRESENTED BY WARE

Auburn, Ala. — Experiments show that Alabama farmers will profit by using one of two methods of fertilizing, spacing, and planting Irish potatoes.

1. With 16-inch spacing the potatoes should be fertilized with 1500 pounds of 4-10-7 per acre and planted with one and one-half ounce seed pieces.

2. With 12-inch spacing they should be fertilized with 2,000 pounds of 4-10-7 per acre and planted in 1-ounce seed pieces.

When planted on first-year new ground the potatoes should receive a side application of nitrate of soda in addition to the mixed fertilizer. The side application is not needed on any land except first-year new ground.

The two leading varieties of Irish potatoes for Alabama are the Triumph and Cobbler. Farmers growing spring and fall crops will find the Triumph the most desirable. Those growing only one crop per year desire the Cobbler, due to its characteristics of remaining dormant for a longer period.

The experimental facts about Irish potatoes were obtained from Prof. L. M. Ware, head of the horticulture and forestry department of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute. County agents and Prof. Ware will be glad to furnish farmers further details about how to make the greatest profits growing Irish potatoes.

ALABAMA FARMERS BREAK RECORD GROWING LEGUMES

Auburn, Ala.—A total of 8,015,385 pounds of winter legume seed was planted in 63 counties in 1936, according to figures submitted by Alabama county agents.

This is a new high mark in the use of winter legumes for soilbuilding and erosion control exceeding by more than 1,250,000 pounds the record of 1934 when 6,649,399 pounds were planted, says J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist.

Had seed been available, plantings in Alabama would have exceeded 10,000,000 pounds. Several million pounds of seed requested by farmers were never delivered, he states.

Based on present prices, crops following the winter legumes will be increased in yields by more than $6,250,000. Thus, the winter legume program promoted by the Alabama Extension Service and based on experiments of the Alabama Experiment Station becomes a $36,000,000 demonstration—having added at least that amount to the agricultural income of Alabama since its beginning some 15 years ago, Lowery comments.

Turned winter legumes increase the yields of the following corn by more than 20 bushels per acre. Such increases make it possible for farmers to produce 30 to 50 bushels of corn per acre and supply the corn needs of their farms. Legumes also are enabling many farmers to follow a live-at-home program who were never able to do so before adopting winter legumes in a soil building program. Furthermore, winter legumes afford much valuable erosion control.

Brief Farm Notes

With a membership of 66,242, Alabama leads all other states in 4-H club members. The membership in the country totals 1,084,983.

An annual appropriation of $50,000,000 for 10 years is authorized by the farm tenancy bill introduced by Senator John H. Bankhead.

Modern farming practices which have proved practical in preventing soil erosion in Alabama and other states of the Piedmont Section are are discussed by the United States Department of Agriculture in a new bulletin entitled "Soil Defense in the Piedmont."

Erosion control methods that heretofore have been limited to farmers' fields are going to be seen along 15 miles of roads in soil erosion demonstrations and CCC camp areas in Alabama under plans now being worked out by the Soil Conservation Service and the State Highway Department.

Approximately 355 crippled children have been benefitted by the equipment purchased with the $7,366.31 donated last year by members of FFA and FHA Chapters in Alabama.

Mr. Tom Littlejohn made a business trip to Birmingham Tuesday.

BOB JONES COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

We are commanded by our Lord to love our neighbors as we love ourselves. That used to sound like a rather hard commandment, but it isn't so hard when we analyze it. How do I love myself? I do not wish to coddle myself. I simply want myself to have a square deal. What I wish for myself I should wish for my neighbor. We are told in the Word of God not "to look every man on his own things, but every man also on the things of the other". I am not to be indifferent to my own things, but I am to remember always that there are other people to whom I have obligations. Selfishness is not only wicked, it doesn't pay. Sooner or later men who live for themselves find they have lived in vain. Those who live for God and others find somewhere on the highway of life that they have been winners and not losers.

We hear a great deal of talk about personal liberty. Men say they want to live their own lives in their own way and do not wish to be told what to do. It happens that we are living in a world where it is impossible for men to live as they please unless they please to live right. You walk down the street swinging your arm. I ask what you are doing. You reply, "This is my arm. I have a right to swing it. This arm doesn't belong to you." But you keep swinging your arm until you hit my nose. I say, "That is your arm, but this is my nose. Your personal liberty ends where my nose begins." No man has any right to do anything that is liable to injure anybody else. In this world where other people live with us we cannot do as we please unless we please to live according to law, and according to principles that govern civilized social beings.

University News

Experimentation in the growth of trees not native to Alabama soil is being carried on by Dr. Roland M. Harper, of the University of Alabama faculty.

Dr. Harper has received some acorns of the California White Oak. Several of these acorns have already sprouted.

Dr. Harper plans to set them out on the University campus as soon as they attain a suitable size. A few trees of type are now grown in the East.

Dr. Harper is also experimenting with some Oriental sycamore seeds. These seeds, even rarer than the White Oak, have also sprouted under Dr. Harper's care.

The University of Alabama now has two bands instead of one. Announcement of the change was made recently by Carlton K. Butler, bandmaster, whose Million Dollar Band won state and national acclaim and recognition during the football season.

The new arrangements provide for a military band and a concert band. The military band will be composed of freshman and sophomore ROTC students, with juniors and seniors serving as officers.

The concert band, which will march at all the football games, will be selected by competitive tests of all students wishing to try out.

Most desirable scientific progress of the next 100 years is in the field of television, according to the vote of almost 200 journalism students at the University of Alabama. The prolongation of human life was a close second to television.

Every graduate of the University of Alabama's 2-year medical school has been admitted to approved 4-year schools. Every graduate for the past seven years has succeeded in securing admittance, and 98 per cent of those graduates have made good at schools to which they have transferred.

The recent resignation of the Japanese government was taken as an encouraging sign of a rising democratic spirit in that country by P. Leo Palmore, Southern Methodist missionary to Japan.

Visiting on the campus of the University of Alabama last week, Mr. Palmore expressed these ideas in an interview here.

When asked about Japan's militaristic ambitions and the war party in that country, Mr. Palmore said that it was the natural outgrowth of Japan's critical need for additional territory.

Employers of engineering students are looking for more and more personality in the college men they take, said Dr. W. Harold Taylor, in charge of the engineering placement bureau at the University of Alabama.

Other things they want in prospective employees are willingness to work, ability to think, and assurance of continuous service with the employing firm.

Cards used in the placement bureau record students' family history, medical history, lineage, scholarship, participation in extra-curricular activities, self-support, and hobbies.

Merely supplying electricity AT REASONABLE RATES is not considered by Alabama Power Company to be its sole duty to the community. This advertisement tells you about one service "not written in the bond."

THE main purpose of any large dam, in which is installed generating equipment in keeping with the size of the dam, is to generate electricity. Incidental results can be lessening the effects of floods.

No dam can completely eliminate floods, because if there's more than enough rain to fill the lake behind the dam, then the surplus water must run over the dam. But by releasing water from the lake during dry weather, and storing water during rainy weather, the devastation of floods can be lessened; and when they do occur, they come so gradually that persons in lowlands will not be suddenly trapped.

The chief purpose of any hydro-electric development is the generation of electricity. We have six large hydro-electric generating plants in Alabama—on the Coosa and Tallapoosa Rivers. We operate them so as to not only produce an abundance of cheap electricity, but also coordinate their operation in such manner that effects of floods on these rivers, and the Alabama River, which these rivers form, are less than they would be if the dams were not in place.

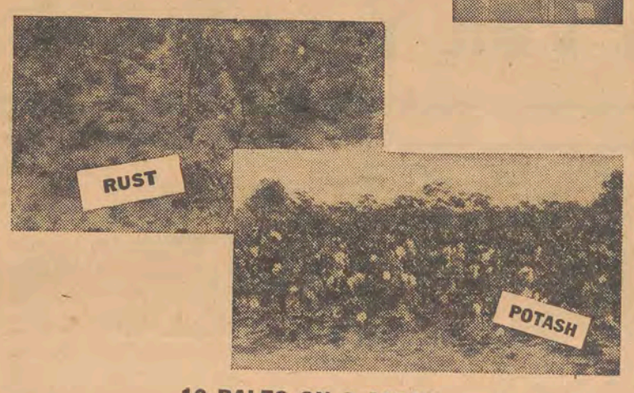
J. E. BRIM, of Dawson, Ga., has had 35 years of experience in farming. This has taught him that good fertilizer and good seed are essential to successful cotton production. He produced 251 bales on 225 acres in 1934, 178 bales on 198 acres in 1935, and 212 bales on 212 acres in 1936. He blames his low yield in 1935 on a long drought.

He uses 400 pounds of 3-9-5 NPK fertilizer per acre at planting and top-dresses with 200 pounds of 14-0-12 after his cotton is chopped out. Mr. Brim says: "Potash in my top-dresser prevents Rust and gives me better maturity, better lint turn-out and better matured seed. I sell over 3,000 bushels of Wilt-resistant Seed annually. The cost of potash is low and I find high-potash fertilizers profitable for all farm crops."

BIG, PRETTY BOLLS



W. A. ROBINETT, of Enterprise, Ala., says: "In 1936 I had 30 acres in cotton and used 400 pounds of 3-8-5 NPK guano per acre. I top-dressed two acres with 100 pounds of Soda per acre and on one of these I put an additional 100 pounds of NV Muriate of Potash. On the entire 30 acres I made nine bales of cotton. The acre top-dressed only with Soda made 570 pounds of seed cotton. The acre top-dressed with Soda and NV Potash made 919 pounds—a gain of 349 pounds of seed cotton. Allowing for the cost of potash this is a profit of $16.54 per acre. You could tell the potash cotton by walking through it. It stayed vigorous and healthy and kept making the biggest, prettiest bolls I ever saw."

DOUBLED HIS YIELD

H. F. STRENGTH, of Daleville, Ala., says: "In 1936 I top-dressed 7⅓ acres with 100 pounds of NV Muriate of Potash per acre and made seven 500-pound bales and 138 pounds of lint. That figures a bale to the acre as compared with 1,000 pounds of seed cotton per acre in 1935, when only part of my cotton was top-dressed with NV Potash and half a bale to the acre in 1934, when I didn't use any extra potash.

"In 1934 my cotton rusted badly, like most cotton in this section. I decided to try potash top-dressing and I have been well pleased with the results. This year my cotton stayed healthy and kept growing, while my neighbor's, adjoining me, rusted badly and died. I am going to top-dress every acre of cotton I plant this year with NV Potash."

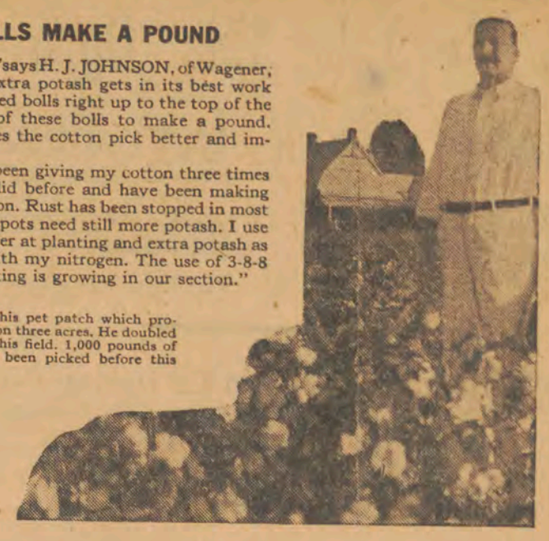
M. L. O'CAIN, of Orangeburg, S. C., says: "On my average cotton crop last year I used 4% potash in the fertilizer at planting and 200 pounds per acre of top-dressing consisting of NV Muriate of Potash and Nitrate of Soda in equal parts. I had no Rust, except on a three-acre block where I didn't use the extra potash. The photographs tell the story.

"On one block of 9 1/20 acres which I fertilized rather heavily, using 160 pounds of NV Muriate as a top-dresser, I made 16 bales and a remnant. On one field where cowpeas followed oats, which had received only nitrogen, I lost my hay crop. But on another field where the oats got 60 pounds of NV Muriate per acre with the nitrogen, I made a ton of pea-vine hay per acre."

CONTROLS WILT



E. F. CALHOUN, of Eufaula, Ala., says: "Cotton, well-fed with NV Potash, weighs 10 to 15 pounds more per basketful than cotton grown with just my regular fertilizer. The plants look healthier and fruit closer. Where I had NV Potash I had no Wilt but lots of stalks died where I had only my regular fertilizer."

FEWER BOLLS MAKE A POUND

"Look at that top crop," says H. J. JOHNSON, of Wagener, S. C. "That's where extra potash gets in its best work with large, fully matured bolls right up to the top of the stalk. It takes fewer of these bolls to make a pound. Plenty of potash makes the cotton pick better and improves the staple.

"Since 1934 I have been giving my cotton three times as much potash as I did before and have been making considerably more cotton. Rust has been stopped in most of my fields but some spots need still more potash. I use a good complete fertilizer at planting and extra potash as a top-dressing along with my nitrogen. The use of 3-8-8 NPK fertilizer at planting is growing in our section."

Mr. Johnson, standing in his pet patch which produced 3,657 pounds of lint on three acres. He doubled his potash application in this field. 1,000 pounds of seed cotton per acre had been picked before this picture was taken.

STOP RUST START PROFITS

WHEN you buy your fertilizer and top-dresser, tell your fertilizer man you want more NV POTASH. Plan now to top-dress with 100 pounds of NV MURIATE or 200 pounds of NV KAINIT per acre, or use a nitrogen-potash, mixed-goods top-dresser containing 10 to 25% NV POTASH. If you prefer to use your extra potash at planting, select a fertilizer containing 8 to 10% NV POTASH. Where Rust has been very severe you may need both high-potash fertilizer at planting and potash top-dressing to STOP RUST and START PROFITS.

Thousands of farmers have found that it pays to give cotton a lot more potash than the average fertilizer contains. NV POTASH keeps cotton strong and healthy, maturing fruit until a full crop is made (including a good top crop). It PREVENTS RUST, helps control Wilt and produces strong, vigorous plants with less shedding, larger bolls that are easier to pick and better yields of uniform, high-quality lint. NV POTASH PAYS!

FIGHT THE SALES TAX!

Montgomery, Feb. 2. — Educational leaders scoffed at our warnings from time to time that they were being taken on a snipe hunt by the Hon. Bibb Graves in his drive for a sales tax, N. L. Walker, president of the Alabama Independent Merchants Association, pointed out here in calling upon all classes of people to rally against the passage of the Chichester consumer sales tax which is now before the state legislature.

We have witnessed a great drive for this sales tax with the politicians telling us it was for the schools. Now we find that education has been thrown into the discard and that not only a large slice of the proposed revenue is being sidetracked to the counties, but Dr. Luther N. Duncan's extension service is coming in for another big portion of the money under the bill, according to Mr. Walker.

The school people have stated that they are not supporting the Chichester bill because of this very thing—the money they believe is needed for schools would be piped into the hands of county office holders and the Duncan political machine operating out of Auburn.

But a lot of people think that the mothers and fathers of this great state are for this tax bill—because they have urged that something be done for the schools.

There is no one behind the Chichester bill other than Bibb Graves and his pie-eaters. If they are not pushing the bill and were not pushing it long ago they would have come out in opposition to it.

They have not only spread misleading information about the school forces supporting this back-breaking measure that is to be forced down the throats of the consumer (which means you people who spend any money at all for food, clothes or other necessities of life) but they have even dared to say that the merchants of Alabama were for the bill.

You have already seen how the governor punished the merchants for fighting your battles against new taxes during the past two years. He forced a nice gross receipts tax bill which he jammed through the legislature in the hope of scaring the merchants away so he could tax you three per cent.

When the merchants fought on he immediately planned a new tax—the sales tax—and whispered that if the merchants behaved he would take their tax off after he had passed it on to the laborers, the housewives, salesmen, white collar men and women.

But the merchants knew all about the governor's snipe hunts. He took them on just such a hunt when he ran for iffice and gave a written pledge that he would not let a sales tax come up even as a last resort.

But the school people listened, for they believed that the governor was going to pass this nice tax just for the schools. When the Chichester bill showed up it gave the money to the regular county politicians and the pie-eaters. It is the same old Graves gang that got rich during the other Graves administration, only this time the gang is twice as big for it took thousands of promises of jobs to put the Little Colonel back in the grab-seat.

If it is the administration's hope to wear down the opposition to this sales tax measure, they have another guess coming. We serve notice now that we, the consumers, the farmers, laborers, white collar workers and merchants of Alabama will remain unalterably opposed to such legislation.

And we hope that the good people who have snatched at a sales tax as the only way to keep the schools running and the teachers paid will read the handwriting on the wall. Look at the governor's written promises that now are being broken under and above cover and realize that he will make no exception of them.

Once he passes his taxes they will be tossed aside and the money they are looking for will be found in the already well filled pockets of his political machine which operates in every county and beat of this state.

It is to speak against this long list of special taxes now or suffer heavily from the grasping hand of the tax collector. Homes, farms, pianos, ice boxes, automobiles, the gasoline that runs them, stores, cigarets, amount of business done, are already forfeit unless you pay the state.

Only the scheming minds of these politicians who seek to get rich at the people's expense know what will be taxed or taken away from you before they get through.

If we speak as one—if we put the fear of the people into the hearts of the members of the legislature who have traded their votes to the governor for paroles, pardons and personal favors now, we may stop the tax raids. If we don't speak, we are lost!

The merchants of Alabama are fighting! Are you?

A MOTHER'S MESSAGE TO ALL THE YOUNG PEOPLE

Young men and ladies, why do you grieve our blessed Saviour by indulging in strong drink, card playing, and the many other sinful things that are so common every day and every night? What expression on the face of Jesus do you suppose such actions by our young folks cause—do they invoke a smile or a look of sadness?

So, please, young men and young women, listen to one who is a mother. I have no selfish motive in view, but I assure you that it grieves my heart to see so much indulgence in the many sinful practices of this day and time. Please believe me when I say that I hold no hate against any of you, but there is only love in my heart for every one of you; and it is with feeling of a mother's love that I make this appeal to you.

Please think what a serious thing it is to do things that bring grief to our blessed Lord and that we know He disapproves of. We should think many times before we do such things.

And, dear young people, Jesus is not the only one that you bring sorrow to and that you are mistreating. What about your father and mother? Just stop and think; would father and mother have you do these sinful things. No. They would do almost anything to prevent you from practicing such sinfulness. Young people, you are headed the wrong way when you are out late hours at night. Your dear mother is losing sleep and rest, which she so sorely needs perhaps, just on account of your waywardness.

Your mother's love for you is deep and kind, and so is that of Jesus Christ; so please let me beg you to stop grieving them and subjecting your soul to eternal doom and your life to degradation.

Written by a mother who loves all young people.—Mrs. C. E. Culp.

The Last Word...

Previews of the latest trends in fashions

By KAY CAREW

NEW YORK—High small-crowned hats are leading the style race, and the smartest of smartly dressed women seen in Gotham's bright spots are wearing modern versions of a hat, which I am certain, was stolen out of the Arabian nights!

SWING IT—Patterned after the music of King Swing is the swing skirt, leitmotif in the style symphony. Its gay, flaring lines seem to take pounds off your figure, and add just the right touch of pert swagger.

SNAKESKIN FINGERNAILS are the newest creation of Schiaparelli. They are bright red—and are built right into sooty black antelope gloves!

TWO-TONE NEW TONES—Smartest new upholstery fabric is a two-tone mohair velvet in rich colors offset by a new contrasting yarn known as heathertone. The heathertone gives a three-dimensional effect. And it's said to wear like iron! You can get it on production furniture, too—as well as on custom-built pieces.

THE LAST WORD—Tomorrow's style leader will be—the Dalmatian motif! Jerkins, jackets and blouses, all gay with embroidery in the manner of the Tyrol! The influence will be felt all winter.

The geography class finished its work at the close of the semester. Miss Jenkins will take Mr. Sutlive's Latin I class. It is not expected to get a teacher in Miss Crawford's place.

Saturday afternoon, February 6, at 3 o'clock in the auditorium the mid-year music recital will be given by Miss Kathryn Foss' piano and voice pupils, of whom she has a large class. Everyone is invited.

A week from Saturday, at 7:30 p.m., will be the time for the annual Valentine party of the Helen Keller Literary Society. This will be at the dining hall, and is for all the members of the faculty, and wives.

On Saturday night, February 20, at 7:30 o'clock, the annual declamatory contest will take place. There will be no charge this year for this program. Four girls and four boys will participate.

What does Christ mean to me? 2. Why am I joining the church? 3. What am I going to do for my church, After this program Rev. Stanley spoke on the Expert C. E. Course he is going to teach. INVITE BUSINESS To Visit Your Store!

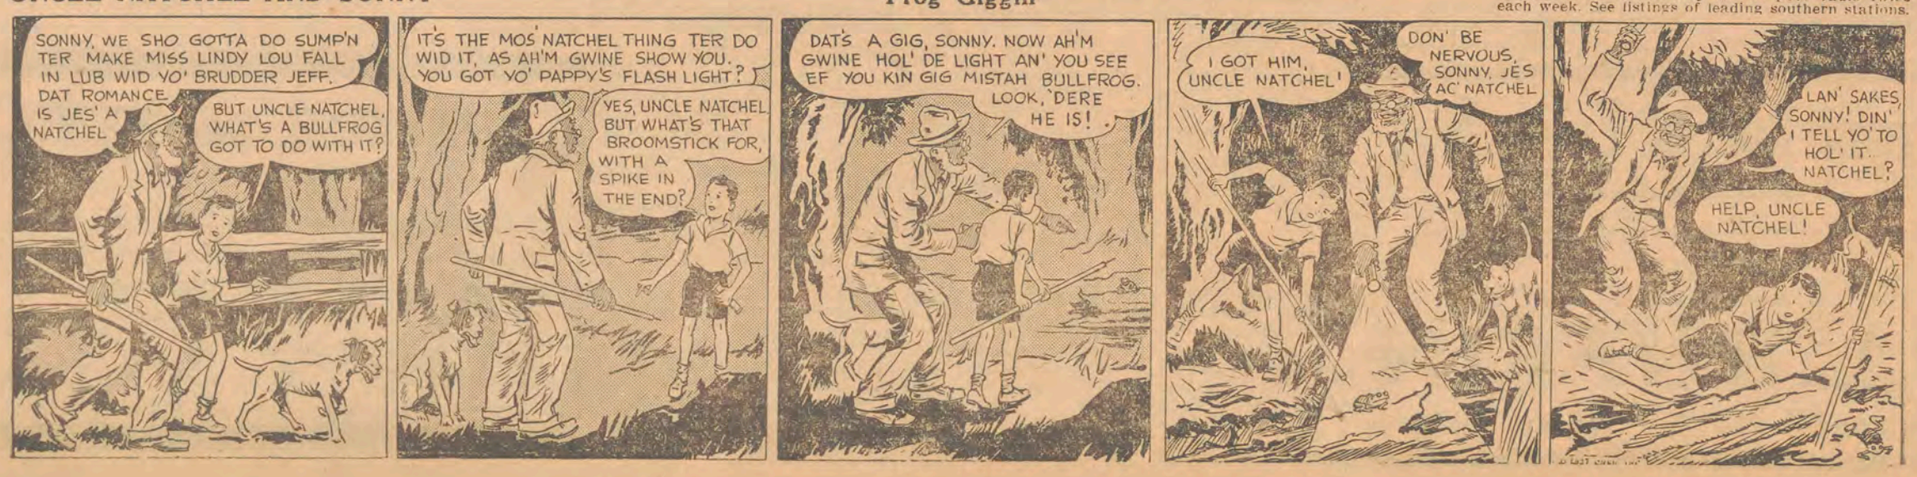
In this day and age the man who waits for business to come to him is in for a disappointment. Business people over the country have found this more true in recent years.

It is up to the man who wants business to go after it — and there is no better medium than to advertise. As time rolls on it is more noticeable that people are seeking bargains in all purchases.

Business firms everywhere have proved that business can and does keep up by consistent and persistent advertising and sales effort. But it must be consistent and values must be kept high.



The man who makes what profit there is to make is the man who does not have to wipe the dust off his goods on the shelf, BUT KEEPS THEM MOVING ALL THE TIME. That's where Advertising does it's bit!

How to EASE a COLD FOR 15¢

TWO SIMPLE RULES

INSTEAD of buying costly medicines to relieve the discomforts of a cold, try the way almost any doctor you ask will approve as the modern way — genuine BAYER ASPIRIN. It now costs only 15¢ for a dozen tablets, or two full dozen for a quarter.

The way you use it is this: Two BAYER tablets the moment you feel a cold coming on, taken with a full glass of water. Repeat, if necessary, according to directions in package. If at the same time, throat is sore, gargle with three Bayer tablets in ⅓ glass water for almost instant relief. Bayer Aspirin acts to fight fever, and the aches and pains of a cold. Relief comes quickly. Ask your druggist for genuine BAYER ASPIRIN by its full name — not the name "aspirin" alone.

Outlook Justifies State Participation In New York Fair

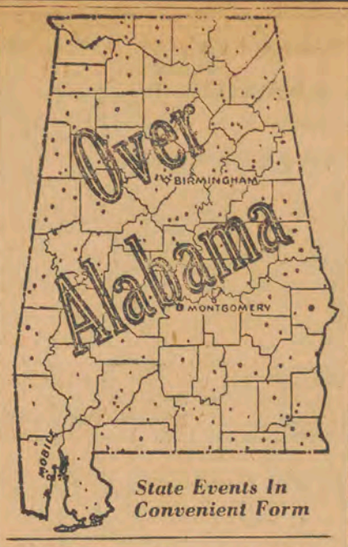
Whalen Voices Opinion in Inviting Governor and People to the 1939 Exposition

NEW YORK, (Special).—In a letter of invitation to the governors of 47 states, Grover Whalen, President of the New York World's Fair 1939 Corporation, points out that the commercial consequences of the international exposition under construction in New York City are so great and important that they alone would justify the active participation of every state in the nation.

"Fifty million persons from every walk in life, from every state in the United States, from every country in the world, are expected to attend the Fair," writes Mr. Whalen. "The great American market with its tremendous consumer purchasing power will be represented by these visitors. They will comprise a true cross-section of America."

The World's Fair, according to Mr. Whalen, will be a magnificent spectacle, entertaining and instructive. It will attempt to answer the questions: "What kind of a world have we built? What kind of a world are we building? What kind of a world can we build?" With collateral improvements, it will represent a total investment of more than $125,000,000 by the Fair Corporation and the governmental, industrial and other participants. The Fair site park is a tract of 1216½ acres, almost at the geographical and population centre of New York City.

Construction of buildings and roads, grading, dredging, planting and landscaping are already under way, based upon a schedule which calls for completion of all construction operations before January 1, 1939, to allow four months for final decorations and installation of exhibits preparatory to the opening of the Fair on April 30.



The opening date commemorates the inauguration, on April 30, 1789, of George Washington as the first President of the United States.

In the government area, and near an imposing federal hall to be erected by the United States Government, the Fair will provide a "Hall of States" in which the significant contributions of each state in laying the foundations for the better World of Tomorrow can be proudly displayed, says Mr. Whalen.

His letter supplements an invitation to participate in the Fair extended to the governors on November 30 by Governor Herbert H. Lehman of the host state of New York. Governor Lehman pointed out that the State of New York has already appropriated, to date, $2,130,000 for commencement of construction of boulevards, service roads, bridges, and certain other basic improvements the State will make at the exposition site or its approaches. The New York legislature, further, during 1936 passed an act creating the New York World's Fair Commission of 18 members and providing funds in aid of this body's preparation of plans for a state building and exhibit and for active state participation in the Fair.

A special committee of the American Bar Association recommended that the principle governing commerce in prison-made goods be carried into the field of child labor. State Senator James A. Simpson, of Birmingham, is chairman of the committee.

Poultry Pointers

Sudden changes in feeding and management often cause a drop in production, and may result in a false molt of the flock.

* * *

Drinking water is almost as important as feed in poultry raising. Clean water fountains with an abundant fresh water supply of water should be kept before the flock at all times. In the northern part of the United States precautions must be taken to prevent fountains freezing.

* * *

Usual symptoms of colds in the flock are sniffling, diarrhoea, watery and swollen eyes, and stuck eyelids. Colds may be brought on by sudden changes in temperature, overcrowded quarters, damp litter, or infection from older birds. To prevent outbreaks of colds the temperature must be kept uniform. Chicks should be started to roost early and the house should be kept thoroughly clean. A solution made of one-fourth pint Purina cre-so-fec in one gallon of water is an effective cleansing agent to keep down infection.

* * *

If moldy litter is put into the laying house, pullets breathe the mold spores into their lungs. This may cause trouble. If birds get a touch of pneumonia from moldy litter, the best treatment is a good flush with epsom salts mixed in a wet mash. Be sure that the birds eat all of the mash.

* * *

Worms take a tremendous toll from poultry profits. Unthrifty birds cut down the flock average. At the first indication that birds may be infested with worms set to work to eradicate the pests before they have a chance to infect the whole flock. Use a Purina tetsule for round worms. If birds are dosed in the afternoon worms will be on the dropping boards by morning.

* * *

Feather picking is a vicious habit held over from chick days. It can sometimes be checked by providing birds with bulk, such as good green dried alfalfa. A box of soil about 4 feet square in each pen may break up the habit. The soil should be changed every week.

* * *

Many poultrymen object to feeding wet mash at night. It chills the birds in cold weather, and not enough mash can be consumed to keep the birds comfortably filled until morning. Mash pressed into handy grain-like pellets fills a definite need in the feeding program. Purina Layena checkers should be fed in the evening so that every bird goes to roost with a full crop.

* * *

Many breeders rotate their male birds, using red, blue and yellow leg bands. Each set of males is kept with the flock four days, then rested eight days. This increases fertility and keeps the males in fine condition.

PUBLIC UNDERSTANDING

In the last decade there has been a wholesome revival of interest by the individual in what his governments—local, state and national—do. That interest should be encouraged and stimulated, for the American people are intelligent enough to sift out the unsound and the silly when they know all the facts.

It is, therefore, an obligation of the patriotic and thoughttul to assist in bringing about this public understanding, and to make clear the worth of our form of government, balanced between the executive, legislative and judicial.

Under our plan of government, unlike that of most others, the citizen is still the sovereign. He has established a limited federal government and given to it such powers as he thought it ought to have. All others he has reserved to the states or to himself.

Some of his rights, the citizen has denied to invasion by anyone. These are in the so-called no man's land. That is not an accident, nor a product of the courts. It is a deliberate reservation, created by the people themselves. It could be more correctly described as every man's land, or no ruler's land.

In coming months and years, there doubtless will be many proposals to take these rights away from the citizens. If, after understanding all the facts, he agrees to yield them, his will must be supreme, for the United States is still basically a democracy.

In the meanwhile, though, he should be on guard against movements which would deprive him of those rights through subterfuge. And above all, he should fulfill his obligation not only to know what it is all about himself, but to do what he can to create better public understanding.

If those things happen, confidence in the American system cannot wane.

Window flower boxes have appeared on some trailer homes, thus making it possible to introduce new insect pests simultaneously into 48 states.—Auburn (N. Y.) Citizen-Advertiser.

HOW APPROPRIATE!

Because there was a tremendous reverse in the business condition of the nation during three years of the Hoover administration, resulting in the closing down of many of the sources of employment, ex-President Hoover has been abused as few presidents have been by the Roosevelt New Dealers.

During Hoover's administration his hands were completely tied by a hostile congress under the leadership of the Garners, Pat Harrisons, Joe Robinsons, Hugo Blacks, Norrises, LaFollettes, et als. Hoover was not permitted by these gentlemen, who were then quite jealous of the Constitutional prerogatives of congress, to carry into effect any policies designed for relief of the national economic collapse.

When Mr. Roosevelt was elected and inaugurated president, these same great leaders suddenly became completely subservient to the presidential will, and from the day he first became president, Mr. Roosevelt has been backed and supported by a congress ready to do his will subserviently, without debate or questioning. For four years he has been the supreme dictator, so far as congress is concerned.

As Mr. Roosevelt stood in front of the national capitol on January 20th and delivered his second inaugural address, he gave a partial accounting of his stewardship in his first administration. He said:

"In this nation I see tens of millions of its citizens—a substantial part of the whole population—who at this very moment are denied the greater part of what, in the very lowest standards of today, are called the necessities of life.

"I see millions of families trying to live on incomes so meagre that the pall of family disaster hangs over them day to day.

"I see millions whose daily life in city and on farm continue under conditions labeled indecent by a so-called polite society a half century ago.

"I see millions denied education, recreation and the opportunity to better their lot and the lot of their children.

"I see one-third of a nation ill-housed, ill-clad, ill-nourished."

The foregoing was not uttered by a Republican, an economic royalist, nor a Liberty Leaguer against Mr. Roosevelt, but it was uttered by Mr. Roosevelt, himself, as he stepped forth to start the second installment of the New Deal spasm. As he thus gave utterance to the words picturing this woebegone condition of what was once the greatest, richest, most prosperous nation God has ever smiled upon, there would no doubt have been rapturous applause by the thousands of Jim Farley's select hangers-on who are on the government payroll, but for the heavy intervention of a heavy downpour of icy cold rain.

How appropriate it all seemeth! Selah!

There is a story going the rounds, according to Hash, in the Augusta Gazette, of a WPA foreman who wired headquarters for more shovels. Headquarters wired back: "We have no more shovels—let the men lean on each other."—Greenleaf (Kan.) Sentinel.

It is reported that 3,000 Japanese have started for Spain to join Gen. Franco. It is beginning to look like a 1937 Olympics over at Madrid.

Another reason why it is so easy to go to the devil is because he will meet you more than half way.—Washington Post.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

The second inauguration of Franklin D. Roosevelt as president of the United States is now a matter of history. Millions of people heard the address of the chief executive over the radios of the land, and millions more read it in their daily newspapers. The second Roosevelt administration is now on. The cheering and the paeans of political victory are ended. We are now ready for the task of building a better America in the next four years of our national existence. The task is one in which constructive efforts of the administration will have the support of the people, with inevitable critical discussion of those measures which deserve critical analysis.

The principal quality of the president's inaugural address was its generality. It was, of course, pitched on a high plane. There were expressions of thankfulness over the change for the better in the economic condition of the country since March 4, 1933. And things certainly do look better than they did at the time of the bank holiday, three years and ten months ago. The president is entitled to felicitate the country over this fact. It was the comparison of economic conditions now with those at the beginning of Mr. Roosevelt's term which formed the most potent media for the making of success for the Democratic cause in the campaign of 1936.

True it is that the United States is not the only country which has benefitted by improved conditions during the past four years. The immutable economic laws of action and reaction have been at play in Europe, in Canada and in Pan-America since we hit low in the valley of depression in 1932. The improvement in conditions is almost world wide. That is one reason why we may look with confidence to the future. Better times in the United States are in part, at least, a section of improvement everywhere. But during this period of four years Mr. Roosevelt and his friends in Congress have been in charge of affairs in the United States. To them then, goes the credit for better times in the United States, and to argue or quibble over just how much of the improvement is due to the legislative and administrative acts of the New Deal, is now a mere waste of time. The people have spoken.

Any persons who looked forward to new and radical proposals in the president's inaugural address were disappointed. It was entirely moderate in its nature. There were no suggestions that the Constitution ought to be amended or the complexion of the Supreme Court changed. After referring to the work of the Founding Fathers a century and a half ago in giving us a new constitutional government, the president added:

"Four years of new experience have not belied our new instinct. They hold out the clear hope that government within communities, government within the separate states, and government of the United States can do things the times require without yielding its democracy."

Here is no trace of any criticism of the Supreme Court because so many acts of the New Deal administration were set aside. There is no encouragement for that considerable element in congress which believes that its ultimate objective in controlling and directing the American government can only be attained through some of the seventy resolutions for constitutional amendment which were intfoduced in the last session of congress. In short, the president's address was not in the least revolutionary. The finance journals tells us that it created scarcely a ripple in Wall Street, usually the first place to feel the tremors of approaching economic innovations. Mr. Roosevelt did, indeed, tell us that there is much room for improvement, for he sees one-third of a nation ill-housed, ill-clad, ill-nourished. But he expressed no opinion that a change from our democratic institutions would be necessary to remedy the situation. The program for the next four years is not yet clearly mapped before us.

THE ROAD TO TURMOIL

No more artless statement has lately been made than the suggestion by Donald Richberg that the Supreme Court, in reaching its judgments, should let itself be guided by public opinion rather than by law and the Constitution. Indeed, this proposal is more than naive; it is positively dangerous. Its adoption would not only keep our people in constant ferment, but would ruin the entire stability of the United States as a going governmental concern.

Aside from the difficulty of determining what public opinion is at a certain time—and everybody knows this is serious enough—there is the further consideration that the public opinon of today is not infrequently the exact contrary of the public opinion of a few months ago. As an example of the speed with which popular sentiment can reverse itself it is only necessary to look back upon a few of our presidential elections. In 1929 the Democratic party was apparently in ruins. There were those who predicted that it never again could be a factor in national affairs. Yet three years later it had complete control of both the executive and legislative branches of government.

Other instances of lightning-like changes come readily to the mind. Many of the laws sponsored by President Roosevelt were at first almost unanimously approved, especially in view of their emergency character. Today the public's attitude toward them is no better than luke-warm, and, as in the case of the NRA, may even be definitely hostile.

Hit and run legislation is bad enough. The same theory applied to judicial decisions would give us an intolerable situation. It would make life and living in the United States about as steady as a weathervane.—Boston Transcript.

Before congress met, some persons must have wondered whether the president proposed to leave the Supreme Court as it is and amend the Constitution, or leave the Constitution as it is and amend the Supreme Court. The annual message suggests that it is his plan to leave the Constitution as it is and retain the Supreme Court as an interesting historic exhibit.—New York Sun.

A Missouri editor says that a farmer is his own boss; that he can work when he pleases, and quit work when he pleases. Guy Dyer says he has known several farmers who tried to go along that trail of thought, but they ain't farmers any more.—Greenleaf (Kan.) Sentinel.

THE FORGOTTEN MAN

Almost every time we read a newspaper we see another report about something a state or the federal government is doing for somebody. We have laws for the farmer, the worker, the needy, the exporter, the importer, the shipper—laws for almost everybody you can think of.

In the last seven years, governments have pitched in and done all sorts of things for special groups of citizens. But who made it possible for the governments to do all those things? Where did the governments get the resources, the credit, and the power to do all those things?

The forgotten man. He is the man who went on about his own business; who managed to scrimp and scrape by on his income and stay off relief; who voted for the laws designed to help not him but his neighbors.

He, too, is the man whose steadiness kept the credit of governments good; for everybody knew that in the end he would supply the money that would pay off the debts. And he is the man who keeps on and on contributing taxes and taxes and taxes, until he is dizzy.

If all these forgotten men had gone busted, had stopped work, had stopped producing the wealth, what would have resulted? Chaos.

Isn't it about time that thought and thanks were given to the people, now apparently forgotten, who stood out in the seven years of storm like sentinels?

We may erect statues to them when they are gone; we may put their names in history books; we may name rivers and flowers and trees after them. But they're human like all of us, and it's about time we gave them a pat on the back.

The November birth rate in New York was the lowest on record. Tammany made even the storks lay off and vote the Democratic ticket.

W. Taylor Boyd, State Commander of the American Legion has issued an appeal to all posts over the state to join hands with the American Red Cross and other relief agencies in ailing the stricken families of the flood area.

He urges the posts to set up headquarters, if they have not already done so, and collect warm clothing, blankets, and non-perishable foods. Before wearing apparel can be used it must be sorted, and Commander Boyd suggests the posts collect these articles, sort them, and then contact their nearest Red Cross headquarters for shipping instructions, or see their local freight agent.

The department officers of the Legion are well pleased with the response the posts have already made in the way of cash donations, and any others wishing to contribute to this worthy cause are urged to send checks to Department Headquarters, Montgomery, Ala.

Birmingham-Southern College is one of six institutions invited to submit an application for a chapter of Phi Beta Kappa. The application is being prepared now, and will be voted on at the National Council of Phi Beta Kappa meeting in September. Membership in this society is the highest scholastic honor that can be conferred on a student during his college years, and this step toward obtaining a chapter at Birmingham-Southern represents the crowning achievement of President Snavely's 16 years activity on the Hilltop.

An interesting speaker in the chapel of Birmingham-Southern College was Dr. Louis Bonyhard, commissioner of the Finnish government. The subject of his address Friday, January 22, was "The Republic of Finland." He stated that the history of the Finnish government is lost in the mists of antiquity, and that the origin of the people is problematical. Now it is a country of over 4,000,000 inhabitants, having been declared a free country in 1917. Dr. Bonyhard brought to Birmingham with him an exhibit of industrial arts and crafts which is to be on display in one of the downtown department stores and which will be formally presented at the Tutwiler Hotel Monday, January 25, at a ceremony with Gov. Bibb Graves officiating.

Chilton County High School News

(By Carlis Wyatt and Cecil Wilson)

Mid-Term Exams

The C. C. H. S. mid-term examinations start, Thursday, February 4, extending through Friday. We are expecting most of the students to make good.

As you know, the school ran a short term last year, but all are co-operating and trying to get the school going straight again. Mr. Hicks, especially, is showing a splendid spirit in helping the students classify themselves and make up their extra work.

Miss Simpson Returns

The entire school is glad to see Miss Simpson, the senior high school English teacher, return fully recovered from an appendix operation performed in Anniston Christmas week. In her absence her classes have been taught by Mrs. Kimmey.

New Books for the School Library

About 200 books have just been received from the Birmingham News Book Exchange for the library. The school, as a whole, appreciates the books very much, and will do its best to benefit by them. The librarian wishes all the students to take care of the books.

Senior II Class Gives Program

The Senior II Class put on a splendid program in chapel Friday. This program was as follows:

School song, class; prayer, Mr. Looser; Bible reading, Ruth Ellison; announcements of program, Willie Connatser; imitation of barnyard animals, Kermit Jones; song, Clark Headley and Buster Popwell; telegrams for Miss Toombs, James Roper; song, Jane Pitts; poem, Willie Connatser; pianist, Mary Armstrong; Major Bowes, Guy Alred.

Jane Pitts was awarded the prize for rendering the best part, by the judges, who were Miss Colley, Mr. Searcy, and Mr. Varnell.

Sports

The high school basket ball team has won four games this season and lost four, but they have lost only one game on their home court. The boys are showing a much better spirit and are improving greatly, although they are new and inexperienced players.

The following games have been played, with the indicated scores:

Montevallo 6, Clanton 20, at Clanton; Maplesville 25, Clanton 18, at Maplesville; Isabella 18, Clanton 31, at Clanton; Clanton lost to Wetumpka, but the score could not be ascertained for this article, this game being at Wetumpka; Isabella 19, Clanton 39, at Clanton; Jemison 33, Clanton 14, at Jemison.

The following games are yet to be played:

Feb. 3 — CCC vs. Clanton, at Clanton; Feb. 5 — Jemison vs. Clanton, at Clanton; Feb. 10 — Montevallo vs. Clanton, at Clanton; Feb. 12 — Maplesville vs. Clanton, at Clanton; Feb. 17 — Wetumpka vs. Clanton, at Wetumpka.

After the 19th, everyone will be looking forward to the tournament, and baseball. Baseball prospects are very good. Very likely we will have new material, and several good games are expected this spring.

The letters for members of the football team have arrived, and there will be a special program to see who will get their letters, and when.

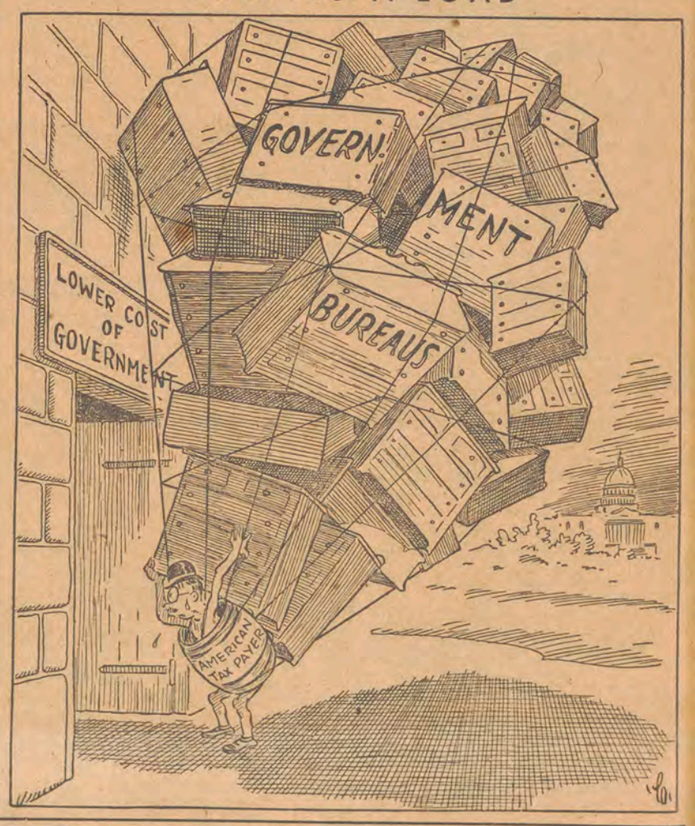
Everyone is invited to our basket ball games.

YOUNG MAN BOUGHT OUT HORSLEY PLACE, JEMISON

A young man from Montgomery, Richard W. Wilkes, has purchased the Horsley place, formerly known as the J. W. G. White place, one mile west of Jemison. Mr. Wilkes is the nephew of Mr. Joel Childress. He, his mother and cousin will live there and farm. The young man says that he has never farmed before, but has always lived in the city. He has high hopes and ambition of becoming a genuine tiller of the soil.

The Union-Banner welcomes Mr. Wilkes, his mother and cousin to Chilton County. We hope they make a grand success of their new venture—that of farming.

SARDIS CLUB MEETS



Sardis home demonstration club met Thursday afternoon, January 21, at the home of Mrs. V. A. Short, with several members present. After the business session an interesting contest game was enjoyed. Miss Grace gave an interesting discussion on balanced diet. A balanced dinner was planned by the members, to be served at the next regular meeting.

Ladies, one and all, come out and let's enjoy this wholesome meal together. You don't know what you are missing if you do not come to these meetings. Plan to be present at our next meeting, which will be held on Thursday afternoon, February 18, at the home of Mrs. G. W. Sansom.—Mrs. V. A. Short, Secretary.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to extend thanks to our many friends for the many deeds of kindness and the words of consolation extended us during the brief illness, death and burial of our dear husband and father. We also wish to oofer and father. We also wish to offer ings. May God's richest blessings abide with all who helped in any way, is our humble prayer.—Mrs. J. P. Williams and children.

MITCHELL DAM WON FROM MIGNON TEAM, 61 TO 41

Capt. Dock Baker led his Mitchell Dam Cardinals to another thrilling victory over the Mignon (Sylacauga) Mills team last Saturday night, 61 to 41, on the Cardinals' court.

With Cecil Jones and Cobb out of the line-up, the Cardinals were not clicking as of old in the first half of the game, particularly in guard work, but the latter half found them in much better form, changing the fray from a neck-and-neck affair to a fairly easy victory, although Mignon had a fast, scrappy team on the floor, and broke through the Cardinal defense for several beautiful shots.

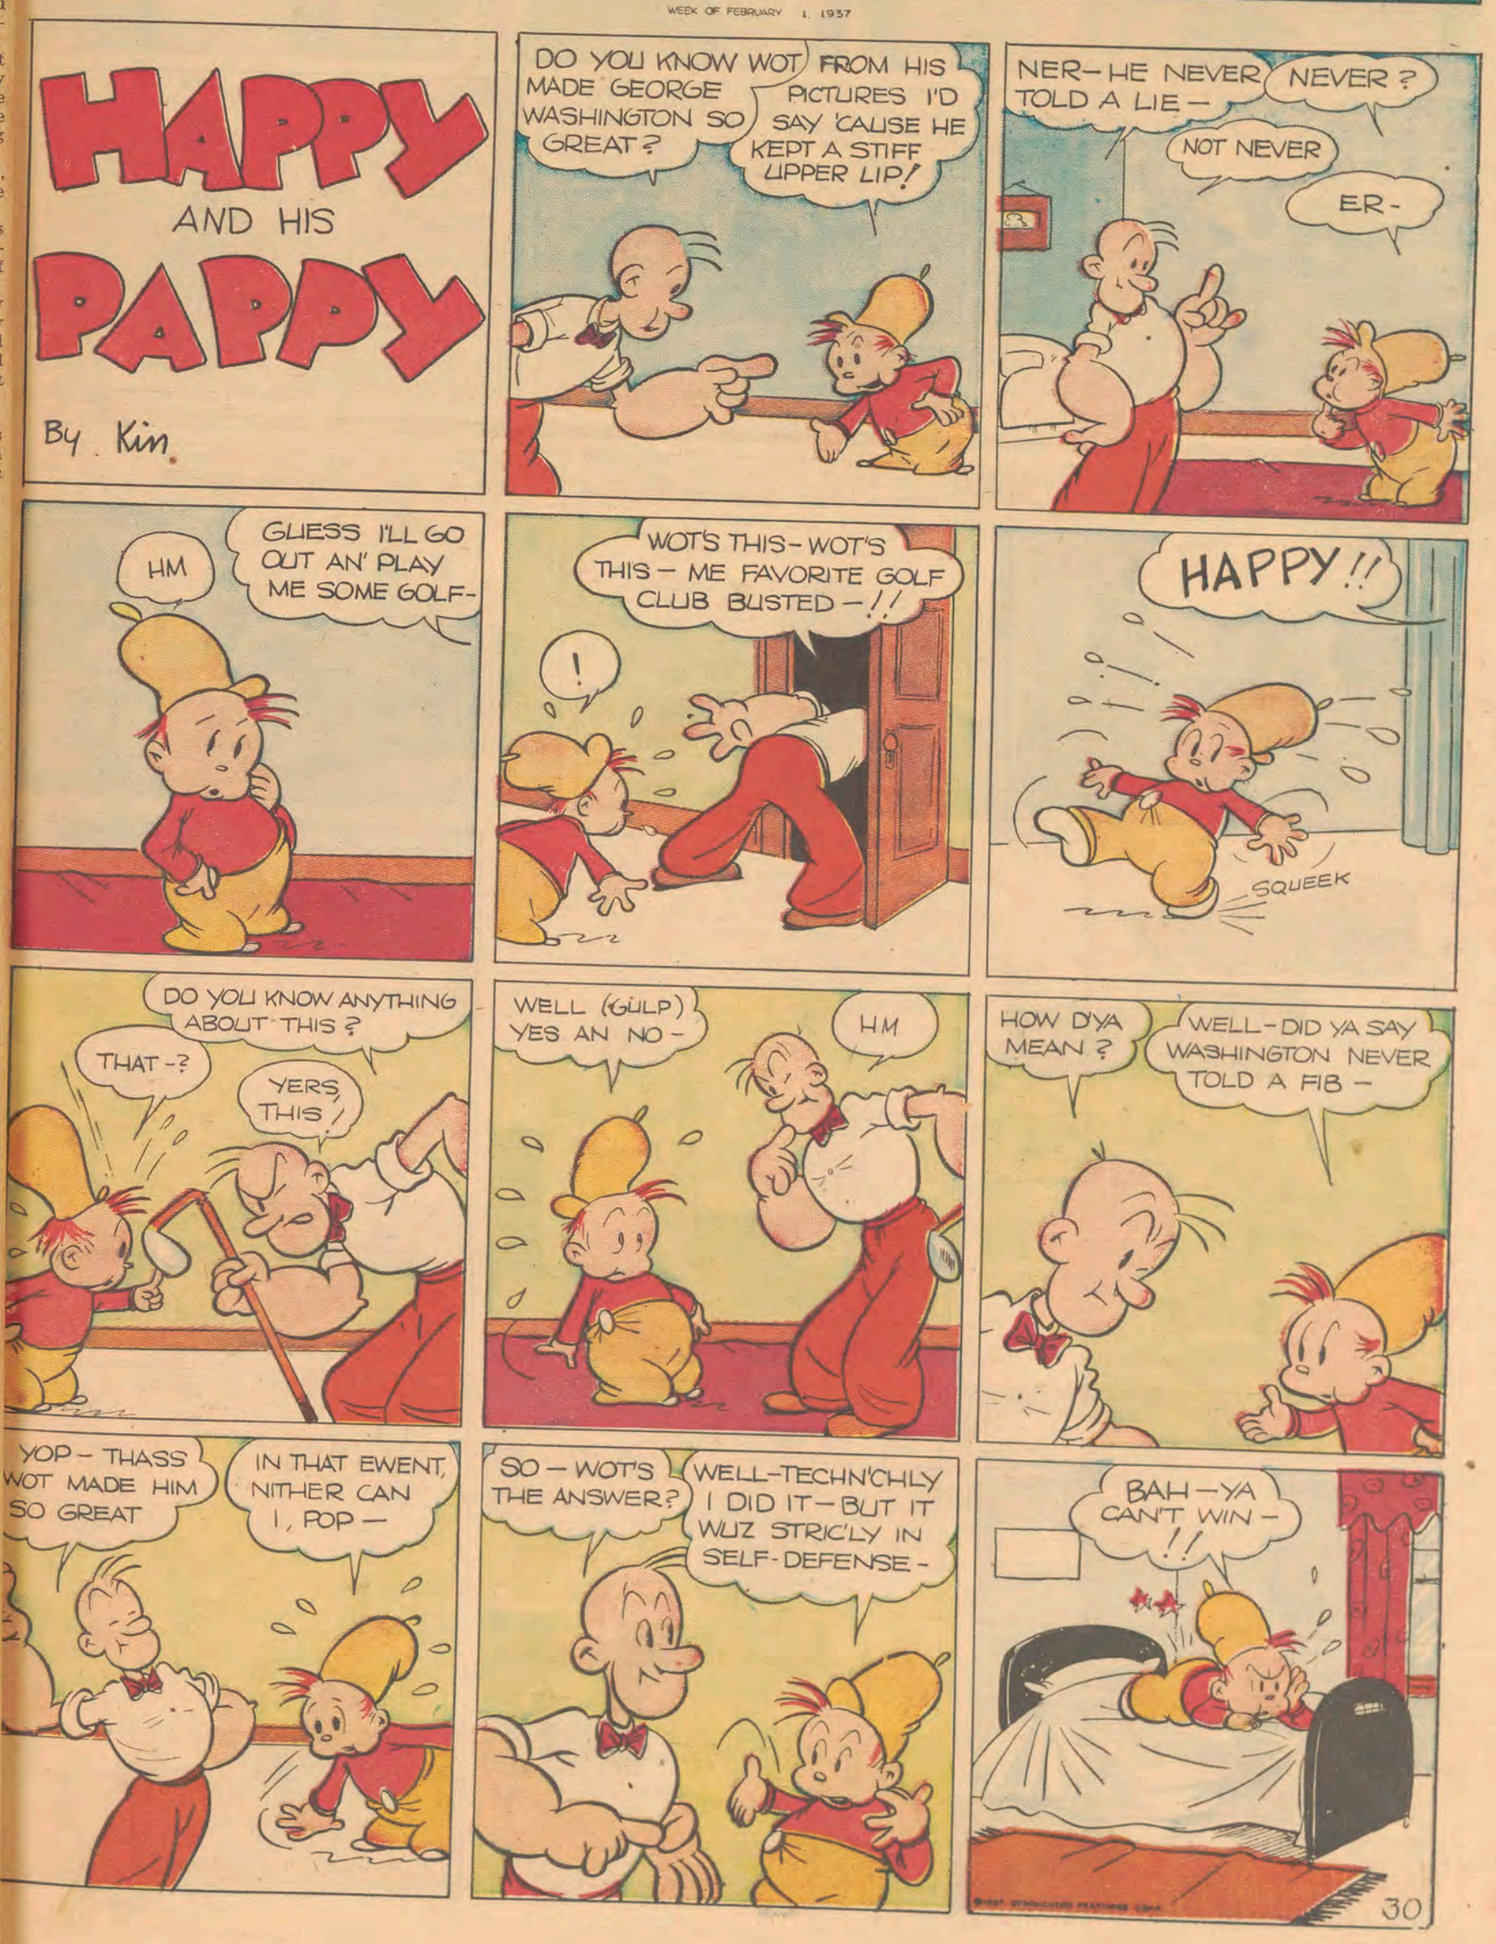
Capt. Baker led his mates with 14 points, paced closely by his brother, Dutch Baker, and Tiffin, with 12 each. Tiny Mayfield played his usual dependable game, although he failed to connect for any of the long shots for which he has become known. Melton fast and flashy midget guard, thrilled the spectators time and again with his sparkling play, as did Chambers with his excellent guard work in the last half.

Baker led the Mignon team and the field with 15 points, most of them with long rifle shots from the floor; he showed an excellent eye for the basket on these long shots. Mignon presented a fast breaking game, with excellent pass work.

The line-ups:

Mignon (41) — Baker (15), and Downs (9), forwards; Parker (4), center; Haynes (4), Stanton (4), and Smith (5), guards.

Mitchell Dam (61) — Dutch Baker (12), and Tiffin (12), forwards; Ross (2), center; Mayfield (5), Dock Baker (14), Melton (10), and Chambers (6), guards.



Play Bevelle Saturday Night

The Mitchell Dam team will take on the Bevelle (Alexander City) team on next Saturday night, February 6, in what is expected to be one of the hardest games of the season for the Cardinals. Advance notice is that the Bevelle outfit is hard to beat by anyone, and the Cardinals are training for this game in dead earnest. Cobb and Jones, as well as the whole Cardinal array, are expected to be ready to go in this contest, and it should be a show worth going a long way to see. This game will get under way at 7:30.

PUBLIC UNDERSTANDING

In the last decade there has been a wholesome revival of interest by the individual in what his governments—local, state and national—do. That interest should be encouraged and stimulated, for the American people are intelligent enough to sift out the unsound and the silly when they know all the facts.

It is, therefore, an obligation of the patriotic and thoughtful to assist in bringing about this public understanding, and to make clear the worth of our form of government, balanced between the executive, legislative and judicial.

Under our plan of government, unlike that of most others, the citizen is still the sovereign. He has established a limited federal government and given to it such powers as he thought it ought to have. All others he has reserved to the states or to himself.

Some of his rights, the citizen has denied to invasion by anyone. These are in the so-called no man's land. That is not an accident, nor a product of the courts. It is a deliberate reservation, created by the people themselves. It could be more correctly described as every man's land, or no ruler's land.

In coming months and years, there doubtless will be many proposals to take these rights away from the citizens. If, after understanding all the facts, he agrees to yield them, his will must be supreme, for the United States is still basically a democracy.

In the meanwhile, though, he should be on guard against movements which would deprive him of those rights through subterfuge. And above all, he should fulfill his obligation not only to know what it is all about himself, but to do what he can to create better public understanding.

If those things happen, confidence in the American system cannot wane.

Window flower boxes have appeared on some trailer homes, thus making it possible to introduce new insect pests simultaneously into 48 states.—Auburn (N. Y.) Citizen-Advertiser.

HOW APPROPRIATE!

Because there was a tremendous reverse in the business condition of the nation during three years of the Hoover administration, resulting in the closing down of many of the sources of employment, ex-President Hoover has been abused as few presidents have been by the Roosevelt New Dealers.

During Hoover's administration his hands were completely tied by a hostile congress under the leadership of the Garners, Pat Harrisons, Joe Robinsons, Hugo Blacks, Norrises, LaFollettes, et als. Hoover was not permitted by these gentlemen, who were then quite jealous of the Constitutional prerogatives of congress, to carry into effect any policies designed for relief of the national economic collapse.

When Mr. Roosevelt was elected and inaugurated president, these same great leaders suddenly became completely subservient to the presidential will, and from the day he first became president, Mr. Roosevelt has been backed and supported by a congress ready to do his will subserviently, without debate or questioning. For four years he has been the supreme dictator, so far as congress is concerned.

As Mr. Roosevelt stood in front of the national capitol on January 20th and delivered his second inaugural address, he gave a partial accounting of his stewardship in his first administration. He said:

"In this nation I see tens of millions of its citizens—a substantial part of the whole population—who at

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

The second inauguration of Franklin D. Roosevelt as president of the United States is now a matter of history. Millions of people heard the address of the chief executive over the radios of the land, and millions more read it in their daily newspapers. The second Roosevelt administration is now on. The cheering and the paeans of political victory are ended. We are now ready for the task of building a better America in the next four years of our national existence. The task is one in which constructive efforts of the administration will have the support of the people, with inevitable critical discussion of those measures which deserve critical analysis.

The principal quality of the president's inaugural address was its generality. It was, of course, pitched on a high plane. There were expressions of thankfulness over the change for the better in the economic condition of the country since March 4, 1933. And things certainly do look better than they did at the time of the bank holiday, three years and ten months ago. The president is entitled to felicitate the country over this fact. It was the comparison of economic conditions now with those at the beginning of Mr. Roos-

THE ROAD TO TURMOIL

No more artless statement has lately been made than the suggestion by Donald Richberg that the Supreme Court, in reaching its judgments, should let itself be guided by public opinion rather than by law and the Constitution. Indeed, this proposal is more than naive; it is positively dangerous. Its adoption would not only keep our people in constant ferment, but would ruin the entire stability of the United States as a going governmental concern.

Aside from the difficulty of determining what public opinion is at a certain time—and everybody knows this is serious enough—there is the further consideration that the public opinon of today is not infrequently the exact contrary of the public opinion of a few months ago. As an example of the speed with which popular sentiment can reverse itself it is only necessary to look back upon a few of our presidential elections. In 1929 the Democratic party was apparently in ruins. There were those who predicted that it never again could be a factor in national affairs. Yet three years later it had complete control of both the executive and legislative branches of government.

Other instances of lightning-like changes come readily to the mind. Many of the laws sponsored by President Roosevelt were at first almost unanimously approved, especially in view of their emergency character. Today the public's attitude toward them

In the last decade there has been a wholesome revival of interest by the individual in what his governments—local, state and national—do. That interest should be encouraged and stimulated, for the American people are intelligent enough to sift out the unsound and the silly when they know all the facts.

It is, therefore, an obligation of the patriotic and thoughtful to assist in bringing about this public understanding, and to make clear the worth of our form of government, balanced between the executive, legislative and judicial.

Under our plan of government, unlike that of most others, the citizen is still the sovereign. He has established a limited federal government and given to it such powers as he thought it ought to have. All others he has reserved to the states or to himself.

Some of his rights, the citizen has denied to invasion by anyone. These are in the so-called no man's land. That is not an accident, nor a product of the courts. It is a deliberate reservation, created by the people themselves. It could be more correctly described as every man's land, or no ruler's land.

In coming months and years, there doubtless will be many proposals to take these rights away from the citizens. If, after understanding all the facts, he agrees to yield them, his will must be supreme, for the United States is still basically a democracy.

In the meanwhile, though, he should be on guard against movements which would deprive him of those rights through subterfuge. And above all, he should fulfill his obligation not only to know what it is all about himself, but to do what he can to create better public understanding.

If those things happen, confidence in the American system cannot wane.

HOW APPROPRIATE!

Because there was a tremendous reverse in the business condition of the nation during three years of the Hoover administration, resulting in the closing down of many of the sources of employment, ex-President Hoover has been abused as few presidents have been by the Roosevelt New Dealers.

During Hoover's administration his hands were completely tied by a hostile congress under the leadership of the Garners, Pat Harrisons, Joe Robinsons, Hugo Blacks, Norrises, LaFollettes, et als. Hoover was not permitted by these gentlemen, who were then quite jealous of the Constitutional prerogatives of congress, to carry into effect any policies designed for relief of the national economic collapse.

When Mr. Roosevelt was elected and inaugurated president, these same great leaders suddenly became completely subservient to the presidential will, and from the day he first became president, Mr. Roosevelt has been backed and supported by a congress ready to do his will subserviently, without debate or questioning. For four years he has been the supreme dictator, so far as congress is concerned.

As Mr. Roosevelt stood in front of the national capitol on January 20th and delivered his second inaugural address, he gave a partial accounting of his stewardship in his first administration. He said:

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

The second inauguration of Franklin D. Roosevelt as president of the United States is now a matter of history. Millions of people heard the address of the chief executive over the radios of the land, and millions more read it in their daily newspapers. The second Roosevelt administration is now on. The cheering and the paeans of political victory are ended. We are now ready for the task of building a better America in the next four years of our national existence. The task is one in which constructive efforts of the administration will have the support of the people, with inevitable critical discussion of those measures which deserve critical analysis.

The principal quality of the president's inaugural address was its generality. It was, of course, pitched on a high plane. There were expressions of thankfulness over the change for the better in the economic condition of the country since March 4, 1933. And things certainly do look better than they did at the time of the bank holiday, three years and ten months ago. The president is entitled to felicitate the country over this fact. It was the comparison of economic conditions now with those at the beginning of Mr. Roos

No more artless statement has lately been made than the suggestion by Donald Richberg that the Supreme Court, in reaching its judgments, should let itself be guided by public opinion rather than by law and the Constitution. Indeed, this proposal is more than naive; it is positively dangerous. Its adoption would not only keep our people in constant ferment, but would ruin the entire stability of the United States as a going governmental concern.

Aside from the difficulty of determining what public opinion is at a certain time—and everybody knows this is serious enough—there is the further consideration that the public opinon of today is not infrequently the exact contrary of the public opinion of a few months ago. As an example of the speed with which popular sentiment can reverse itself it is only necessary to look back upon a few of our presidential elections. In 1929 the Democratic party was apparently in ruins. There were those who predicted that it never again could be a factor in national affairs. Yet three years later it had complete control of both the executive and legislative branches of government.

Other instances of lightning-like changes come readily to the mind. Many of the laws sponsored by President Roosevelt were at first almost unanimously approved, especially in view of their emergency character. Today the public's attitude toward the

INVITE BUSINESS

TO VISIT YOUR STORE

In this day and age the man who waits for business to come to him is in for a disappointment. Business people over the country have found this more true in recent years.

It is up to the man who wants business to go after it — and there is no better medium than to advertise. As time rolls on it is more noticeable that people are seeking bargains in all purchases.

Business firms everywhere have proved that business can and does keep up by consistent and persistent advertising and sales effort. But it must be consistent and values must be kept high.

The man who makes what profit there is to make is th man who does not have to wipe the dust off his good on the shelf, BUT KEEPS THEM MOVING ALL TH TIME. That's where Advertising does it's bit!

COTTON RUST IS POTASH HUNGER

Cotton rust has done widespread damage in recent years, costing the South millions of dollars in lost yields. Many farmers in this section lose many valuable pounds of seed cotton year after year, because they let rust ravage their cotton crop, yet cotton rust is easy to prevent by using plenty of potash. Leading authorities say that cotton rust is simply potash starvation.

Cotton, like all other plants, manufactures its food in the leaves. Potash is needed for this manufacturing process and for the transportation and assimilation of the food. When the cotton plant approaches maturity and begins to develop burs, seed and lint, there is a tremendous demand for quickly available potash.

If the cotton plant does not receive plenty of potash, food manufacturing is hindered or stopped, the food is not properly distributed throughout the plant, and a complete breakdown occurs as a result of a starved condition. Then you see cotton rust.

The leaves turn yellow, break down at the edges, become rusty or black, and finally drop off. The fruiting limbs are weak, the twigs supporting the burs are short and small, and the burs are small and do not open properly. The cotton is hard to pick and the lint is weak and not uniform, with some long and some short fibers. The seeds are small and immature, with a low oil content.

All of these losses are due to potash starvation, commonly known as cotton rust. Nitrogen and phosphoric acid do not prevent rust. The average fertilizer does not contain sufficient potash to prevent rust. There is only one way to prevent rust—simply use enough potash to balance your plant food and help to get greater benefits from other more expensive elements in your fertilizer.

Many farmers have found that it pays to use potash as a top-dressing. They have gotten excellent results from using 100 pounds of muriate of potash, or 200 pounds of kainit per acre. Other farmers use nitrogen-potash mixed goods top-dressers. All of these materials are on sale by leading fertilizer men. Potash top-dressing should be applied when you chop out.

FOREST FIRE REPORT FOR 1936

Montgomery, Feb. 1.—More than 15,000 citizens turned out to suppress forest fires without pay from the state or federal government during the calendar year 1936, according to the verified data compiled by the State Commission of Forestry. The official statistics, based upon intensive observation and research over the entire state, show that a total of 999,799 acres, this being only about 5 per cent of the approximately 20,000,000 acres of forest land outside of the national forests in the state, was burned over by forest fires. This proportion, in view of the high hazard prevailng durng much of the year, is quite low as compared with the preceding annual average of 11.9 per cent.

On account of lack of funds, the Commisson of Forestry is estopped from extending its work over the entire 20,000,000 acres. For purposes of state co-operation with the landowners in forest fire protection, therefore, the woodland acreage of the state has been divided into two classes, organized territory and unorganized territory. The organized territory comprises those sections manned by employees of the commission assigned to particular areas. The intensiveness with which such areas are staffed and provided with improvement and equipment varies according to the relative needs of the different sections. The average annual proportion of net forest land burned over in the organized territory has been about 4.6 per cent. In 1936, however, this proportion was reduced to 2.4 per cent.

IN MEMORY OF J. F. WILLIAMS

On Wednesday afternoon, January 20, at 3:30 o'clock, the death angel visited the home of James Philip Williams of the Concord-Billingsley community, and bore away his spirit to that home not made with hands. He had been ill only a few days, and his condition was not considered serious until just a few hours before death came. All that faithful and loving hands could do was done to keep him with us, but the Lord knew best, and called him home.

Mr. Williams was a member of the Methodist Protestant church for more than 30 years, and at the time of his death was a member of Pleasant Hill M. P. church, on Verbena charge. He was married to Miss Geneva Deramus in 1902. He was a little over 59 years of age, and had lived all but about four years in the community where he died.

He is survived by: his widow; four sons—C. E. and C. J., of Maplesville, C. W. of Wetumpka, and Allen of Billingsley; four daughters—Misses Bessie, Bertha and Mary Evelyn, and Mrs. Jettie Moore, all of Billingsley; two brothers—T. L. of Clanton, and W. W.; three sisters—Misses Alice and Ella Williams, and Mrs. Fannie Henson, all of Billingsley.

Funeral services were conducted by Rev. G. G. Williams, Friday, January 22, at 2 o'clock, at Pilgrims Rest. Burial was in the cemetery there, with Spigener, of Clanton, in charge.

Lesson for February 7

JESUS THE LIGHT OF THE WORLD

LESSON TEXT—John 8:12, 31, 32; 9:1-11.
GOLDEN TEXT—I am the light of the world: he that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life.
PRIMARY TOPIC—When Jesus Passed By.
JUNIOR TOPIC—When Jesus Passed By.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How Jesus Is the Light of the World.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Walking in the Light With Jesus.

"The Light of the World Is Jesus!" Who does not remember with what delight we as children sang "Come to the light, 'tis shining for thee . . . The Light of the world is Jesus." How precious was the truth that thus flooded our souls. Jesus was the light, and just as the sunlight shed its glory on an awakening world at dawn, so he shed abroad the light of God in the hearts of men. The writer of these lessons pens these words with the prayer that as this portion of God's Holy Word is studied and taught, the light may break forth on many a soul caught in the bewilderment of this dark world.\

Our study centers around three simple words fraught with beauty and rich in meaning.

I. Light (John 8:12).

The text says, "Then spake Jesus." When? Just after he had silenced the hypocritical accusers of a woman taken in sin, and had spoken the word of peace to her troubled soul. She was to "go and sin no more" because she had met him who is the "Light of the World." They that follow him "shall not walk in darkness"; they are the children of light, they have the very light of life.

II. Freedom (vv. 31, 32).

Free! Four letters, but what depth of meaning! Chains have fallen off, prison doors are open. The one who was bound is free.

But here we are concerned with an even more important liberty, the freedom of the soul. Many there are who boast of their independence but who are naught but slaves. Jesus said, "Whosoever committeth sin is the servant of sin" (John 8:34), not its master.

How shall they be freed? Note three things in these verses. (1) A condition, "If ye continue in my word." This means not only a profession of faith but a daily appropriation and realization of his truth in life. (2) A promise, "Ye shall know the truth." The philosophies of men profess to be a seeking after truth but how few there are who look to the one place where it can be found—in Jesus Christ. (3) A result, "the truth shall make you free." Truth always sets free. Men are enslaved because, as in some foreign lands, they have not had the opportunity to learn the truth (we have failed to send it) or because they have rejected it.

III. Vision (John 9:1-11).

This is one of the most instructive passages in Scripture. A man born blind is seen by Jesus. His disciples note his intent and begin to theorize on a theological question. They had learned so little of the compassionate spirit of Jesus that they saw in this blighted life only an illustration of a theological theory. May God help us that we may never be so blind.

Jesus goes at once to work. He was in the world to do the works of God. He and the Father always work. Let us follow his blessed example. "The King's business requires haste." Let us work "while it is day, the night cometh when no man can work."

By a loving and gracious act, Jesus stirs in the heart of the man that faith which causes him to go, to wash, and, glory to God, he sees!

Such a personal experience of the divine power of the Son of God leaves no doubt in the man's mind that the one who caused him to see "is a prophet." All of a man's doubts concerning the deity of Jesus Christ disappear when he becomes his Saviour.

Read the remainder of the chapter and note how this man's faith is victorious in the face of trials, persecution, and even of excommunication; for outside the temple he met Jesus and takes him as his Lord. As Dr. Scroggie puts it, "His excommunication was a promotion. He went from the synagogue to the Saviour."

4-H COMMUNITY SERVICE

The 4-H clubs are literally serving their communities in the proverbial thousand and one ways, a check of the last year's activities by the National Committee on Boys and Girls Club Work shows.

Histories of 4-H clubs entered in the National Program on Social Progress last year revealed hundreds of activities which could be grouped under such heads as public presentations, educational promotion, social service, conservation and recreational improvement.

Under these heads 4 H groups cooperated with the Red Cross, chambers of commerce, farm bureaus, American Legion, granges, farmers unions, Kiwanis, Rotary and Lions Clubs, churches, schools and other groups.

The activities of the youth groups were as varied as the material and spiritual needs of society. Members were found to be cheering the sorrowful, serving the sick, ministering to the poor and improvident, assisting the unemployed, providing wholesome pastime occupations, and creating better community relationships.

The widespread disseminatoin of these facts now being carried on through the press, by the radio, and other avenues, is destined to greatly enlarge the opportunities for group service by the nearly 100,000 4-H clubs now in existence.

Club leaders and members again are offered incentives in this phase of the work through which the social progress program which is sponsored by the Radio Corporation of America and provides $7,500 in county, state and national prizes for the best reports. Details of the program are to be announced upon its acceptance by state club leaders.

BLACKBERRY BUSHES WILL CHECK EROSION

Blackberry and elderberry bushes growing around the farm on areas where erosion is not a particular problem can be transplanted at this season to areas where they will be of real value in erosion control, advises the Alabama Extension Service and Soil Conservation Service. Terrace outlets, gullied and galled areas are especially desirable sites for such plantings.

Other shrubs like privet, which with blackberry and elderberry are valuable for wild-life food and cover, can also be transplanted to these areas to advantage. Poplar cuttings, and in moist places willow cuttings, will aid in erosion control if set out at this time.

MITCHELL DAM WON FROM MIGNON TEAM, 61 TO 41

Capt. Dock Baker led his Mitchell Dam Cardinals to another thrilling victory over the Mignon (Sylacauga) Mills team last Saturday night, 61 to 41, on the Cardinals' court.

With Cecil Jones and Cobb out of the line-up, the Cardinals were not clicking as of old in the first half of the game, particularly in guard work, but the latter half found them in much better form, changing the fray from a neck-and-neck affair to a fairly easy victory, although Mignon had a fast, scrappy team on the floor, and broke through the Cardinal defense for several beautiful shots.

Capt. Baker led his mates with 14 points, paced closely by his brother, Dutch Baker, and Tiffin, with 12 each. Tiny Mayfield played his usual dependable game, although he failed to connect for any of the long shots for which he has become known. Melton fast and flashy midget guard, thrilled the spectators time and again with his sparkling play, as did Chambers with his excellent guard work in the last half.

Baker led the Mignon team and the field with 15 points, most of them with long rifle shots from the floor; he showed an excellent eye for the basket on these long shots. Mignon presented a fast breaking game, with excellent pass work.

The line-ups:

Mignon (41) — Baker (15), and Downs (9), forwards; Parker (4), center; Haynes (4), Stanton (4), and Smith (5), guards.

Mitchell Dam (61) — Dutch Baker (12), and Tiffin (12), forwards; Ross (2), center; Mayfield (5), Dock Baker (14), Melton (10), and Chambers (6), guards.

Play Bevelle Saturday Night

The Mitchell Dam team will take on the Bevelle (Alexander City) team on next Saturday night, February 6, in what is expected to be one of the hardest games of the season for the Cardinals. Advance notice is that the Bevelle outfit is hard to beat by anyone, and the Cardinals are training for this game in dead earnest. Cobb and Jones, as well as the whole Cardinal array, are expected to be ready to go in this contest, and it should be a show worth going a long way to see. This game will get under way at 7:30.

Ignorance Drops

A LETTER FROM J. N. SCOTT

Editor Union-Banner:

Here I come with another message for your readers, which I am sure many have long looked for. Yes sir, 52 years ago last Saturday my wife and I were married. Some time ago I gave you an outline of our first year's honeymoon and how we started out in life on Cahaba river in Shelby county. So we came back to Chilton county to spend the second year. Of course, it wasn't much trouble to move, since that was back in the old "coosey filley" days. We did not have any bedstead nor chairs to move, but we brought our bed and dishes and frying pan and coffee pot and old mare along.

We stopped over at my wife's dad's and lived in a house there. As I had no bedstead, I put me up another "coosey filley" and started out for another year. I swapped off my old mare for a yoke of steers, and I broke both of them to plow. I farmed some of my brother-in-law's land and some of old Uncle Buck Smith's land. My wife and I both plowed in the day time, and I would chop cross ties at night until bedtime. This was the only way we had to get something to eat and wear.

We made a good little crop, and in August I bought forty acres of land and traded in my oxen and wagon as part payment. I bought another yoke of oxen and wagon, and then chopped cross ties and bought a bedstead and four chairs. So we kept house almost two years before I was able to buy me a bedstead or any chairs. But I bought me a home first; and I have had a home ever since, which was 52 years last August.

That was before the horse and buggy days. People can criticize the old time ways if they want to, but I want to say that the people were better off them days than now. Some people may question that statement, so I will explain it. People back then had that real old-time Christian religion in the good old-time way. Those who belonged to the church loved the church. They loved God. They loved each other. They did not lie one to another and take advantage of the brethren and neighbors as they do today. They loved and respected each other. They tried to live a life to please God and tried to keep the church cleaned up as God commanded to do.

The preachers preached that people must repent of their sins and obtain salvation before they were fitten to belong to the church, and the church wanted to feel like people had been born gain before they accepted them into the church. In those days, preachers and the brethren tried to keep the devil out of the churches; and those who did belong to the church back them days were worth something to the church. Yes, they would walk four and five miles—some of them on crutches, some on peg legs; some on horse back and some in ox wagons. But they did not care for that because they believed that God had saved them and they wanted to show their appreciation by their willingness to be servants.

Yes, I am glad that I came up in those old days and can remember those old shouting fathers and mothers. They showed they loved God and His church and His kingdom. They proved that they had come out of the world and wanted to be a light to those who were still in sin, and wanted everybody saved. I am praising God for having come up in those days when the church people had more grace and spiritual food than temporal food. It appears to me that now a days things have changed in every way. People appear to have a bountiful supply of food, but spiritually they are starving to death.

We are commanded in God's word to love one another, and to do unto others as you would like them do unto you. But this disposition seems to be changed. Most everybody seems to have it in their hearts to do the other fellow before they have time to do them.

I had better begin to close. I have too much on my mind and heart just now to say any more, but am glad and rejoicing deep down in my soul that I came up in those good old days when people had planty of that good old time religion—the kind that made the people shout and get happy. I believe that if we had it now in the old time way it would be demonstrated among the people again. If it ever gets into people, it will not stay hid all the time.

I think it better to be a child of God and sleep in a "coosey filly" than to have the best bed ever built and be a child of the devil. People in sin cannot rest day nor night—I mean genuine restful rest.

So I will close for this time. I do not know just what you readers will think of these Ignorance Drops, but I guarantee them not to harm anyone. Just read your Bibles and take a dose regularly. Yours as ever.—J. N. Scott.

CALF CLUB BULL BEING KEPT BY MR. ED MINOR

The Chilton County 4-H Calf Club has recently bought a bull to be used by the members free. He is also available to everyone else at a very small fee.

This bull is a young purebred registered bull formerly owned by Mr. R. M. Foshee.

His pedigree had been compared with some bulls in Tupelo Mississippi by Mr. F. W. Burns, livestock specialist, Auburn. He states that this bull compares very favorably with the Mississippi bulls.

Everyone having pure bred Jerseys or grade cows should breed to a good pure bred bull so as to improve on the offspring.

Mr. Ed Minor, Clanton, Ala., Rt. 5, who lives three miles east from Clanton is keeping the Club bull.—J. W. Fant, County Agent.

She: "Do you think there is such a thing as a really good hair tonic?"

Barber: "Yeah. I know one or two that are all right if you add a little lemon juice."

"Sardines" is the name of the one-act play, a farce, with a cast of all girls. There will be specialty song and dance numbers also. You are assured of an evening of entertainment if you attend.

Smith, Verbena, Ala., Route 1.

He told of some of the experiments that were being carried out at Auburn. Mr. Ivey gave the members their project record books and explained how to keep them. There being no more business the meeting adjournd.

THORSBY 4-H CLUB

The Thorsby 4-H Club met at the Thorsby Junior High School Thursday morning, January 2. We want to make the best better in Thorsby.

Aged Citizen Died Here Monday P.M.

Uncle Tom Teel Passed Away Following Lingering Illness

Tom J. Teel, one of Chilton County's oldest citizens, died at his home in Clanton Monday afternoon, following a lingering illness. He was 90 years old; was born in Coosa County, removing to Chilton County 50 years ago. He lived in Walnut Creek community for a number of years, coming to Clanton some 10 or 15 years ago.

Funeral services were held at the residence in Gowan Addition Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Elders Tucker and Davis officiating; Spigener directing.

Surviving are: his third wife; one daughter, Mrs. Rudolph Moatts; six sons: Will, of Birmingham, Robert, Walter and Jesse of Clanton, Lonnie of Sylacauga, and Henry of Alexander City.

Uncle Tom Teel enjoyed the friendship of a large circle of people in Chilton County. Being of a genial and jovial disposition, he made friends everywhere he went. During his entire lifetime he created the enmity of a mighty few people, but made friends in his every walk of life.

BEVELLE DEFEATED MITCHELL DAM 62-47

The crack Bevelle basket ball team from Alexander City defeated the Cardinals of Mitchell Dam on the Cardinal court last Saturday night, 62 to 47. Led by a quartet of eagle-eyed sharpshooters in Carter, Evans, Avery and Payne, the Bevelle team pulled away from the Cardinals from the start for a commanding lead.

Early in the second half the Cardinals pulled up to within three points of their visitors, but could not hold the pace. The Bevelle passers broke through the tight Cardinal defense time after time to place the ball in easy scoring range.

Capt. Tiny Mayfield led his Cardinals with a number of beautiful long shots, to build up his lead of 14 points. Carter led the visitors with 16, followed closely by Evans and Avery with 13 and 12 respectively.

The line-ups:

Bevelle 62—Long 4, Avery 12, Evans 13, Carter 16, Payne 8; subs: Boos 2, Slagle 5, Hurst 0, Holley 2.

Mitchell Dam 47—Dutch Baker 7, Cobb 8, Ross 6, Dock Baker 9, Mayfield 14; subs: Melton 3, Chambers 0.

CHILTON HIGH VS. MAPLESVILLE

CHILD KILLED BY AUTOMOBILE

Little Marie Ford, 4-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Ford, of Thomas School, was struck by a passing automobile last Friday afternoon, and died about an hour later. Funeral services were held at the home, Rev. J. M. Truett officiating, Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock. Burial was in Popwell cemetery, Spigener in charge.

Surviving are the parents, three brothers and one sister. The Fords formerly lived at Clanton cotton mill.

Reports are that a truck was towing a car. Some larger children ran across ahead of the truck; the little child tried to run between the car and truck, evidently not noticing the tow rope.

ALABAMA GAS TAX COLLECTIONS GAIN

Montgomery, Feb. 3. — Alabama gasoline tax collections for December, 1936, were $1,066,401, an increase of 21.2 per cent over December, 1935, according to Henry S. Long, chairman of the State Tax Commission.

Collections were 34.1 per cent greater than the same month in 1934.

Each county in the state will receive approximately $7,950 on February 10, when collections are divided equally among counties.

Mr. Long expressed the opinion that the increase in collections was not due alone to better business conditions but also to a decline of bootleging of gasoline across the Mississippi-Alabama state line.

ERVIN R. WILSON AND SON BUY OUT WILLIE CROWSON

A business deal was consummated this week in which Mr. Ervin R. Wilson and son, Earl Wilson, became owners of the milling and feed grinding plant of Mr. Willie Crowson in East Clanton. Not only the mill was involved in the deal, but also the store building beside it as well as the dwelling house of Mr. Crowson just north of the store, and a wide slipe of land extending down to the creek.

The Messrs. Wilson, we understand, will take charge of the business in the near future. It will revert back to its original name, that of Central Alabama Milling Company.

THIRTEEN ARRESTS MADE BY SHERIFF'S FORCE PAST WEEK

Since last Wednesday, February 3rd, there have been 13 arrests made by Sheriff Hardy and his force of deputies. Four of these were for violating the prohibition law, two of whom were let out on bond, and the other two are in jail. One for reckless driving was let loose on making bond. One man was arrested under charge of assault and battery and remains in jail.

There were three arrests for public drunkenness, all of whom are out on bond. A double charge of public drunkenness and violating the prohibition law was placed against one man; he was released on bond. Another case of assault and battery is out on bond, and one for reckless driving is in jail. One for driving a motor vehicle while intoxicated was released on making bond.

In addition to the above 13 cases, a county special deputy attempted to arrest a man in Clanton at the back of Mims Cafe late Monday afternoon. The man resisted arrest and the officer shot him in the leg. The man was taken to Central Alabama Hospital; he will be taken into custody by county officers when released from the hospital. He is under a double charge of forgery.

The jail register shows that there are a total of 11 men incarcerated therein. Five are whites and six are negroes.

THE PRESIDENT AND THE SUPREME COURT

In his message to Congress last week President Franklin D. Roosevelt made clear his position on a most important question. The American people have been wondering ever since the election just how hard Mr. Roosevelt would dig in on the Supreme Court; everyone felt that he had a crow to pick with the high judiciary, but just to what extent there was a great variance of opinion. That has all been clarified now.

The President proposes a measure for Congress to pass upon which will retire six of the present Justices of the Supreme Court who are over 70 years old, these six vacancies to be filled by presidential appointment. If these six "aged and infirm" Judges, as the President scornfully refers to them, refuse to retire, then the President proposes to enlarge the Court by appointing six new members in addition to the nine already serving.

This part of the message by the Chief Executive has met with approval, but not all approval by any means. There are ardent New Dealers even who feel that the proposal is a bombshell which will burst in the President's hands. Others are less temperate with their criticism and say that such action by Mr. Roosevelt is downright astonishing—almost dumfounding. The most lenient critics say that before such action should be taken there should be long and careful consideration by Congress and the people. Such a material change in the Supreme Court should be a matter of years, if ever done at all.

The greatest danger that The Union-Banner sees in such a proposal lies in the ultimate effect it would have on the organic law of the land—the Constitution of the United States. Mr. Roosevelt does not propose a change in the Constitution, which would be much more advisable, but the approach he makes of the matter completely circumvents not just one part of the Constitution of the United States, but all of it.

The whole attitude of Mr. Roosevelt can be summed up in but one phrase, and that is "madness for power." If this law were passed, which we do not believe Congress will do, Mr. Roosevelt will have the power of appointing more Justices of the Supreme Court than any other President since the first one—George Washington. Now, is that not power for you? Maybe, however, he figures he deserves that much power, since he has spent more money than nearly all the Presidents since Washington put together; for money and power usually go together.

Numbers of the New Deal controlled newspapers express themselves as surprised and even dumfounded at this brazen action of their idol in the White House. They nor no one else need be surprised. Anyone who observed Mr. Roosevelt's reactions to the decisions of the Supreme Court in his first administration could conclude but one thing he would do if and when re-elected—that he would cripple the Supreme Court if he could. We presume that where the surprise comes is in that he has set out to do it so quickly after his second term began, and so abruptly. That is some ground for surprise; but we all knew in reason that he would do it sooner or later.

But we all have hopes that Congress will take plenty of time to consider the matter when it comes in bill form; and we firmly believe that the passage of such a measure will be rejected.

Ten medals for outstanding players defeated in first round games.

One medal for manager of championship team's manager.

One medal for best sportsman. From the more than a score teams which were invited, 11 entered the competition, and should furnish some good basketball for the day. These 11 teams include some of the outstanding teams in central Alabama.

Referees for the day's play are Bert Curlee, Bill Simpson and Claud Tucker. Official scorers, timekeepers, judges, etc., will be named later in the week. The management is doing everything possible to see that strictly fair and impartial treatment is accorded each team entered. Eleven games will be required to finish the tournament.

As stated in last week's paper, the tournament officials as well as local officials of the power company, extend an invitation to all basket ball fans to attend these games and enjoy the exhibitions of keen competition and good sportsmanship which are certain to be seen.

Don't forget the date and hour—Saturday, February 13, at 9:00 a.m., at the Mitchell Dam gym. If you like good basket ball and clean sport—be there!

Last Minute Change

We were informed by Mr. A. B. Stanley, general manager of tournament arrangements, on Wednesday morning of three last minute changes. Two other teams have been included in the list, Sycamore and Buck Creek, making 13 teams in all. As Calera and Maxwell Field drew byes in the drawings, Calera has been matched against Sycamore, and Maxwell Field against Buck Creek in first round games. This may cause some changes in the later schedule, but these could not, of course, be determined. Special notice is also given that the games have been stepped up one hour, with play starting at 8:00 o'clock instead of 9:00. Please take note of this very important change, so that there will be no mix-up in time of schedule.

Feature Picture At New Theatre 14-15

Irene Dunne Will Star In Big Comedy "Theodora Goes Wild"

"Theodora Goes Wild," starring Irene Dunne in her first major role as a comedienne, will be the attraction at the Wadesonian Theatre for a 2-day engagement starting Sunday.

For the first time in a career studded with such dramatic gems as Cimarron, Back Street, Magnificent Obsession, and Showboat, Miss Dunne turns to the gay, light side of life, with gratifying results.

Playing opposite the titian-haired star in the role of a happy-go-lucky illustrator is Melvyn Douglas, one of Hollywood's most popular actors. Others in the large cast are Thomas Mitchell, Thurston Hall, Rosalind Keith, Spring Byington, and Margaret McWade, one of the pixilated sisters in Mr. Deeds Goes to Town.

In Theodora Goes Wild Miss Dunne is seen as a small town nobody who becomes famous as the author of sophisticated novels. When she falls in love with Douglas, whose estranged wife refuses to give him a divorce, she takes a page from her own novel and launches a campaign of wild escapades to gain her objective.

Richard Boleslawski directed Theodora Goes Wild from a screen play by Sidney Buchman. Mary McCarthy is the author of the original story.

WHAT FERTILIZER TO APPLY TO COTTON

The best fertilizer for cotton is the one which leaves the largest profit after the cost of fertilizer has been deducted. It is not sufficient that a fertilizer simply increase crop yields.

The Alabama Experiment Station in tests conducted over a 6-year period at five experimental fields and three sub-stations found that the best cotton fertilizer for average Alabama soils is one that supplies at least 36 pounds of nitrogen, 48 pounds of phosphoric acid, and 24 pounds of potash per acre. To supply these amounts of plant food, it would require 225 pounds of nitrate of soda or its equivalent, 300 pounds of superphosphate, and 48 pounds of muriate of potash, or a 6-8-4 fertilizer applied at the rate of 600 pounds per acre.

Many farmers will not use 600 pounds of fertilizer per acre. When less than 600 pounds per acre is used per acre the ratio of nitrogen, phosphate, and potash should be in the same proportions of 6-8-4.

The popularity of 6-8-4 is shown by the fact that farmers of Alabama used 91,193 tons of ready mixed 6-8-4 in 1936 and home mixed several thousand tons in the proportion of 6-8-4. It has been almost universally satisfactory. In one county, for example, 152 farmers out of 156 were more than satisfied with 6-8-4 and expect to use it on all their cotton in 1937.

Using 6-8-4 in place of grades such as 3-8-5 added more than $3,000,000 to the income of Alabama farmers in 1936. This 6-8-4 increased the farm income of Chilton County by more than $37,000 in 1936.

Remember that a ton of 6-8-4 beat a ton of 3-8-5 by approximately $28.00 per ton after cost of fertilizer was deducted, and a 3-10-3 by more than $25.00 per ton. After deducting cost of fertilizers a 6-8-4 was more profitable than the other grades, even as a gift. Insist on 6-8-4 for your cotton in 1937. It pays best.—J. W. Fant, County Agent.

LESPEDEZA SHOULD BE PLANTED THIS MONTH

Auburn, Ala.—Lespedeza is valuable for soil improvement, hay production, pasture, and quail feed, and should be sowed in February or early March, advises Dean M. J. Funchess, director of the Alabama Experiment Station. It should be fertilized with about 600 pounds of basic slag or its equivalent.

Common lespedeza is the best variety for pasture, soil improvement, and bird feed, while Kobe, Tennessee 76, and common are extensively used for hay. If seed cannot be obtained of these varieties, farmers should plant Karean, even though it is not as desirable in Alabama as the other varieties, says J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist. Sericea is a promising perennial variety.

Many farmers are reporting outstanding success with lespedeza.

TWO 4-H CLUB ESSAY CONTESTS ANNOUNCED

Auburn, Ala.—Prizes are being offered 4-H club boys in two essay contests being sponsored by the Alabomo Farm Bureau Federation, Montgomery, and the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Co., Birmingham.

The farm bureau contest is on the value of winter cover crops, while the T. C. I. contest is on the importance of keeping farm accounts. Details may be obtained from county agents or from T. A. Sims, state 4-H club leader, Auburn.

Brief Farm Notes

Demands for lespedeza and sorgo seed, cowpeas and soybeans, are increasing.

Nearly $300,000 have been expended in the surplus egg purchase program being conducted by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. A large part of the eggs bought will be distributed in the flood stricken areas.

More than 1,600,000 enrollees are engaged in soil and water conservation activities being carried on by the Soil Conservation Service and Alabama Extension Service on 202,381 acres in camp areas in the state.

The demand for baby chicks continues weak and the Bureau of Agricultural Economics predicts that the demand will not get much better until egg and poultry prices get more in line with feed costs.

A ruling requiring government inspection of grain transported by motor trucks, the same as by rail or boat, in interstate commerce is announced by the United States Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

Slaughter supplies of sheep and lambs probably will decrease seasonally during the next three months, predicts the Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

Over 5000 farmers in the Tennessee Valley area of Alabama terraced 89,286 acres of land and drained 8,155 acres in 1936. The volue of the land was increased by approximately $475,000.

ENTERPRISE CLUB MEETS

The Enterprise Home Demonstration Club met Wednesday afternoon, February 3, at the home of Mrs. C. M. Yeargan. Several members were present, also Miss Grace. We enjoyed the interesting talk by Miss Grace, which was on foods. She gave us several new recipes. All entered a little contest, and cook books were given as prizes to the winners.

Afterward, we all went to the kitchen and prepared a balanced breakfast, as that was our demonstration subject. A very nice table was set in the dining room. Everyone enjoyed the breakfast that afternoon.

We wish more of the women of the community would join our club. We feel that you would enjoy it, and learn something useful.

MINOOKA CLUB MEETS

Minooka Home Demonstration Club met at the home of Mrs. C. B. Martin Thursday, January 28, with 10 members, 1 new member, and 1 visitor present.

After roll call, old business was taken up and passed, in the absence of the leader.

In the absence of the program committee, Miss Grace read some good and appropriate selections from Reader's Digest, which were much enjoyed.

As the weather has been so bad and nothing could be done in our gardens, we were advised to get catalogs and select our seeds, and be ready to plant when dry enough.

New business — to prepare for a baby show later in the spring. Refreshments were served by the hostess. —Myrtle Virgin, reporter.

STARCH BEING PRODUCED FROM THE SWEET POTATO

Auburn, Ala.—Sweet potato starch production looks promising as another southern farm industry, particularly in sections where large yields of sweetpotatoes can be produced at low cost.

This observation is made by the United States Department of Agriculture after two years of chemical research on a commercial plant scale and one year of commercial production at the trial plant at Laurel, Miss.

During 1934, the first year the plant was in operation, it produced 140,000 pounds of sweet potato starch; the second year, 250,000 pounds, and last year, 420,000 pounds. Approximately 42,000 bushels of sweetpotatoes were processed last year with an average of 10 pounds of starch per bushel. But under better methods developed near the end of the season it is believed that a bushel of potatoes will produce between 11 and 12 pounds of starch and about 4 pounds of potato pulp, about equal to sugar beet pulp as livestock feed.

This new starch has been tried on a commerical basis in cotton mills, adhesive factories, laundries, and so on and found to be satisfactory. Large quantities of starch are used for sizing yarns. Big cotton mills use it by tons.

The plant paid 20 cents a bushel for field-run potatoes in 1936, and on that basis farmers who obtained yields of around 300 bushels per acre found it as profitable to grow sweetpotatoes as cotton. Such a yield is much above the average, but obtainable with good farming, says the Department.

The goal is to develop a sweet potato starch industry that will get its share of the imported root starch business and help the farmers of the South just as the corn starch industry helps the farmers of the Middle West.

BETTER COTTON CONTEST OFFERED ALABAMA BOYS

Auburn, Ala.—To promote the economical production of better staple cotton in Alabama, the Alabama Cotton Manufacturers' Association is sponsoring a Better Staple Contest for Alabama farm boys 10 to 20 years of age, anounces J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist.

Fifty prizes, totaling $1300 and ranging from $12.50 to $50 each, will be awarded the winners. Contestants must enroll with county agents not later than March 15, 1937.

Full information about the contest may be obtained from county agents, vocational teachers, or by writing T. A. Sims, state boys 4-H club leader.

STATE GROWERS ORGANIZING ONE-VARIETY COMMUNTIES

Auburn, Ala.—Alabama farmers are working through one-variety communities and local farm bureaus in improving the grade and staple of their cotton.

About 75 one-variety communities have been organized in 24 counties and 103 community farm bureaus in 19 counties have adopted cotton improvment as their major project in 1937, announces J. C. Lowery, agronomist of the Alabama Extension Service.

Special gin days were held in 36 counties during 1936, resulting in 464,407 bushels of good cotton seed being saved for planting this year, he states.

Not only are Alabama farmers making efforts to improve their cotton but farmers in other states are doing likewise. More than 300 one-variety organizations are operating in 160 counties in all of the cotton states. Last year more than half a million boles were grown in these 300 communities.

Cotton buyers and manufacturers are well pleased with the superior cotton being produced in these communities and are paying premiums for the one-variety cotton.

MARS HILL

We have Sunday school every Sunday at 9:30 a.m. Visitors are always welcome to our church. Our Sunday school was small Sunday on account of sickness, and neglect. Remember, folks, God gave us six days to work, and He gave us the seventh day, Sunday, to rest and worship Him. Seems that every family in this community could give one hour of their time in Sunday school, for the advancement of God's kingdom. So next Sunday at 9:30 let's each and every one remember the Sabbath day, to keep it holy; come out to Sunday school.

Every third Sunday afternoon is our singing date. Other communities are cordially invited to attend.

Miss Gladys Lawley is moving from our community. She will be missed by her neighbors and friends.

On Saturday night, February 6, the children and grandchildren met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Smith and enjoyed a bountiful supper in celebration of the birthday of their parents. After supper all enjoyed singing. Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Hall Leach and children, Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Scott and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Arnie Smith and baby, Mr. and Mrs. Luther Cofer, Miss Letha Smith, and Mr. Lonnie Smith.

Miss Vassie Ray was the Sunday guest of Miss Velma Scott.

The singing at the home of Mrs. Dove Leach Sunday night was enjoyed by all present.

VERBENA 4-H CLUB

The Verbena 4-H Club met at the high school on Monday, February 8, at 10:30 a.m. There were 31 present and 3 absent. We are sorry to report that 3 of our members have withdrawn from the Club.

We had a very interesting program on the subject: Diseases and Parasites of Poultry. Every member received a pamphlet on the subject of his project.

There are at least 15 industrious boys who have entered different contests to win trips, prizes and high honors. We hope they are successful.—G. B. Sharp, reporter.

ENTERPRISE 4-H CLUB

Our 4-H Club met on Friday, February 5. The meeting was called to order by the president. The songs were led by Miss Grace. After songs, we had a contest on abbreviations of the names of states to complete sentences. The leaders, with Miss Grace in charge, taught us how to serve fruits correctly. We were dismissed by repeating our 4-H Club pledge.—Reporter.

The faculty of the Union Grove school, together with Supt. and Mrs. Luther Little, and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Grant were graciously entertained by the trustees and their wives: Mr. and Mrs. Bunker Vinzant, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Marler, and Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Shaw, at a 6 o'clock dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Shaw on Friday night, February 5.

IN MEMORY OF MRS. CHARLIE JONES

On January 21, God called home our mother, Mrs. Charlie Jones. She lived to be 61 years of age. She was ill only a few hours; at the time of her death she was living with her son, Gus, near Clanton. She is survived by her husband and 14 children.

She gave her heart to God some 25 years ago, and devoted her life to His service. She was kind and true to all, and to know her was to love her. We understand that God has prepared a better place for her above. "The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away; blessed be the name of the Lord."

We miss her, oh so much, but she is transplanted to a more glorious home to await the coming of those she loved and who loved her. But let's not think of her as dead, but just waiting over yonder in that fair and happy land, with loving hands to welcome us there.

Funeral services were held at New Harmony church, Rev. Jim Dubose officiating. Burial in the cemetery at that place, with Spigener directing.—Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Jones, R 3, Clanton.

PLETCHER-PILGRIMS REST

Freddie Crane and Griffin Chandler are on our sick list this week.

Our Sunday school is improving; it was well attended last Sunday. We received several new pupils, and hope to get others to join.

The bad weather of late has hindered our B. Y. P. U.

H. C. Gray, Intermediate B. Y. P. U. leader, entertained his class with a social on Friday night, January 29.

The singing Sunday afternoon was enjoyed by a large crowd. Singers were present from Stanton, Alpine, Fairview, Big Springs and Billingsley. We were glad to have them to help make the singing a success, and hope they will continue to come every first Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Kendrick visited Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Deavers Sunday.

Mrs. Jimmie Chandler of Demopolis is spending a few days with her son, Mr. C. J. Chandler.

Mr. Floyd Lewis of Birmingham spent the week end at home.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Turner spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Joe Langston.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Quinn are visiting relatives here.

Don't forget that next Saturday and Sunday morning at 11 o'clock are our regular preaching dates. If nothing happens, Bro. Hughes will be at Pilgrims Rest, hoping to see a large gathering waiting to hear what he has to say, so come and bring someone with you.

SINGING AT PROVIDENCE, BEAT 13

The second Sunday, February 14, is our regular singing afternoon. If the weather permits, we are planning for a real song service. Come, all music lovers, with your late books, and let's make this a real singing.

COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

I have tried to be fair and honest in my dealings with my fellow man. I am not boasting about it, but I believe as a whole—all things considered, I have a moral record that is fully as good as that of the average man. Of course, I have done wrong. I have sinned as all other men have sinned. But I have tried to be faithful to my responsibilities and to my duties. I am saying this not to boast, but to lay a predicate for the statement I now make. I never have felt that I could

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by J. W. Fant, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County.

LESPEDEZA SHOULD BE PLANTED THIS MONTH

Auburn, Ala.—Lespedeza is valuable for soil improvement, hay production, pasture, and quail feed, and should be sowed in February or early March, advises Dean M. J. Funchess, director of the Alabama Experiment Station. It should be fertilized with about 600 pounds of basic slag or its equivalent.

Common lespedeza is the best variety for pasture, soil improvement, and bird feed, while Kobe, Tennessee 76, and common are extensively used for hay. If seed cannot be obtained of these varieties, farmers should plant Korean, even though it is not as desirable in Alabama as the other varieties, says J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist. Sericea is a promising perennial variety.

Many farmers are reporting outstanding success with lespedeza.

Not only are Alabama farmers making efforts to improve their cotton but farmers in other states are doing likewise. More than 300 one-variety organizations are operating in 160 counties in all of the cotton states. Last year more than half a million boles were grown in these 300 communities.

Cotton buyers and manufacturers are well pleased with the superior cotton being produced in these communities and are paying premiums for the one-variety cotton.

COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

I have tried to be fair and honest in my dealings with my fellow man. I am not boasting about it, but I believe as a whole—all things considered, I have a moral record that is fully as good as that of the average man. Of course, I have done wrong. I have sinned as all other men have sinned. But I have tried to be faithful to my responsibilities and to my duties. I am saying this not to boast, but to lay a predicate for the statement I now make. I never have felt that I could stand in the presence of an infinitely holy God on my record. If Jesus Christ did not die on the cross for me, I am in a bad fix. If I had to stand today in the presence of God and He asked me what I had to say for myself, I would answer, "Just a sinner saved by grace trusting the vicarious, substitutional, blood atonement made by Jesus Christ on Calvary's cross." The most blessed thought that ever came to me is this: Jesus Christ died for me. Take the blood of Christ out of the Bible and you will take hope out of the hearts of honest men who know they have sin in their past lives.

Jesus Christ, according to the Bible, is the Christian's advocate. He is the attorney whom we as Christians have retained to represent us at the court of the sky. It so happens that He is the only lawyer who has any influence at the heavenly bar. His plea is irrisistible because it is just. He never denies His client's guilt. He says, "Guilty and yet not guilty. Yes, he sinned. He broke the law, but justice has been satisfied. I went to the cross and bore his sin in my body on a tree, paid the debt and I hold in my hand the pardon purchased with my blood." God, the infinitely just Judge, who does not will the death of any man but would rather all would turn to Him and live, gladly accepts what Jesus Christ did for the sinner and God sets the sinner free. Jesus Christ paid the debt in payment. The old account was settled long ago.

State Capitol News

Montgomery, Feb. 8.—A serene and tranquil outlook appeared on the legislative front this week as the lawmakers returned to Goat Hill after a week end recess, prepared to speed the Chichester two per cent general sales tax measure through the Senate, and clear the calendars of both houses of a multitude of minor bills. Indications point to sine die adjournment before the end of February.

Enactment of the homestead exemption bill was a signal victory for Gov. Bibb Graves, putting into effect one of his major 1934 campaign pledges.

With the state-store liquor bill maneuvered successfully through the legislature and awaiting approval or rejection by the 67 counties of the state in county option referendums to be held March 10, school leaders were elated over the prospect of adequate funds to pay all appropriations in full and guarantee the state's 600,000 children a school term of not less than seven months.

Tax experts were unwilling at this time to give out an official estimate of the probable revenue to be derived from the sale of intoxicants and the 2 per cent sales tax, but administrationists in the legislature believe the measures should earn not less than $7,000,000.

SALES TAX NEWS

Montgomery, Feb. 8.—Declaring the fight against the Ellis 1½ per cent gross receipts tax law would be continued in the courts despite an adverse ruling by Judge Walter B. Jones in Montgomery circuit court, Jeff Beeland, president, and B. C. Apperson, secretary of the Consumers Anti-Sales Tax Association, today were completing plans for a finish battle in the legislature against the pending Chichester 2 per cent general sales tax bill.

A hearing was scheduled on this measure Tuesday before the Senate finance and taxation committee, and Beeland urged consumers, workers, merchants and others interested in economy in government to appear before this committee and protest its approval. The house passed the measure last Thursday.

Beeland said his group were far from being defeated on the bill, and, in the event it is enacted and signed by the governor, it would be attacked in the courts, carrying the case to the last tribunal of jurisdiction in the land.

An appeal from Judge Jones' decision in the gross receipts tax case was being prepared for filing this week. Beeland said efforts would be made to secure a ruling by the Alabama supreme court by February 20, the date taxes under this measure are returnable.

INDUSTRIES SEEK TO FIND LOCATIONS IN ALABAMA

LaFayette, Ala., Feb. 10. — From opinions expressed through letters to committee members since the meeting of the Industrial Committee of the Alabama Press Association January 29th at the Whitley Hotel in Montgomery there is evidence that leaders in education, industry, agriculture and civic bodies have accepted the invitation of the Association to form an Alabama Development Council or some similar body to work in co-operation with the Industrial Committee and members of the Alabama Press Association in carrying out their plans to promote the interests and welfare of Alabama generally through the acquisition of new industries and the promotion and protection of those already existent, declared C. L. Walton, chairman of the Committee.

Mr. Walton stated that matters of vital interest to our program are beginning to show up and are piling high on the committee as details of the program begin to manifest themselves. It is most interesting to learn that already throughout the state interest in the program of our Association is increasing, with letters reaching me daily requesting aid for various communities in the location of an industry which is investigating possibilities of these communities.

Mr. Edgar Teel, of Birmingham, was in Clanton Tuesday attending the funeral of his grandfather, Uncle Tom Teel.

NEW GIRLS DORMITORY AT C. B. C.

The following article has been received from the editor of the school paper at Chillicothe Business College, Chillicothe, Mo., with the information that some of their students have given The Union-Banner as the name of their home town newspaper. We know of no Chilton County people who are attending this school, but are passing on the news item for information of any of our readers who may have relatives at the school.

Chillicothe, Mo., Feb. 5.—Work will start as soon as possible on a $50,000 girls' dormitory at the Chillicothe Business College, this made possible today when the local Chamber of Commerce was successful in its campaign to finance one-half the cost of the project, the other half being financed by the school owners. This will be the eighth building on the business college campus. The new dormitory will have an elevation of three and four stories, will be of brick and concrete construction, strictly fireproof, and will accommodate 84 girls. The business college will build the building, using student labor wherever it is possible. The schedule calls for completion by September 1.

CARD OF THANKS

We take this means of expressing our thanks and appreciation to those who expressed their sympathy in our recent bereavement.

We especially thank those who nursed our loved one, those who gave the beautiful floral offerings, and those who expressed their sympathy to the family in other various ways.—Mrs. L. B. Popwell and children, and father, E. B. Popwell.

"It's pretty hard to beat NATURE"

"APRIL"
Empress of the Jerseys

STOCKWELL'S APRIL POGIS, the only cow in the world twice winner of the President's Cup of the American Jersey Cattle Club. Owned by OWEN MOON, publisher Winston-Salem Journal and Sentinel, owner of Upwey Farms, Woodstock, Vt.

WE present a "close-up" of a world-famous Jersey cow, Stockwell's April Pogis of High Pastures — "April" for short. She made a world's record over all breeds—321 lbs. butter fat in 3 lactation periods within 3½ years, each under Class A. A. with an average test of 6.46%. No Jersey farm in the world has ever bred, raised and tested her equal.

The pastures are full of Jersey cows—but there's only one "April." She's the empress—a hundred times more valuable than the rank and file of Jerseys—because Mother Nature gave her everything—a perfect natural balance of all the needed elements. So she eclipses all the others.

Natural Chilean Nitrate of Soda is another example of Nature's balance of many different elements. Just as Nature favored "April," she favored Natural Chilean. To this nitrogen fertilizer she gave a natural balance of vital elements—the so-called vital impurities in her own wise blend.

That's why Natural Chilean is more than just quick-acting nitrogen. That's why it is such an effective food for your crops.

The monthly Christian Endeavor executive meeting was held Sunday at the Congrgational church. The chairman of the different committees appointed their helpers, who were voted on at the C. E. meeting that night.

The first class of Expert Endeavor was held after the executive meeting. The class is being conducted by Rev. L. L. Stanley, pastor of the Congregational church. The upper room is the Christian Endeavor room, which will be used as such, starting Sunday, February 14. It has not been used as a meeting place for C. NUMBER TWO OF A SERIES

A Tale of Opportunity In Alabama

"BURIED" outside of Alabama and the South are billions of dollars—dollars that might be working in the South, and particularly in Alabama, if, in past years, "outside money" had been more fully acquainted with the opportunities for development in the South.

Other "buried" treasure is the money earned and spent and inherited by 3½ millions of Southern people who have gone elsewhere to live and prosper within the past 30 years—money amounting to 15 to 20 billions of dollars that would have been spent in the South, had the natural resources of the South been developed to the point where these Southerners could have remained at home and prospered—money that would have helped give the South better schools, and roads, and other institutions.

Some Of That Buried Treasure Can Be Brought To Alabama

Of course this treasure is not truly buried. But it might just as well be buried so far as the South is concerned.

This treasure need not be lost to the South forever. During the past 14 years this Company, working with other far-seeing Alabama citizens, has been successful in bringing some of this treasure into Alabama—treasure in the form of new industrial plants—treasure that has helped bring about a more even balance between agricultural and other activities—treasure that has made opportunities for many of the fine girls and boys graduating from Alabama's schools.

Our Industrial Development Department is busier than ever before seeking this "buried treasure" to bring into Alabama for the benefit of ALL of her citizens.

THIS company engages in, and encourages its employees to engage in, activities beneficial to the area in which it does business. Many of these activities are only incidentally essential or desirable in the conduct of its business.

Merely supplying electricity AT REASONABLE RATES is not considered by Alabama Power Company to be its sole duty to the community. This advertisement tells you about one service "not written in the bond."

WHO PAYS FOR STRIKES?

The great majority of American workers attend to their own affairs, strive for the fullest possible pay envelope, and are happy to live in a country in which they have helped to develop the highest living standard in the world. But occasionally groups of American workmen are persuaded to go on strike.

What happens then? Who pays for strikes?

First of all, the investors pay. They may lose dividends; their plant may lose contracts to a competitor; their investment is jeopardized. But usually, the investor has other sources of income and manages to get along reasonably well.

Secondly, the community where a strike occurs pays. The earning power of those who make up the community is reduced and therefore consuming power is cut down. The grocer, the butcher, the baker, the doctor, the motion picture manager, gas stations, and every other form of local business suffers in a strike.

Thirdly, relatives of the strikers pay. Often they have to pull in their belts another notch to help the fellows who are running short. And then the wives and children of the strikers pay—not only in reduced food and clothing and opportunity, but they pay the heavy mental costs of worry and fear. They fear prolonged poverty. They fear the physical consequences of violence so often resorted to by strikers.

And finally the strikers themselves pay the heaviest bill of all. They lose time. Pay envelopes vanish. Hatreds are engendered and often the job itself is lost. Time lost in a strike may not be made up in a year's work.

It is a fair question to ask: Is a strike worth the price? Or isn't peaceful discussion of employees and employer the better way?

In the old days a young man was satisfied with his bride if she could bake good biscuits. Now he wants her to bring home the dough, too.

The pring of the year is approaching, when the sap begins to run. The sap runs twice in some years—in March and in November.

A SCRAP OF PAPER

What prevents our Constitution from becoming a scrap of paper?

In our Constitution, we the people give all law-making power to congress. To protect ourselves we specify the matters upon which congress may legislate, withhold any power to encroach upon man's inalienable rights, and reserve all other powers to the people and the states.

In theory these safeguards should protect us, but history shows that without some more binding safeguard, Magna Charta, the Petition of Rights, the Body of Liberties, and other famous charters became mere scraps of paper. Some additional check upon rulers and law-making bodies is needed.

This our Constitution also provides by making the courts our agents to interpret our Constitution and the laws passed thereunder. But for this, a law-making body such as congress might pass laws forbidden in our Constitution—it might lengthen its term of office or vote itself into perpetual office; abolish freedom of speech, assembly, press and worship; abolish trials by jury; tie the hands of the president or of the courts; encroach upon the rights reserved to the states and the people.

In our Constitution, we the people not only limit the powers granted to congress and the executive, but we also provide the courts as our agents to see that our Constitution is upheld—that it is not converted into a scrap of paper.

MAKING PROGRESS

The report of the Federal Reserve Board for December calls attention to the fact that industrial production was 14 per cent greater than it was during 1923-25, the base period used by the board's statisticians. This is not a surprising figure; it simply confirms, in terms of our most nearly official index, what most persons who have followed the course of business in 1936 already knew.

On all sides the average citizen has seen friends and neighbors who desired to work finding employment back in business, industry, or agriculture. The heavy Christmas buying was ample evidence that America has weathered the storm and is reaching steadily back toward normalcy without the panaceas and nostrums which have afflicted other depression-ridden countries.

What is of great importance in this official Federal Reserve statement is that production of durable goods has recently moved up very sharply, with output of automobiles and machinery showing the largest expansion of all industries.

The report does not show the complete picture in the great auto and steel industries, however. As they have pushed production upward, more and more men have been added to the nation's payrolls and millions of dollars have been added to the nation's purchasing power. Wages and employment are almost generally at or above 1929 levels.

The momentum of these two progressive industries is felt by practically every person in the land. Anything that interrupts the progress of steel and automobiles cannot but be a brake on economic progress.

It seems to us that it is about time for the knockers against the Supreme Court, who either do not understand our American system, or who hate it and want it destroyed, to take a back seat.—The Progressive Miner.

CRAZY MONEY

People who are interested in the effects of inflation, an ever present danger nowadays, would do well to read an article in the current magazine Commentator, by Lowell Thomas, of radio fame.

Reciting the story of inflation as he saw it in Germany, he recounts how a million mark note at the end of the World War was worth $10,000, how later it was worth only $150, and how it continued to fall and fall. He says:

"One day I passed by a factory at about 10 o'clock in the morning, and saw a crowd of poorly dressed women waiting ouside the gate. I learned that these women's husbands were about to be paid their week's wages at 10:30 and they were waiting to get the money. At the hour the women surged into the gate. Then one came rushing forth, a sheaf of money clutched in her hand, and ran, ran desperately down the street. Another came out, clutching her money, and ran; another, another, a whole crowd of women running madly. Why? Because prices at the stores were to change at noon, and these women were rushing to spend the week's wages while it still would buy something. After 12 o'clock it might buy only half, or a fifth, or a tenth, of what it would buy before 12."

Inflation, Thomas points out, is caused by the demand for printing press money—a demand now made in several bills before congress. And then he adds:

"Balancing the budget looks like one of the labors of Hercules. So there's a siren lure sweeter than ever in its beguiling simplicity—print money to pay."

When, and if, the government starts that system of paying its debts, Germany's experiences could easily be duplicated in America.

The Soviet government, it is said, will finance a new defense program from its profits on food. There is no question here about who will pay for the Communists brotherly military program.

HISTORY—THE REPEATER

More than 130 years ago, the Supreme Court of the United States was subjected to a wave of criticism. Its chief critic was none other than the third president of the then young nation—Thomas Jefferson. Interesting are the facts surrounding that situation.

Jefferson was an ardent states' rights man. He opposed extension of federal powers, and followed into the presidency George Washington and John Adams, both of whom favored a strong central government.

Toward the close of his term, Adams succeeded in putting through legislation which strengthened the young and weak federal government. Jefferson then took office. He hoped that with his election, the Supreme Court would declare unconstitutional these acts which he did not like. Instead, the Court folowed the Constitution and repeatedly ruled contrary to Jefferson's wishes.

Whereupon Jefferson inaugurated a campaign of criticism—because the court would not hold laws unconstitutional. Jefferson's efforts were unsuccessful.

Several other times has criticism centered on the Court. Once, in the administration of Ulysses S. Grant, an attempt was made to pack the Court by increasing its size. But the new members voted with the previous majority, and Grant's efforts failed.

Never has the nation let anyone hamstring the Court for any length of time. The people obviously realize that time after time it has not only saved the nation from disintegration but preserved through thick and thin man's greatest heritage—liberty.

ELOQUENT COMPLIMENT

The recent command of Gregory Ordzhonikidze, Soviet Commissar for Heavy Industry, that all Russian factories be reorganized along American lines to eradicate inefficiency and reduce waste, is perhaps the most eloquent compliment that could be paid to the industrial system in this country.

By the same token, it must have been a bitter pill for the Red government at Moscow to publicly acknowledge that there was anything superior in the hated capitalist system—a system which the Communist party is dedicated to destroy.

No more opposite political philosophies exist than Communism and Democracy. The guiding principle of the former is rigid state control over the individual under a political dictatorship. Democracy, on the other hand, insures to a free people the free play of individual initiative and rewards commensurate with ability.

Under our system, American industry has created the world's highest living standards, the shortest working hours, and the highest wage scale, and has brought benefits to consumers and workers in a degree unequalled anywhere else under any other system.

That the Communists now make this public acknowledgment will come as no surprise to Americans. This imitation of our industrial system by the severest critic of our political system follows the recent adoption of a written constitution by the Soviet permitting the ownership of private property, and furnishes fresh proof that political dictatorship and state regimentation of industry are not compatible with the interest of the working man.

CURE FOR CANCER FOUND, CLAIM

Atlanta, Feb. 3.—Dr. Frank E. Adair, New York surgeon, said Wednesday at least 75,000 of the 153,000 persons who died from cancer in the United States last year could have been saved if they had been sensible and alert enough to go to a doctor in time.

Dr. Adair, here for a sectional meeting of the American College of Surgeons said little can be done to fight cancer in the advanced stages, but everything can be done to defeat it in the early stages.

Dr. Adair advised in an interview that if you find a lump in your breast, an ulcer on the lip or tongue that will not heal, bleeding from one of the bloody orifices that cannot be explained, persistent indigestion with a distaste especially for meat, see your family doctor.

If you learn only a few of these simple signs and act on them promptly, the probability is that you will never die of cancer. Surgery, radium and X-rays will handle most cases in the early stages.

RIFLE-PISTOL TEAMS COMPETE FOR NATIONAL CHAMPIONSHIP

Washington, D. C.—More than five hundred rifle and pistol teams, representing nearly every state in the Union are now shooting for national honors in the program of inter-club competitions staged under the direction of the National Rifle Association. This is a marked increase in number of teams over any previous year and demonstrates the popularity of such a program and the ever-increasing interest in target shooting as a sport.

These teams, representing rifle and pistol clubs from all sections of the country, are drawn into a nation-wide competition through an ingenuous plan of pistol matches—so called because the firing is done under approved courses of fire on registered targets sent by parcel post directly from the Washington offices and later returned for official scoring.

In this inter-club series clubs are not limited to one entry but may enter any number of four-man teams, a handicap system being employed to equalize competition between teams of varying experience and marksmanship ability. Each team fires on its home range under the supervision of a disinterested representative of the association in a series of ten weekly matches with the average scores for this period determining the national winner.

IN MEMORY OF OUR FATHER—JOHN CALLAWAY

Dear father, you have left us,
And your smile we see no more;
Our hearts are filled with sadness,
For no time can heal that sore.

More and more each day we miss you,
Friends all think the wound is healed.
But they little know the sorrow,
That is in our hearts concealed.

We often sit and think of you,
When we're all alone,
For memory is the only friend
That grief can call its own.

What is home without you—
All the things a world may send?
For when we lost you, dear father,
We lost our dearest friend.

You wore the crown of patience
Through the years you struggled on,
And those hands that rest forever
Are the hands that blessed our home.

Soft and bright and stars are shining,
Spreading o'er a lonely grave,
Where lies the one we loved so dearly;
We tried so hard, but could not save.

Your daughters,
—Filey Funderburk, Arrie Jones.

Lesson for February 14

JESUS THE GOOD SHEPHERD

LESSON TEXT—John 10:1-16.
GOLDEN TEXT—I am the good shepherd: the good shepherd giveth his life for the sheep. John 10:11.
PRIMARY TOPIC—A Good Shepherd.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Good Shepherd.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How Jesus Is Like a Shepherd.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Jesus Our Good Shepherd.

The blind man who had been healed had been cast out of the synagogue because he had given the glory for his healing to Jesus Christ, (see ch. 9). The door to that which stood for all that was sacred to him had been closed. Whither should he turn? Look! here comes someone seeking him. It is Jesus, who now declares that the door which men had closed was no true door at all, for he says, "I am the door of the sheep." Those who professed to be shepherding the flocks and who had cast this poor man out were but hirelings. Now he speaks to the One who says, "I am the good Shepherd."

Someone has suggested that the parable of the good shepherd presents the whole day in the life of the shepherd and his flock, morning, noon, and night, and typifies the ministry of Christ on our behalf in the varying circumstances of life.

I. In the Morning (John 10:1-6).

Flocks were sometimes kept in the field at night, as was the case on the night when Jesus was born in Bethlehem. But ordinarily they were brought into a sheepfold where many flocks gathered for protection. Thieves would climb the wall to steal sheep, but the shepherd, when he came in the morning to lead forth his flock, entered in by the door. He called out his flock by name and they knew his voice. It is said that only a sick sheep will follow a stranger, which may explain why so many false isms of our day appeal to the sick and lead them away from the Good Shepherd.

Do you know his voice? Have you responded to his call? Will you follow him? Decide now.

II. In the Heat of the Day (vv. 7-10).

Perhaps the sheep need to enter the fold to rest, if so he is the door. But they may wish to go out to the pasture—again he is the door. Belonging to Christ is not bondage. If any man enter in by Christ, the Door, he is free to go in and out, to find pasture, to live for and to serve him.

"The Door." What a striking figure! It is a means of entry, the only way in. Every door has two sides and the side we are on determines whether we are inside or outside—saved or lost. Children used to sing, and still do:

One Door and only one,
And yet its sides are two—
Inside and outside.
On which side are you?

III. When Night Comes (vv. 11-16).

The wolves come out as the shadows gather. They come to kill and to scatter. Where is the shepherd? If he is only a hireling, serving for what may "be in it" for him, he will flee. How perfectly this pictures religious leaders who, in spite of their swelling words and ingratiating manners, desert the flock in the hour of adversity. Fair weather friends are they, who disappear when darkness and danger appear.

In the darkest hour Jesus is nearest at hand. He never fails. He has no fear, for has he not tasted the bitter death of Calvary's tree for you and for me? He is the good shepherd. He giveth his life for the sheep. Those who have put their trust in him shall never be put to shame.

Because he has given his life for the sheep we must not forget nor neglect the truth found in verse 16. There are "other sheep" that have not yet been brought into the fold. They must be brought in, and we, on His behalf, must bring them, that there may "be one fold and one shepherd."

Penitence and Mercy

Man must not disclaim his brotherhood, even with the guiltiest, since though his hand be clean his heart has surely been polluted by the flitting phantoms of iniquity. He must feel that when he shall knock at the gate of Heaven no semblance of an unspotted life can entitle him to an entrance there. Penitence must kneel and Mercy come from the footstool of the Throne, or that golden gate will never open.—Nathaniel Hawthorne.

The Power of Prayer

The greatest thing anyone can do for God and for man is to pray. When one understands about prayer, and puts prayer in its right place, one finds that it is the doing that grows out of praying that is mightiest in touching human hearts.—S. D. Gordon.

The March of Life

In the march of life don't heed the order of "right about" when you know you are about right.—O. W. Holmes.

RED CROSS HAS COMPLETED GREATEST FLOOD BATTLE IN HISTORY OF MISSISSIPPI VALLEY

Memphis, Tenn., Feb. 10.—Summing up some of the emergency measures taken by the Red Cross since the first flood alarm struck the Ohio Rivey Valley three weeks ago, John W. Maloney, administrative assistant and director of public relations at the Ohio-Missisippi Valley Flood Relief headquarters here, today declared that never before had such extraordinary measures been taken by any agency or organization for the protection of lives and property as those undertaken recently by the Red Cross.

At the beginning of what was recognized as a national emergency, Mr. Maloney said, President Roosevelt named the American Red Cross the official relief agency for the nation. At the same time he announced that the United States Army, Coast Guard, Navy, Marine Corps, Army Engineers, lighthouse Service, various other government agencies, and local organizations would cooperate with the Red Croos, and we can say at this time that this cooperation received from all sides has been the greatest factor in making our work successful.

At the present time, the Memphis official said, we have a fleet of more than 1,500 boats of all types operating under our direction up and down the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers and their tributaries, as well as a squadron of more than fifty airplanes, a dirigible, and a force of several thousand workers. Trained relief directors have been stationed at every strategic spot along these rivers, and more are held in readiness to dispatch to danger spots at the first intimation of need.

If you want a combination Spiral and Croquignole Permanent Wave, with flat waves and ringlet ends, we give them.—Helene Curtis Beauty Shoppe, Mrs. Essie Mae Mims, Prop.

THE 25-MILLIONTH

FORD

HAS JUST BEEN BUILT

IT HAS never occurred before in automobile history that 25 million cars of one make, bearing one name, have been manufactured under one management. The 25,000,000th Ford car rolled off the Ford Rouge Plant production line on January 18, 1937.

25 million cars since 1903 . . . more than one-third of all the cars ever built . . . enough cars to transport the entire population of the United States.

The figures represent a remarkable contribution to the social welfare, the industrial stability and the general progress of our country.

People respect Ford efficiency. They know Ford uses fine materials, the best workmanship at good wages, the most exact precision measurements. They know these things are passed along to purchasers in the form of extra value. Naturally, they like to do business with such a company. That is the only reason it has been required to produce 25 million cars.

Naturally, too, they expect more of a Ford car, more this year than last year — more each year than the year before. They have every right to. The experience gained in building 25,000,000 cars enables Ford to produce today a really superb motor car at a really low price — with the Beauty, Comfort, Safety and Performance of much more expensive cars.

The 1937 Ford V-8 combines advanced design, all-steel construction, extra body room, and brilliant brakes with a choice of two V-type 8-cylinder engines — the most modern type of power-plant on land, sea, or in the air.

The 85-horsepower engine provides top performance with unusually good economy for its high power.

The 60-horsepower engine gives good performance with the greatest gasoline mileage ever built into a Ford car—and wears the lowest Ford price tag in years.

People expect more of a Ford car because it's a Ford — and they get more, for the same reason. It is undeniably the quality car in the low-price field.

Harry Denman Announces A Meeting In Montgomery February 23

Harry Denman, of Birmingham, campaign leader and president of the Alabama Temperance Alliance, announced Thursday that the meeting will be held at 10:30 a.m., on Tuesday, February 23, at Dexter Avenue Methodist church, in Montgomery.

From this meeting the group will carry campaign ammunition back to their counties where their fight will be waged.

NORTH CAROLINA GOVERNOR GIVES HIS VIEWS ON LIQUOR

Gov. Clyde R. Hoey, in his recent inaugural address as Governor of North Carolina: "I am not a fanatic on the liquor question, but I continue to regard liquor as Public Enemy No. 1. I have not changed either my opinion or position on this question, and I do not believe any solution has been found for this perplexing problem. Personally, I cannot subscribe to the doctrine that the way to advance the cause of temperance and decrease drinking is to provide all the liquor you want and make it easily accessible and readily obtainable. You will never build a great state or a great country upon profits derived from the sale of liquor.

TWO SCHOOL GIRLS ON WAY TO MONTGOMERY NABBED HERE

The waitress heaven in Montgomery sought by two 14-year-old Chattanooga high school girls, ended these few miles short of their destination last Saturday.

Mary Lou Barlow and Mildred Stogsdill, step-sisters, who gave their address in Chattanooga, were detained Saturday afternoon by State Highway Patrolmen Wallace Waites and Earl Henley, as they sought a ride that would take them the last few miles to their journey's end.

Red haired Mildred preferred silence but Mary Lou didn't mind discussing their whereabouts since they left their Chattanooga home last Wednesday.

Mary Lou stated that they started to Montgomery to be waitresses, while Mildred jabbed her in the ribs and told her to keep quiet.

Officers said that a Mrs. Barlow, of Chattanooga, had been communicated with, and that she had said she would come here as soon as transportation facilities would permit.

Patrolmen Henley and Waites said they recognized the girls as they were seeking a ride as being persons whom they had read about as having left their Tennessee homes last Wednesday.

Fox hunting with dogs exclusively was excepted in the bill.

FARMERS PLACE BLAME FOR DRUNKEN DRIVING MENACE

Blame for much of the drunken driving since repeal was laid at the door of the state for permitting the sale of liquor and gasoline at the same location, declared speakers at the 24th annual convention of the Threshermen and Farmers Protective Association in session in Pennsylvania recently.

Far too many judges impose sentence for the effect of today's newspapers, and then parole the offender for tomorrow's political effect, declared H. L. R. Anderson, past president of the Threshermen, in a smashing indictment of the drunken driving menace.

BUCK HART LEAVING CLANTON

It will be unwelcome news to many people in Chilton county when they learn that Buck Hart is going to leave Clanton. But it is a positive fact.

Mr. Hart, who has been in Clanton for the past twenty-five years, has recently accepted a position with the Johnson Hardware and Implement Company of Greenville Ala. He will take up his work with that firm the first of March. Mr. Hart's family will remain in Clanton until school is out, then they will move there to make their permanent home.

The Union-Banner hates to give up Buck Hart. He has meant much to Clanton during the quarter of a century he has made this his home. And he will be missed by other people too. However, we all join in extending him our best wishes in his new undertaking. We hope for him the most success possible, as well as that of his splendid family.

RECALL IT MR. PRESIDENT!

(Editorial in The Birmingham News, Sunday, February 14, 1937)

The president's proposal to name six new justices of the Supreme Court, patently for the purpose of altering constitutional interpretation and policy, has sharply divided congress, notwthstanding the heavy Democratic majorities in both houses.

It has divided the American people, notwithstanding a popular support of the president so strong as to give him the votes of 46 of the 48 states for reelection.

This division of a nation so recently united in a common purpose and determination, behind a trusted leader, with a great and growing popular faith in our democratic institutons and processes, is utterly tragic.

Our national unity has been disrupted by the greatest constitutional crisis since the war between the states. The raising of this issue at this time and in this way was a tragic mistake.

It has raised fear in the minds of vast numbers of Americans for the preservation of our constitutional democracy—perhaps more than a majority of the American people, possibly less than a majority; the exact proportion does not greatly matter.

It has impaired the confidence of many of the American people in the president in whom so recently they placed such great trust. And this is true not merely of those who have been opposed to the administration, but of many who have been the president s supporters, who have counted themselves, in his own familiar phrase, as his "friends".

This is the great tragedy of it, the double tragedy of it; first, that fear for the inviolability of our constitutional democracy should have been so needlessly engendered; and, second, that doubt should thus have been put in the minds of people who placed their trust in the president.

There can be no question that this fear and this doubt have been created. The news columns of the papers day after day since the president's message on the judiciary was published have shown it. Talk on the streets and in the offices and in homes has shown it. Published expressions of opinion, from those of United States senators to those of writers of letters to the newspapers, not to mention the editorials of the newspapers themselves, have shown it.

People write to this newspaper, saying, in the words of one of them, that "the great majority of the citizens of the United States gladly support the president in his far-reaching program for better living conditions of her citizens, but feel that the one bulwark of our freedom and liberty is the Supreme Court, and that it should not be hampered, abridged or embarrassed in the exercise of its constitutional functions—even by Mr. Roosevelt himself."

This newspaper has counted itself a friend of the president. It has honored him for his great achievements and his high purposes. It believes that the platform adopted by the Philadelphia convention which nominated him for re-election was the greatest political platform ever drafted in the history of the United States. It would like to see that platform fulfilled, but fulfilled entirely in the spirit and through the processes of our constitutional democracy. This newspaper is profoundly troubled by this proposal which could only mean the destruction of the position which the Supreme Court now holds as one of the pillars of democracy. It is gravely alarmed at the division produced in the American people by this proposal.

This paper is not an alarmist, and has no patience with alarmists. We do not believe that Mr. Roosevelt wants to be a dictator, or that he would be one if he could; but this constitutional crisis may contain the seeds of dictatorship, for no man knows what manner of man—or men—may come into power after Mr. Roosevelt. We do not believe that the present situation holds any threat of imminent revolution; but this division of the people on a question of such deep concern may contain the seeds of revolution, for no one can tell what conditions some fateful tomorrow may bring.

Of one thing this paper feels certain: This crisis has in it the seeds of decay of constitutional democracy as the American nation has always known it.

No possible compromise on the principle involved in the president's Supreme Court proposal could alter the principle itself. No difference in degree could make a difference in kind. The only safe way out of this crisis would be for the president to abandon his plan.

Mr. Roosevelt has said on another occasion that if his administration made a mistake, he would be the first to acknowledge it. Heretofore he has, at least tacitly, admitted some mistakes. In all the trouble and confusion of the last few years, no one could have avoided making some mistakes.

Mr. Roosevelt, viewing the crisis that has developed, ought to be big enough to withdraw his proposal and thereby acknowledge this mistake.

Recall it, Mr. President!

GOLD MEDAL BASKET BALL TOURNAMENT HELD SATURDAY

Bevelle Champs, Mitchell Dam Second, Red Diamond Mines Third, Mignon Fourth, in Meet At Mitchell Dam.

A gala day of basket ball was enjoyed at Mitchell Dam gym last Saturday, when the annual Gold Medal Basket Ball Tournament was played off. There were 13 teams entered in the meet, these being Maxwell Field, Buck Creek, Calera, Sycamore, Bevelle A, Marvel, Bevelle Night Hawks, Enterprise, Thorsby, Mignon Red Diamond Mines, Sand Mountain, and Mitchell Dam.

Basket ball of every kind was exhibited during the day, ranging from the sublime to the ridiculous. There were strong teams, weak teams, and unknown quantities. During the day some of the favorites to win high honors failed miserably to measure up to pre-tournament predictions, while supposedly fairly weak teams upset the dope bucket with brilliant displays, to bring the packed gym to its collective feet time and again.

Some of the games were drab, one-sided affairs, some were about the usual run of good basket ball, while others were packed with thrills from the first whistle to the last. Such was the entertainment afforded. Play was to begin at 8 o'clock, but there were many things to be ironed out before a start could be made, and the first game did not get under way until about 8:30. Very few spectators were on hand to begin with, but kept filtering in until the building was packed. No intermission was granted during the day, players catching their meals during off periods. Even then the last game was not completed until after 10:00 o'clock in the night.

Sixty awards were given to various teams, combinations, and individual players. Besides these trophies and medals, a special award of a completely equipped leather dressing kit was awarded to the best sportsman in the event, this being the personal gift of Mr. John Hollis, superintendent of the Mitchell Dam power plant, an ardent basket ball fan and advocate of fair play and clean sportsmanship.

The Bevelle A team from Alexander City won the championship in the tournament, winning the final game from Mitchell Dam, leaving the Cardinals in second place. Red Diamond Mines defeated a scrappy Mignon five in the consolation event to place third.

The high spot of the whole tournament was the stunning upset afforded when a fighting under-dog Mignon team defeated the highly touted Sand Mountain aggregation. The latter team was considered a favorite and a probable champion, but Mignon's stout hearted warriors came from behind to drag down the favored up-state team. This was a real thrill-a-minute game. Mignon trailed 19 to 13 at the half, but made a nip-and-tuck affair of it as the second half opened, with a whirlwind attack that would not be denied. Time after time the score was tied, and as the waning minutes passed, this white and red clad Mignon team, tired from two other recent contests, seemed to fight on nerve alone, having sensed the possibility of upsetting the reputedly stronger big blue team from the mountains. As the final whistle blew, with the score board showing a 40 to 37 victory for the Mignon team, the packed crowd of spectators rose as one in acclaim to a gallant fighting team that would not give up, even in the face of an impossible situation. Without any doubt this was the finest exhibition of indomitable fighting spirit displayed during the day, and the eager fans were solidly with the Mignon team.

Judges of the contests were: J. B. Varnell, Hollis Hiten, Spinney Hammel, and Z. H. Turner. After all the games were finished, the judges withdrew for a conference, and the following awards were made:

Three outstanding players in the tournament: (1) Vernon (Dock) Baker, Mitchell Dam; (2) Raines, Red Diamond Mines; (3) Long, Bevelle A.

Five first team all-tournament players: Avery, Bevelle A; Long, Bevelle A; Raines, Red Diamond Mines; Dock Baker, Mitchell Dam; Haynes, Mignon.

Five second team all-tournament players: Copelan, Red Diamond Mines; Cobb, Mitchell Dam; Evans, Bevelle A; Payne, Bevelle A; Mayfield, Mitchell Dam.

High point man in tournament: (1) Raines, Red Diamond Mines, 59 points; (2) Dock Baker, Mitchell Dam.

Best sportsman in the tournament: Haynes, Mignon; besides the medal offered for this, he also was presented the special gift of Mr. Hollis.

Ten outstanding players who lost in their first game: Ray, Enterprise; Ellison, Thorsby; Arnold (Bull) Littleton, Thorsby; Critcher, Sand Mountain; Weldon, Enterprise; Welch, Sycamore; Thornton, Buck Creek; Massey, Buck Creek; Cox, Sycamore; and Berry, Sand Mountain.

Three trophies for first, second and third place teams in the tournament, with individual awards for members of these teams. A medal was given to the manager of the championship Bevelle A team, also.

Mr. John Hollis distributed awards, after he had duly thanked the teams, officials and spectators for their attendance and help in making the event the splendid success that it was.

Merchants Advised About Paying Tax

Jeff Beeland Issues Instruction to Merchants of Alabama In Big Tax Row

To the merchants or Alabama:

Because of the fact it has not been possible to get a ruling from the Alabama Supreme Court on the validity of the gross receipts tax bill, we suggest that you follow these instructions:

On advice of our attorneys, Rushton, Crenshaw & Rushton, you should in order to avoid any penalties under this Act, file this return as required by law not later than February 20th, but that when you fill out your check for same, be sure to insert on the face of the check: "Payment of one and one-half gross receipts tax under Ellis Bill, made in protest." Then, be sure that your receipt from the State Tax Commisson makes such notaton that you did pay the tax under protest. In the event that they do not send you any receipt with such notation on it, you are perfectly within your rights to stop payment on the check, until such time that they will give you a receipt with such notation.

Your organization has put up the very best fight possible, and we are indeed grateful to those merchants of the state who have joined wholeheartedly in the fight, and who have not run for cover every time they thought the opposition was getting stronger. We feel that our fight is right and we are determined to use every legal means possible to defeat the present administration in the carrying out of their program which works a hardship on the people of this state.

Regretting we cannot anticipate a very bright outlook at the present time, we are—Jeff P. Beeland, State Campaign Manager, of Consumers Anti-Sales Tax Association of Ala.

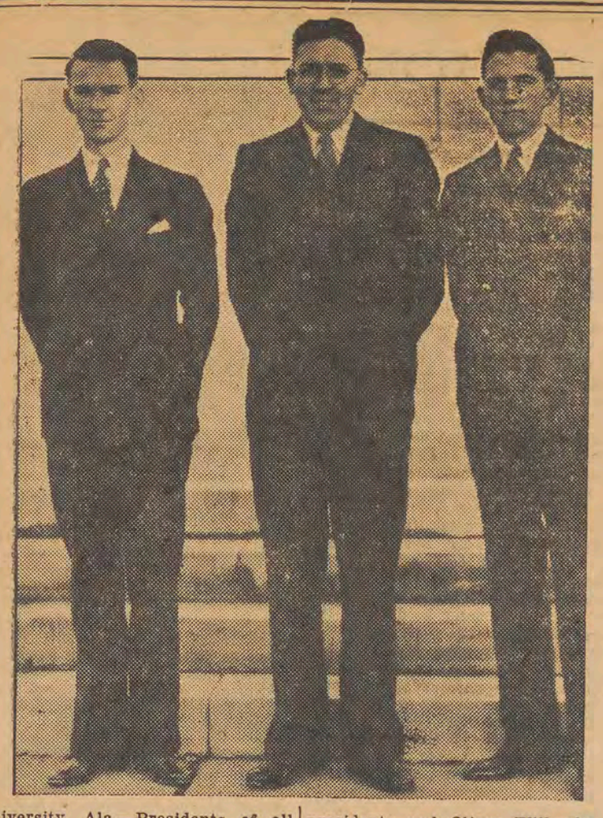
LESPEDEZA—A GOOD CROP

Question—What is the value of lespedeza?



Answer—Lespedeza is the most generally grown pasture plant in Alabama. It is valuable for soil improvement particularly on valleys of north Alabama. On badly eroded Piedmont and mountain soils that have been abandoned for cultivation, lespedeza frequently comes in and if allowed to grow for a few years restores the fertility of the soil. On fertilized moist soils lespedeza makes large yields of excellent hay.

Q—Where will lespedeza grow?

A—Lespedeza will grow on all the soils of Alabama, except the lime soils of the Black Belt. On moderately fertile soils it makes good grazing but seldom grows late enough to be cut for hay. On poor sandy uplands it makes little growth and sometimes dies during dry weather in late spring or early winter.

Q—What fertilizers should be applied to lespedeza?

A—At least 600 pounds of basic slag should be applied broadcast when the soil is prepared. If lespedeza is occupying the land several years, an application of Ap... Pr... 1/4 1/4 1/4

The first public announcement of the State High School Debates was made last week at the University of Alabama by Prof. W. C. Blasingame, professor of Public Health in the Extension Division of the University.

County high schools and city high schools will compete in the debates, in separate sections. County high school debaters will visit the University on March 25, 26 and 27. City high schools debate the following week end. Any high school in the state is eligible to enter a team in the debates. About 40 counties and 12 cities are expected to enter teams.

The largest fleet of airplanes ever to visit Tuscaloosa thrilled University of Alabama Students and Tuscaloosa townspeople this week, when 37 army airplanes from Kelly Field in Texas visited the University campus.

The planes were piloted by flying cadets, finishing their course of instruction this month. They were met at the airport by President Richard C. Foster of the University, Major E. H. Underwood, ROTC commander, and many students.

An idea originated at the University and already spreading to other institutions will be sread still further if Miss Frances Greenwood's plans for a national federation of women's collegiate swimming clubs is carried out.

The Swan Club was founded at the University of Alabama, and has already spread to Florida State College for Women, and to Fort College, Col. Plans for a national federation will be discussed on February 19, during the course of a swimming meet for students sponsored by the University Swan Club and attended by representatives of 25 colleges.

Weekly newspapers predominate in the rural homes, while daily newspapers are more widely circulated in urban homes, according to a study by Willie Fagan Calkins, graduate student at the University of Alabama, and Gladstone H. Yeuell, professor of education here.

The study was based on a survey made in Walker County, and was published in the January issue of School and College, a widely circulated magazine.

Dr. Marvin A. Franklin, of the Highland Methodist Church of Birmingham, made a series of lectures at the University of Alabama last week. The addresses were a part of Religious Emphasis Week, sponsored by Wesley Foundation of the University. Said Dr. Franklin: "Out of the schools of the South must come a leadership of moral grandeur.

HELP PREVENT WOODS FIRES!

Seven years ago on a piece of recently cut over woodland on the experiment station at Auburn, three 1-acre plots were set up to determine the effect of fire upon the coming of another crop of trees. All plots had enough seed trees to furnish seed for restocking the land. The plots were separated by fire lines.

Plot No. 1 has been burned every March since, and now has 100 trees or 8 per cnet of a stand.

Plot No. 2 has been burned every five years (to learn whether or not fire every year or occasionally is most harmful), and now has 250 trees or 20 per cent of a stand.

Plot No. 3 has been protected from fire since the logging was done, and now has 1,570 trees or 130 per cent of a stand.

A good many of the pines on Plot No. 1 were there when the experiment began, and a large part of the others, being shortleaf, are bushy sprouts from the roots which were killed back to the ground by fire. The same holds true for the plot burned every five years.

The value of woods fire protection practices to Alabama may be judged by comparing results that could be expected from the behavior of these plots. If all woodlands were handled as Plot No. 3, the value of the standing timber produced per year in Alabama would be $25,000,000. If all were handled as No. 2, the value would drop to $5,000,000, and the practice on No. 1 would lower it to $2,000,000.

Brief Farm Notes

Co-operative hog and poultry sales are gaining in favor in many sections of Alabama. Each week farmers are selling thousands of dollars worth of hogs and chickens.

A common cause of hog poisoning, although seldom identified, is the use of too much salt or salt brine in the ration, says Dr. R. M. Hofferd, veterinarian of the Bureau of Animal Husbandry.

By properly feeding and caring for her chickens, Mrs. Thelma Bailey, of Owassa, Ala., last year made a profit of $228.51 on 128 white leghorn pullets, she reports in a letter to John E. Ivey, poultryman of the Alabama Extension Service.

Experience has shown that it pays Southeast Alabama farmers to grow Otootan soy beans for grazing hogs. Plans are being made for a large acreage to be placed in beans this year for this purpose.

TOP-DRESS WITH NV POTASH

NV KAINIT 200 POUNDS PER ACRE • OR NV MURIATE 100 POUNDS PER ACRE •

NOT ENOUGH POTASH

IN THIS FIELD 3-9-3 NPK fertilizer at planting plus nitrogen top-dressing produced only 770 pounds of seed cotton per acre. Where NV POTASH was added to the nitrogen top-dressing the yield was increased to 1,640 pounds of seed cotton per acre. A little potash is not enough to prevent Rust and increase yields. You must make sure you use enough to produce a healthy, high-yielding, high-quality crop.

Top-dress with 100 pounds of NV MURIATE per acre, or 200 pounds of NV KAINIT, or a nitrogen-potash, mixed-goods top-dresser containing 10 to 25% NV POTASH. If you prefer to use your extra potash at planting, select a fertilizer containing 8 to 10% NV POTASH. Where Rust has been very severe you may need both high-potash fertilizer at planting and potash top-dressing to STOP RUST and START PROFITS.

Thousands of farmers have found that it pays to use a lot more potash than the average fertilizer contains. When you buy your fertilizer and top-dresser, tell your fertilizer man you want more NV POTASH. It costs little and pays BIG!

Posting Birds Is Surest Test For Worms in Flock

Roundworms Easily Seen When Intestines Are Split

"The surest test for worms in poultry is to kill one of the birds and remove the intestines," says Grafton Lothrop, head of the Sanitation Department at Purina Mills. "Split the intestines from end to end. If large roundworms are present they will show up readily."

Worms Rob Poultry

Roundworms are white or yellowish-white and vary in length from one to six inches. They are among the worst enemies of poultry. Worms rob birds of feed and lower the vitality of the flock, thereby causing both feed loss and lowered egg production. The intestinal lining is irritated by worms, and in some cases pus pockets form, giving disease germs an easy entry. Worms themselves give off poisons that weaken the bird's system. Many fowls infested with worms become blind, go lame, or become paralyzed. Loss of body weight is an indication of worms. Wormy flocks are never thrifty flocks, and no poultryman can make money feeding worms.

Government Recommendations

"Both the United States Department of Agriculture and the American Veterinary Medication Association recommend tetrachlorethylene as the quickest and most effective treatment for removing large roundworms from turkeys and chickens. To aid poultry owners, this recommended wormer has been placed in tetsules, obtainable at stores handling Purina feeds, in exactly the right amount to remove worms with a minimum shock. Of course birds are never wormed when in high production. Complete worming costs less than one egg per bird when it's done this way," Lothrop says.

CALVES REQUIRE LITTLE MILK

"With good cows as high as they are today, and the milk markets taking all the milk that is produced, dairymen everywhere are beginning to feel that the most profitable way of maintaining a herd is by raising their own heifers," says W. R. Arends, calf raising authority at Purina Mills. "And many milk producers are finding out how easy it is to raise their future cows by modern methods.

"Today's methods make it possible to raise calves with little milk," Arends points out. "Modern calf feeds supply everything that milk and grain do—and at a much lower cost. Our own latest calf feed is an all-in-one product that's fed dry and puts an end to the fuss and worry of messy gruels and bucket washing. This new calf startena is ready to feed right from the bag. All one has to do is to pour it into feeders and let the calves help themselves."

DISBURSEMENT CONTROL

Former Comptroller General McCarl rightly protests the Brownlow Committee's recommendation that the settlement of accounts and the supervision of administrative accounting systems be brought under the executive branch of the government — specifically, under the treasury department.

Such a system, as Mr. McCarl declares, would emasculate our independent accounting system and bring into question the authority of congress to safeguard and prescribe the use to which funds shall be put.

Certainly open to debate, if not to instant dispute, is the committee's dogmatic assertion that the control of expenditures is an executive function.

The best authorities on budgetary and accounting practice have consistently regarded the general accounting office as an adjunct of the legislative branch, having much the same relation to congress as the bureau of the budget has to the president.

And there seems to be very little ground for dispute that the office of comptroller general was created in the first place primarily for the purpose of making the accounting agency free from all presidential control, direct or indirect.

This was, of course, eminently consistent with the rule laid down in the Constitution that all appropriations should orignate in the House of Representatives, whose members are chosen directly by the people every two years.

For since congress is commissioned with control over the public purse strings, it was quite natural and logical for congress to establish a supervisory agency to see that executive spending agencies actually carry out the intentions of congress.

The Brownlow Committee, indeed, expresses favor for an independent auditing system. But there is no general lack of appreciation of the futility of locking the stable door after the horse has been stolen. And a check-up after the money has been spent canot be nearly so effective to prevent illegal dissipation of funds as a system which acts in advance to forestall unauthorized expenditures. — Ft. Wayne News-Sentinel.

BALANCING THE BUDGET

The recent anouncement of Chairman Pat Harrison, of the Senate Finance Committee, that there absolutely will be no increase in taxes comes as a welcome assurance to Americans generally. Sen. Harrison, one of the two men charged by the president with a congressional survey of the nation's tax structure, said the budget will be balanced in the 1938 fiscal year if congress economizes and revenues continue to mount.

The senator's forecast was bolstered by a continued improvement in the treasury revenue outlook. Informal estimates reveal the possibility that income from taxes may rise to $6,000,000,000 for the present fiscal year, as against $4,115,956,000 for 1936, and $3,800,467,000 for 1935.

Such assurance from a high administration official is doubly welcome to American industrialists. The nation's business leaders have long contended that a balanced budget and a clear cut stand on tax matters is a prime requisite to recovery. No business man can plan for the future with any assurance as long as the threat of confiscatory taxes and an unbalanced budget hangs over his head.

If the statement of the senate committee chairman represents the studied determination of the administration, America has taken another long step out of the valley of the depression.

END OF CHILD LABOR

Congress has the power to end child labor today. Action need not wait upon the passage of a constitutional amendment. Through exercise of its power over interstate commerce it can prohibit the products of child labor from entering states which outlaw such products. The laggard states would thus be forced to match the high standards of New York and the other great industrial states, or lose their best markets. Such, as has already been pointed out in these columns, is the almost certain consequence of the recent decision by the Supreme Court, unanimously upholding the Ashurst-Summers act excluding prison made goods from states where the sale of such goods is illegal. — New York Herald-Tribune.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

Lincoln's birthday anniversary is just past. Those who have not done so recently might do well to read the few simple sentences penned by the Emancipator, himself, for a friend and admirer, J. W. Fell, in 1859, and usually referred to as Lincoln's autobiography. Nothing better illustrates the inherent modesty, the simplicity and honesty of the man than these few words from his own pen.

Written at a time when Lincoln had gained more than a state-wide reputation and was being seriously considered as a candidate for president of the United States, the Illinois statesman made no effort to gloss over the humble events of his early life. It is to be noted that he recounted the fact that the families of both his father and mother were not distinguished and that no successful effort had yet been made to connect his father with the more prominent Lincoln family of New England. His grandfather was killed by the Indians, but although it might have been easy to make this ancestor a hero of warfare with the savages, Lincoln modestly stated that his grandparent was not killed in battle nor in an act of heroism, but by stealth when he was laboring to open a farm in the forest.

The terrible hardships of Indiana pioneer life were glossed over. It was a wild region, we are told, with many bears and other wild animals still in the woods—nothing about the heroism of the middle western pioneer in his struggle against the human savages, the elements, pestilence and hunger.

Schools were rude, with education confined to the very fundamental branches, and Lincoln admitted that when he came of age he didn't know much. The little advance he had made since that time, he modestly stated, he had picked up from time to time under the pressure of necessity—no mention of the labor and the individual sacrifices of the young man to rise above his surroundings. His only essay toward modest pride was that only once had he been beaten in a campaign by a vote of the people.

Yet with all his humility and his modesty it fell upon the individualist, Lincoln, to become the leader of the nation in its darkest hour, to save the American republic and to keep the fire of constitutional liberty from turning to dead, dull ashes. Surely there could be no greater tribute to the qualities of the man, qualities which can be seen in outline in this brief story of his own early career.

Today Lincoln has been adopted by all political parties. His name and the influence of his character furnish an inspiration to the American youth of the 20th century. Yet, there are prophets of hate and despair among us who would tell us that the day of achievement by the youth of humble parentage and material circumstances is over, that individualism must be throttled. Somehow our constitutional government has changed. Economic law has changed. The nation is in the grip of some insidious force of evil which defeats the possibility of success through such individual efforts and social responsibilities as were exemplified in the life of Lincoln.

The time has come, these false teachers tell us, when the doctrine of individual liberty must go overboard. Man shall no longer attempt to save himself, but must look to one-man government at Washington to do it. And that the government at Washington can only perform this feat if individual liberty, and personal ownership are abolished, and a huge socialistic structure is set us in their place.

But the doctrine of these prophets is as false as the lips which enunciate it. Success is still the reward of simplicity, of honesty, of perseverance. The young man of today is just as the youth of Lincoln's day, and his opportunities are even greater than were Lincoln's.

We hear a great deal of the soap box orator on the corner, and the college wisecracker and disturber on the campus. But they do not speak for the entire youth of America nor do they represent him. All over this broad land, in the modest school room, in the college laboratory, on the farm, in the country store, in the mill, are the budding scientists, the business giants, the true philosophers and sound economists of the future—the boys and girls who will give to posterity an even greater America than we have today. Here is the salvation of America.

OVERLAPPING TAXATION

A recent summary issued by the United States treasury department serves again to call notice to the extent of overlapping taxation imposed by the federal and state governments and once more brings up the query: Where will it all end?

According to this summary, in 1935 the federal government collected $2,271,400,000 from six tax sources—estates and inheritances, individual incomes, gasoline, liquor and tobacco. From these same six sources, the various states withdrew $1,049,900,000—a total burden to the nation's taxpayers on these six sources alone of over three and a quarter billion dollars.

The problem is one of growing seriousness, yet its practical solution is as yet far from clear. There is no agreement between the federal and the various state governments regarding what type of taxes ought to be reserved exclusively to the federal government. There is no agreement regarding the equitable division of any tax. For example, the federal government taxes the individual up to 75 per cent of his income and the state government comes along and taxes his income some more.

Out of the muddle, two indisputable facts have become increasingly clear to the over burdened taxpayer. One is that a tax once levied by either state or federal authority will not quickly be abandoned. The other is that regardless of the inequalities of tax division as between the state or the federal government, it is the taxpayer himself who suffers the most.

NO ALIBI

It was pointed out during the campaign that the Republicans could make campaign pledges with delightful impunity because of the assurance that they could later present an alibi for non-fulfillment by pointing to the hostile Democratic control of the senate. But the election did not go their way, and the most obvious fact, as the 75th congress gets ready for business, is that the Democrats, who face only 88 Republicans in the House membership of 435, and only 16 in a Senate membership of 96, will have no alibi of any kind. Or, as Sen. Donahey of Ohio more graphically puts it: When you're sitting on top of the world there's only one way for you to fall.—Springfield Republican.

Chilton County High School News

(By Carlis Wyatt and Cecil Wilson)

New Equipment

The science department is duly grateful to Supt. Little and the county for the new laboratory supplies and new equipment. This act is one of progress and aid. Our high school boys and girls are thankful, and appreciate this very much, as it makes us second to none in tools to work with.

Supervisor's Visit

The state supervisor visited the Diversified Occupations Class a few days ago, and was well pleased with the work being done, as this is a course that helps students to train themselves for an occupation to follow through life. When they finish the course, they should be able to hold a job anywhere the type of work is being done.

Burns and Ivey

Mr. Burns and Mr. B. N. Ivey were recent visitors at the school and made splendid talks to the agriculture students about their work and how they might improve it. They also gave splendid talks to the boys who belong to the Calf Club; these speeches were pertaining to animal husbandry. The students and faculty were glad to have them visit our school.

Major Bowes Amateur Program

The school is sponsoring a Major Bowes program to raise funds for athletic equipment. There will be three cash prizes to be given to the three best performers. Anyone in the community is invited to fill in an application blank, which may be obtained from Mr. Hicks, school principal. The program will be given March 5, and the exact hour will be announced later.

Principal Absent

Prof. Hicks, principal, will be absent from Friday, the 19th, through Wednesday, 24th. He will be attending the National Educational Association, which will be held at New Orleans.

Four New Students Taking Course

Sports

The following boys have received letters for playing the required number of quarters on the football squad this season: Frank Hogan, Morris Mims, Morris Johnson, J. L. Littlejohn, Maurice Thornton, Clark Headley, Windol Bean, Harold Lawrence, Carl McDowell, Harvey Armstrong, Ermon Johnson, Marshall Lee Ware, Ted Reynolds, Clive Aldridge, J. Reed Thompson, Horace Vinson.

These letters are made up of the school colors, gold letters on a background of blue. It is a distinct honor to receive one of these letters.

The school had an election a few weeks ago, when it was voted to contiue the custom of putting forth a football team. A number of boys agreed to come out for football next fall, provided their weight is sufficient.

Montevallo High defeated our basket ball team at the high school gym last Wednesday night in a fast game, 30 to 20. The two teams were fairly evenly matched in height and weight, but Montevallo managed to eke out a win over the boys.

C. C. H. S. lost to Maplesville in our gym Friday night in a close and hard fought game, 32 to 26. It was a good game, with both teams playing good basket ball.

Even though the first team has lost its last two games, the second team has been coming along nicely. They played Thorsby Junior High here last Friday night, winning by the score of 34 to 22. We have not heard much from the second team, but we feel that they have done much in helping the coach with the first team.

There will be only two more games before the tournament, these to be at the high school gym on February 17 and 19, both to start at 7:30 p.m. Admission will be 10c and 20c. Everyone is invited.

PLEASANT HILL

Last Sunday was our regular day for preaching, but our pastor, Rev. L. D. Nonely, was ill and could not be present. He has been sik for several weeks.

Our Sunday school needs to improve very much. We hope everyone will come back and help.

Last Sunday was our regular singing afternoon, and we had a large crowd and a good singing, with the help of Oak Grove singers and quartet, Center Hill, Union Grove and Mt. Zion singers.

Mr. and Mrs. Fronnie Northcutt spent the week end at the home of Rev. and Mrs. J. R. Cost.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Robinson and little son, Tom Julian, of Clanton, spent the week end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Cleckler.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Sammons and three sons, Bill, Dutch and Celton, Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Arledge, Mr. Frank McMullin, Mr. Cecil Mooney, and Mr. Hobson Cost all spent a while Saturday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Cleckler.

Mr. and Mrs. Buddie Davis and son of Siluria were guests of Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Martin last Sunday.

Mr. Cecil Sammons, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Sammons, is in a CCC camp at Saxton, Pa.

We hope all the singers will be with us next second Sunday.

Everyone try to come to Sunday school next Sunday. We hope to have some new members, or perhaps a return of some who have been missing.

ORGANIZING AN ALABAMA WILDLIFE FEDERATION

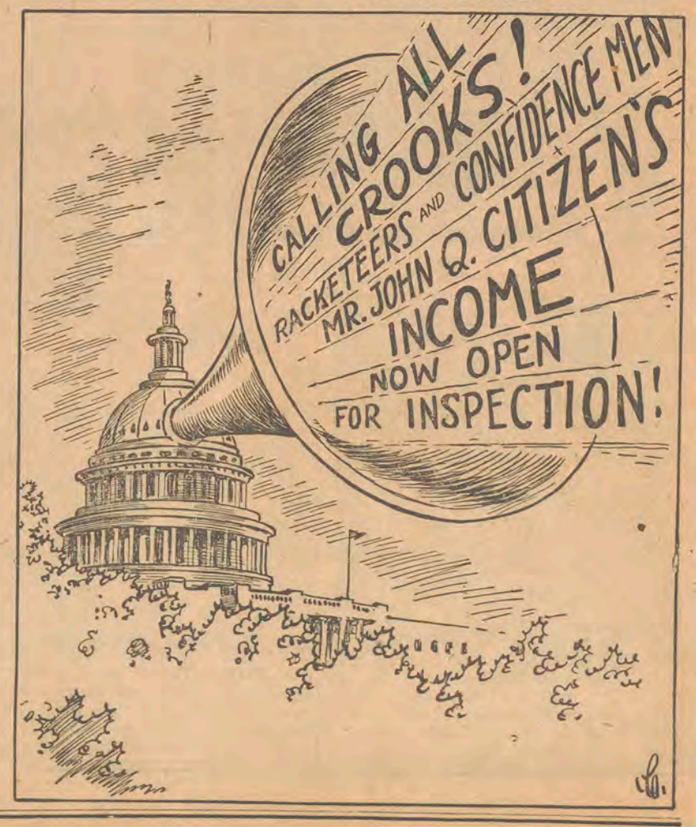
Montgomery, Ala.—More than three score outstanding conservation leaders will gather at the Jefferson Davis Hotel here at 11 a. m. Monday for the purpose of organizing an Alabama Wildlife Federation.

These leaders will be the chairman of the 67 county conservation councils which have been established by the State Conservation Department during the last year as units in President Roosevilt's far-flung program to develop and preserve the Nation's wildlife.

Organization of the councils was begun last February shortly after the return of I. T. Quinn, State Conservation Commissioner, from a Washington conference of national wildlife leaders called by Mr. Roosevelt to set his plan in motion.

The work of organizing the counties was assigned to Thomas A. Ford, State Conservation Chairman for the Junior Chamber of Commerce, and to date approximately 60 of the 67 counties have permanent organizations. Temporary councils have been organized in the other counties with the exception of Russel.

After the State Federation has been duly organized, officers elected and by-laws adopted, this body will become affiliated with the General Wildlife Federation which was set up on a temporary basis at last year's Washington conference. At a meeting in St. Louis on March 14, the General Federation will be permanently organized and through the State and County units will undertake to carry out the Roosevelt program.



Commissioner Quinn, as chairman of Region Four of the General Federation, called the State meeting and announced that it is imperative that each council chairman be present to assist in launching the new federation.

MACHINERY REPAIR IS IMPORTANT JOB

Auburn, Ala.—A most important job on Alabama farms at this time of the year is getting farm machinery ready for work before the spring rush begins, advises J. B. Wilson, engineer of the Alabama Extension Service. The first step is to inspect all machinery carefully, and make an inventory of repairs needed and the parts to be replaced.

Parts should be ordered as early as possible so they will arrive before the machines must be used, he explains, and the repair work scheduled so that the machinery to be used first will be repaired first.

heard, everyone seeming satisfied in every way with their impartial treatment of all contestants.

The day was not without its curiosities. There were at least two events which might make Ripley's famous Believe-It-Or-Not column.

The first of these was that Haynes, captain of the Mignon team, made a point for his team at a time when he was not even in the game. That is a poser. This came about when, in the Mignon-Red Diamond game, through mistake, a Red Diamond man shot a foul goal in the Mignon goal. The rules of the game provide that in such rare instance, the point made shall be credited to the captain of the team at whose goal the point was made. Hence, Haynes, captain of the Mignon team, although not in the game at the time, received the point.

The other was the fact that the final game, Mitchell Dam vs. Bevelle A, was the 13th game of the day, began on the 13th hour of the tournament, and was played on the 13th day of the month.

Below is given a short sketch of each game, as well as line-ups and individual scores:

Maxwell Field 41—Buck Creek 29

Maxwell Field and Buck Creek opened the tournament with a rousing game. Buck Creek was leading at the end of the first half, 15 to 14, but Maxwell Field came back strong in the last half and won by a 12 point margin.

Line-up:

Maxwell Field 41—Bethune 10, Copelan 4, Raines 9, Popwell 6, Robinson, and Anderson.

Buck Creek 29—Holley 5, Avery 14, Evans 4, Slagle 5, Payne, Long 2, Carter, Boos 6.

Marvel 11—Al O'Brien 4, Grill 3, D. Findley 4, Aubrey O'Brien, E. Findley, Cramer.

Bevelle Night Hawks 39—Enterprise 22

With Kerley setting the pace, the Bevelle Night Hawks defeated Enterprise in the second game of the day. Kerley scored 16 points, while Holley, Avery and Evans were also high scorers for the Night Hawks.

Enterprise was leading at the end of the first half, 13 to 12, but the Night Hawks came back strong in the last half and won by a 17 point margin.

Line-up:

Bevelle Night Hawks 39—Holley 5, Avery 14, Evans 4, Slagle 5, Payne, Long 2, Carter, Boos 6.

Enterprise 22—Al O'Brien 4, Grill 3, D. Findley 4, Aubrey O'Brien, E. Findley, Cramer.

Bevelle A 36—Mignon 19

The Mignon team, tired from its hard fight with Sand Mountain, was a set-up for Bevelle A. The Alexander City team scored almost at will, with the Mignon team putting up a game fight, although hopelessly outclassed.

Holley led the Bevelle team with 12 points, closely pushed by Dock Baker with 12. Mayfield put up a good guard game, and Dutch Baker gave a nice exhibition of ball passing.

Bethune led the attack for the Miners with 10 points, and was a thorn in the side of the Cardinals all the way; this lad was not so impressive in his play, yet he put up a good consistent game, with no bad spots and no high lights. Raines, brilliant center for the Miners, scored only 9 points in this game.

The line-up:

Mitchell Dam 41—W. Baker 6, Cobb 13, Ross, Mayfield 10, and V. Baker 12.

Red Diamond 29—Bethune 10, Copelan 4, Raines 9, Popwell 6, Robinson, and Anderson.

Don't Neglect Them!

Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure.

When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out.

Frequent, scanty or burning passages may be further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance.

The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Use Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are endorsed the country over. Insist on Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

DISBURSEMENT CONTROL

Former Comptroller General McCarl rightly protests the Brownlow Committee's recommendation that the settlement of accounts and the supervision of administrative accounting systems be brought under the executive branch of the government — specifically, under the treasury department.

Such a system, as Mr. McCarl declares, would emasculate our independent accounting system and bring into question the authority of congress to safeguard and prescribe the use to which funds shall be put.

Certainly open to debate, if not to instant dispute, is the committee's dogmatic assertion that the control of expenditures is an executive function.

The best authorities on budgetary and accounting practice have consistently regarded the general accounting office as an adjunct of the legislative branch, having much the same relation to congress as the bureau of the budget has to the president.

And there seems to be very little ground for dispute that the office of comptroller general was created in the first place primarily for the purpose of making the accounting agency free from all presidential control, direct or indirect.

This was, of course, eminently consistent with the rule laid down in the Constitution that all appropriations should orignate in the House of Representatives, whose members are chosen directly by the people every two years.

For since congress is commissioned with control over the public purse strings, it was quite natural and logical for congress to establish a supervisory agency to see that executive spending agencies actually carry out the intentions of congress.

The Brownlow Committee, indeed, expresses favor for an independent auditing system. But there is no general lack of appreciation of the futility of locking the stable door after the horse has been stolen. And a check-up after the money has been spent canot be nearly so effective to prevent illegal dissipation of funds as a system which acts in advance to forestall unauthorized expenditures. — Ft. BALANCING THE BUDGET

The recent anouncement of Chairman Pat Harrison, of the Senate Finance Committee, that there absolutely will be no increase in taxes comes as a welcome assurance to Americans generally. Sen. Harrison, one of the two men charged by the president with a congressional survey of the nation's tax structure, said the budget will be balanced in the 1938 fiscal year if congress economizes and revenues continue to mount.

The senator's forecast was bolstered by a continued improvement in the treasury revenue outlook. Informal estimates reveal the possibility that income from taxes may rise to $6,000,000,000 for the present fiscal year, as against $4,115,956,000 for 1936, and $3,800,467,000 for 1935.

Such assurance from a high administration official is doubly welcome to American industrialists. The nation's business leaders have long contended that a balanced budget and a clear cut stand on tax matters is a prime requisite to recovery. No business man can plan for the future with any assurance as long as the threat of confiscatory taxes and an unbalanced budget hangs over his head.

If the statement of the senate committee chairman represents the studied determination of the administration America has taken another long pression.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

Lincoln's birthday anniversary is just past. Those who have not done so recently might do well to read the few simple sentences penned by the Emancipator, himself, for a friend and admirer, J. W. Fell, in 1859, and usually referred to as Lincoln's autobiography. Nothing better illustrates the inherent modesty, the simplicity and honesty of the man than these few words from his own pen.

Written at a time when Lincoln had gained more than a state-wide reputation and was being seriously considered as a candidate for president of the United States, the Illinois statesman made no effort to gloss over the humble events of his early life. It is to be noted that he recounted the fact that the families of both his father and mother were not distinguished and that no successful effort had yet been made to connect his father with the more prominent Lincoln family of New England. His grandfather was killed by the Indians, but although it might have been easy to make this ancestor a hero of warfare with

A recent summary issued by the United States treasury department serves again to call notice to the extent of overlapping taxation imposed by the federal and state governments and once more brings up the query: Where will it all end?

According to this summary, in 1935 the federal government collected $2,271,400,000 from six tax sources—estates and inheritances, individual incomes, gasoline, liquor and tobacco. From these same six sources, the various states withdrew $1,049,900,000—a total burden to the nation's taxpayers on these six sources alone of over three and a quarter billion dollars.

The problem is one of growing seriousness, yet its practical solution is as yet far from clear. There is no agreement between the federal and the various state governments regarding what type of taxes ought to be reserved exclusively to the federal government. There is no agreement regarding the equitable division of any tax. heard, everyone seeming satisfied in every way with their impartial treatment of all contestants.

The day was not without its curiosities. There were at least two events which might make Ripley's famous Be. eve-It-Or-Not column.

The first of these was that Haynes, captain of the Mignon team, made a point for his team at a time when he was not even in the game. That is a poser. This came about when, in the Mignon-Red Diamond game, through mistake, a Red Diamond man shot a foul goal in the Mignon goal. The rules of the game provide that in such rare instance, the point made shall be credited to the captain of the team at whose goal the point was made. Hence, Haynes, captain of the Mignon team, although not in the game at the time, received the point.

The other was the fact that the final game, Mitchell Dam vs. Bevelle A, was the 13th game of the day, began on the 13th hour of the tournament, and was played on the 13th day of the month.

Below is given a short sketch of each game, as well as line-ups and individual scores:

Maxwell Field 41—Buck Creek 29

Maxwell Field and Buck Creek opened the tournament with a mediocre voted the entire last half in saving its strength and polishing up its pass work.

Time after time the winners worked the ball in under the basket for an easy crip shot, only to toss it out to center and repeat the passing process all over again. They shot only 11 points in the last half, when from appearances they might have scored at will.

Grill, Marvel captain, built up much sentiment in his favor for consideration for the best sportsmanship medal, and ran Haynes a close second for this honor. Hopelessly outclassed, the plucky Marvel captain would not allow that good loser grin to be wiped off his face.

The line-up:

Bevelle A 36—Holley 5, Avery 14, Evans 4, Slagle 5, Payne, Long 2, Carter, Boos 6.

Marvel 11—Al O'Brien 4, Grill 3, D. Findley 4, Aubrey O'Brien, E. Findley, Cramer.

Bevelle Night Hawks 39—Enterprise 22

With Kerley setting the pace, the Bevelle Night Hawks defeated Enter-Cardinals with 13 points, closely pushed by Dock Baker with 12. Mayfield put up a good guard game, and Dutch Baker gave a nice exhibition of ball passing.

Bethune led the attack for the Miners with 10 points, and was a thorn in the side of the Cardinals all the way; this lad was not so impressive in his play, yet he put up a good consistent game, with no bad spots and no high lights. Raines, brilliant center for the Miners, scored only 9 points in this game.

The line-up:

Mitchell Dam 41—W. Baker 6, Cobb 13, Ross, Mayfield 10, and V. Baker 12.

Red Diamond 29—Bethune 10, Copelan 4, Raines 9, Popwell 6, Robinson, and Anderson.

Bevelle A 36—Mignon 19

The Mignon team, tired from its hard fight with Sand Mountain, was a set-up for Bevelle A. The Alexander City team scored almost at will, with the Mignon team putting up a game fight, although hopelessly outclassed.

Holley led the Bevelle team with 12

Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure.

When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out.

Frequent, scanty or burning passages may be further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance.

The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Use Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are endorsed the country over. Insist on Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

DISBURSEMENT CONTROL

Former Comptroller General McCarl rightly protests the Brownlow Committee's recommendation that the settlement of accounts and the supervision of administrative accounting systems be brought under the executive branch of the government — specifically, under the treasury department.

Such a system, as Mr. McCarl declares, would emasculate our independent accounting system and bring into question the authority of congress to safeguard and prescribe the use to which funds shall be put.

Certainly open to debate, if not to instant dispute, is the committee's dogmatic assertion that the control of expenditures is an executive function.

The best authorities on budgetary and accounting practice have consistently regarded the general accounting office as an adjunct of the legislative branch, having much the same relation to congress as the bureau of the budget has to the president.

And there seems to be very little ground for dispute that the office of comptroller general was created in the first place primarily for the purpose of making the accounting agency free from all presidential control, direct or indirect.

This was, of course, eminently consistent with the rule laid down in the Constitution that all appropriations should orignate in the House of Representatives, whose members are chosen directly by the people every two years.

For since congress is commissioned with control over the public purse strings, it was quite natural and logical for congress to establish a supervisory agency to see that executive spending agencies actually carry out the intentions of congress.

The Brownlow Committee, indeed, expresses favor for an independent auditing system. But there is no general lack of appreciation of the futility of locking the stable door after the horse has been stolen. And a check-up after the money has been spent canot be nearly so effective to prevent illegal dissipation of funds as a system which acts in advance to forestall unauthorized expenditures. — Ft. Wayne News-Sentinel.

BALANCING THE BUDGET

The recent anouncement of Chairman Pat Harrison, of the Senate Finance Committee, that there absolutely will be no increase in taxes comes as a welcome assurance to Americans generally. Sen. Harrison, one of the two men charged by the president with a congressional survey of the nation's tax structure, said the budget will be balanced in the 1938 fiscal year if congress economizes and revenues continue to mount.

The senator's forecast was bolstered by a continued improvement in the treasury revenue outlook. Informal estimates reveal the possibility that income from taxes may rise to $6,000,000,000 for the present fiscal year, as against $4,115,956,000 for 1936, and $3,800,467,000 for 1935.

Such assurance from a high administration official is doubly welcome to American industrialists. The nation's business leaders have long contended that a balanced budget and a clear cut stand on tax matters is a prime requisite to recovery. No business man can plan for the future with any assurance as long as the threat of confiscatory taxes and an unbalanced budget hangs over his head.

If the statement of the senate committee chairman represents the studied determination of the administration America has taken another long pression.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert)

Lincoln's birthday anniversary is just past. Those who have not done so recently might do well to read the few simple sentences penned by the Emancipator, himself, for a friend and admirer, J. W. Fell, in 1859, and usually referred to as Lincoln's autobiography. Nothing better illustrates the inherent modesty, the simplicity and honesty of the man than these few words from his own pen.

Written at a time when Lincoln had gained more than a state-wide reputation and was being seriously considered as a candidate for president of the United States, the Illinois statesman made no effort to gloss over the humble events of his early life. It is to be noted that he recounted the fact that the families of both his father and mother were not distinguished and that no successful effort had yet been made to connect his father with the more prominent Lincoln family of New England. His grandfather was killed by the Indians, but although it might have been easy to make this ancestor a hero of warfare with

A recent summary issued by the United States treasury department serves again to call notice to the extent of overlapping taxation imposed by the federal and state governments and once more brings up the query: Where will it all end?

According to this summary, in 1935 the federal government collected $2,271,400,000 from six tax sources—estates and inheritances, individual incomes, gasoline, liquor and tobacco. From these same six sources, the various states withdrew $1,049,900,000—a total burden to the nation's taxpayers on these six sources alone of over three and a quarter billion dollars.

The problem is one of growing seriousness, yet its practical solution is as yet far from clear. There is no agreement between the federal and the various state governments regarding what type of taxes ought to be reserved exclusively to the federal government. There is no agreement regarding the equitable division of any tax. For example, the federal government taxes the individual up to 75 per cent of his income and the state government comes along and taxes his income some more.

The day was not without its curiosities. There were at least two events which might make Ripley's famous Be. eve-It-Or-Not column.

The first of these was that Haynes, captain of the Mignon team, made a point for his team at a time when he was not even in the game. That is a poser. This came about when, in the Mignon-Red Diamond game, through mistake, a Red Diamond man shot a foul goal in the Mignon goal. The rules of the game provide that in such rare instance, the point made shall be credited to the captain of the team at whose goal the point was made. Hence, Haynes, captain of the Mignon team, although not in the game at the time, received the point.

The other was the fact that the final game, Mitchell Dam vs. Bevelle A, was the 13th game of the day, began on the 13th hour of the tournament, and was played on the 13th day of the month.

Below is given a short sketch of each game, as well as line-ups and individual scores:

Maxwell Field 41—Buck Creek 29

Maxwell Field and Buck Creek opend the tournament with a mediocre game, with the Fliers building up a nice reserve in the first half to keep them safe, while Buck Creek was holding them about even in the last half. The count was 25 to 14 at the half, but Buck Creek scored 15 points in the last half to 16 for the winners.

Newell and Nelms led for Maxwell Field with 10 points each. Massey, spark plug of the Buck Creek team, led his mates and the field with 11.

The line-up:

Maxwell Field 41—Newell 10, Tozzi 6, Nelms 10, Mabile 2, Smith 3, Layne 2, Runnels 4, Ketcherside 4.

Buck Creek 29—Massey 11, Thorpe 5, Thornton 4, Robinson 5, Amos 4, H. Fike, and M. Fike.

Calera 57—Sycamore 47

In the second game, Calera took the measure of Sycamore, 57 to 47. Cook and Martin led the winners, with Roberson and Cox doing most of the firing for the losers.

Findley played a jam-up game at guard for Calera, as did Welch for Sycamore. The Sycamore team presented the biggest player in the tournament—the 293 pound Pete Franklin, at center.

Long, said to be a member of a varsity college team, was ruled ineligible for play in the tournament; he was a member of the Sycamore team, and a different player from the Long whose name appears in the Bevelle A line-up. One tournament rule was that no player could be a member of a college varsity or freshman team.

The line-up:

Calera 57—Cook 16, Martin 17, Warren 12, Findley 7, Collins 5, and Jones.

Sycamore 47—Roberson 15, Blankenship 7, Franklin 2, Cox 16, Welch 7.

Bevelle A 36—Marvel 11

Marvel had the ill luck to draw what proved to be the class of the tournament for its first round game, and was easily beaten by Bevelle A, 36 to 11. This one-sided game was lacking in interest. The Bevelle A team ran up a 25 to 3 lead in the first half, and devoted the entire last half in saving its strength and polishing up its pass work.

Time after time the winners worked the ball in under the basket for an easy crip shot, only to toss it out to center and repeat the passing process all over again. They shot only 11 points in the last half, when from appearances they might have scored at will.

Grill, Marvel captain, built up much sentiment in his favor for consideration for the best sportsmanship medal, and ran Haynes a close second for this honor. Hopelessly outclassed, the plucky Marvel captain would not allow that good loser grin to be wiped off his face.

The line-up:

Bevelle A 36—Holley 5, Avery 14, Evans 4, Slagle 5, Payne, Long 2, Carter, Boos 6.

Marvel 11—Al O'Brien 4, Grill 3, D. Findley 4, Aubrey O'Brien, E. Findley, Cramer.

Bevelle Night Hawks 39—Enterprise 22

With Kerley setting the pace, the Bevelle Night Hawks defeated Enterprise, 39 to 22.

This game was more interesting than the score would lead one to believe. Price, for the Night Hawks, and Weldon, for Enterprise, both turned in good guard games. Ray showed the way to his Enterprise mates in scoring, with 10 points.

The line-up:

Bevelle Night Hawks 39—Reynolds 2, Kerley 15, Blankenship 6, Roberts, Turner 3, Price 9, Wood 4, Sellers, and Graves.

Enterprise 22—Ray 10, Evans, Weldon 7, Broadhead 3, Vance, Silas 1, Yeargan 1, Griffin.

Mignon 41—Thorsby 29

Mignon ran up a 26 to 14 advantage over Thorsby in their game in the first half, and then settled down to hold the lead, playing even in the last half with 15 points each.

G. Baker led the winners and gave the crowd a hint of what was in store for them later by flashing through for 13 points. Ellison led the losers with 9 points, while G. Littleton was putting up a good guard game. Arnold (Bull) Littleton collected a brace of long shots.

Captain Haynes, of Mignon, turned in a good account of himself at guard, also.

The line-up:

Mignon 41—Downs 8, G. Baker 13, Parker 7, Stanton 4, Haynes 6, Smith, C. Baker 3.

Thorsby 29—C. Hayes 2, A. Littleton 7, W. Hayes 3, Ellison 9, G. Littleton 4, Cleckler 4, Pate, Hulsey.

Mitchell Dam 48—Maxwell Field 27

The first game of the second elimination round found Maxwell Field pitted against Mitchell Dam. The Fliers lost to the Cardinals, 48 to 27.

Nelms, Flier center, led his mates with 8 points, while Dock Baker was showing the way to the Cardinals with 18. Mitchell Dam led at the half, 19 to 7.

The line-up:

Mitchell Dam 48—Cobb 9, W. (Dutch) Baker 6, Ross 4, Mayfield 11, V. (Dock) Baker 18, and Jones.

Maxwell Field 27—Newell, Tozzi 4, Nelms 8, Mabile 2, Smith 2, Layne 7, Ketcherside 2, Reynolds 2.

Red Diamond Mines 56—Calera 22

Red Diamond, a team which no one seemed to know much about, put a formidable array on the court in defeating Calera 56 to 22, and served notice that they would be in there around the finish.

Cook and Findley led the losers with 7 points each, Findley putting up a fine guard game also.

Red Diamond flashed the class center of the meet, Raines, who was high point man for the tournament; he made 23 points in this game. Bethune, too, showed up well for the winners.

The line-up:

Red Diamond 56—Bethune 11, Copelan 12, Raines 23, Anderson 2, Powell 3, and Robinson 5.

Calera 22—Cook 7, Martin 4, Warren, Findley 7, Collins 4, and Jones.

Bevelle A 58—Night Hawks 16

The next game found the two Bevelle teams together, with the A team taking the juniors in tow, 58 to 16. The flashy A team seemed to get a great kick out of piling up a big score over their fellow townsmen.

Long and Avery led the A team with 12 points each, while Price turned in a good guard game for the losers, besides leading their scoring with his 6 points.

The line-up:

Bevelle A 58—Holley 4, Boos 9, Carter 9, Evans 8, Payne 4, Long 12, Avery 12, and Slagle.

Bevelle Night Hawks 16—Kerley 4, Reynolds, Blankenship 4, Price 6, Turner, Wood, Sellers 2.

Mignon 40—Sand Mountain 37

This game, as has been stated before, was the best game of the whole tournament by a wide margin. Sand Mountain led the Mignon lads at the half, 19 to 13, and this six points was the widest margin either team held at and point in the game. Most of the time the lead was only one or two points, first one side leading, then the other.

Captain Haynes and G. Baker led the Mignon attack with 12 and 14 points respectively. Critcher, Curry, A. Porch and York were best for the losers.

From the side line, it appeared that Sand Mountain had a fine, polished team, but when they found Mignon a few points ahead of them, they seemed to grow panic stricken, with the inevitable result that they overshot, and their pass work suffered. All in all, it was a great upset and surprise, both to the big blue Sand Mountain team, and to the spectators.

The line-up:

Mignon 40—G. Baker 14, Downs 8, Parker 6, Stanton, Haynes 12, Smith.

Sand Mountain 37—Critcher 9, Curry 6, York 6, Berry 4, Howard 2, A. Porch 6, B. Porch 4.

Mitchell Dam 41—Red Diamond 29

Mitchell Dam next hurdled Red Diamond 41 to 29, with Cobb leading the Cardinals with 13 points, closely pushed by Dock Baker with 12. Mayfield put up a good guard game, and Dutch Baker gave a nice exhibition of ball passing.

Bethune led the attack for the Miners with 10 points, and was a thorn in the side of the Cardinals all the way; this lad was not so impressive in his play, yet he put up a good consistent game, with no bad spots and no high lights. Raines, brilliant center for the Miners, scored only 9 points in this game.

The line-up:

Mitchell Dam 41—W. Baker 6, Cobb 13, Ross, Mayfield 10, and V. Baker 12.

Red Diamond 29—Bethune 10, Copelan 4, Raines 9, Popwell 6, Robinson, and Anderson.

Bevelle A 36—Mignon 19

The Mignon team, tired from its hard fight with Sand Mountain, was a set-up for Bevelle A. The Alexander City team scored almost at will, with the Mignon team putting up a game fight, although hopelessly outclassed.

Holley led the Bevelle team with 12 points, while Haynes led his men with 5. Although defeated, as they left the court, this game Mignon team heard their praises yelled by the appreciative spectators. The crowd likes a fighter, and it was with them in defeat just as it had been with them in victory earlier in the day.

The line-up:

Bevelle A 36—Avery, Holley 12, Long 6, Carter, Slagle 6, Payne 8, Boos 4, and Evans.

Mignon 19—G. Baker 4, Downs 2, Parker 4, Smith 1, Haynes 5, Stanton, Lackey 2, C. Baker 1.

Red Diamond 53—Mignon 19

With but 30 minutes rest, Mignon was called back to play Red Diamond for third place. Red Diamond played its usual consistent game, sure, flawless, and unhurried. The Mignon team had burned itself out entirely in the hard games before, and were literally dead on their feet, proving easy for the well rested Red Diamond team.

Raines broke his own scoring record, set earlier in the day, by marking up 27 points in this game. Captain Haynes of Mignon again led his team with 7 points.

Again the spectators were with their favorites, the Mignon team, and made the welkin ring every time the boys sank a goal.

The line-up:

Red Diamond 53—Copelan 8, Bethune 3, Raines 27, Popwell 10, Robinson 5.

Mignon 19—G. Baker 2, Haynes 7, Parker 6, Smith 4, C. Baker, Downs, and Lackey.

Bevelle A 46—Mitchell Dam 35

In the final game for the championship, Bevelle A defeated the Mitchell Dam Cardinals, 46 to 35, with Long and Holley leading the winners with 12 points each, and Dock Baker leading the Cardinals with 11.

Bevelle A put up a veritable stone wall defense, through which the Cardinals were unable to break with any degree of consistency. Several of Mitchell Dam's points were made with long shots. Long's accuracy was uncanny, and he missed very few shots.

The line-up:

Bevelle A 46—Avery 8, Holley 12, Evans 10, Slagle 2, Payne 2, Long 12.

Mitchell Dam 35—W. Baker 7, Cobb 9, Ross, Mayfield 4, V. Baker 11, Jones, Melton 4, and Chambers.

GANNETT NEWSPAPER OWNER IS AGAINST COURT CHANGES

Rochester, N. Y., Feb. 14.—Frank E. Gannett, publisher of the Gannett newspapers, and an ardent supporter of some of President Roosevelt's policies, anouncing the organization of a National Committee to Uphold Constitutional Government, made public today the Committee's form of petition to congress and a statement of its purposes.

Mr. Gannett flew from his winter home in Miami Beach for conferences in Washington and New York, and thence will return to Rochester to give his time to the work of the Committee, of which he is temporary chairman and treasurer.

The Committee's petition to congress is being distributed to individuals and organizations from coast to coast, to whom Mr. Gannett has written personally. Following is Mr. Gannett's announcement.

"Since I commented on President Roosevelt's proposal for startling changes in our Supreme Court, I have received commendation and assurance of support from various parts of the country. So many have urged me to lead a fight to preserve and protect the Supreme Court and our Constitution that I have been persuaded to join with others in the organization of a National Committee to Uphold Constitutional Government.

"The object of this Committee will be to help mobilize and coordinate individual and mass protest against the proposed undermining of an independent judiciary.

"Never in our history have the American people been so deeply stirred. It is not an issue for partisan politics. It transcends party, overshadows religious, racial, and all other dividing lines.

"Our form of government was set up as a protection against tyranny and autocracy. Our forefathers saw the necessity of having the three departments, legislative, executive, and judicial, kept separate and independent.

"If we permit one man to become the master of all three branches of the government and of the fundamental law, then we shall throw away our most precious heritage and shall have sounded the death knell of democracy.

"If all those who believe in our form of government will rise up and make their protest heard in Washington, the constitutional balance among legislative, executive and judicial departments of the government can be preserved.

"The National Committee will include outstanding Democrats and Republicans, liberals and conservatives. It will be representative of agriculture, business and labor, the rich and poor alike—for one has as much at stake as the other. It will include leaders in education and religion, and representative men and women of all professions.

ALABAMA CHURCH LEADERS GIRD FOR WET-DRY FRAY

Church leaders and dry groups throughout the State of Alabama are at work now on plans for an intensive crusade to keep the state in the dry column, following action of the Alabama state legislature, in passing a bill providing for a special repeal election March 10.

The measure, passed over the veto of Gov. Graves, provides that every county voting for repeal will automatically come under a state store liquor control system, regardless of the outcome of the state-wide vote. Counties voting against repeal will retain Alabama's 22-year-old prohibition law.

Sentinels of Health

Don't Neglect Them!

Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure.

When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out.

Frequent, scanty or burning passages may be further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance.

The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Use Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are endorsed the country over. Insist on Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

From a common cold
That Hangs On

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your cough, chest cold or bronchial irritation, you can get relief now with Creomulsion. Creomulsion not only contains the soothing elements common to many remedies; such as, Syrup of White Pine Compound with Tar, fluid extract of Licorice Root, fluid extract of Ipecac for its powerful phlegm loosening effect, fluid extract of Cascara for its mild laxative effect and, most important of all, Beechwood Creosote is perfectly blended with all of these to reach the source of the trouble from the inside. Creomulsion can be taken frequently and continuously by adults and children with remarkable results.

Thousands of doctors use Creomulsion in their own families as well as in their practice knowing how Creomulsion aids nature to soothe the inflamed membranes and heal the irritated tissues as the germ-laden phlegm is loosened and expelled. Druggists also know the effectiveness of Beechwood Creosote and they rank Creomulsion top for coughs because you get a real dose of Creosote in Creomulsion, emulsified so that it is palatable, digestible and potent for going to the very seat of the trouble.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs, chest colds and bronchial irritations and especially those stubborn ones that start with a common cold and hang on for dreadful days and nights thereafter. Even if other remedies have failed, your druggist is authorized to guarantee Creomulsion and to refund every cent of your money if you are not satisfied with results from the very first bottle. Don't worry through another sleepless night—phone or go get a bottle of Creomulsion right now. (Adv.)

State Capitol News

Montgomery, Ala.—Between 8,000 and 10,000 additional old age pensioners may be cared for by the Alabama Department of Public Welfare with tax receipts from the sale of intoxicants in state stores after March 10.

This forecast is based on the fact that 20 per cent of anticipated receipts is specifically earmarked for public health and welfare, and though considerable disagreement exists as to the amount of money likely to accrue from this source, the figure most often mentioned is $2,500,000 a year.

The question to be decided by the voters of each county separately on March 10, is:

Do you favor the legal sale and distribution of alcoholic beverages in this county?

If a majority vote in the affirmative, State liquor stores can be established in such county in any incorporated town or city, large or small, or if there is no incorporated town in such county, the liquor store will be established at the county site.

In addition to the liquor stores, sales of alcoholic beverages may be permitted in hotels and restaurants located in towns of 4,500 population and over.

Towns in which State liquor stores are operated will receive 20 per cent of the profits derived from the sale of intoxicants in such town. In the location of such stores, the governing body of the town will be consulted.

Counties which vote "dry" will continue under the present system, except that persons living in such counties may purchase alcoholic beverages in "wet" counties and bring such beverages into "dry" areas for personal use only.

STATE DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

Montgomery, Ala., Feb. 12.—Plans for a long-range campaign to acquaint Alabamians with the wide variety of products produced by workers of the state through a series of educational industrial exhibits were announced today by Robert R. Moore, State Commissioner of Labor.

He said his department immediately would start collecting and classifying the hundreds of miscellaneous manufactured products of the state into a series of permanent exhibits to be held at the State Department of Labor, but displayed in such fashion that they can be transported for the use of schools and clubs over the state.

Each exhibit, he said, would contain two only samples of each product, but photographs of manufacturing machines and processes, with detailed explanations of the way they are made.

IN MEMORY

In memory of my dear sister, Mary Jane Mims who passed through the lonesome valley of death, February 7.

Sister dear, we will miss you here,
God has called you home,
Never more to roam;
To immortal glory across the tide,
Heavenly mansions there to abide,
Your bright face no more I will see,
Until we meet in Heaven you and me;
Your memories to me are very dear,
In my heart I have no fear,
For I know you have lived a Christian here.
You have traveled the path our mother and sisters have trod,
Gone home to glory to meet God.
A life crown for you is won,
Your pleasures have just begun.
Up in that beautiful city of old,
To walk the streets of pure gold;
Where pain, sorrow and death will be no more.
When my eartly pilgrimage here is o'er,
Dear sister I will meet you on Yonderly shore;
Where the shining face of Jesus we will see,
Until then God abide with me.—
A brother, Oscar P. Mims.

Lesson for February 21

THE POWER OF JESUS OVER DEATH

LESSON TEXT — John 11:23-28, 32-44.
GOLDEN TEXT—I am the resurrection, and the life. John 11:25.
PRIMARY TOPIC — When Jesus' Friends Stopped Crying.
JUNIOR TOPIC — With Jesus at Lazarus' Tomb.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Power of Jesus over Death.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Power of Jesus over Death.

Life, even to the follower of Jesus Christ, has its hours of sorrow, suffering, and bereavement. While the Christian is not "of the world," he is "in the world," and here he must meet the problems of life, including the evils to which the flesh is heir because of sin.

The fact that Jesus is our friend and our Saviour does not exempt us from human sorrow, but it does assure us of the needed grace to bear the trial and to trust Him even in life's darkest hour.

Lazarus, the friend of Jesus, was sick. The home in which Jesus had found rest and fellowship was in deep trouble. Jesus was no longer in Judea. In haste word is sent to him of his friend's illness. But he does not come.

Why does he delay? Such is the heart-cry of thousands today who call on him in their hour of trouble. The purposes of God are beyond our ability fully to understand. We need but to trust him and abide his time. Notice that his failure to respond at once to the message of Lazarus' sisters did not mean that he had deserted them (11:4-6). Nor did it mean that he had denied them his help (11:7). Lazarus may have been dead before the word reached him. He may also have delayed in order that there might be no question about the resurrection miracle. And he may have tarried in order that their faith might be strengthened.

Above all, do not fail to notice that he came. He always does. Jesus has never failed any child of his. The time and the manner of his answer to our prayers may not conform to our opinion of what should have been done, but let us remember that we know only in part, he knows all. Let us trust him. Job in his darkest hour said, "Though he slay me, yet will I trust in him." (Job 13:15).

It is suggested that the lesson for today be studied and taught by considering three pairs of words giving cause and effect.

I. Death—Sorrow (vv. 32-35; also vv. 19-21).

Try as we may to temper its cruel blow, the fact remains that death is the enemy of man. It came into the world as the result of sin (Rom. 5:12), and only in Christ is it "swallowed up in victory" (I Cor. 15:54). Until the glorious day of Christ's returning when the redemption of the body will be complete (Rom. 8:23), death will still be the enemy which brings sorrow to the heart and tears to the eyes.

But let us not fail to notice that as the friends of Jesus we do not sorrow alone. He is with us. "Jesus wept" (v. 35) with Martha and Mary. He weeps with us in our trying hour. He is the "friend that sticketh closer than a brother."

II. Faith—Hope (vv. 23-28).

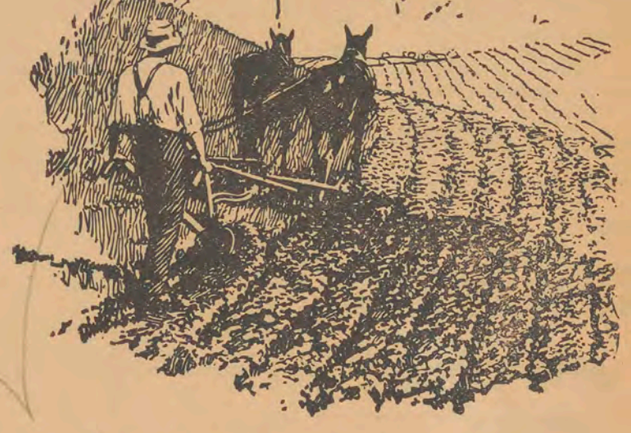
Those who believe in Christ have more than the comfort of his sympathizing presence—they have a sure hope. Read I Thessalonians 4:14-18. Sorrow and unbelief would becloud our faith and thus rob us of our hope. Martha needed to have her faith stimulated by the gracious words of the Lord, and then she triumphantly puts her hope in him as "the Christ of God." Once we recognize him as God, we have no hesitation in believing in his miraculous power.

III. Christ—Resurrection (vv. 25, 26, 38-44).

Majestic and authoritative are the words of Christ, "I am the resurrection and the life." He it was who gave life, for was he not "in the beginning with God"? And is it not said of him that "all things were made by him"? And Paul tells us that "by him all things consist." He is the only one who could say, "I lay down my life. I have power to lay it down and I have power to take it up again." (John 10:17, 18.) So it can rightly be said that if we have Christ we have everything—both in this world and in the world to come. But if we do not have Christ we have nothing. We are without God and without hope.

One can sense the urgency of the soul-winner's task, when this truth is known and realized.

Happiness and Love



Happiness is the legitimate fruitage of love and service. It never comes and never can come by making it an end, and it is because so many persons mistake here and seek for it directly, instead of loving and serving God, and thus obtaining it, that there is so much dissatisfaction and sorrow.

Life and Freedom

That life is only truly free which rules and suffices for itself.—Bulwer.

CHRYSLER — PLYMOUTH — INTERNATIONAL
CLANTON, ALABAMA

FROM J. H. JACKSON

Editor Union-Banner:

Well, I see the moon has gone into eclipse again. Now Mr. Moon, I don't think the people of the night should be without a light. I believe, too, that you were the guy that accused me once of being like David.

Well, I am proud to say that I am still like him in some respects. He says that blessed is the man who walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly, nor standeth in the way of sinners, nor sitteth in the seat of the scornful; but his delight is in the law of the Lord, and in His law doth he meditate day and night.

What a pity that the people can't elect God-fearing men who meditate in the law of the Lord day and night; who would make laws according to the law of the Lord. I see that the state is going into the liquor business. As I understand, if it ever has been a crime to possess or sell whiskey it is still a crime, according to the law of God. Now the State of Alabama has said for 20 years that it was a crime to sell or possess whiskey. Now it is going to do the thing it punished people for doing. In other words it is going to do what it said was a crime for the other fellow to do, and punished him for doing.

What do you think of such leadership? If it has been a crime for 20 years to possess or sell whiskey, it is still a crime. Then if it hasn't been a crime, I commend our leaders for repealing the prohibition law.

Let's study the law of the Lord and be governed accordingly, and not walk in the counsel of the ungodly. Don't think for a moment that you can do your dirty work and get by with it. "Be not deceived; God is not mocked; for what a man sows, that he shall also reap." You may deceive or fool men, but we cannot deceive God.

What is it going to profit you to gain riches and the applause of men and lose your own soul? Ezekiel says the soul that sins shall die, but if we do that which is lawful and right, we shall live. Of course he means the law of God, and not the law of the ungodly.

If I understand the way it will be fixed, a person may be a criminal in one county and go free in another county for the same thing. When conditions like this exist it appears to me that a knowledge of the law of the Lord has reached a low ebb.—J. H. Jackson.

RECALLS OLD BAR ROOM DAYS

West Palm Beach, Fla., Feb. 13.

Editor Union-Banner:

I notice that the voters of Chilton County will have a chance to vote wet or dry on March 10th. This question causes me to remember when Chilton County had bar rooms. My, my, what a time we had then. Men would spend all the money they had for whiskey and then ask the merchants to sell them something to eat on a credit.

The wets will say "we are losing the revenue," but the bootlegger will carry their moonshine whiskey in at the back door of the bar room and we will get no revenue on what they sell.

They say give us whiskey so that we can educate our children. I had rather my children go without an education than to have whiskey in Chilton County like it was when I was a boy. Maplesville was not the place for a decent woman to travel through.

There is whiskey now on every side in Florida. What a shame it is to see women and girls in a bar room and drinking like they do here.

Now, if the people of Chilton County want to stop whiskey, stop the buyer and it will go. For the sake of your children, grandchildren, and unborn, vote dry on March 10th. Yours for better times.—C. T. Walker.

Mrs. Edward Bialas and sons of Birmingham spent the week end here with her mother, Mrs. Annie Thacker.

Home Agent

HOME, FOUNDATION OF PEACE

The place of training for the young is preeminently the home. It is in the bosom of the family that these impressions are made, and that culture bestowed, which more than anything else, determine, under God, the character of the soul for time and eternity.

Home is the sacred refuge of our life. It has been said that incivilities in the home are like sand in the eyes and gravel in the shoes. No wonder they who have only sour looks and cross words, when they ought to receive loving sympathy and care, are easily lured to destruction.

Out from under flaming chandeliers, and off from imported carpets, down the granite stairs, there has come a crowd of children in this day, untrained, saucy, incompetent for all practical duties of life, ready to be caught in the first whirl of crime and sensuality. Indolent and unfaithful mothers make indolent and unfaithful children. Many a child goes astray, not because there is a want at home, but simply because home lacks sunshine. A child needs smiles as much as the flowers need sunbeams. Children look little beyond the present moment. If a thing pleases, they are apt to seek it; if it displeases, they are apt to avoid it. If home is a place where faces are sour and words harsh, and fault finding is ever on the ascent, they will spend as many hours as possible elsewhere.

Don't live in the back end of your house. The boys will prefer the saloon to the kitchen. Don't be afraid of the coal bill or the wood pile. It is cheaper to have a warm parlor than to pay liquor bills. Put books and papers on your tables instead of wine or cider. Clear brains will honor the family record more than drunkards.

Your children's bodies are of more value than fine clothes, lace curtains, or Brussels carpets, and their minds and souls are of eternal worth. Don't starve today, to riot tomorrow; don't hoard and scrimp for years, that you may be generous in your graves.

Nobody must be morally the worse for living under our roof, if we can possibly help it. It is our duty to make sure that the temptations to misconduct or intemperance are not left in one's way, or bad feelings suffered to grow up, or habits of moroseness or domineering formed, or quarrels kept hot as if they were toast before the kitchen fire.

Early impressions on the young mind are the most lasting. In colonial days children were especially taught to love their country, and the true principles of patriotism and good government were constantly stressed and impressed in every home. We have only to read the history of the lives of young men and women who were brought up under this kind of influence to satisfy our minds of the good results of these early lessons in patriotism.

UNION GROVE 4-H CLUB

Our Union Grove 4-H Club met on Thursday, February 2. After the program was rendered, our leader, Mr. Ivey, explained two or three contests that the county 4-H Club is entering. Several of our members decided to take part in the contest.

Mr. Ivey explained to our Club how to fertilize corn and cotton, giving in detail the kind and amount to use on each. He also explained to us the kinds of cover crops to use and the value of each.

The Club adjourned with the determination of giving more time to the preparation of our program.—Osmond Cleckler, reporter.

Mrs. L. E. Diefenderfer, Mrs. C. O. Lawrence, Mrs. T. C. McSwain, and Mrs. M. A. Gore will return Saturday from a visit to Mobile.

BOB JONES COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

This editorial is being dictated after having addressed the students of the Bob Jones College on the subject of "Daniel." One of the most dramatic pictures in all history is the picture of the uncompromising spirit of the hebrew children. These three young fellows were in a foreign land. It was a great occassion. The stage was set. Royalty was there. The "high brows" were present. The social leaders had gathered. The wealth of the empire was shown in the golden image which the king had set up. It was a great occasion. At the beginning of the music, every knee was supposed to bow. All bowed except the three foreigners. No greater courage has ever been recorded in the annals of history. "There are three foreigners here that will not bow," some of the natives said to the king. The foreigners were brought into the presence of the king. The king told them of the fiery furnace to which they would have to go. "We believe," they said in substance, "that our God will deliver us out of the fire, but whether he does or not, we will never go back on our God." There have always been some men who would not bow to false gods when the orchestra of hell plays.

It is possible for men to live right. Men do not have to do wrong. Enoch walked with God in a dark day in the world's history. There have always been a few characters who walked across the pages of history who refused to do wrong. It is a mistake that "every man has a price." Some men are not for sale. As long as there is one uncompromising unflinching, courageous, true blue, upstanding, out-standing, consecrated Christian man in a community, there is some hope for the community. God loves men like that. When Daniel prayed, Gabriel came to him and said in substance, I have been sent to you by Almighty God. As soon as you began to pray, God ordered me to come to you, and God said tell you you are beloved in Heaven. It is wonderful to be the type of man to whom God sends a message of love on the lips of an angel.

THOMAS Jr. 4-H CLUB BOYS

The Thomas Jr. 4-H Club met at Thomas Jr. High School Tuesday morning, February 9. A very interesting program was carried out by members of the club, about "Diseases and Parasites of Poultry." After this Mr. Ivey made a talk, and explained several contests which the 4-H club boys can enter. The meeting adjourned until next month.—Wilmer Driver, Reporter.

CCC CAMP BASKETBALL TEAM

During the past week the Blue Jacket quintette of company 3481 played and won four games. Maxwell Field 41 to 21, Maplesville 25 to 23, Calera 25 to 19 and the Weogufka camp 55 to 8. These wins ran the local's wins to twenty four games.

The team has a perfect record in the CCC league with six games won and no losses. They will go to Fort McCellan Saturday, February 20, to take on the strong Supply Company. They won the last game from the Supply Company 43 to 35. If they can win the game Saturday they will practically have the pennant in the bag.

Coach Walker will play any team any where on their return basis. They will play the Jemison High School at Maplesville Auditorium tonight. The Jemison team defeated the campers in the early part of the season but the campers have made great improvement and should make it hot for the Jemison team.

The men who are on the squad are: Perry Clay, Captain; James Langford, Captain; A. G. Roby and Bill Jones, Guards; Thomas Hayes and James Johnson, Centers; Lumon Hicks, Charles Rutherford, Mitchell Jones, and Floyd Barnes, Forwards.

THE L & N RAILROAD ORDERS MORE ALL-STEEL HOPPER CARS

The Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company announces the purchase on January 29, of 2700 all-steel hopper cars and 327 all-steel ballast cars at a cost of $6,600,000.

This equipment will be furnished by the Bethlehem Steel Company, the Pressed Steel Car Company, the Mt. Vernon Car Manufacturing Company, the Pullman Standard Car Manufacturing Company and the American Car and Foundry Company.

Work on a portion of the huge order will begin shortly and the cars will be placed in service as completed. All of the cars will be of the standard design of the Association of American Railroads. The 2,700 hopper cars, which are of a 50-ton capacity, will be used in hauling coal. The 327 ballast cars will be used most for hauling ballast for the railroad's track, with occasional service in the transportation of ore and coal.

Increased carloadings and the obsolescence of some cars of these types occasioned the purchase.

FISHING FEE BILL MAY BECOME LAW

Sportsmen Interested In License Plan To Aid Conservation

Sportsmen generally are believed to be interested in the Shell Toomer fishing license bill now before the legislature. A similar bill was defeated before on the grounds that the "doodler" class of fishermen could not afford the $1 fee, but the proposed law has been changed to affect only the rod and reel fishermen or those who use artificial bait.

The development of the sport of fishing in Alabama's fresh waters has been slow because of a lack of finances and the full cooperation of fishermen in support of the Toomer fishing fee bill appears to be one of the solutions.

The bill in full follows:

To further provide revenue for fish protection, propagation and distribution. To provide for license for fishing with rod and reel and with artificial bait. To provide for the issuance of said license and to whom issued. To provide for penalties for violation of the provisions of this act and for other purposes.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of Alabama:

Section 1. No resident of this state over the age of sixteen (16) years shall take, catch, kill or attempt to take, catch, or kill any fish in any of the public waters of this state in which fresh water fish appear by angling with rod and reel, commonly called fly bait, bait casting rod or trolling rod or by the use of any artificial bait, fly or lure without first procuring a fishing license and paying therefor the sum of one ($1) dollar.

Section 2. The license provided in Section 1 of this act shall be procured in the maner as is provided for procuring a hunting license and under the same regulations provided therefor.

Section 3. The revenue derived from the sale of resident fishing licenses shall be remitted to the commissioner of conservation of game, fish and seafoods on the first day of each month and by him shall be covered into the State Treasury in the game and fish fund as are the funds from the sale of hunting licenses and non - resident fishing licenses, and shall be used for the protection, propagation and distribution of food fishes in the public fresh waters of this State.

Section 4. Any person who violates any of the provisions of this act shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be punished by a fine of not less than $10 nor more than $25 for each offense.

Section 5. This act shall become effective on its approval by the Governor.

KUDZU SERVES FOUR PURPOSES ON FARMS

Auburn, Ala. — Alabama farmers should plant kudzu this year because it is available for hay production, for temporary grazing, for feeding green, and for controlling erosion, advises J. C. Lowery, extension service agronomist.

Kudzu should be set during this season of the year while it is dormant and should be fertilized with manure and about 200 pounds of basic slag or its equivalent per acre.

The usual way of propagating kudzu is by setting 2-year-old or older crowns. However, the Soil Conservation Service was successful in growing kudzu from vine cuttings last year, and Mr. Lowery is advising farmers to try a few cuttings this year.

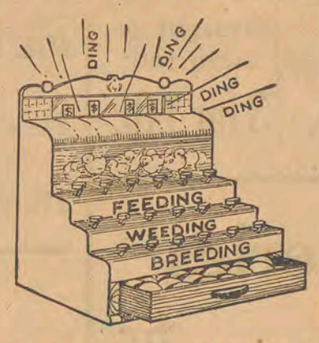
"Count Your Chicks Before They Hatch" Is Expert's Advice



Good Stock, Careful Culling, Good Feed Are Basic.

"Count your chicks before they hatch," says C. S Johnson, head of the Poultry Department of Purina Mills, "for it can be done by giving hens what they need for building eggs that will hatch.

"Greater hatchability means greater opportunities." Johnson points out. "Poultry raisers don't have a chance with any chick until he's out of the shell. Every chick that doesn't hatch is a lost opportunity—a lost opportunity at six weeks when the chick should be ready to launch into a real money-making bird, a lost opportunity next fall when those expected extra pullets are missing that would put extra dollars into your pocket. The profits made next fall are largely dependent upon the care given that 'spark of life' while it is still in the egg."

Three-Point Program

"Breeding, feeding, and weeding—those are the three legs of success in producing eggs that will hatch. To begin with, good stock is a prime requisite. No one can expect first-class hatching eggs from second-rate birds. A thrifty, vigorous flock of high-producing birds will lay hatching eggs that hold vast opportunities. Diseased, weak hens can't do that.

Feeding, weeding and breeding are three important steps in "ringing up" more profits.

"Culling is highly important in maintaining a profitable breeding flock. The poor layers, the weak birds, all diseased fowls, scrubs, and other abnormalities should be weeded out. Only the best birds should be kept. The old adage, 'Like produces like' still holds true. All roosters should be examined carefully to make sure they are in good health before mating them with the hens," Johnson advises. "Ten to fourteen days before eggs are saved for hatching the males should be placed with the hens. Two weeks are required for the sperm cells to travel up the ovary and fertilize the eggs."

Vitamins Give Vigor, Vitality

All confined breeding hens need cod liver oil in their ration to get a sufficient amount of Vitamin D to meet their needs. Vitamin D plays a big part in giving enough stamina to live after they are hatched. The ideal feed for breeding fowls also contains dried milk, for its Vitamin G content. Resistance to disease, colds and roup, can also be partially built up for the chick before he is hatched, if the breeding hen gets from the feed her needs for putting resistance into the egg. Many fowl diseases—roup, bronchitis, colds, laryngotrachitis—get a foothold in the flock because of a lack of Vitamin A in the ration. Common sources of Vitamin A for poultry are alfalfa, yellow corn and greens. Many times these are not available in amounts sufficient to supply all requirements. The result is low vitality, lowered production, and decreased chances of good hatchability. Eggs laid by hens with a Vitamin A deficiency hatch out thin scrawny chicks, with hardly enough strength to pip the shell, and many do not hatch at all.

Assure Hens Plenty of Vitamins

"Poultry feeds should contain an abundance of these all-important vitamins," Johnson says. "In Purina laying mashes we have stepped up the vitamin content by adding pur-a-tene, a rich Vitamin A concentrate. Pur-a-tene is a yellow-colored substance called 'Pro-Vitamin A.' By a patented process Vitamin A is made available in plentiful amounts to put extra vigor and vitality into breeding birds, baby chicks, and growing stock.

"You can 'count your chicks before they're hatched," Johnson promises, "if you follow a good feeding program that will provide adequate nourishment for the embryo before it ever leaves the shell, and for the first few days after pipping out"

LOCAL ORGANIZATION FORMED AGAINST LIQUOR LAW REPEAL

Mass Meeting at Courthouse Saturday Afternoon Attended By A Large Number of Citizens

As per the call published in last week's papers, a meeting of those favoring continuing the prohibition law in Chilton County and Alabama was held at the courthouse last Saturday afternoon. The attendance was much better than anticipated, and the spirit of the meeting was indeed gratifying.

A county organization was perfected to carry the fight against repeal into all parts of the county between this and March 10th. As chairman, Dr. S. J. Ezell was named. J. Z. Mims was elected vice chairman, and T. E. Wyatt was chosen secretary-treasurer. A substantial sum was collected from those present to make the fight with.

Speakings will be conducted at strategic points in the county to explain the issues involved in the election.

What's The Question?

Do you favor the legal sale and distribution of alcoholic beverages within this county?

That is the question that will be printed on the ballots in the special election on March 10.

You will vote either Yes or No.

Yes means that immediately the Liquor Control Board, recently set up, will proceed to establish state liquor stores in municpalities of the county, where liquor, wines and beer, and other malt and brewed beverages will be sold, wholesale and retail.

Duly qualified hotels, restaurants and clubs will be authorized to sell liquor in unbroken packages on the premises.

Licenses for the sale of beer and other malt and brewed beverages will be issued to such places of business as groceries, drug stores, and other like establishments by the Liquor Control Board.

No will mean that the present prohibtn laws will remain in force. Liquor and all other alcoholic beverages will be illegal whether for sale or in possession.

If after six months from March 10 voters desire to change from wet to dry or from dry to wet, a special election can be called by petition signed by 25 per cent of the voters in the preceding election.

The same question will be submitted.

If such special election is called, then no further vote can be taken on the question until two years thereafter.

CHRISTIANITY CITED AS NEED

New York, Feb. 18.—A plea of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., for a united Christian world to stem the rising tide of materialism, of selfishness, of shaken traditions, and crumbling moral standards gave impetus today to a nation-wide Methodist million-unit fellowship movement to obtain new members.

"The world today is staking its all on individualism—in men, in institutions and in nations," Rockefeller said last night on a program broadcast to congregations of more than 20,000 Methodist churches.

"Christ lived and taught altruism," Rockefeller said. ". . . in the period of kaleidoscopic change, when even the foundations of morality and religion are being challenged . . . It is a hopeful sign that many people are searching for a simple, fundamental religion as the way to peace, well-being and happiness."

DR. GRAGG IN MIAMI

We sincerely hope that Dr. Gragg improves fast and will be able to return home soon fine and fit again.

Will Be Back Soon

Another card from Dr. Gragg written Monday read: "Please say that I may be found in my new office at the Lorenza Popwell place. Be seeing you soon. Best regards to all."

THORSBY INSTITUTE GLEE CLUB SUNG AT BAPTIST CHURCH HERE

On last Sunday night the regular services at Clanton Baptist Church were dispensed with and instead the Thorsby Institute Glee Club put on a program of sacred songs lasting for about one hour. One reading "Evening At Rest" was presented by Mary Nelle Pate.

The program was opened by the entire club reading in unison the 121st Psalm, and prayer offered by Fred Blankenship. Solos were sung by Chester Maddox, Kathryn Foss and H. I. Collins.

A brief history of Thorsby Institute was given by the principal, Miss Helen C. Jenkins. The Glee Club and the entire evening's program was in charge of Miss Kathryn Foss, director.

Besides those named above, others taking part on the program were: Mr. William Sharpe, Bobby Minor, Robert Weems, Richard Petersen. Accompaniment was by Miss Foss and Miss Thelma White.

The program was splendid, and was enjoyed by a large audience. An invitation was extended the club to come back to Clanton again by the pastor, Rev. S. J. Ezell.

TAX INFORMATION

The passage of the law commonly known as the 2 per cent luxury tax law (House Bill 179 by Mr. Chichester) does not affect the 1 1-2 per cent gross receipts tax law (House Bill 30 by Mr. Ellis) so far as sales and receipts for the months of January and February are concerned.

The gross receipts tax (Ellis Bill) remains in force and all returns required under this law must be made for January and February. The reports covering the January business should be in the office of the State Tax Commission at Montgomery not later than the 20th day of February. Remittance covering the tax should be attached to the return.

Those merchants who have taken deductions for credit sales made during these two months will be required to keep a record of collections made on those credit sales and make reports and payments from time to time until all deferred payments of the tax have been met. It is important that collections on those deferred credit sales be kept separate from all other transactions for the 1 1-2 per cent rate will apply on these collections irrespective of any increase in rates on sales made after the new law becomes effective.

It is the desire of this Commission to administer these laws with the least possible inconvenience to the taxpayer and the co-operation of all concerned will be greatly appreciated.—State Tax Commission of Alabama, Henry S. Long, Chairman.

GRAND JURY REPORT

State of Alabama, Chilton County. Circuit Court of said County and State. To the Hon. Arthur Glover, as Judge of said court:

We, the Grand Jury, empanneled for the January Term, have completed our investigation of all matters that we felt needed our immediate attention, and herewith submit the following report:

During our investigation we have considered 18 cases and have examined 52 witnesses and are returning 10 true bills.

We have examined the fee book of the Probate Judge and find it neatly kept and correct insofar as we were able to ascertain. We have examined the bonds of the various county officials and find that they are ample for the protection of the public; and in our examination of the sheriff's account with the State for feeding prisoners we find that it is being kept in accordance with the law. On our examination of the office of the County Superintendent of Education we find that his books, records and papers are neatly kept and insofar as we ascertained were being kept fully in accordance with the law.

We have made a personal inspection of the county jail and believe it to be sufficiently safe for the keeping of the prisoners and find that the prisoners confined therein are being well fed and cared for with reasonable comfort.

We wish to thank the sheriff and his deputies and the bailiff for the prompt manner in which they secured witnesses that we needed to complete our labors, and for conveniences given us during our stay as Grand Jurors.

Now having complied to the best of our ability with your Honor's charge, we respectfully ask that we be dismissed until such time as your Honor may see fit and think proper to have us again convene.

This February 18th, 1937.

HOW WILL I VOTE—WET OR DRY—MARCH 10?

(AN EDITORIAL)

The current question of most concern to the people of Chilton County and Alabama is the repeal election on March 10. The matter is being discussed forcefully on both sides, and in view of the fact that the country as a whole has gone "wet" renders it somewhat debatable. The question of whiskey or no whiskey, in the humble opinion of this editor, is not debatable. To be sure, whiskey is a menace when permitted in any form, and based on the teachings from Holy Writ, "He that is deceived thereby is not wise."

Therefore, as stated above, there are points on both sides of the question; but before proceeding further with this editorial, I will say that I am not yet convinced that it is best to vote "yes" under any circumstances when the placing of my approval and the government's approval upon the sale and use of intoxicating liquor is under consideration. Therefore, I shall vote against repeal of the prohibition law on March 10.

There are a number of arguments that might be offered to substantiate the above stand against repeal. No one certainly can hope to promote temperance by slackening the restrictions on the sale of intoxicants. There is no argument about this point.

Those inclined "wet" argue that the only question involved is whether we tax liquor or not—that we will have liquor whether or not. But we contend that there is something else besides tax or no tax to be considered in this election. If there is nothing else involved, why is it that the big whiskey interests are crying for it? Who ever heard of a man or an industry asking to be taxed when there was no other motive involved? The whiskey industry of this country is for repeal and they are in favor of whiskey being taxed. The reason is that they know the increase in sales will cover the little matter of taxation many fold. It means more money to them—that is why they are for repeal. The whiskey interests care not a whit for the millions of additional souls that will be damned by the use of whiskey when the doors are thrown wide open. This matter should be and is of the greatest concern to the Christian people of our land and country.

Another argument that knocks into a cocked hat the taxation point is that recently offered by Governor Clyde R. Hoey of North Carolina. In his inaugural address he said: "You will never build a great state or a great country upon profits derived from the sale of liquor." Here in Alabama the "wets" even offer the argument that whiskey should be taxed in order to raise money for keeping the schools running. The question arises: "Will money derived from the free traffic of whiskey result in any permanent benefit when used to educate the children of Alabama?" Frankly we believe not.

This paper contends that Chilton County should remain in the dry column, even if every other county in the state throws open their doors to the whiskey interests. Let us keep the nefarious racket as far from us as possible. If it is forced upon us by somebody else, then our own conscience will be clear that our vote did not cause it.

And another thing, we should not throw up our hands and say that there is no use in continuing the fight. We will admit that it looks gloomy; but there is never any place to stop fighting. This country will rebel against the whiskey barons, and you may rest assured of that. And when that time comes let us be able to say that Chilton County has kept its balance and remained on the side of decency and common sense all the way through.

Do not be deceived, voters of Chilton County. Convincing arguments are being offered you on every side, but take the time to analyze them and you will be able to perceive the rank deception that is contained in every argument that the "wets" make. We cannot afford to be misled. Therefore, vote against repeal on March 10th. Let the forces of right never surrender.

ALFRED P. MURRAH MADE JUDGE U. S. DISTRICT COURT

Former Jemison Young Man Has Been Named To Federal Bench In Oklahoma

Alfred L. Murrah, who rode a freight train from Birmingham to Oklahoma to become a lawyer, eighteen years ago, now at the age of 33 has been named Judge of the U. S. District Court at Oklahoma City. He is the youngest federal Judge in the country.

Alfred Murrah was born in Oklahoma on October 27, 1903; but his mother died when he was a baby and his father brought him to Alabama to live. He spent his boyhood days with his father on a farm two or three miles from Jemison. He resided a while in Birmingham, where he now has several cousins. When he was 15 his father died, and he and his brother decided to return to Oklahoma.

Judge Murrah also has cousins in Chilton county. George Murrah, Mrs. Glenn Sessions, Mrs. Gerald Hubbard, of Collins Chapel, and Mrs. J. N. Dennis of Clanton are all first cousins of his.

When the young man arrived in Oklahoma he did not know what grade he belonged to in school, but talked the principal of a high school into admitting him. He finished the high high school course in three years, earning his way by milking six cows on a farm night and morning. He worked his way through the University of Oklahoma, graduating with a law degree in 1927. Since then he has practiced law in Seminole and Oklahoma City and became the head of a most successful law firm. He is known as "Fish" Murrah.

STATE ORGANIZATION OF DRYS FORMED AT MONTGOMERY TUES.

Prohibition leaders of Alabama assembled in Montgomery Tuesday, for completion of a state-wide drive to retain state prohibition laws in various counties at the March 10 county option election. Harry Denman, of Birmingham, president of the Alabama anti-alcohol alliance, presided over the gathering opening at 10:30 a. m., at the Dexter Avenue Methodist church that attracted prohibitionists from all sections of the state.

Various phases of the individual county campaigns in which the drys' fight is being concentrated, were discussed by prominent temperance leaders and church workers. Addresses followed devotional services conducted by Dr. F. M. Barnes, of Montgomery, executive secretary of the Alabama Baptist state convention.

Many Speakers Listed

Among those on the program for speeches were Dr. Allen W. Moore, Methodist presiding elder of the Bessemer district and Jefferson county campaign chairman, discussing "How to Organize Your County;" Mrs. Ida M. SALES TAX GOES INTO EFFECT NEXT MONDAY MORNING, MAR. 1

Tax Tokens Have Been Ordered; Will Be In 1-Mill and 5-Mill Sizes; Very Few Exemptions.

Montgomery, Feb. 23.—The controversial 2 per cent sales tax bill was signed today by Gov. Graves, and became a law.

The tax, which was passed by the House and Senate after a bitter fight from merchants, will become effective Monday, March 1. At that time it will replace the 1 1-2 per cent gross receipts tax.

The bill, expected to bring in revenues estimated from $4,500,000 to $7,000,000, was signed by the governor as only a few capitol attaches and newspaper men looked on.

The bill, immediately after signing, was sent to the office of Howell Turner, secretary of state. The bill will be printed by Mr. Turner's office and distributed over the state.

Henry Long, State Tax Commission chairman, said the state has ordered 25,000,000 tokens to be used in collecting the tax. The tokens will be 1-mill and 5-mill denominations. The 1-mill tokens will be made of aluminum and will have a circular hole in the center.

The 5-mill tokens will be made of brass, will be smaller than the aluminum tokens, and will have no hole in the center. Five million 5-mill tokens were ordered; there will be 20,000,000 1-mill tokens. The order cost about $15,000, Long said.

The commissioner said he had called a meeting of state tax agents here for Friday and Saturday. Delivery of the tokens is expected to have begun by then. The tokens will be sold to the agents and they will in turn dispose of them to merchants over the state.

The sales tax exempts the sales of gasoline, tobacco and cigarets, already subject to other levies. It exempts cotton in bales, both compressed and uncompressed, cotton seed, hay, and peanuts in ton lots.

It further exempts retail sales of coffee, salt pork, flour, meal, and sugar. New cars are taxed one-half of one per cent. Used cars are exempt.

THIRTEEN PRISONERS TAKEN BY COUNTY OFFICERS RECENTLY

During the past week a total of thirteen prisoners have been taken into custody by Sheriff Hardy and his deputies. Two have been recommitted to jail, charged with first degree murder. Two charged with public drunkenness and one for reckless driving were arrested but released on payment of fine and cost imposed in J. P. court. One man was arrested under the charge of driving motor vehicle while intoxicated; made bond and was released.

Two federal prisoners were placed in jail charged with violating the revenue law; they were released to the revenue investigator. One whose parole was revoked is in jail. Two violators of federal revenue law are in jail.

Two young men were turned over to the county officers by Highway Patrolmen Wates and Henley Monday afternoon. They were taken into custody by the latter officers near Montgomery just shortly before being placed in jail here. The exact charge had not been determined, but it will likely be some form of abduction. Both are in jail.

THERE IS NO ESCAPE

Montgomery, Feb. 17.—"Taxed from the cradle to the grave!"

That was the comment of Rep. Eugene (Bull) Connor of Birmingham upon learning yesterday that the two per cent sales tax bill passed by the legislature taxes not only nippies and bottles, but coffins as well. He voted against the bill.

EVERY TOWN HAS THEM

The Moulton Advertiser has a column with the heading—Back in 1899. Some truths that were self-evident in those days are still truths. Witness this excerpt:

Every town has a liar or two, there is also a smart aleck, some pretty girls, more loafers than it needs, a woman or two that tattles, an old fogy that the town would be better off without, men who stand on street corners and make remarks about women, a man who laughs an idiotic laugh every time he says anything, scores of men with the caboose of their pants worn smooth as glass, men who can tell you all about how the war question should be settled, and how to run other people's business, but have made total dead failures of their own.—Andalusia Star.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by J. W. Fant, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County

PROGRAM PROPOSED FOR HELPING FARM TENANTS

Auburn. — President Roosevelt has submitted to congress a 7-point program for solving the farm tenancy problems. The program, proposed by a special committee on farm tenancy, follows:

1. Government purchase of good farm land for sale on liberal credit terms to selected tenants. Purchasers would have to pass through a trial leasing period not to exceed five years, would have 40 years to complete payment, and could acquire title in 20 years if their finances permitted.

2. Federal and state purchase and retirement of about 100,000,000 acres of poor crop land, and assistance to families moving from it to better farms. This would be carried forward at the rate of 2,000,000 to 5,000,000 acres a year.

3. Modest loans to prevent small farm owners from slipping into tenancy and to help tenants, croppers, and farm laborers to increase their standards of living. The committee said about 1,300,000 tenant and cropper families and members of other groups of disadvantaged farm workers need such federal assistance.

4. A federal windfall tax to take a large percentage of profits from sales of land made within three years after its purchase. This was proposed as a means to discourage land booms ond to encourage families to stay on and develop one farm.

5. State legislation to improve the general leasing system and provide compensation to tenants for property improvements they make.

6. Construction and operation of decent places to live for itinerant farm laborers.

7. Creation of a farm security administration, under the Secretary of Agriculture, to direct the federal program. A farm security corporation, to direct the federal program. A farm security corporation would handle legal transactions concerning purchase and sale of land, stock and equipment, and the making of loans.

TWO BEST FERTILIZERS FOR COTTON ARE NAMED

The Alabama Experiment Station has found that the two best ways for Alabama farmers to fertilize their cotton are:

(1) 400 to 600 pounds of 6-8-4 per acre. This does not need to be side dressed. To insure best stands it should be applied and bedded on 10 to 14 days before planting time.

(2) 400 to 600 pounds of 3-8-5 or 3-10-3 side dressed with 100 to 150 pounds of nitrate of soda or calcium nitrate per acre, or other suitable nitrogeneous fertilizers. The 3-8-5 or 3-10-3 should be applied and bedded on 10 to 14 days before planting time and the nitrate of soda or calcium nitrate should be applied at first cultivation after chopping. However, if the right amount of side dressing is not applied to such low grade fertilizers as 3-8-5, much of the possible value of the phosphate and potash is lost.

Farmers may obtain a full discussion on the increases in production that may be expected from these two methods of fertilizing cotton by writing M. J. Funchess, Director of the Alabama Experiment Station, Auburn, or by asking the county agent for a copy of the report entitled Results of Fertilizer Experiments With Cotton and Corn in Alabama.

BRUSH AND BRIARS MAKE GOOD TEMPORARY DAMS

Auburn.—Save the brush and briars obtained when clearing land or cutting trees for fuel and fence posts, says O. C. Medlock, State Coordinator of the Soil Conservation Service in Alabama. Brush makes fine temporary dams in gullies. The soil which collects above these dams provides a foothold for vegetation which may be used to stabilize gullies.

Cash receipts of Alabama farmers during 1936 from the sale of principal farm crops, livestock and livestock products totalled $97,352,000—the highest figure of any year of the past four. This total does not include $6,546,000 received by the farmers of the state in government payments.

COUNTY AGENT TELLS WHEN TO TURN UNDER LEGUMES

Winter legumes should be turned under when the green tops of hairy vetch will weigh 12 to 15 pounds, or Austrian peas 15 to 20 pounds per 100 square feet in the average growth in the field, according to J. W. Fant, county agent.

Growers who have never made measurements of the green growth should measure plots 10x10 feet at several points, cut or pull the green vines about even with the surface of the ground and weigh the green tops from each plot. Several such measurements over the field will give a good idea of stage of growth that will furnish sufficient growth to turn. The legumes can be turned with any good plow at this stage.

Turning should not be delayed until the legumes have made extra growth. The crop that is to follow may be delayed, or drought may come. After turning, delay at least two weeks before planting the crop that is to follow.

Corn following winter legumes needs no further fertilization. Cotton following these crops should receive 50 pounds of nitrate of soda or its equivalent, 400 pounds super-phosphate, and 50 pounds muriate of potash at planting, with no additional fertilization.

OATS SHOULD BE TOP-DRESSED NOW

Oats should be top-dressed with nitrate of soda or its equivalent up to 200 pounds per acre the first of March, according to J. W. Fant, county agent, in reporting that an early application of nitrate is very important. Delaying top-dressing up to the middle of March or later results in a smaller increase in bushels of oats for each 100 pounds of nitrate used.

Because of scarcity of corn on many Alabama farms, it is important that all oats possible be produced. Top-dressing with nitrogen will increase the oat crops.

ABOUT THE LIQUOR QUESTION

To the Voters of Chilton County:

I would like to say a few words regarding this liquor question.

Let's carefully consider before we go to the polls. Weigh the matter. Think of principle. Some will say to legalize liquor in order to run the schools. Just like saying to our young generation: "You drink whiskey; it will do you good. It will help to educate you."

Friends, you already see little children toddling in rags and in need of food on account of whiskey. Then go to the polls and say give us more whiskey? The worst picture I ever saw is a so-called preacher who prays: "Our Father who art in heaven, hallowed be Thy name; Thy kingdom come; Thy will be done on earth," and then go to the polls and say—give me whiskey. How on earth could the kingdom come through legalizing liquor?

Friends, let's pray "Thy kingdom come," then look for it to come. I am for better government. A well wisher to all.—C. J. Moates, R 2, Clanton.

WHAT IS GOOD CITIZENSHIP?

The United States Constitution says, "All persons born or naturalized in the United States and subject to the jurisdiction thereof are citizens of the United States and the state wherein they reside." Citizenship is the state or quality of being a citizen.

The qualities of citizenship are many and varied. A citizen owes allegiance to the government of which he is a part, and is entitled to protection from it. A good citizen realizes that it is his duty to obey and defend the laws of the constitution, church, home, school and community. He uses his influence to help others also obey them because he realizes the need and use of so powerful a body of laws. He does everything for his country in order that it may be more prosperous and happy.

A good citizen understandes that he owes his country many other duties than allegiance. He respects the flag of his country at any time or place. In time of war, as in time of peace, he is willing to give his service to help mankind. He is willing to help when needed, whether it benefits him directly or not.

A good citizen is cooperative and useful to his community. He helps to promote progress of clubs for the betterment of his community and is willing to give at least a portion of his leisure time for the sake of others.

One of the things a good citizen thinks of is public health and safety. He feels that it is his duty to look or help look after the cleaning of the streets and the removal of accumulated waste, or any dangerous objects from the streets.

A very important duty of citizenship is observing the rules and regulations of the traffic officers, because failure to do this may cause the death or permanent injury of a citizen. Any careless person can drive a car at a dangerous speed, but a reasonable intelligent person can get his thrills in better and safer ways. A good citizen realizes that much unhappiness is caused from the killings and injuries that result through preventable accidents. The loss of life costs much whether it is estimated as money or happiness. A nation cannot be prosperous with unhappy people. "A nation is no stronger than the people it governs," is true of any nation. A good citizen understands the objective of education by becoming active in the campaign for safety in his home and in his community and through the nation.

The conservation of our natural resources require cooperation on the part of the citizens. A good citizen helps in such a campaign by using his influence to get others to help.

Thrift is a method of conserving our natural resources. Arthur W. Dunn, author of Community Civics, says "Thrift is good management of the business of living" and Thrift is the very essence of democracy." There are many reasons why a citizen should be thrifty. There must be thrift in earning, as well as spending money. It is a right as well as a duty of a citizen.

Since taxes are the only means of raising money for public upkeep and improvement, as roads, schools and drainage, the good citizen supports the tax program. Much of the tax money goes for the protection of health. Even the poorest citizen may be made rich in the benefits that he may enjoy while the cost is made proportional to his ability to pay. Cooperation among the citizen tax-payer is one of the most important things a citizen can do.

One writer said "The decline of home owership both in the cities and in the rural districts of the United States has been observed with considerate anxiety because of the effort upon our national welfare and upon citizenship of the country. It is the home-owner citizen's duty to encourage the tenant or home renter to be more interested.

A good citizen's speech is free from gossip and destructive criticism. Because a person is judged largely by his speech, he speaks calmly and concisely without effectation of speech. Even though he does not criticise others, he accepts criticism and profits by it. He develops so good an opinion of his neighbors that it goes far toward satisfactory friendship between him and them.

Walter E. Meyer, Editor of Weekly News Review in "Talks to Students" says, Snubbery is not only undemocratic but detestable. It should be avoided by every person who wishes to maintain the slightest shred of respect." Every citizen should sympathise with those who do not have as much as he. He should be so kind that they will not have the slightest chance to develop an inferiority complex. The firest citizenship in the world is that which is dedicated to the interests of those who need friendship.

A good citizen is loyal to the church. Religion is a means of control. The church does not exercise its control through government but through the influence of its own creeds, belief, and doctrines upon the conduct of their members. Conflicts in the church sometimes occur, but a good citizen takes part in these only to help settle the difficulties with the least trouble possible. A good citizen is true, loyal and sincere to God.

A good citizen is clean in thought and in deed. When he has an opportunity to do a good deed for someone, he willingly does it. He always puts his whole heart into anything he does. "Cleanliness is next to Godliness" is a motto he carefully observes. He helps make his environment clean because a clean environment makes the attitude of life better.

Things that are lovely, just, honest, pure, true and of good report are some of the thoughts of a good citizen.—Meta E. Grace, Home Demonstration Agent, Chilton County.

MAN in the MOON

GOAT HILL LEGISLATION

It has been several weeks since I have set myself down in front of my trusty (and rusty) old typewriter and proceeded to bang out a few lines for the readers of the dear old Union-Banner. The main reason I stopped in the first place was because things seemed to have slipped into some kind of rut—nothing to commend, nothing to strike at—and I get no kick out of merely passing the time of day or inquiring if the weather is too hot or too cold. And this so-called griping of mine will not be a regular affair in the future, either. Just now and then I intend to step in and have my say, get it out of my system, and maybe feel better after it is out.

To begin with, I have just gotten over another siege of flu. To you who have had it—you know how I feel; and to you who have never had it—you don't know how lucky you are, and what you don't know won't hurt you—not in this case any way.

Misery loves company, I have heard, and that, perhaps, is the reason it had to be my luck to read the doings of our Alabama legislature down at Goat Hill every time I have picked up a paper for the past two weeks. To follow the capers of that bunch of side-winders and financial greedy gripe-guts without losing one's fine status of mental equilibrium, one must find himself in one of three classes: (1) He may have given up hope of our legislators ever displaying another single ounce of common sense, and decided to take what comes and do the best he can, as nothing can be done about it; (2) he must have some tiny inkling in the back of his noggin' that maybe he will come in for a little of the graft gravy the boys seem so good at cooking up; (3) he may be as ignorant as a goat, and don't know or care what is going on down there; and on second thought, I wouldn't be at all surprised if this third class isn't the happiest of the whole lot. One thing I do know—any person who has anything, or wants anything, or who ever expects to have or want anything, expecting to get it by good honest work, can't keep from trying to burst his buckles with disgust at the manner in which these nincompoops hem and haw around over trivial matters (at $6 a day of your tax money) and then pitch in and pass one like the 2 per cent sales tax as slick as a peeled eel, and without anything like the thought they would put to eating a peeled eel.

I think it was John D. Rockefeller who once said that even an idiot could be a flaming success with all the money he needed and wanted to spend, but that it takes a mighty smart man to live inside his income and save a part of it. All of which applies very much to our state government. They have conceded that they are not smart enough to run the state government on the revenue it has been run with in the past—and their recent tax-raising antics give away for them their concession that they must surely be one grand outfit of governmental idiots who must have more and more money to make a go of it, where others have managed with less than they are now getting. Looking at the results of our illustrious legislators' labors, one must surely be a bit aroused at their audacity, and amused with their childish maneuverings.

I sincerely believe that right here in Alabama we can gather together some of the biggest prize packages of pure, dyed in-the-wool legislative idiots and crack-pots of any place on earth—one after another—with each one worse than the last (impossible as that may seem), and without a doubt the bunch we have there now is the crowning achievement of all time. It's curious. I know several of those fellows personally, and they seem like good sensible fellows. Single, or in groups of a few they no doubt are sensible, and can think clearly. But just let them get together under the big dome, with Bibb lashing them, and there is no way to predict what they will do.

When they get together and get the air of those musty old legislative halls all blue with their cigar smoke from all kinds of ropes that range from the best (direct from the governor's own supply) on down to the two-for's, until the place reeks to high heaven of old socks, rotton cabbage leaves, rotten onions, and a few other such articles of perfumery, and the whole mess on fire—there you have the perfect setting for the Alabama legislature to work in, under and through. In this type of environment, something comes over these erstwhile sensible fellows, and they can think up more crazy schemes, pull more dodges, and get around with more crooked maneuvers than any like body under God's great blue canopy, unless in some way they might be surpassed by that more numerous body of sons of wild jackasses now assembled on the Potomac.

And the way Gov. Bibb Graves—gallant Bibb, big mule Bibb, legionnaire Bibb, no liquor Bibb, no sales tax Bibb, and the plain old procrastinating, dodging, side-winding, bragging, evading Bibb we all know so well—the way he can wangle that bunch of weak-kneed tax-teat-suckers is something glorious to behold. The ease with which he can get those poor stooges to take the rap for his big ideas, in which he goes exactly reverse to his promises to the people of Alabama, and leave Bibb seemingly helpless to fulfill those promises (because his legislature carried it over him) is something else to behold.

And do they think they are fooling anybody? No, they know they are not. They know that anyone with one single brain as big as a peanut can see through the whole works; and little do they care. What does it matter to them? Above board Bibb is in the clear; on paper he has done his best; and no one can swear what goes on in the dark or behind closed doors.

Now such works are not at all becoming to the gentlemen who have been trusted by the people of Alabama to look after their legislative affairs—in fact they are dirty tricks, and from observation, his royal majesty, the governor cannot be excepted in this passage. It may be big politics, it may be smooth work, and it may prove that there are some smart boys down there who can waggle words and make them say what they do not mean—but that is not all. It proves that down Goat Hill way some of the rottenest, crookedest and meanest tricks ever to grace (or disgrace) the records and statute books of the State of Alabama are just being perfected. And what perfection!

Let's look back a little. How was the late liquor bill passed? Now don't misunderstand. I don't care if a man takes a drink and goes on his way. I don't care if he wants to drink a quart and spend the night in a gutter. If that man wants to make a complete fool of himself and spend his every moment in a drunken stupor, that is all right with me, too. That's his business—not mine. But when he teas up and comes down the pike at about 60 per, whangs into me, and goes sailing through the air with the greatest of ease, and me along with him—then that's my business, only after he has done his damage it is too late to shut him up. I realize, as does everyone else, that it is impossible to keep a man from drinking if he wants to drink, yet I can't for the life of me see the argument of the wets that people will drink less if they can get it anywhere and anytime they want it, without any fear of the law. I had rather have a pair of slick bits in a wild mule's mouth, than to have to ride him without even a bridle.

But to get back to the subject. Bibb promised that if elected he would see that the people of Alabama got their wishes on repeal. Forthwith a referendum was ordered and the drys won. This year's legislature knew it wouldn't do to put the question up to the people as before, so a more subtle arrangement was figured out — the county option plan. Now, mind you, slick old Bibb stayed in the background—managing by remote control, as it were. When the bill came to his desk, he vetoed it, thus saving his face before the people. But mark this—before that bill even went to Bibb's desk, every single, solitary mother's son of that legislature knew that it would be vetoed, for the word had already been passed along that the governor would have to do this, but that the boys must pay no attention, but pass it over the veto. And that is exactly what happened. If you don't believe this is the whole truth, just run some of your good friend legislators into a dark corner somewhere and put the question to him straight from the shoulder; tell him you want the truth and nothing else. He won't bat an eye—he will admit it. Try it!

Another example of the finesse with which the boys of the house of Bibb can work the famous double-cross is on the sales tax. Bibb reared back on his heels and up on his toes again—right here in the court house in Clanton—and in his best stentorian tone, promised that when a sales tax was placed on the people of Alabama, those people, themselves would do it. He would never be guilty. His plan was to hitch up the big mules, and turn the little ones loose to graze. I heard him say it, as did several hundred others here in the county. Now, what has happened?

Last Friday afternoon a 2 per cent general sales tax bill lay on his desk, and he told reporters that there was GOOD PROBABILITY that it would receive his signature and become law. Milking the taxpayers again! True, he made certain revisions, just enough to save his face again, but let me tell you something. No special mention was made of the big mules, and Bibb Graves dictated that bill in the first place, just as sure as God made little green, sour crabapples.

All the time, Bibb Graves was contending that he wanted to fulfill his pledge to the people and get by without a sales tax—IF HE COULD. But that was a bone for the mob to chew on. The juicy meat of the story was that the whole thing originated in and emanated from the governor's private sanctum in the first place—and from nowhere else! Here's the proof. Gov. Graves has enough tail-waggers and weak-kneed yes-men in the legislature to put through any legislation he wants or to kill any he dislikes: If he had wanted to kill the bill, as he pretended, all he had to do was pass the word, and it would have been done. As it was, he wanted the bill—AND HE GOT IT! And don't let anybody tell you different.

And now, just a few more words about some of the great works done in the last few days, and I'm all done. One of them was a bill to reimburse the poor overworked and underfed tax collectors for any loss they might incur through passage of the homestead exemption law.

The Senate passed one to give the the state aviation commission $6,500 a year to throw around on a few fat jobs, but rejected a bill that would have paid for debts in the educational department for 1935-1936. School kids can't vote—yet.

The House passed a bill to charge $1 for a fishing license. Can't you just picture that august body laboring under such heavy and responsible legislation? Some statesmen!

And I've saved one of the best to the last. Despite the fact that Bibb Graves promised economy, this bunch of legislators has run riot in boosting salaries. First one and another proposed boosting this, that and the other salary. And you can trust our own Charlie Cox to come in when any kind of salary boosting is in order. He wouldn't disappoint you. Seeing as everybody was passing around the gravy, Charlie couldn't stand it—he had to take a whack at it, too. Nothing little about that, boy. Big-hearted Charlie, that's him! He couldn't see any reason in going to so much trouble trying to pick out those whose salaries should be raised, so he chimed in with a bill to provide a GENERAL SALARY INCREASE FOR ALL STATE EMPLOYEES: Maybe that would save time, at that, for those state employees will get it all in time any way.—Man in the Moon.

L & N NEWS

A number of sidelights on the L&N Railroad's part in the recent Ohio Valley flood are given in the L&N Employes' Magazine for February, which is just off the press. Prominent among these was the part played by the road in restoring electric service to portions of Louisville.

Louisville's light and power plant failed Sunday night, January 24, plunging the city into darkness and greatly hampering the work of evacuation, rescue and relief. A 45-ton transformer was avaiable at Lexington, Ky., 80 mies distant, which, if it could be brought to Lyndon, a suburb of Louisville, sould be used to transmit current from the wires of the Kentucky Utilities Co. L&N service to Lyndon having been cut off by high water at Frankfort, the transformer was sent to Shelbyville, 30 miles east of Louisville, by Southern Railway. At Shelbyville there is an L&N Southern crossing, but no connection. Realizing that strenuous times require strenuous methods, the L&N cut the tracks of the two lines near the crossing and swung them around to make a connection so that the car cantaining the transformer could be transferred to L&N tracks. In a few hours the transformer was in Lyndon and unflooded sections of Louisville were soon being furnished with power and light.

Thorsby Institute News

Recently Mrs. S. E. Norton of Thorsby presented Thorsby Institute with two large pictures she had drawn in crayon. One is a copy of "Pharaoh's Horses", and the other "The Monarch of the Glen," by Landseer. They are a very welcome addition to the school, and very much appreciated.

Saturday night the annual declamatory contest of Thorsby Institute was held. For years this contest has been held on the Saturday night nearest Washington's birthday. The contest was, perhaps, the best and most enjoyed ever given. The winner among the girls was Paralee Henson of Jemison; Richard Petersen of Thorsby won among the boys. Each winner was presented with a $5 bill. The prizes have been given for several years by Rev. E. L. Benson, of Elgin, Ill.

Sunday night the Boys Choral Club and part of Girls Glee Club gave a sacred concert at the Clanton Baptist church. A collection was taken for the school. Next Wednesday night 15 members of the Girls Glee Club will sing at the Wednesday night service of the Congregational church, Birmingham.

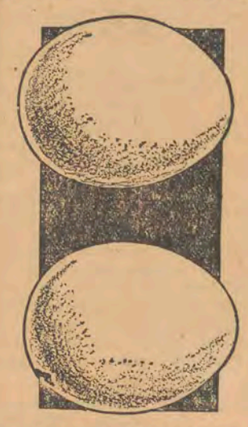
MANY TESTS USED FOR DETERMINING QUALITY OF EGGS



Things to Look for When Breaking Out Eggs.

Most people decide whether an egg is good or bad by its odor. Some discriminate further between eggs on the way they "break out." The grocer makes his decision on egg quality by what he sees when he holds them against a light. He distinguishes between fresh eggs and old ones by the size of the air space in the blunt end. The larger the air cell the older the egg. The grocer also throws out eggs that show meat spots or internal discolorations.

But the hotel chef uses all these tests and others. He usually serves eggs in pairs. To make an attractive plate of ham and eggs to sell at 80 cents to $1.25, the two yolks must be nearly the same color. He knows that the attractiveness of food is one of the best ways of bringing business to his establishment.

Eggs Should Look Alike

When the waiter sings out "Two up with the eyes open," the chef wants to be able to send out two eggs as nearly alike as possible. He doesn't want eggs with deep yellow or reddish yellow yolks, for besides being unattractive in appearance he knows they are likely to have a strong flavor. Eggs with whitish yolks are just as displeasing. What the chef really hopes for when he cracks the egg is one with a light lemon-yellow yolk, plenty of thick white, and a slightly tart taste. Premiums are paid for such eggs because they can be served to the most discriminating patrons with the expectation of "repeat" orders.

As alike as when the shell is on.

Perhaps the most exacting test of an egg is its appearance after poaching. An egg should stand up well, and should hold together. Because the white of a high quality egg is thicker and stands up higher on the yolk there is very little white lost in the water. Every chef or cook knows this. They know also there will be no big pieces of white floating around when a quality egg is poached. With an ordinary egg, as much as 25 percent of the white may be lost in the cooking.

Other Quality Tests Made

In the Research Laboratories of the Purina Mills several additional tests have been devised for checking egg quality. Breakage strength of the shell is tested with a specially constructed apparatus. The white is drawn from the egg by means of a small glass pipette and both the thick and thin white measured in a graduated cylinder.

As unlike as this when cooked.

Yolks are measured for both height and diameter. The yolk of a good egg is firm and stands up well. Stale eggs or eggs of poor quality contain yolks that flatten out, break easily, and are not firm. Quality egg yolks have a wholesome, slightly acid or tart flavor. A stale egg has a flat taste.

'Control Feeding' Recommended

But a more important problem from the poultryman's and consumer's point of view is how to produce eggs that measure up to these tests—how to build eggs that look good, stand up well when cooked, have a tart delicious taste, and contain more food value than ordinary eggs.

Feeding for "controlled interiors" is the answer both science and practical poultry raisers give. Through a control plan of feeding, hens can be made to produce exactly the kind of eggs the housewife wants.

In the Purina Research Laboratories an all-in-one laying mash that gives "controlled interiors" has been developed. Hens fed on this complete feed produce uniformly high quality eggs, each with an invariable vitamin and food value content. Uniformity of yolk color, thick whites, and correct taste are all features of eggs produced on this control feeding program. More about this plan of producing "controlled interiors" of eggs can be learned at any store selling checker board feeds.

HOW I BECAME A RADIO STAR

By PHIL LORD

PHIL LORD

I'VE had the spirit of adventure in me as far back as I can remember. The wanderlust started working when I was very young, and my first ambition was to sail on a four-masted bark and explore the seven seas. My aspiration never did assume much reality until I was older, but that same feeling of restlessness, prompted me to try experiments in life I might never have dared.

I was born in Vermont, son of a minister, but most of my boyhood was spent in Connecticut where my father had his parish. Phillips Andover Academy beckoned to me for a chance at a secondary education, and I followed this up with four years at Bowdoin College in Maine. Then I took to school teaching and wound up as principal of a high school in Plainville, Conn.

Something occured to me one night as I sat in a barber's chair which unquestionably catapulted me on my present career. I heard a radio program which was reenacting the lives of folks in New England. They did a pretty poor job of it, and I detested the manner in which they dealt with Maine. So I sat down and started writing some radio scripts concerning the people of the Pine Tree State. Finally I sold one to a station in Hartford. It seemed to make a good impression on the air, and they asked me to write a weekly series. Officials of NBC heard of the idea, and soon afterwards Seth Parker was being brought to millions over the facilities of a nation-wide hookup.

Then an idea came to me to dramatize the files of the Department of Justice in Washington to reveal via the radio for the first time the stories behind the G-Man's activity.

A few years ago, I thought of a new radio program with which I could do little at the time. Finally, I was able to devote my attention to it, and formulated plans for presenting unusual experiences in the lives of everyday American citizens as told by the persons themselves—a real people's program. For the first time in the history of radio, a sponsor was to buy time on the air and turn it over to Mr. and Mrs. Average Citizen to do with it as they chose. The result was the "We, The People" program heard every Sunday afternoon over the NBC-Blue network.

Each week a committee of four people—a businessman, a schoolgirl, an automobile mechanic and a housewife—peruse countless letters from every corner of the United States to determine who shall be summoned to relate an unusual experience. We have welcomed such men as Edward F. Younger, the man who picked the Unknown Soldier, George Scadding, the miner who was entombed for ten days 160 feet below the ground in Nova Scotia, and Henrietta Giroux, young Massachusetts girl who was able to walk after more than fifteen years as a hopeless cripple. It's given me more pleasure than anything I've ever done to bring these men, women and children to their fellow-citizens via the radio.

AMERICA RESPONDS

Nothing seems to stir the hearts of the American people like a great national disaster. The ravaging floods which started in the upper Ohio and then swept gradually down the Mississippi toward New Orleans furnish an abundant proof of the fact. The stories which came out of the cities and towns in Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky, and of the brave battle against the waters at Cairo and points on the Mississippi have aroused Americans as they have not been awakened in a number of years.

Everywhere the call for help from the zone of the stricken ones was met with instant response. Cities and towns all over the country exceeded by contribution of money, food and clothing, the quotas set for them by the Red Cross. Supplies of all sorts were rushed into the flood zone. The homes of the people in more fortunate parts of the country were thrown open to those needing shelter. In some instances the supplies of food were greater than could be used, and some was sent to other needy areas. Cities outside the flood waters offered power to the communities which were stricken. Never has the heart of America appeared nobler than in this first crisis of the year 1937.

Americans have often been criticized by Europeans as callous boasters or as heartless moneygrabbers. Uncle Sam has been painted as a Shylock in spite of the fact that our generosity not only to our own folk but to aliens, has exceeded that of all other nations.

The sappers and proposed subverters of American institutions have criticized us and divided us into two classes—the bloated capitalists and the helpless downtrodden. A complete answer to this can be found in the recent flood record of America. Democracy may not be as deadly efficient as some other forms of government, but American democracy at least has a heart of gold and a way of translating good intentions into deeds.

The inauguration parade was short and purely military. There was nothing to the report that the Maine and Vermont electors would march in chains.—New York Sun.

IN SIMPLEST TERMS

If your hired man quits his job but refuses to get off the milking stool so somebody else willing to work can do the milking, that is a sit-down strike, exactly comparable to what has happened in the auto industry.

What would you do in a case of that kind? Well, if he was a big fellow, you would probably send for the sheriff to run him off the place as a trespasser. But suppose the sheriff refused to use the authority of his office to enforce the law? That is exactly what happened in the auto situation. The authorities (politicians in office) refused to act against the strikers, and the owners of the auto plants were helpless.

But if this right of trespass is thus upheld, by refusal to move against it, what next? If the citizen has no protection in his place of business how long will he have it in his home?

These are some of the basic questions involved. Some may call it a contest between human and property rights, but what human right is more precious than the right to hold property free from interference on the part of others? Take that right away, and what human right is there left to matter?—Corn Belt Farm Dailies.

COSTLY EXPERIENCE

Crime is estimated to cost this country about $15,000,000,000 a year.

Sickness runs up an annual bill of about $3,000,000,000.

Automobile deaths, at the rate of 37,000 a year and the acturial rate of $10,000 as the economic value of a human life, cost $370,000,000, and that does not take into account the loss of time and wages and the doctors' bills involved in tens of thousands of non-fatal accidents.

At the moment industrial disputes are tapping the national pocket to the tune of $5,475,000,000 a year.

Weeds cost American farmers $3,000,000,000 every year.

And insects destroy more than $1,000,000,000 worth of crops year in and year out.

The Lord only knows what floods, drought, fires and other disasters will cost the United States before another January rolls around.

Question—Where does the humble and hard working citizen, who is neither an insect, a weed, an industrial disputant, a victim of reckless driving, a sick man, or a criminal come in?—Detroit Free Press.

SQUALLS DEVELOP

In spite of the overwhelming New Deal majority in congress and the numerical inferiority of the Republicans, things are beginning to warm up on Capitol Hill. Already the voice of criticism has been heard. Among those who have cried out in the wilderness were not only the Republican, Sen. Vandenburg, but the staunch Democrats of the old school, Senators Byrd and Glass of Virginia. The former's criticism of the administration's reorganization plans and the latters' comments on efforts to subvert the Constitution will not soon be forgotten.

In the meantime the session of congress grows apace. The longer it lasts the more opposition there will be. It may not develop in strictly partisan lines, but it is bound to be interesting before the session is over.

If you don't believe that life begins at 40 just consider the case of Mrs. Wally Simpson and Mary Pickford.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

No matter what this present busy New Deal congress may be called on to do, there can be no question that the Constitution and many proposals for modifying our judicial procedure either by constitutional amendment or by legislation, are going to loom large in the discussion. In light of this fact there is special interest in a radio address delivered at Washington the other night by Sen. William E. Borah, defending the Supreme Court and insisting that the people must be consulted if there is to be a change in the fundamental structure of our government.

Sen. Borah wisely pointed out that this is not the first time the Supreme Court has been under criticism for doing its duty as it sees proper. Such criticism has come from both political parties, depending on the political circumstances at the time. So palpable is this fact that Sen. Borah states that which must appear to everyone to be true after a few moments of consideration—The most enlightened of political leaders and the most advanced of governments have utterly failed to wisely administer justice without the aid of independent and incorruptible courts. There are certain questions surrounding the individual that touch on his liberty and other human rights which require the courageous interpretation of justices who are not handicapped by the whim or desire of any political leader or party.

As Sen. Borah well states, it would be a serious error, if not a fatal mistake, regarding these questions touching the integrity of the Constitution and the independence of the Court as party questions or to seek to treat them as such. If these are not governmental questions of concern to all people regardless of party, then there are no such questions. There are always those whose minds rise no higher than the level of party advantage who may contend these matters may be made party questions. But we believe them to be small in number and far more diminutive in influence. To assume, or to undertake to make it appear, especially in the light of American history, that any political party is the keeper of these heirlooms of democracy is too egregious even for the credulity of a political campaign.

There will be attempts in this congress, and probably successful ones, to re-enact in some modified form the NRA which was declared unconstitutional by a unanimous vote in the Supreme Court. Further efforts to assure its constitutionality and that of other laws of doubtful validity will be made by seeking to curtail the powers of the Supreme Court, requiring a two-thirds or unanimous vote of the Court for declaring a law unconstitutional, increasing the number of judges on the Court, or in some other fashion.

The fundamental questions involved, as Sen. Borah points out, are too serious for partisan consideration and should be viewed in the broad light of the future welfare of the American people.

After all, if our fundamental law is to be changed there is only one way to do this—by submitting the question to the people of the entire country in the form of a proposed amendment. Sen. Borah did well to quote from Wasihngton's Farwell Address: "If in the opinion of the people the distribution or modification of the constitutional power be in any particular wrong, let it be corrected by an amendment in the way the Constitution designates—but let there be no change by usurpation."

UTOPIA IN ALASKA

As a result of a washington announcement that funds for the Alaskan colonists are to be materially curtailed, there comes a wail of protest from the hardy Utopians of the Matanuska tundra. Those who are most tightly bound to the apron strings of governmental solicitude are usually ready to do the loudest squawking whenever an effort is made to sever or loosen the ties. Apparently the Matanuskans expected to live permanently on governmental subsidy. For there is an obvious resentment against suggestions that they presently begin applying a portion of their revenues to settlement of their accounts with the government at Washington. Regimentation was sweet and lovely so long as they were regular recipients of a generous federal bounty. But now, alas—regimentation without the bounty is viewed as tyranny! Recent developments in Alaska are just about what might reasonably have been expected.—Ft. Wayne News-Sentinel.

In the light of better days now at hand, the question is asked as to whether we did not overdo the grumbling and whining in the recent lean years. In all probability, yes—just as we overdid the ballyhoo in the previous years of booming. The only explanation is that mankind seems to be built that way. STRAWBERRIES

A 2 per cent increase in the Alabama acreage of strawberries for picking in 1937 over the 1936 acreage is shown by a report of the Alabama Co-operative Crop Reporting Service. The state's 1937 acreage is estimated at 2,750 compared with 2,700 acres picked last year, which was the smallest acreage of recent years. The 5-year (1928-32) average was 4,500 acres.

The preliminary estimate of the United States strawberry acreage for picking in 1937 shows an increase of one per cent over the acreage picked in 1936 and 3 per cent over that picked in 1935, or 173,280 acres estimated for this year compared with 171,250 acres in 1936 and 168,300 acres in 1935. As compared with the acreage in earlier years there appears to be decreases of 7 per cent below the 5-year average (1928-32) of 185,950 acres, 11 per cent below the 1933 acreage of 195,700 and 12 per cent below the 1934 acreage of 196,500. In the early and late groups of states the acreage has been increased over 1936 by 8 and 9 per cent, respectively, while there are decreases of 10 per cent in the second early states and 2 per cent in the intermediate group.

The average condition of all beds on or about January 1, was reported to be 76 per cent of normal in the early states, 61 per cent in the second early, 55 per cent in the intermediate, and 73 per cent in the late states, with an average for all groups of 65 per cent.

WE present a "close-up" of a world-famous Jersey cow, Stockwell's April Pogis of High Pastures — "April" for short. She made a world's record over all breeds—321 lbs. butter fat in 3 lactation periods within 3½ years, each under Class A. A. with an average test of 6.46%. No Jersey farm in the world has ever bred, raised and tested her equal.

The pastures are full of Jersey cows—but there's only one "April." She's the empress—a hundred times more valuable than the rank and file of Jerseys—because Mother Nature gave her everything—a perfect natural balance of all the needed elements. So she eclipses all the others.

Natural Chilean Nitrate of Soda is another example of Nature's balance of many different elements. Just as Nature favored "April," she favored Natural Chilean. To this nitrogen fertilizer she gave a natural balance of vital elements—the so-called vital impurities in her own wise blend.

That's why Natural Chilean is more than just quick-acting nitrogen. That's why it is such an effective food for your crops.

JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOL GOLD MEDAL TOURNAMENT HELD LAST SATURDAY

Mt. Pleasant Yellow Jackets Take County Junior High Crown In Basket Ball Meet At Mitchell Dam Last Saturday; Enterprise, Vermont and Collins Chapel Place

The Junior High School Gold Medal Basket Ball Tournament was held at Mitchell Dam last Saturday, with a large crowd of interested spectators on hand. Coach Bert Curlee's high stepping Mt. Pleasant Yellow Jackets flashed through to a brilliant championship victory, 43 to 15, over their Enterprise opponents in the decisive game, and won going away, under wraps, with plenty of steam to spare. Vermont won the consolation game from Collins Chapel, 30 to 17, taking third place, and shunting the Chapelites into fourth.

The day saw 12 games of good basket ball by the juniors. Witnesses of the day's play were loud in their praise of the good work put up by various individuals. Mr. John Hollis, who gave away the medals and trophies, was especially impressed by the great show of fine sportsmanship exhibited by the youngsters.

There were 12 junior high schools of the district entered. These were: Baker, Stanton, Vermont, Calera, Enterprise, Cooper, Collins Chapel, Union Grove, Thomas, Thorsby, Concord, and Mt. Pleasant.

After consultation and decision by the judges, Mr. Hollis made the following awards:

Three outstanding players. (1) G. Chambers, Mt. Pleasant; (2) Melton, Mt. Pleasant; (3) J. Ray, Enterprise.

First all-tournament team: Melton, Mt. Pleasant; J. Ray, Enterprise; O. Johnson, Mt. Pleasant; G. Chambers, Mt. Pleasant; Neeley, Enterprise.

Second all-tournament team: Culpepper, Mt. Pleasant; Klinner, Vermont; C. Jackson, Collins Chapel; J. Johnson, Mt. Pleasant; Askins, Enterprise.

First place team trophy, Mt. Pleasant; May and Green, sporting goods company, of Montgomery, gave a special trophy to the championship team, in addition to the Gold Medal trophy; this also was awarded to the Mt. Pleasant team.

Second place team, Enterprise.

Third place team, Vermont.

Fourth place team, Collins Chapel.

Best sportsman, O. Johnson, of Mt. Pleasant; in addition to the medal for best sportsman, Mr. John Hollis gave a leather bill fold and key case to the winner of this medal. According to Mr. Hollis and the judges, the decision in this case was among the hardest to make, as all the youngsters displayed the finest of sportsmanship. Johnson's grin, that just wouldn't wear off, no matter how hard the going, was finally the deciding point in his favor.

First tournament high scorer: J. Ray, Enterprise, 60 points.

Second tournament high scorer: Here there was a tie, between Klinner of Vermont, and Melton of Mt. Pleasant, each having 48 points to his credit. To break the tie, the boys were allowed to shoot foul shots, Klinner finally winning the medal.

High point man for single game: Klinner, Vermont, 21 points.

Below is given a short resume of the day's individual games, as furnished us by Willis (Dutch) Baker, of Mitchell Dam.

Baker 40—Stanton 18

The first elimination game saw Baker turning back Stanton to the decisive tune of 40 to 18, with Baker, of Baker, leading the field with 14 points, and Hamilton coming in for some good work. Cagle and Golson stood out for the losers. Score at the half, Baker 19, Stanton 10.

Vermont 32—Calera 19

In the second elimination game, Vermont took out Calera, 32 to 19. The score at the half was, Vermont 17, Calera 12. Klinner paced the winners with 14 points, with Blankenship and Youngblood best for the losers.

Enterprise 45—Cooper 2

The most lop-sided affair of the day was this third game, in which Enterprise walloped Cooper, 45 to 2. At the half, Enterprise had a coat of whitewash on the Cooper lads, 28 to 0. Griffin and Neeley led the winners, with James Smith best for the losers.

Collins Chapel 17—Thomas 10

In another low score game, Collins Chapel took out the Thomas team, 17 to 10. Score at the half was, Collins Chapel 10, Thomas 3. Davis and Smith stood out for the winners, the latter getting 6 points. Wilson led the losers with 6 points.

Mt. Pleasant 51—Baker 5

The Mt. Pleasant Yellow Jackets next plastered Baker unmercifully, 51 to 5, with Melton leading the field with his 19 points, which was high for the tournament at this point. The Jackets showed good passing, as well as a good eye for the basket. Hamilton and Jones stood out for the losers. Score at the half was 29 to 2.

Vermont 45—Union Grove 18

Vermont next swamped Union Grove, 45 to 18. In this game Klinner went high for the tournament with his 21 points, followed by his running mate, Short, with 15. Brasher and Littleton were best for the losers. Score at the half, 26 to 7, Vermont.

Enterprise 31—Thorsby 18

In the 7th game, Enterprise took out Thorsby 31 to 18, with Neeley and Askins turning in good floor games; J. Ray led the field with his 19 points. C. D. Hayes and Kincaid stood out for the losers. Score at the half was 15 and 10, Enterprise.

Collins Chapel 21—Concord 4

Collins Chapel took Concord in tow next, 21 to 4. Score at the half was 15 to 2. C. Jackson, Davis and Smith stood out for the winners. Taylor and Payton, Concord's midget forwards, played a brilliant game against their much larger opponents. Mims, for the winners, shot 6 points.

Mt. Pleasant 41—Vermont 7

The Mt. Pleasant team put on a floor show for the spectators in the next fracas, passing in and out at will, and holding their opponents helpless. The score at the half was 25 to 5. Melton leading with 11 points, G. Chambers with 10, and O. Johnson with 9, stood out for the winners. No Vermont player got more than 2 points.

Enterprise 47—Collins Chapel 21

In the last semi-finals game, Enterprise flogged Collins Chapel, 47 to 21, to earn their way into the finals with Mt. Pleasant. Score at the half was 25 to 13, Enterprise. In this game J. Ray, of Enterprise, came within one point of tying Klinner for high point man in a single game, bagging 20 markers. Ray, Neeley and Askins stood out for the winners, and C. Jackson and Davis for the losers.

Vermont 30—Collins Chapel 17

In the consolation game, Vermont toppled Collins Chapel, 30 to 17, with Klinner and Short leading the winners with 11 points each. C. Jackson was best for the losers.

Mt. Pleasant 43—Enterprise 15

The fast stepping Mt. Pleasant Yellow Jackets took advantage of the final game to prove beyond any doubt that they were by far the class of the tournament, giving evidence that their coach, Bert Curlee, has put much work and training into his boys. Their pass work was polished, and their shooting ability amazing, especially that of Melton with 18 points, Culpepper with 12, and Johnson with 7.

J. Ray led the losers with 11 points, sinking 5 field goals in the second half.

The Mt. Pleasant Yellow Jackets have had a most successful season under Coach Curlee; and even pre-tournament dope pointed to the fact that they would be hard to beat. In this prediction, the Jackets disappointed no one, but came through with flying colors in every department, as the undisputed champions that they are and deserve to be.

"SORRY YOU WERE DELAYED, NEIGHBOR"

NOW

L & N TRAINS . . . PASSENGER, FREIGHT, MAIL, EXPRESS

Back in Service

Guess you know how it is, neighbor. Comes a bit of trouble, sickness or danger in your home and business just has to shift for itself. Well, it looked like a tough spot down here with the Ohio walking right in the front doors of all our families. But L & N, fortunately, has the equipment and men for just such an emergency. Our train service was donated to help flood sufferers to safety . . . food and other supplies were transported free during the crisis; then, when the swirling water slunk back to its bed, our forces whipped into action to restore service.

Now, the L & N, "Your Home Sweet Home On Rails," is back on the job . . . as strong and well equipped as ever . . . grateful for the privilege of having served in some measure our neighbors and friends. Today, safe, comfortable passenger trains are rolling again. Speedy freight cars are again carrying the nation's goods. And the L & N, which never bowed a head or bent a shoulder in adversity in all its eighty-seven years, thanks you for your consideration during our time of trouble.

Two Dogs Help Scientists Build Finer Dog Food

Travellers returning from New Guinea smile as they recall the favorite dishes of the Papuan natives—sardines, salmon, and dog food—in the order named. Ring and Red, two experimental dogs, here in our United States, join with Papuans in praising prepared dog food, but without the sardines and salmon. For ten years that's all they've had. Today they are in perfect health, and their chances for living to a "ripe old age" seem far better than that of dogs fed ordinary rations.

In June, 1926, Ring and Red were taken to the Purina Experimental Farm at Grays Summit, Missouri, a research plant where the constant testing of feeds for livestock, poultry, and small animals is carried on. Ring and Red were put into a pen and given their first meal of what is called dog chow—a compressed checker form of feed containing a balanced ration of dried meat, dried milk, cod liver oil, cereals, vegetable fibre, molasses and minerals. Once a day, 365 days a year for the last ten years, Ring and Red have received this same feed. With it they get all the fresh clean water they want, summer and winter. Today they are in "top" condition. Regular examinations show their teeth, gums, hair, and hide to be in excellent form. Brightness of eye and sleekness of coat are other evidences of Ring's and Red's good health.

For hundreds of years dogs got only table scraps and a bone a day. Later prepared dog feeds were introduced to help careful dog owners to balance out their pet's diet. Ring and Red were two of the cooperating agents who helped in the development of modern dog feeds.

Lesson for February 28

THE NEW COMMANDMENT

LESSON TEXT — John 12: 20-33; 13:34,35.
GOLDEN TEXT — A new commandment I give unto you, that ye love one another; even as I have loved you, that ye also love one another. John 13:34.
PRIMARY TOPIC — A New Commandment.
JUNIOR TOPIC — A Great Man's Way.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What the New Commandment Means.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Measure of Christian Love.

In the last week of our Lord's ministry on earth many important events took place, but we pass most of them in our present series of studies. The incident related in our lesson of today is of interest in and of itself, but it is of peculiar significance because it introduces a marvelously instructive discourse of our Lord.

Whatever had prompted their inquiry, we are delighted to note that the Greeks came with an earnest desire to see Jesus.

I. Seeking Jesus (12:20-22).

A man has progressed far on the road to blessing when he makes known his desire to see Jesus. Coming to him means coming to the One who has the words of eternal life.

Note that the disciples were wise enough to bring the men to Jesus. The true function of every Christian worker is to bring men to him. On the back of the pulpit in one of America's greatest churches, directly where the preacher can see them as he arises to preach, are the words of our lesson, "Sir, we would see Jesus." Little wonder that a strong and true gospel is preached in that church.

II. Finding the Cross (vv. 23-33).

The reply of our Lord to the Greeks and to the disciples who brought them to him, seems a bit singular at first glance. Did he not wish to receive them? They had probably come to see the great religious leader, the King of the Jews —why does he talk about death—why is his soul troubled?

The words of our Lord are clear. Men do not need an example, a leader, a teacher, they need a Saviour. It is as a sacrifice for sin that Christ will draw all men unto himself (v. 32).

We need to relearn that lesson. Leaders of the church are earnestly seeking the explanation of the rapid decline in the influence of the Christian church. It is a good sign that some are beginning to realize that the difficulty is in the realm of the spiritual. The barrenness of so-called modern theology has become apparent to its leaders and they have begun to talk about a "spiritual revival." But unfortunately we soon find that they use the expression to stand for something entirely different from a real scriptural revival. "The voice is Jacob's voice but the hands are the hands of Esau" (Gen. 27:22).

Let us make no mistake about it, a real revival will center in the cross and will manifest itself in denial of self for the glory of God.

One cannot forego mention of the fact that the last part of verse 26, "If any man serve me, him will my Father honor," was the motto of the late Dr. James M. Gray, whose life gloriously exemplified the truth of the passage. God is willing and ready to do as much for you and for me.

III. Loving One Another (John 13: 34, 35).

When these words were uttered our Lord was two days further in the last week before he was crucified. He was alone with his disciples in the upper room. What message does he have for them in that solemn hour? That they should love one another. That is a message that needs renewed emphasis in our day. The strife which fills the world has almost engulfed the church, and there is bitterness and strife where love should reign.

Let us observe carefully that it is as his disciples that we are able to love one another. There are two erroneous extremes to be avoided. First, we have the out and out conservative, who proclaims his belief in the Bible as God's Word, who is anxious that he be absolutely correct in doctrine, a really saved man, and who then becomes the kind of "fighting" fundamentalist who dismally fails God in the testimony referred to in these verses. On the other hand we have the liberal who has abandoned the scriptural basis of discipleship and who then boasts of his great love for his brethren. Love is no substitute for regeneration, and regeneration is no excuse for lack of love.

Courtesy of the Heart

There is a courtesy of the heart, it is allied to love. From it springs the purest courtesy in the outward behavior.—Goethe.

Duty of Gratitude

Gratitude is a duty none can be excused from, because it is always at out own disposal.—Charron.

The Fountain

Look within—within is the fountain of good; and it will ever bubble up, if thou wilt ever dig.

Word has been received at the University of Alabama that Alabama law graduates are having little difficulty in passing their bar examinations in distant states. Word recently received by Dean A. J. Farrah of the Law School reveals that his graduates have passed bar examinations in Ohio, Connecticut, New York, and New Jersey in recent months. All exams were passed on the first attempt, an unusual feat in view of the fact that less than one person out of four ordinarily passes these exams the first try.

International Centenary Celebrations Honor D. L. Moody

D. L. Moody Preaching, in 1897, Haymarket Opera House, London, England. Lord Kinnard and Gladstone on Platform.

CHICAGO—The Moody Bible Institute of this city is making unusual preparation for its Founder's Week Conference, January 31 to February 7, since February 5 is the one hundredth anniversary of the birth of D. L. Moody, its founder, whose fame as an evangelist and winner of souls during the latter part of the last century encircled the globe. The Founder's Week Conference may be thought of as the heart of the D. L. Moody Centenary Celebrations now being held in some fifty of the chief cities of America, and in many others in the British Isles.

The debt that the world owes to the great lay-preacher, who left a shoe business in Chicago to proclaim the Gospel, may be indicated by the fact that in one four-month period of intensive work in London, Moody, with his famous song helper, Ira D. Sankey, preached the Word of God and sang the Gospel to 2,530,000, that number having attended 285 meetings held by them. In the Royal Haymarket Opera House (pictured above) sixty services brought together more than 330,000, among them being men high in the councils of the nation. William Ewart Gladstone and Lord Kinnard, shown at Moody's right in the picture, were staunch supporters of the great soul-saving movement in London.

It is the prayer of many that the D. L. Moody Centenary Celebrations through the year 1937 will prevail to awaken a widespread spirit of concern for the revival of the Church of Christ and the salvation of many souls. Eminent speakers from abroad are joining with world-famed preachers and Bible teachers in a great movement of preaching and Bible teaching, similar to the Founder's Week program in Chicago.

BOB JONES COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

A man who had been married for a few months came home one night intoxicated. The young wife met him at the door and shrank back from her drunken husband and began to sob out her heart. "What are you crying about?" he asked. "You made me a drunkard. I was born with the appetite of whiskey in my blood. My father died drunk when I was a little child. At my father's coffin, my mother made me hold my right hand up to God and swear I would never touch a drop. When we became engaged, you stood at the punch bowl and gave me my first drink. The appetite for whiskey woke up in my blood. I have been drinking secretly but periodically ever since. Yes, I am a drunkard. I am on my way to hell, and when I get there, I will curse you for damning me." Men are not drunkards by accident. Every drunkard that ever staggered down a city street or a country road was made a drunkard by somebody.

A great man said one time, "The most solemn thought that ever came to me is my personal accountability to God." That is a solemn thought, but there is also another one, "In this world where I live among men, I have an influence over somebody else's life. My influence is the sum total of my personality impressing itself upon those with whom I come in touch." A good man walking the streets of his town radiates a good influence. We read in the Bible about the shadow of the apostle falling on the people. Everybody casts a shadow. What kind of a shadow do you cast? Have you ever asked yourself this question? "Am I helping somebody, or am I hurting somebody?" There is such a thing as telepathy. A man thinks a bad thought. That thought crosses the street, enters a neighbor's home and is received into somebody's mind. That neighbor broadcasts that thought down the street to another home where a mind waits as a receiving station. That neighbor thinks that thought and on the wings of imagination sends it flying across the country to another city where another receiving station is waiting, and one more powerful than all of the other stations to which the thought has come. This receiving station holds the thought awhile; then projects it across the sea. It is possible for one secret thought from a lowly person's mind to send destructive influences around the world. It is an awful thing to be a sinner in a world where other people live.

NOTICE

Applications for emergency crop and feed loans for 1937 are now being received at the county Agent's office in Clanton by W. C. Harkins, field supervisor of the emergency Crop and Feed Loan Section of the Farm Credit Administration.

These loans will be made only to farmers who cannot obtain credit from any other source, as provided by regulations issued by the Governor of the Farm Credit Administration. The money loans will be limited to the farmer's immediate and actual cash needs for growing his 1937 crops or for the purchase of feed for livestock and in no instance may exceed $400.

Farmers are not eligible for these if they can borrow from an individual, production credit association, bank, or other concern. Emergency crop and feeds loans will not be made by the Farm Credit Administration to standard rehabilitation clients of the Resettlement Administration whose current needs are provided for by Resettlement.

As in the past, the security for these loans will consist of a first lien on the crop financed if the loan is for the production of crops, and if for the purchase of feed for livestock, then a first lien on the livestock to be fed, will be required to waive their claims in favor of the lien to the Governor of the Farm Credit Administration until the loan is repaid.

Checks in payment of the approved loans will be issued by the Regional Emergency Crop and Feed Loan Office at Memphis, Tennessee.

"ALL WELL!" ON MONEY FRONT

Montgomery.—With the governor's signature affixed to the 2 per cent general sales tax and the voters preparing to harness and tax liquor after March 10, State Treasurer John W. Brandon and Comptroller Charley Lee breathed easily with the comforting assurance that all was well on the money front.

Likewise, the state's 17,000 school teachers ceased their fretting over the gruesome mutilation of their pay checks by Comptroller Lee's budget bludgeon by which they have sacrificed approximately $8,000,000 by proration of school appropriations during the past three years.

If the financial seers have guessed aright — and their severest critics charge them with modest reservation and understatement—Alabama will not only be able henceforth to pay all obligations promptly and in full, but a sizeable surplus will be set aside for further ad valorem tax reductions and to meet further emergencies.

As the legislature cleared its decks for sine die adjournment Friday, February 26, a review of its work shows that every feature of Gov. Graves' 6-point program was put into effect.

In view of the state's almost complete recovery from its protracted financial ills, it was not surprising that in the last days of the special session, state employees and officials whose salaries were drastically reduced in 1933 sought to restore their old salary schedules.

Though the House frowned on the proposal last week by killing a bill to hike the salaries of the state's judiciary which contained a rider to repeal the 1933 Laspsley Lusk pay cut bill, Rep. Charlie Cox of Chilton took up the cause of the rank and file of state officials and employees, and introduced a separate bill which was on the House calendar for consideration last Tuesday.

You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out.

In such cases it is better to rely on a medicine that has won country-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Use Doan's Pills. A multitude of grateful people recommend Doan's. Ask your neighbor!

More than 7,000 miles of broad-base terraces — enough to reach 20 times from Scottsboro to Mobile—have been constructed on farms of cooperators in demonstration and CCC camp areas in Alabama.

Cut-over lands in nine Southern states—Alabama, South Carolina, Florida, Georgia, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas, Oklahoma, and Texas—can be made a big asset to the South, if properly treated and adequately protected, according to a survey conducted by the Southern Forest Experiment Station, New Orleans.

NATIONAL FARM LEADERS RECOMMEND LEGISLATION

Auburn.—The ever-normal granary system and postponement to January 1, 1940, the date when administration of the Agricultural Adjustment program shall be transferred to the state, were endorsed by farm leaders of the country when in session in Washington early this month.

The leaders also endorsed the establishment of a system federally controlled and regulated warehouses and terminal market facilities, the principle of an actuarially sound crop insurance program, the marketing agreement provisions of the Agricultural Adjustment Act be reenacted and amended to strengthen the Act and include other crops, and the enactment of legislation to provide grades, standards and inspection in interstate commerce for basic and non-basic crops, not presently covered by adequate legislation.

The establishment of an ever-normal granary will be clearly in the interest of both farmers and consumers, explained Secretary Wallace to the group. If consumers are going to give their consent to farm programs that assure farmers a fair and stable income, then farmers must assure consumers that supplies of food will be adequate at all times, he said. And vice-versa, if consumers are going to expect farmers to produce enough to keep the granary full, then they must be willing to help safeguard farmers from disastrous consequences when the granary overflows.

The recommendations of the farmers have been submitted to President Roosevelt, Secretary Wallace, and congress.

POULTRY CAR REPORT

There were 414 farmers of Chilton County who sold 18,101 pounds of poultry for a total of $2,426.46 to a poultry car last Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

This is the second time this year that farmers have had an opportunity to sell poultry at a fair price. This poultry goes to the big markets, thereby taking surplus poultry off of local markets, and will have a tendency to raise local prices.

The farmers received approximately $362.02 more for their poultry than they would have received on the local markets. The following classes of poultry were sold:

Heavy hens, 15,307 pounds; light hens, 1,402 pounds; fryers, 159 pounds; stags, 47 pounds; roosters, 1,120 pounds; gees, 18; ducks, 9; turkey hens, 13; old turkey toms, 26.

HAVE CONFIDENCE IN YOUR RED CROSS

The American Red Cross is supported by public contributions and by the members who respond to its annual roll call. 7,000,000 children, also, have joined the Junior Red Cross by enrollment, without membership fee, in their schools, and are pledged to service with the organization.

Thus, the American Red Cross is peculiarly your organization. It's policies and methods are public property. In all disaster relief operations, rumors and reports founded on misinforation or lack of information are circulated. They confuse and disturb individuals and communities.

There is just one place you should take such questions and rumors, to the source of official information, the Red Cross office. There your questions will receive courteous attention and authoritative answers.

Will It Take Long!

The task of rehabilitating many families is one requiring several weeks of intensive work. It is impossible to know at this time just how long it will take. The work will be pushed with all possible speed, but the Red Cross, as a relief organization, is unwilling to sacrifice thoroughness, efficiency, and justice for speed.

MAKE LIQUOR PAY TAXES!

VOTE YES FOR REPEAL

On March 10th

ON MARCH 10th the Alabama Beverage Control Act, passed by the legislature, will be submitted to a vote of the citizens of Alabama.

The Alabama Beverage Control Act is patterned on the plan which has been so successful in solving the liquor problem in other progressive states. It sets up a constructive liquor control system to regulate the legalized sale of alcoholic beverages, promote temperance in their consumption, eliminate the illicit liquor traffic, and foster respect for and obedience to law.

The Alabama Beverage Control Act provides for the sale of alcoholic beverages through rigidly controlled state stores and in hotels and restaurants in Alabama counties which approve the Act. It forever bars the open saloon. It strictly prohibits the sale of alcoholic beverages to minors.

Based on the experience of other states, it is estimated that revenues which will be received by the State of Alabama, its counties and municipalities from the legalized sale of alcoholic beverages will be about $2,500,000 yearly—a sum which now goes into bootleggers' pockets.

These revenues will be distributed as follows:

50% to the General Fund of the State for the maintenance of public schools and other governmental functions.

10% to the State Treasury, ear marked for Old Age Pensions and Public Welfare.

10% to be evenly divided among Alabama counties for their General Fund.

10% to the counties, ear marked for Public Health, Old Age Pensions, and Public Welfare.

20% to cities in counties which approve the act, and where State stores are operated.

The real question to be voted on on March 10th by the citizens of your county is not whether to "stay dry" or "go wet" but whether municipalities within your county shall share in the revenues and business benefits which will accrue from legally controlled stores.

If you vote "no," liquor can be bought in state stores in your neighbor counties and freely brought into your own county.

If you vote "no," municipalities which have state stores in your neighbor counties will receive their share of the revenues from liquor sales not only to the people in your neighbor counties but also to the people of your own county.

If you vote "no," many of your citizens will drive into neighbor counties to buy liquor and spend their money with your neighbor county merchants.

If you vote "yes," your county will legalize and control something that already exists and derive from it revenue to keep your schools open and carry on the human welfare program instituted by our great President.

We've tried the path of prohibition in Alabama. It has not led us to true temperance, but instead to a $25,000,000 a year bootleg industry.

Let's give the new and open road of constructive liquor regulation a fair trial.

Reasons Why Vote "No"

1. Should vote NO because this is the same question the county and the state gave a decided NO to our representatives and governor on February 26, 1935.

2. Should vote NO to tell our officials to respect the wish and mandate of the people.

3. Should vote NO because this is the dirtiest and most damnable liquor bill ever offered a people—making a SALOON out of every filling station, hotel, restaurant, and place of business that will pay the small sum of $10 to sell it.

4. Should vote NO because the liquor bill is a sheer HYPOCRISY and LIE when it says: "An act to PROMOTE TEMPERANCE and SUPPRESS the evils of intemperance." The TRUTH of the matter is that the bill's PURPOSE is to PROMOTE drinking for a meager revenue for the state's pie eaters, and BIG PROFITS for the Milwaukee brewers—all at the expense of legitimate business and the health, happiness and character of our citizenship.

5. Should vote NO because Section 3 is utterly FALSE when it says: "This act shall be deemed an exercise of the police power of the State of Alabama for the PROTECTION of the PUBLIC WELFARE, HEALTH, PEACE, and MORALS of the people." Ask your relief agencies if DRINK promotes the public welfare. Ask your doctors if it promotes HEALTH. Ask your judges, solicitors, sheriffs if drink promotes the PEACE. Ask your ministers, teachers, parents if it promotes the MORAL WELFARE of the people.

6. Should vote NO because it puts our state into a DIRTY business, and sets up a POLITICAL MACHINE with unlimited powers to build breweries, buy lots and lands from friends, employ more pie-eaters without limitation except the wish and will of the Board of Control—and at any salary they may wish to pay their friends at our expense.

7. Should vote NO because the bill is a POLITICAL OCTOPUS throwing out its tentacles with a small sop of revenue to our counties and cities, and thus opening the way for the dirtiest state political ring ever known in Alabama.

8. Should vote NO because every cheap beer license will be a BLIND and protection to the bootleggers, and make any enforcement impossible. It will make this state and county the bootleggers' paradise.

9. Should vote NO because no state nor county should legalize and go into the BUSINESS of selling a habit-forming narcotic POISON that destroys LIFE, REASON, self-control, and the moral fiber of its citziens. Our state and county should not LEGALIZE, MAKE RESPECTABLE and PROMOTE PUBLIC ENEMY NO. 1. He is worse and more dangerous than a RATTLER.

10. Should vote NO for the sake of HELPLESS children, wives and mothers who must suffer most from such a business. Our BALLOTS are their only hope and PROTECTION. Good citizenship, patriotism, and manhood all demand that we vote NO for them. —Local Temperance Committee.

SOCIETY

20th Wedding Anniversary—

On last Thursday evening February 18, from 8 to 10 o'clock, Judge and Mrs. Lee Smith entertained at a lovely reception celebrating their twentieth wedding anniversary.

For this occasion the beautiful home was decorated in a profusion of Spring flowers. In the living room and sun parlor baskets and vases of snopdragons and hyacinths were used carrying out a color scheme of lavendar, pink and yellow.

The dinning room was decorated in crystal baskets of white carnations, calla lilies and freeziers.

The dining table, covered with a beautiful white lace cloth held as its center motif a crystal bowl of Colla lilies, freeziers, carnations and chrysanthemums placed on a mirror plaque. Festoons of bridal tulle hung from the crystal chandalier and were caught at each corner of the table with corsages of valley lilies. Showered from the chandalier were satin ribbons with valley lilies tied at intervals. On each side of the lovely centerpiece were crystal candelabras holding tall lighted white tapers. Crystal bonbon dishes filled with green and white mints were placed at intervals about the table carrying out the color scheme of green and white.

The guests were met at the door by Mrs. J. P Hayes, who wore a becoming black gown of lace. Her corsage was of pink rosebuds.

In the receiving line were Judge and Mrs. Smith and their attractive daughter, Lillian. Mrs. Smith was never lovelier than with her gown of white chiffon, with sprays of violets. Her corsage was of valley lilies; Lillian was attired in a beautiful white taffeta frock.

The guest book was presided over by Mrs. James Wade and Mrs. Jack Hayes. The former wore black net with rhinestone clips. She wore a halo of blue forget-me-nots in her hair. Mrs. Hayes was attired in a lovely aqua taffeta.

Assisting in the living room were: Mrs. John Deramus who wore aqua lace, Mrs. Grady Heflen whose dress was of white crepe and chiffon, wore red camelias in her hair. Mrs. Dick Hayes was attired in black crepe and her corsage was red camelias, these were also worn in her hair.

Assisting in the dining room were: Mrs. Grady Reynolds, dressed in beautiful blue taffeta with corsage of red roses; Mrs. John Hollis becommingly gowned in black lace with crystal accessories; Miss Alice Polk wore a black dinner dress with rhinestone clips; Mrs. J. C. Jones was attired in black and Mrs. M. B. Arant wore a becoming gown of blue.

The beautiful china gifts were displayed on card tables in the sun parlor.

A musical program was rendered with Mrs. Dubb Huddleston at the piano, and Mrs. W. L. Longshore, of Birmingham, accompaning on the violin. Mrs. Ed Glasscock sang beautiful love lyrics.

Misses Peggy Page, Billy Johnson, Dean Hollis, Myrtle Pitts, Olive Rainer Elmore, Nell Rockett, Bernice Lowe, Juanita Miller and Anne Ross, lovely friends of Miss Smith, served refreshments to the guests. The color scheme of green and white was also carried out in the refreshments which consisted of ice cream moulded to represent a calla lily, cake and a dainty basket of salted nuts.

Many friends of the charming couple called during the evening.

GRAVES SIGNS SHERIFF'S BILL

Calls Election for Amendment, to be Held in May, 1938.

The House bill by Speaker M. L. Robertson, submitting a proposed constitutional amendment to be voted on at an election to be held on the first Tuesday in May, 1938, which if ratified will permit sheriffs in Alabama to succeed themselves in office, was signed by Gov. Graves Monday. Sheriffs are now the only county officers who cannot succeed themselves under the state constitution.

In addition to the sheriff bill, the governor also signed the following other measures:

By Hill, providing that two-fifths of all medical license collections shall remain in the state treasury and three-fifths be disbursed to county medical societies where the license is paid.

VOTE "NO" FOR THE SAKE OF OUR YOUNG PEOPLE

(AN EDITORIAL)

Those in favor of government-approved sale of liquor argue that prohibition was the cause of numbers of young boys and girls taking to the habit of drink. They say that prohibition has proved a curse rather than an aid to temperance. Some of these so-called advocates of liquor are very smart and can produce some rather convincing arguments to substantiate their points. They can almost make one believe they are right, unless the listener is on his guard and watches every angle and every maneuver. Some of these advocates even claim that they would outlaw all whiskey entirely if it were in their power; but don't you believe too much of that. If you let him keep talking he will tell you directly that he does take a drink occasionally and that he used to keep a little hidden away up in the attic for the old lady and kids. Well, when a man like that says that he wishes there was no whiskey in the world, you had better take his statement with a pinch of salt, as sure as you are born.

But back to the question of the young people. We will grant you that drinking among the young people while prohibition was on our statute books did increase; but we are doubtful that it increased more than it would have if there had been no prohibition law. One main reason that it increased was because the temperance forces of the country became lethargic, resting under the delusion that the fight against whiskey had been won, and that there was nothing else for them to do. Hence, education in our schools and otherwise of the bad effects of whiskey was neglected since whiskey had been outlawed. That is where the temperance folks fell down on their job. The ill effects of alcohol should have been continually placed before our young people and old as well, just as it was back while the fight was on to outlaw booze. But instead, while us temperance folks were virtually asleep, old John Barleycorn was everlastingly using such effective mediums as the motion picture screen, the stage, Etc., to "educate" the young people in the opposite direction. In our opinion, the motion picture theatre has been the greatest force in leading our young people to drink than any other one agency. Certainly it had more to do with it than prohibition did—if the latter had anything at all to do with it—which is very doubtful.

A glance at the statistics in our larger cities will prove an eye opener as to drinking and associated evils among our young people. A careful study of these figures will reveal that these evils increased much more rapidly after the ban was taken off whiskey entirely. It was only a few months after repeal in Chicago that the decent and law-abiding citizens of that great city were begging for some solution of the question of young boys and girls frequenting the saloons and indulging in all forms of vice, immorality and degradation. Such was the case in all large cities, and was true to a lesser extent in the smaller communities.

It is true that people drank while it was against the law, and likely some always will; but the argument that throwing it wide open and placing the government's approval on its sale will lessen drinking certainly will not hold water at all. That cannot help the situation. What we have got to do to save our young people is to educate them of the harmful effects of drinking and the attendant evils that inevitably follow. This should be everlastingly rubbed into them in our public schools, our Sunday schools, our churches, our newspapers, our picture shows, and other places of amusement.

Therefore, let us go to the polls next Wednesday and vote to retain the prohibition laws, and then let us launch out on the greatest educational program against the use of alcohol that we have ever attempted in this country. That, together with a gradual tightening up on enforcement of the prohibition law and all other laws, will prove effective and will really get us somewhere along the lines of sane and sensible temperance. But you cannot dry off a man by continuing to pour more and more water on him. That simply does not make sense.

Reasons Why Vote "No"

1. Should vote NO because this is the same question the county and the state gave a decided NO to our representatives and governor on February 26, 1935.

2. Should vote NO to tell our officials to respect the wish and mandate of the people.

3. Should vote NO because this is the dirtiest and most damnable liquor bill ever offered a people—making a SALOON out of every filling station, hotel, restaurant, and place of business that will pay the small sum of $10 to sell it.

4. Should vote NO because the liquor bill is a sheer HYPOCRISY and LIE when it says: "An act to PROMOTE TEMPERANCE and SUPPRESS the evils of intemperance." The TRUTH of the matter is that the bill's PURPOSE is to PROMOTE drinking for a meager revenue for the state's pie eaters, and BIG PROIFTS for the Milwaukee brewers—all at the expense of legitimate business and the health happiness and character of our citizenship.

5. Should vote NO because Section 3 is utterly FALSE when it says: "This act shall be deemed an exercise of the police power of the State of Alabama for the PROTECTION of the PUBLIC WELFARE, HEALTH, PEACE, and MORALS of the people." Ask your relief agencies if DRINK promotes the public welfare. Ask your doctors if it promotes HEALTH. Ask your judges, solicitors, sheriffs if drink promotes the PEACE. Ask your ministers, teachers, parents if it promotes the MORAL WELFARE of the people.

6. Should vote NO because it puts our state into a DIRTY business, and sets up a POLITICAL MACHINE with unlimited powers to build breweries, buy lots and lands from friends, employ more pie-eaters without limitation except the wish and will of the Board of Control — and at any salary they may wish to pay their friends at our expense.

7. Should vote NO because the bill is a POLITICAL OCTOPUS throwing out its tentacies with a small sop of revenue to our counties and cities, and thus opening the way for the dirtiest state political ring ever known in Alabama.

8. Should vote NO because every cheap beer license will be a BLIND and protection to the bootleggers, and make any enforcement impossible. It will make this state and county the bootleggers' paradise.

9. Should vote NO because no state nor county should legalize and go into the BUSINESS of selling a habit-forming narcotic POISON that destroys LIFE, REASON, self control, and the moral fiber of its citizens. Our state and county should not LEGALIZE, MAKE RESPECTABLE and PROMOTE PUBLIC ENEMY NO. 1. He is worse and more dangerous than a RATTLER.

10. Should vote NO for the sake of HELPLESS children, wives and mothers who must suffer most from such a business. Our BALLOTS are their only hope and PROTECTION. Good citizenship, patriotism, and manhood all demand that we vote NO for them.

11. Should vote NO because for every $1.00 of beer revenue collected we must send out of Alabama $24.00 to the brewers. This is POOR business!

12. Should vote NO because there is no GOOD reason to vote yes. If there is such a reason—WHAT IS IT?—Local Temperance Committee.

JUDGE REYNOLDS EXPRESSES HIS VIEWS ON THE LIQUOR QUESTION

Editor Union-Banner:

I want to write just a small statement of some of my views on the proposed liquor law which will be voted on March 10.

First, we are to have four places to sell liquor—state stores, hotels, restaurants, and clubs. I will say first that I hate to see the State of Alabama go into the liquor business. I have been taught to love my state and respect the laws, and it seems to me that it would look bad for the State of Alabama to sell its citizens liquor and then prosecute them for getting drunk and violating the law. If liquor is not sold to make those drunk who buy it, what is it sold for? Second, it seems to me that it would be bad to sell liquor in restaurants or hotels. I am sure the influence would be much stronger on our boys and girls to buy liquor in restaurants and hotels than it would be in an open bar room; then too, the amount is sold in restaurants according to the purchase price of meals, and I am informed that examiners will be appointed to examine every meal and see how much liquor was sold with the meal. Can anyone imagine the number of examiners that it would take to examine every meal and every drop of liquor sold in restaurants in Alabama?

One other thing I want to call the people's attention to—the class of advertisements that will be put in the newspapers, advertising the sale of liquor. I just ask the voters of this county to look in the daily newspapers and look at the enticing and ridiculous advertisements of cigarets, and just compare this with what the advertisements of liquor will be. Now, I do not intentionally want to hurt the business of any newspaper, but I think more of the rising generation than I do of the benefits that these large newspapers will get from advertising liquor as they do cigarets.

We are told that blind tigers in Alabama are very bad. I say to you that they are bad, and a truth that I can state that I have never in all my public life encouraged a single blind tiger nor any person to sell a drink of liquor. But I had rather have blind tigers all over the country as it is, than to have restaurants, hotels, and the like selling liquor in my county. I do not want my state to put its approval upon the sale of liquor, and if we have to have liquor, I had rather have it in an open bar room than to have it sold as it will be sold if this law is voted in.

Our opponents make the argument that if Chilton County does not vote a majority to sell liquor, then we will lose our part of the liquor tax. This is not true. The law provides that this county will get its pro rata share of the profit that is collected from liquor, which will be equally divided among the counties, whether we vote for it or against it.

We are told that if a majority votes for the sale of liquor that all blind tigers will be broken up. May I ask you who will break them up? The liquor people say the officers will break them up. May I ask you what officers will break them up? Will we not have the same officers then that we have now? And if they could break up blind tigers after we have the liquor, why don't they break them up now?

I hope that Chilton County will be the banner county in voting against the proposed liquor law on March 10. If I had my way there would not be a vote in our county for it. Respectfully, —L. H. Reynolds.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by J. W. Fant, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County

BEST CORN FERTILIZER

Auburn.—The most profitable way to fertilize corn in Alabama is to apply the equivalent of 100 to 200 pounds of nitrate 40 days after planting, advises Dean M. J. Funchess, Director of the Alabama Experiment Station, Auburn, in giving figures showing that on an average of 50 crops of corn a ton of soda has produced 146 bushels of corn at a cost of only 24 cents per bushel.

On average land, phosphoric acid and potash are almost entirely wasted when applied to corn. Only on fresh land in extreme south Alabama should anything but nitrogen be applied.

Comparative effect of different grade of fertilizer on the cost of producing corn in experiments with 50 crops of corn during the past 6 years is given as follows: 1 ton of 2-11-3 made 23 bushels of corn at a cost of $1.04 per bushel; 1 ton of 3-8-5 made 33 bushels of corn at a cost of 77 cents per bushel; 1 ton of 4-10-4 made 45 bushels at a cost of 61 cents per bushel; 1 ton of 6-8-4 made 63 bushels at a cost of 47 cents per bushel; 1 ton of soda made 146 bushels at a cost of 24 cents per bushel.

SOYBEANS VALUABLE

Auburn.—Soybeans are valuable for hay, grazing and cash, says J. C. Lowery, agronomist of the Alabama Extension Service in advocating that Alabama farmers make maximum use of them in their farming operations during 1937.

For many years farmers of the state have used soybeans as a hay crop and within recent years farmers in southeast Alabama have found Otootan beans valuable for grazing hogs. For years farmers in the Piedmont, Sand Mountain, and Mineral sections of the state have been successful in producing large quantities of Otootan soybean seed for planting purposes and for additional cash.

For hay, grazing or seed production soybeans should be planted in rows when danger of frost is past. They should be fertilized with 400 to 600 pounds of basic slag or its equivalent and cultivated. The best varieties for hay production are Otootan, Laredo, Mathews, and Easy Cook. In addition to the varieties recommended for hay, Biloxi, Tokio, and Mammoth Yellow are well adapted for grazing. Otootan, Laredo and Biloxi are good varieties for improving the soil while Laredo and Otootan are well adapted for use as feed for doves and quail. The Easy Cook is an edible variety and can be substituted for beans or peas in the human diet.

EMERGENCY LOANS AVAILABLE

Auburn.—Emergency crop and feed loans, authorized by congress for 1937, are now available for Alabama farmers who have no other source of credit, announces the Farm Credit Administration. Farmers interested in this type of loan may obtain full details from county agents.

There will be no duplication of the work of the Resettlement Administration since the emergency crop loan offices will not advance funds to any farmer who has received or is to receive a standard rehabilitation loan from the Resettlement Administration during 1937. Farmers who can qualify for loans from production credit associations will also be held ineligible.

The maximum loan to any farmer this year is $400, but emergency crop loan officials point out that in each case a loan will be made only in the amount actually necessary to grow crops or maintain livestock until pasturage or forage crops are available. The interest this year is 4 per cent per annum.

WILDLIFE CONSERVATION WEEK

For more than 30 years Alabama has memorialized bird life through observance of a special day each year. Bird Day this year falls on March 5, at the end of Wildlife Conservation Week, March 1 to 5, as proclaimed by Gov. Bibb Graves.

As never before, sportsmen today are working individually and in associations to help bring back wildlife prosperity in Alabama that has been all but wiped out as result of overshooting, and of woods fires and soil erosion that destroy game food and cover. The State Department of Game and Fisheries, the Commission of Forestry, and the Department of Agriculture and Industries have been leading agencies in this work.

Along with state and local agences, the work of several federal agencies will be felt in the encouragement of wildlife and game as the years go by.

FINGERPRINTING URGED AS AID TO LIQUOR CLEAN-UP

Compulsory finger printing of all persons engaged in the sale of alcoholic beverages as a means of cleaning up the liquor trade is urged by Miss Ethel Hubler of Los Angeles, member of the National Temperance Council, in a communication which is today on the desk of every state liquor control board in the United States for consideration.

More than 1,200 men and women with criminal records have recently sought liquor licenses in southern California. These startling figures have just come to light, following the enforcement of compulsory finger printing of all liquor license applicants in the southern California area. Included on the list were the following: murder 11, burglary 47, counterfeiting 9, arson 12, drunken driving 69, and many other criminal offenders.

A number of wanted criminals were apprehended and many persons with long police records, including several murderers, were prevented from selling liquor as a direct result of the finger printing experiment.

It is urged that similar regulations be put into effect in every state where alcoholic beverages are sold as means of eliminating a large part of the criminal element now in the ranks of the liquor trade.

Such a regulation would, to some extent, assure the drinker who is prone to get chummy with the man across the bar that he is not fraternizing with an ex-bank bandit, a counterfeiter, or a burglar. It would seem that retailers and wholesalers of beer, wines, and liquor, who wish to put their business on a more respectable basis would, themselves initiate a campaign for compulsory finger printing, in order to rid the trade of undesirables.

GETTING FACTS ON 1937 PROGRAM

Auburn.—Alabama county agents are in session at Auburn obtaining detail instructions on the 1937 Agricultural Conservation Program. They met on Wednesday, March 3, and were to remain in session through Friday, March 5.

Cash receipts of Alabama farmers during 1936 from the sale of principal farm crops, livestock and livestock products, totalled $97,352,000—highest figure for any year of the past four. In addition, farmers of the state received $6,546,000 in benefit payments.

Hog numbers increased 12 per cent, horses 2 per cent, mules and sheep showed no change, while cattle numbers declined 4 per cent in Alabama in 1936. At the same time, the number of horses, mules, cattle and hogs decreased in the United States. Sheep increased slightly in the country.

Any advance in hog prices which may occur during March and April probably will be small, predicts the Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

BOB JONES COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

The writer has just returned from a 15-day evangelistic campaign in New York City. We had a real old time revival. People say the day of revivals is past. This is not true. If it were true, it would mean that the day of Christianity is past. A revival is just as necessary in religion as it is in nature. Fall of the year comes and the sap goes down the trees. Leaves fall and gloom settles. Then spring time comes. The sap comes up in the trees. The trees bud. Life stirs in nature and she dresses herself in robes of many colors. The chillywinds of the world sometimes cool the fervor of the church. There is not much sign of life. Then, the Holy Spirit comes and warms the church and spiritual life is stimulated and the church takes up anew her task of witnessing for Jesus Christ. Pentecost was normal Christianity. Most churches have been running sub-normal for many years, so when a revival comes and the spiritual temperature goes up to normal some people think the church has high fever.

"Revivals are all right for the ignorant." That is what a modernistic school teacher said one time. Paul was not ignorant. He was a scholar. He knew philosophy, literature and history. He had sat at the feet of the greatest teacher of his age. Yet, he was stricken down on his way to Damascus and passed through a tremendous emotional experience and came out of it the mightiest missionary the world has ever known. The apostles were not ignorant men. Of course, measured by some of the world's standards, they were ignorant. But let us remember that for three years they sat at the feet of the greatest teacher the world has ever seen. Jesus taught them. What a teacher Jesus was! Yet after three years under Him, they passed through a revival at Pentecost where there was such an emotional manifestation the people in the town thought everybody was drunk. John Wesley, Charles Wesley, and Whitfield had an Oxford background, and they had something of culture from early childhood. But these men lighted evangelistic firts which saved England from the revolution which drenched France in blood. Men talk lightly of things concerning which they have never seriously thought. What this nation needs now is a real revival of old time religion. The writer was delighted to experience on Manhattan Island, in the center of the metropolitan East, a real, old time, genuine revival. It is the writer's opinion that a large part of the revival fire that is burning in America now was kindled by the proclamation of the gospel over the radio. Many radio stations have a simple, gospel program. It is the gospel that is the power of God unto salvation. It does not matter whether the gospel is preached over the radio or in church on Sunday morning. It is the message and not the place where the message is given that counts with God.

Prohibition Laws Should And Can Be Enforced---Why, How

Radio address by Dr. Seale Harris, Professor Emeritus of Medicine, University of Alabama, over Station WAPI, Birmingham, March 3, 1937, sponsored by the Alabama Temperance Alliance.

The statement that the prohibition laws cannot be enforced has been reiterated so often that many conscientious prohibitionists, and others who drink occasionally, actually believe it. The psychology of the propaganda that the prohibition laws cannot be enforced is "the wish is father to the thought" with people who want to make money out of the liquor traffic, and those who drink more or less regularly do not want the laws enforced. By their combined and systematic and persistent propaganda they are trying to mould public opinion against law enforcement with the hope that beer and liquor may be legalized and easy for everybody to get. I shall endeavor in the 12 minutes allotted me to give reasons why beer and whiskey should not be legalized, or used at all in a civilized country, and also to show how easy it would be to enforce the laws if the people who believe in order and decency will stand together and elect honest and courageous public officials. If there were a few more public officials with the courage and fidelity to public trust like Sheriff Fred McDuff the prohibition laws can be enforced in Jefferson County as effectively as are the laws prohibiting the sale of morphine and other opium derivatives. Have the thinking people of Jefferson County forgotten the days of Sheriff Higdon and the city officials of Birmingham who lived up to their oath of office-"to enforce all the laws without fear or favor", when prohibition was enforced to the extent that there were no prisoners in the fine new city jail and it was offered to the government as a hospital during the war?

It is true that it has become fashionable in certain social circles in the cities to drink, but that does not make it either right, proper or desirable. Maggie, the "social climber," created by McManus, in "Bringing Up Father", once said in disgust to Jiggs, when he had on a striped shirt and a red four-in-hand tie with an evening suit: "What will society think of you?" Jiggs replied: "Well, since when did society begin to think?" Society has not yet begun to think when it is considered de riguer to serve one or more cocktails, or highballs, or beer, when two or more are gathered together for social enjoyment; because alcohol, whether in beer, wine or whiskey, is a true narcotic, a habit forming drug, which cannot be indulged in with safety by any man or woman.

It is not true that everyone in society drinks because I know that many of the most prominent citizens in Birmingham and their families are total abstainers. They belong to the country clubs and they enjoy life far more than the unwise members of the social set who think it is "smart" to drink. A prominent society woman told me that three years ago cocktails were served at only one of the parties given to the debutantes, and that only 4 of the 22 girls entering society touched the cocktails served on that accasion. A former president of the Birmingham Country Club said two years ago before the prohibition laws were broken down by the chicanery of two Birmingham city commissioners: "There were more alcoholic drinks sold in the Country Club any Saturday night when it was legal to sell them in Birmingham (before prohibition in Alabama) than were consumed in a whole year at the Country Club during prohibition."

There is far more drinking among the imitators of the "jazz" set in society than any other class; and they are paying the penalty for the sin of intemperance. It is unfortunately true that many otherwise fine men and lovely women, both in "society" and among the "social climbers", have become, and are becoming, alcohol addicts and are being treated in hospitals everywhere, particularly in the wet states. Doctors Zeigler and Horner (New York State Medical Journal, September 13, 1935) called attention to "the increasing number of cases of illness and deaths associated with the excessive use of alcoholic beverages. The number of Psychotic inebriates admitted to licensed institutions in New York in 1934 was more than five times that of 1929." The only reasonable way to account for the fact that there was an increase of 500 per cent in insanity from alcohol in the state of New York from 1920 to 1934 is that there was five times as much alcohol (beer, wine and whiskey) consumed in 1934, one year after the repeal, than there was in 1920, one year after the 18th amendment became effective. It appears from the increase in alcoholic insanity in New York that repeal has been a terrible mistake, as it has been in every state in the Union that has legalized the liquor traffic.

The alcohol problem can be solved only by education. No intelligent man or woman, boy or girl, could be induced to touch a drop of beer, wine or whiskey, or other alcoholic beverages, if he, or she, knew the following facts:

1. Ethel alcohol, the essential ingredient in beer (5 to 10 per cent), wine (10 to 20 per cent), or whiskey, gin or rum (40 to 50 per cent), is as harmful and as habit forming as morphine, codeine, heroin and other derivatives of opium. This is not an extreme view, but is concurred in by many leading physicians of the nation. Dr. W. J. Mayo says that the person who drinks socially takes "a 30 per cent chance of becoming an alcohol addict."

2. The British Research Council has proved to the satisfaction of unprejudiced physicians that ethel alcohol, in any quantity, is never a stimulant, but is always a narcotic and a depressant. Therefore alcoholic beverages decrease efficiency.

3. Recent studies by Dr. Heise of Milwaukee on the alcohol content of the blood and urine of automobile drivers involved in accidents indicate that more than half of the 38,000 people killed, and a larger portion of the million injured and crippled in automobile accidents in the United States in 1936 resulted from the use of beer and whiskey. Dr. Morris Fishbein said: "Just a drink or two—and the safe driver is turned into a reckless traffic menace." Senseless social drinking among "society" people, and their imitators, and others who drive automobiles, would end if all classes of men and women were informed of the reasons why a drink or two may be responsible for a fatal or crippling automobile accident.

4. In 1907, back in the "good old days" when bar rooms were everywhere in Alabama, Dr. J. T. Searcy, then superintendent of the Alabama State Hospital for the Insane, said that 25 per cent of the inmates of that institution were there as a result of alcohol. Then Dr. Searcy quoted Dr. Frederic Peterson, the preat psychiatrist, as saying: "42 per cent of the insane among women and 12 per cent of the insane among men in New York state are made so by alcohol." No one would take the first drink of beer, wine or whiskey if he knew that by so doing he takes a chance of becoming an alcohol addict and then a victim of insanity.

5. Gov. B. B. Comer, one of the very greatest men that Alabama has ever produced, said that most of the derelicts, for whom pardons or reprieves from sentences were begged for by weeping and distraught wives, mothers, daughters and sisters of convicted men, were made criminals by drink. Col. Alex M. Garber, attorney-general of Alabama, investigated the causes of murders in Alabama over a period of two years, 1909 and 1910, and he found more than half of them resulted from alcohol. With the breaking down of the prohibition laws in Alabama, crime of all sorts is increasing.

6. It is estimated that more than 40 per cent of all suicides are due to alcohol. More than half of the suicides of which I have personal knowledge were due to alcohol.

7. Judge Murphy, of the Court of Domestic Relations in Jefferson County, in an address before "The Forum" at the University of Alabama, in 1935, said that in 1933 there were 3,500 suits for divorces, non support and delinquent children. With the breaking down of the prohibition laws in 1934 the number had increased to 5,000. Investigations by officers in his court proved that 85 per cent of them could be traced to the alcohol habits of husband or wife. It was alcohol and not prohibition that was responsible for these domestic tragedies.

8. "From the bottle to the brothel" is a term used by Benjamin Rush, a signer of the Declaration of Independence and a great Philadelphia physician, more than a hundred years ago. Not every woman who drinks is immoral, but a girl who drinks one or two bottles of beer, one or more cocktails, or highballs, is apt to forget the teachings of a good mother and father. Then in an automobile on a lonely road, or in a fine hotel, with a boy whom a few drinks has changed from a gentleman to a "cave man," she may begin a life of shame. Wine, women and syphilis are a triad that destroys many a man and woman, who without alcohol would have lived long and useful lives. The boy or girl who has never taken the first drink of beer, wine or whiskey (cocktail or highball) is much more apt to resist temptation than those who indulge in social drinking.

9. Beer, wine and whiskey are not needed as medicines. Dr. Charles Mayo said: "The only legitimate use for alcohol is in the arts and sciences, and its use in medicine has become greatly restricted, because other less menacing drugs and remedial measures can be used instead."

10. The use of alcoholic beverages shortens life. Life insurance companies know from sad experience that "something happens to people who drink." Certainly alcoholism is the one greatest cause for the increasing death rates from diseases of the heart, arteries and kidneys.

11. Alcohol is the one greatest cause of disease and poverty. A vote to legalize liquor, which carries disease and poverty in its wake, is a vote to pauperize the man who earns small wages; it is a vote to take bread out of the mouths, the clothes off the back, and the shoes off the feet of women and children.

Let no one be misled by the propaganda that legalization, allowing the sale of beer everywhere, will decrease the consumption of alcoholic beverages. Nine-tenths of the filling stations, grocery stores, drug stores, cafes and hotels and soda-water stands that sell legalized beer in Mississippi and Georgia also sell bootleg whiskey; and poverty and disease are increasing in those states. According to the Birmingham Age-Herald (February 26) legalized beer in Mississippi yielded only $185,000 in taxes in the year 1936; and Georgia's degradation in legalizing beer added only $245,000 in taxes in 1935. Alabama should profit by the sad experience of our neighboring states; and we should not be deceived by the promises of the wets regarding the revenue from liquor taxes.

It would be as sensible to pour gasoline on a burning building while waiting for the fire department as to attempt to cure the evils of bootlegging by opening up the state to the flood of beer and whiskey that will come into Alabama with legalized liquor. Even if benighted Montgomery and Mobile Counties vote wet, thus adding legalized liquors to the fire of bootleg whiskey that is destroying more homes than are burned, with a new fire chief (governor) having courage and fidelity to public trust, and with a new fire department (legislature) that holds decency above dollars and liquor, the flames of both legalized and bootleg liquor will be quenched. In 1940, when a new legislature convenes in Montgomery, and when new sheriffs, judges and city officials have been elected both legalized and bootleg liquor will be driven out of Alabama.

Brewers in their greed for money have spread the propaganda that beer is not only harmless but is good for men, women and children. The fact is that beer is more seductive in making alcohol habitues than the stronger drinks. Thousands of whiskey addicts begin drinking beer and wine. The distillers spread the propaganda that temperate drinking will not hurt anybody, and that "social drinking" is a man's right and a woman's privilege. Many fine men and lovely women are ruined by drinking cocktails and highballs because they are misled by the propaganda of those who build up big fortunes by manufacturing whiskey and gin.

When all the people are educated regarding the well known scientific facts about alcoholic beverages, some of which have been mentioned, then will prohibition prohibit 100 per cent. Even with widespread ignorance regarding the ravages of alcohol, there is no reason why the prohibition laws in Ala. cannot be made to prohibit 75 to 80 per cent, and thereby reduce the automobile accidents, crime, diseases, divorces and suicides due to alcohol in like proportion. It would be just as logical to repeal the laws prohibiting the sale of morphine, codeine and other opium derivatives that are harmful and habit forming, and license them to be sold to anyone who wants to buy them at filling stations, grocery stores, drug stores, cafes and hotels, as it would be to enact into a law, the miserable hypocritical legislation "to promote temperance" proposed by the recent legislature and to be voted on March 10th.

It is the sworn duty of the governor of Alabama to enforce all the laws of the state. If Gov. Graves had done his duty, he could have closed up nine-tenths of the bootleggers in Montgomery in a week—at anytime within the last two years. A well known Montgomery lawyer told me that it would have been necessary only for Gov. Graves to instruct the attorney-general to impeach Sheriff Patterson for failure to enforce the prohibition laws of Montgomery. He said that the Supreme Court, with evidence before it, to show that beer and whiskey are sold openly in Montgomery, could not fail to impeach the sheriff of that county. With the impeachment of the sheriff of Montgomery County, every other sheriff in Alabama would have driven the bootleggers out of their counties in another week; but instead, the Graves administration has allowed Montgomery County to be used as a "horrible example" to prove that prohibition cannot be made to prohibit in Alabama. Wets have used that propaganda to inveigle unwary citizens to vote for the proposed state liquor store plan, which if carried into effect will build up the most powerful and rottenest political machine that Alabama has had since the days before prohibition when Charlie Lewis of Cincinnati with his "black leather satchel" and free beer and liquor in the Exchange Hotel in Montgomery, used to tell the Alabama state legislature what to do.

The good people of the United States should study the effects of beer and other alcoholic beverages on the human body as well as the recent history of Germany, Austria, France, Italy, and other beer and wine drinking countries; and each man, woman, boy and girl who thinks should refuse to drink alcoholic beverages, that not only are habit forming and character destroying in themselves, but they often lead to the use of stronger drinks that cause more rapid degeneracy in those who are unwise enough to use them to excess. Every citizen can do his or her part in making Alabama and our nation great and prosperous by abstaining from alcoholic beverages of all kinds and by otherwise keeping himself fit for whatever may be his vocation in life.

The propaganda of the brewers and the distillers, that many good people have fallen for, is that prohibition is responsible for crime. People who fall for such propaganda do not think things out for themselves. It is whiskey and beer—not prohibition—that is wrong; and the people of Alabama should have the good sense and the courage to rise up and drive out the alcoholic beverages that are harmful and habit forming, and which when used to excess undoubtedly result in degeneracy and death. A good beginning in driving beer and whiskey out of Alabama is to vote NO on March 10th.

J. H. JACKSON WRITES AGAIN

Editor Union-Banner:

Will you allow me a little space to take a crack at our rulers?

Excuse me for quoting David's sayings. He says: "Why do the heathen rage, and the people imagine a vain thing? The kings of the earth set themselves, and the rulers take counsel together against the Lord and against His anointed."

If there ever has been a time that the above saying applies, it is now. It appears to me that all our rulers study is more tax and cruel laws.

Well, I thought something was going to happen, and sure enough it did. It was the moon came from behind the shadow of an eclipse. You know the moon only eclipse when full. But this time I thought it was the largest and brightest I have ever seen. I'll bet it shined away down in Goat Pool. I'll bet if it did, and the lawmakers saw their doings, they thought that old man Isaiah was talking about them when he said: "For we have made lies our refuge, and under falsehood have we hid ourselves. For the bed is shorter than that a man can stretch himself on it, and the cover narrower than he can wrap himself in it."

Well, it may be that the old prophet did see the future to the present time. If he didn't he sure was guessing some.

As to the liquor question, I am silent this time so far as voting is concerned. I expect it is better to keep it like it is for the poor man. He can get all he wants for $2 a gallon; if it is legalized it will cost him from $4 to $6 a gallon. But I do think we people who profess to be followers of the law of the Lord should be careful how we support a cruel law like the prohibition law. We should know that it harmonizes with the law of the Lord before we support it. Some people seem to think that if we oppose the prohibition law, we encourage drunkenness. That is not true. I have my first man to meet who says that it is right to drink to excess. We have a law against drunkenness, and I think the law of the Lord will justify such a law. But to support a law that will punish a man for possessing or taking a drink I think it is walking in the counsel of the ungodly. So, if we legalize liquor for the purpose of more revenue, it will cause the tax eaters to enlarge their political machine, and when prohibition returns this revenue will have to come from another source to keep this machine in operation. So, I think it will be better in the long run to keep it like it is, especially for the poor man. I think the thing to do is to let the drys have it. So long as we can elect a sheriff who has a thimble full of grace, he won't bother you if you keep sober and behave yourself. If you must get drunk, keep off the road and away from public places.

Our desire should be to build up the morals of our people and to establish the kingdom of God in their hearts, especially the young boys and girls. The kingdom cometh, not by violence, but by love, for God is love. If you have love in your heart you have God in there, and you have a drawing power to influence people to the kingdom of God and to good morals. But if you have a desire to cruelly oppress your fellow man without Biblical authority, it is not prompted by love, and you have lost sight of the kingdom of God. Charity, or love, does not oppress, especially for a thing that justly belongs to a person.

Yours for a new heaven and a new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness.
—Respectfully, J. H. Jackson.

Repeal Will Likely Cost More Than Revenue It Will Bring In

FACING FACTS ABOUT REPEAL

1. By section 53 of the liquor bill to be voted on March 10th, repeal will mean that a quarter of a million dollars of the taxpayers' money will be appropriated from the General Fund of the state treasury to start Alabama in the liquor business.

2. By section 53, repeal will mean the Board can employ "such clerical assistants, field workers, inspectors and chemists" as may be necessary. No limit is set as to the number of persons who may thus be placed on the state's payroll. No limit is placed on the salaries such persons may receive. Many experienced business men and college presidents believe the revenue derived from the sale of liquor will not be sufficient to finance the huge political machine repeal will set up, and that the state will be exposed to a large deficit. Such a deficit, of course, would have to be paid by taxpayers. The imaginary millions of revenue to be collected from sale of liquor are only in the brains of the wets.

3. But even assuming that the state should realize a gross profit from its liquor venture, the expenditures in increased costs of government that will be made necessary by the operation of this business will so far exceed the profits that the business will still be a financial loss. November 21, 1936, the Boston Globe stated that 5,000 cases of alcoholism a year, costing the city of Boston $375,000 in taxpayers' money is the extent to which drunkenness has increased since repeal in the one city of Boston, in that class of patients cared for at public expense. Similar reports come from Cook County Hospital, Chicago; from Bellevue Hospital in New York, and from many other institutions, including welfare agencies, and the like.

4. Repeal will give bootleggers a cover under which to ply their trade with less danger of detection. Early in February, 1937, cut-rate bootleg liquor was causing so much trouble among 2,100 WPA workers in Chicago that H. K. Seltzer, Supervisor of District No. 3, called on both city police and federal authorities to aid in trying to curb activities of bootleggers operating around the project on which the 2,100 workmen were employed. News item of February 20, 1937, says constables in South Carolina are "extremely skeptical whether the moonshine industry has been appreciably lessened by sale of legal liquor in the state." And 200 stills were captured in a small area of the northwest part of the state in 1936. Cut rate liquor appeals to buyers as being a bargain. Dry leaders in the present campaign say that to date no individual ever arrested for bootlegging, or believed to be guilty of such, has offered to donate one penny to dry funds. It was claimed a few weeks ago that some mythical liquor men in Florida offered a bribe of $10,000 to a man in Montgomery to defeat repeal in Alabama. But if any bootleggers in Florida have $10,000 to spend in keeping Alabama dry, they have not offered one penny of it to those leading the dry fight, although these dry leaders are constantly appealing for funds.

5. Repeal will bring a flood of liquor advertising to the state, in newspapers, over radios, etc. Liquor journals urge their trade to make all such advertisements dripping with temptation. The one purpose in advertising any article is to increase its consumption. Alluring ads, dripping with temptation, will certainly increase liquor consumption in Alabama, if repeal comes.

6. That repeal always doubles and trebles consumption is seen in a comparison of government revenue figures which showed a national consumption in January, 1935, of slightly over 81,000,000 gallons of alcoholic beverages; but 16 months later, in the one month of May, 1936, consumption was over 167,000,000 gallons. Keeley Institute report of January 15, 1937, said patients applying for cures increased 70 per cent from 1933 to 1936; and the number in 1936 was the greatest in 30 years.

7. Repeal will increase crime. J. Edgar Hoover recently stated the last three years are the blackest with crime of any similar period in American history.

8. Repeal will increase traffic death. The American Business Men's Research Foundation of Chicago compiled twin tabulations of liquor consumption (from government revenue figures) and of traffic deaths reported by National Safety Council, and found amazing parallel.

8. Repeal will leave a long, long trail of human suffering, sorrow, misery, ruined lives of men and women, boys and girls, and of little children who were robbed of their heritage before birth.

New Lighting, Even Bubbles in Color To Beautify Fair

NEW YORK, (Special).—None of the scientific discoveries or developments being hurried from the laboratories to make the New York World's Fair unusual and thrilling will produce more startling results than the latest technique in illumination.

This statement was issued by Grover Whalen, President of the Fair Corporation, at the inauguration of experiments by the Fair's staff of engineers and illumination experts and their consultants. These men are already at work with quarter-inch scale models of the Fair, types of lighting equipment never before used in comprehensive manner, and utterly new principles never developed practically. They are dealing with everything from fluorescent dies and colored bubbles to concentrating lamps and floodlight systems.

The plan is not to create spectacular effects in the usual sense of the term, says Mr Whalen, but rather to create designs in light that will make their appeal through their magnitude and their sheer beauty

SKIMMED MILK AND CALF MEAL PROVIDE THRIFTY CALF FEED

The natural food for baby calves is whole milk as it comes from its mother. Today, several factors make the "natural way" the "impractical way." Newer and sounder methods of feeding calves are being offered.

Today, milk has attained a commercial value that makes it almost prohibitive as a calf feed. At present day milk prices one gallon of whole milk testing six percent contains about one-half pound butterfat, and has a market value of around 20 cents. When you stop to consider how many gallons of milk each calf requires for fulfilling body needs, the impracticability of such a feeding program is immediately apparent.

Scours Are Likely

But there are other reasons why whole milk is not the best feed for baby calves. Because butterfat does have such a high commercial value, dairymen are, and have been, breeding cows that will produce milk with a higher fat content. Research shows that high test milk is really a dangerous feed for young calves since the high percentage of fat makes it difficult for the calf to digest. Consequently, scours develop, leaving the calf sick and weakly. Scours may be outgrown but their results show up later in disease and lower production.

The calf raising problem becomes even more serious when one realizes that removing the cream from the milk doesn't do much good. Skimmed milk falls far short of being the ideal calf feed. In feeding skim milk, one of the causes of scours is avoided, but skim milk alone does not provide the essentials calves need, and must have if they are to grow and develop into money-making cows. When cream is removed, Vitamin A, the growth and health vitamin is taken away. Without plenty of Vitamin A in the diet, calves slow down in growth becoming weak, scrubby animals that lower the herd average when they finally mature and become milkers.

Mr. and Mrs. Rascoe Maddox had as their dinner guests Sunday night Mrs. Hester Ann Merchant and daughter, Helen.

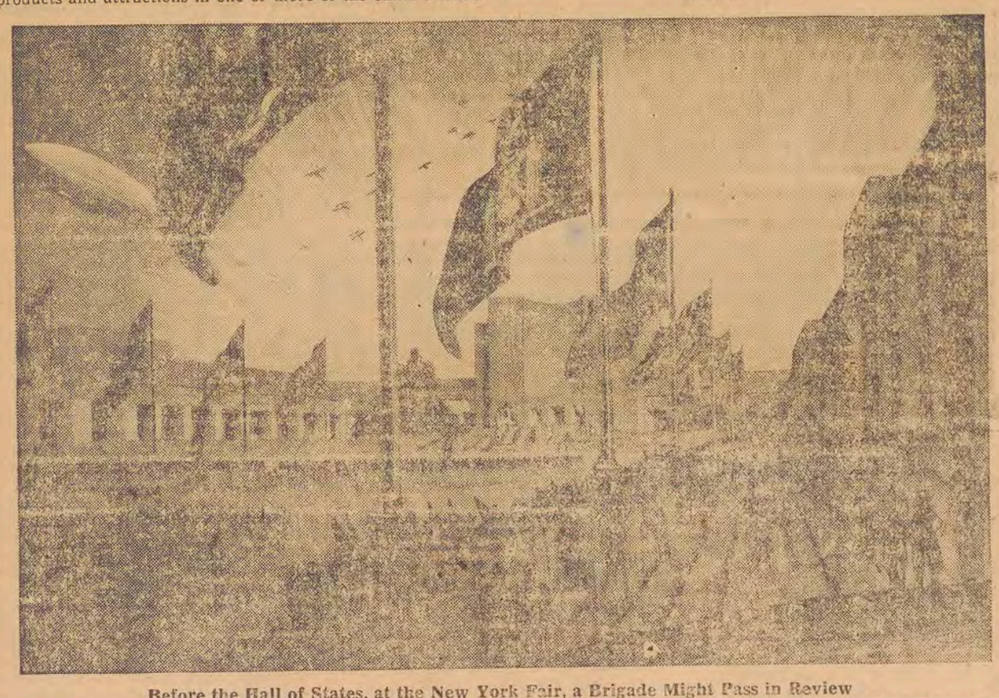
STATES HAVE OPPORTUNITY TO SHOW WARES IN HUGE BUILDING AT NEW YORK FAIR

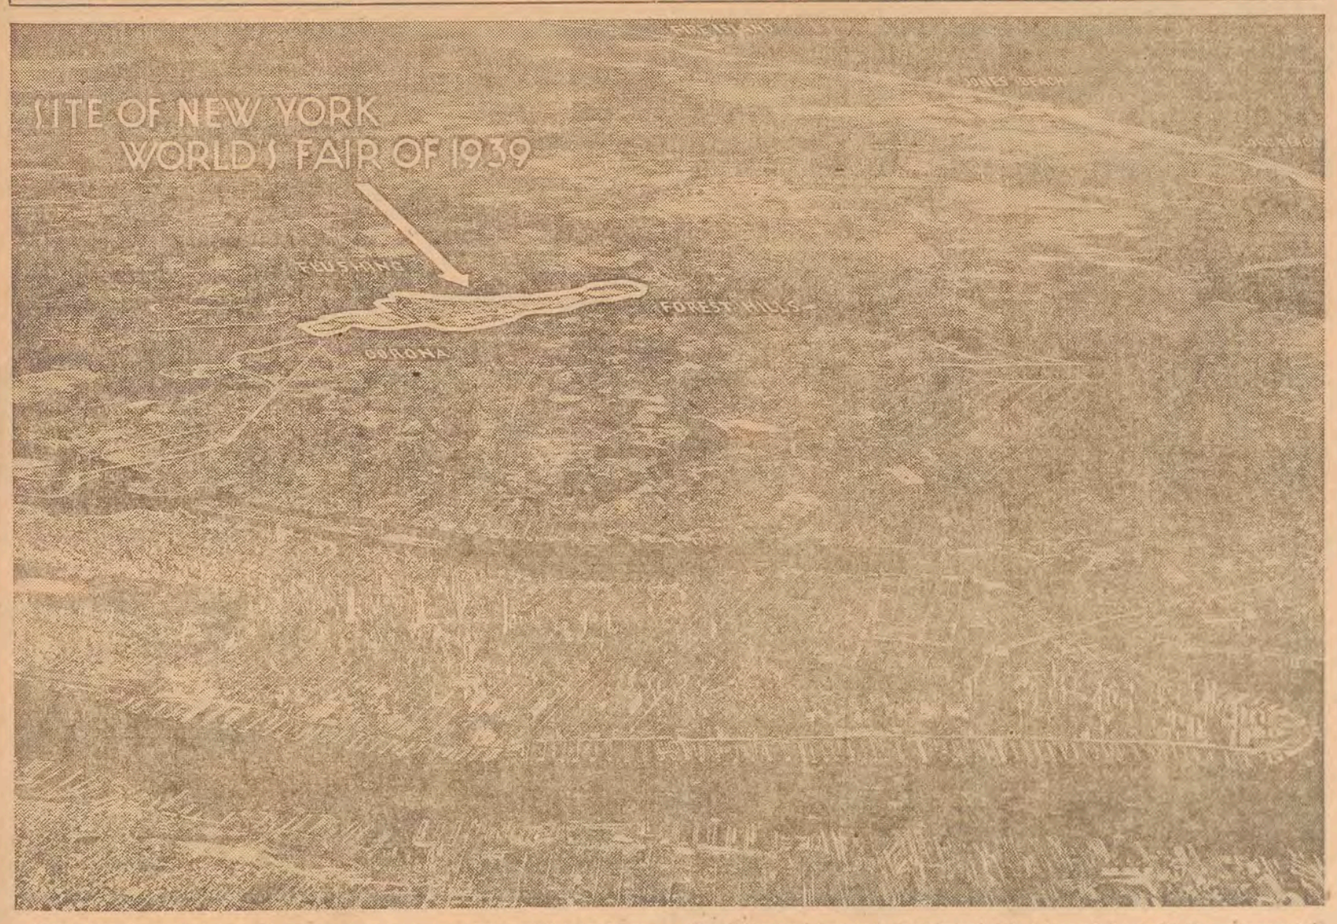
NEW YORK, (Special).—Included in the limited edition book of unusual size and beauty which the New York World's Fair 1939 Incorporated has sent to state governors and, through diplomatic channels, to foreign governments, is the following text devoted to.



The Sovereign States of the Federal Union

George Washington, in declaring that the public felicity and prosperity of America depend upon the firm union and the unceasing cooperation of the sovereign American States, divined the future. The prosperity and the greatness of these United States have arisen from the free and unimpeded circulation of ideas and products in the world's greatest consumer market.

The Fair gives to each State the appropriate setting and opportunity to announce to the world its unique and indispensable contribution to America's rich and colorful civilization. The Fair contemplates a Hall of States, in the imposing Government group and flanking the structure which the Fair looks to the United States to build, to house the exhibits of the forty-eight States, and the Territories. Those wishing to participate more extensively will, in addition to their exhibits in the Hall of States, either erect their own buildings or obtain space to display their products and attractions in one or more of the exhibit zones.



The State of New York has naturally taken the leadership in the participation of the sovereign States of the Federal Union. Its total appropriations for Fair purposes may exceed $5,600,000; and the New York State World's Fair Commission, appointed by the Governor, has been active for some time. Other States already are beginning to express enthusiastic interest in participating more extensively than at previous world's fairs.

The many visitors will find a fresh cause for pride and enthusiasm in the revealing exhibits of their respective States. But beyond this, the exhibits will enable the States to make a persuasive presentation to all visitors of what they have to offer to the consumer and t the tourist.

New York World's Fair Site From 9,000 Feet Up

NEW YORK, (Special).—Photography and ingenuity combine to show about how the New York Fair will appear in 1939 to visitors arriving from the west in planes flying at an altitude of one and three-quarters miles. Cameraman made this "shot" from a plane over the New Jersey meadows. Shown in the foreground is the shipping along the Hudson—Manhattan with its towers grouped about the Empire State building (center) which houses present headquarters of the Fair—and in the middle distance the 1,216½ acre site of the 1939 international exposition. To the right lies Brooklyn and, beyond, the hinterland of Long Island. At the extreme left, spanning the East river, is the new Triborough bridge over which many of the 50,000,000 visitors expected at the Fair will motor to the convenient parking lots. A photograph of the table model of the Fair has been superimposed on the negative of the air view to show the grid of the central exhibit zone, the boat basin being constructed on Flushing Bay and the lagoons that will feature the exposition's amusement zone.

Parasites, Germs and Worms Extract Enormous Farm Toll

Formland, U.S.A. DATE Every Year NO. 1937

Bank of U.S. Agriculture

PAY TO ORDER Germs, Parasites and Worms $2,000,000,000

Two Billion --- DOLLARS

American Farmers

A better place for this two billion dollars is in the farmer's pocketbook. Following a farm-tested sanitation program will put it there.

Two billion dollars wasted every year! That's the annual toll taken in the United States by worms, germs and parasites—more than is spent for automobiles. Unfortunate as it is the feeding of worms and parasites is fast becoming one of the nation's major industries.

"We've got to start cleaning up," says Grafton Lothrop, head of the Sanitation Department of Purina Mills. A great part of the two billion dollar loss could be prevented if farmers would only perform the most basic sanitative precautions. A big percentage of the money that goes to bugs might just as well find its way into the farmer's pocketbook. Following a farm-tested program of sanitation brings more profits. Animals and fowls generally do better in clean surroundings.

Sanitation Is Insurance

"Start with good stock. Provide good surroundings. Feed well. And keep everything sanitary. These are the four legs of profitable livestock and poultry production," the Purina sanitation expert points out. "The fourth leg is the farmers' insurance on his investment. A man can't get insurance after his house is burned. Neither can sanitation be effective after chicks and livestock are dead. That's why a sanitation program must be started early—before there is a chance to lose. Truly that old adage 'an ounce of precaution is worth a pound of cure,' never rang nearer hitting the mark than it does when referring to sanitation.

"Every poultryman knows how delicate baby chicks are. It doesn't take many germs to destroy their little bodies. Many baby chick losses can be directly traced to disease and parasite. An ounce of prevention would have saved them. Every time a chick dies the owner loses. He loses not only the immediate value of the chick and the feed that has gone into it, but also the potential value of the bird as a future money maker.

Scrub All Equipment

"Before chicks arrive, the brooder house and all equipment should be thoroughly scrubbed and cleaned," Lothrop advises. "To disinfect, the walls, floors and ceilings, a solution of one-fourth pint of creosote to every gallon of scrub water is an effective germ and parasite killer. Disease germs spread rapidly through drinking fountains and troughs. Colds, bronchitis and brooder pneumonia pass quickly from chick to chick so that every precaution must be taken to keep fountains and hoppers clean. Chlorene (one tablespoonful to every three gallons of water) makes a germ-killing solution for disinfecting feed and drinking troughs. As a further precaution one-half tablespoonful of chlorene should be added to every five gallons of drinking water. That's an accurate strength solution that can always be depended upon to do the job. Too strong a solution will cut down the chicks' consumption of water and slow up growth. If the solution's too weak it doesn't kill germs.

Profits From Cleanliness

"Health and condition are important factors in the production of profitable pork, beef, milk, and wool. Certainly protecting these products most secure that against the spread of disease and parasites. Half-way measures simply won't do the job. It's a matter of 'clean up and disinfect,'" Lothrop says. "For general disinfecting or keeping down germs, spray with a fifteen strong solution of creosote and water. If disease is present, the strength of the solution should be increased and a more thorough cleansing job done.

"In raising livestock and poultry you are dealing with life—and life of its best is uncertain," Lothrop complains. "The health of animals and fowls must be protected if profitable production is expected. Creosote is five times as strong as carbolic acid, and has the added advantage of being safe so that it does a better job of cutting through the dirt. Creosote mixes readily with hot or cold water, stays mixed, and retains its strength. It is one of the government approved disinfectants for use in stock cars, hog-cholera and other diseases."

SPECIAL PRIVILEGES

Justice for all, special privileges for none. That has been a popular cry in American politics from the days of Jefferson down. During all that time, it must be admitted, the principle has been violated in the interest of separate groups at the expense of the whole community. But these forms of special privileges have been, on the whole, much cut down or abolished. One set remains and has been enlarged, even. We refer to the special privileges claimed by organized labor and freely allotted to it.

It has, in fact, become a kind of sacred preserve, in both politics and legislation. No public man dares lay rude and inquiring hand upon it. Stringent measures are demanded for others, but labor unions are always exempt. Consider the requests for greater power which the Secretary of Labor has just made of congress. Miss Perkins asks that the Department have the right, in case of strike, or other labor disturbance, to subpoena witnesses including employers and workers, and also to call for the production of books, papers and records. Would the Secretary of Labor ever think of applying the legislation to the heads of labor unions? Would she issue a subpoena for Mr. John Lewis and require him to give testimony under oath? Members of congress would shrink with horror from the grant of such powers. The LaFollette committee is running down cases of espionage by large employers, but does it ever think of exposing the tactics of labor union organizers? Would it be at all interested in charges or affidavits setting forth acts of tyrnany and even brutality by labor union officials or agents?

Everybody knows that it would not be, and also knows the reason why. One special privilege now exercised by organized labor is that of political intimidation. No one will deny that labor unions are entitled to their full rights. But they must ask no more than equality with their fellow citziens. — New York Times.

RAINY DAY RESERVES

Two things are about to happen. They will bear watching as they relate one to the other. They are:

1. As the flood waters recede, corporations will send their employees back into the plants to clean up the mess, rebuild and repair machinery not completely ruined. Equipment damaged beyond repair will have to be replaced with new. The cost will run into many millions.

2. Because some half-billion dollars in sales and nuisance taxes are due to expire, and because the government has to have that revenue, congress must soon take up the question of taxes. Congressional leaders have not decided yet whether to limit the tax bill to a renewal of the expiring excises, or open up the whole tax structure for a general overhauling.

What is the relation of these two situations, one to the other? Simply this:

Our present tax laws include what is known as a corporate surplus tax, enacted hastily last year. This is a steeply graduated tax on undistributed corporate income. It forced many corporations last year to pay out in dividends income which otherwise would have been held in reserve for just such an emergency as this flood.

One very good test of the wisdom—or lack thereof—of this law will come when we learn to what extent the tax-forced disgorging of dividends has interefered with the ability of the corporations to re-employ and rebuild in the flood areas.—The Washington Daily News.

BLOW AT GOVERNMENT

In this 161st year of the independence of the United States, President Roosevelt has brought forward a proposal which, if enacted, would end the American state as it has existed throughout the long years of its life.

The plan is put forward with all the artistry of the president's political mind. He speaks in the name of youth, always a popular and appealing note. He dangles before the House and Senate 50 new and important jobs, always ripe and luscious bait for the congressional mind. He ingeniously conveys the impression that all he seeks is a routine and moderate effort to speed up justice and improve the whole federal bench.

Yet, beneath this veneer of politeness, the brutal fact is that President Roosevelt would pack the Supreme Court with six new justices of his own choosing.

It was a French king, Louis XVI, who said, "L'etat, c'est moi"—"I am the state". The paper shell of American constitutionalism would continue if President Roosevelt secured the passage of the law he demands. But it would be only a shell.—New York Herald Tribune.

JUST A PIKER

Mrs. Doris Duke Cromwell, one of the heiresses to the Duke tobacco fortune, contributed $50,000 to the Democratic cause, according to an outgiving by the Senate committee which investigates such matters.

It sounds like a lot of money, as, indeed, it is. It puts Mrs. Cromwell right up in the class with the du Ponts, so far as campaign contributions go.

But it leaves her still a long way behind the United Mine Workers and their contribution of $441,000 to Mr. Roosevelt's cause. That vast sum makes all the other fat cats look like kittens.—Baltimore Evening Sun.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

One of he favorite pastimes of political prognosticators during the past month or so has been speculating as to whether the national administration will turn to the right or the left between 1937 and 1940. A great many of the wiseacres have been of the opinion that, having his second term assured, President Roosevelt, believing that business is returning to normalcy, will continuously grow more conservative during the next three years in office. They have predicted that this may mean a split with John Lewis and his friends, with the result that Lewis, or some of the same school of political thought, will be a candidate for president on a radical ticket in 1940. If this happens, so they speculate, then either the president, or one of his close friends will be the candidate of a liberal-conservative group at the next national election. In such case they believe that the conservative-liberals will win despite the number of votes which John Lewis and his friends may take away from the New Deal Democracy. This theory, of course, assumes the possibility that the Republicans will not have a candidate of their own in 1940, but may be frightened into a new liberal conservative camp by the specter of a powerful Farmer-Labor party.

The trouble with this theory is that several changes will have to take place if it is carried into actual practice. In the first place, it will be difficult to get the Republicans with their 16,000,000 votes of 1936 out of the picture, especially if the GOP should happen to make some important gains in congress in 1938. This is likely to happen. The Republicans are down to bed rock in the House. And of the 32 Senators to be elected in 1938, all but a very few are to take the place of Democrats. And again, President Roosevelt may not elect to become so conservative during his second term at Washington. Dr. Stanley High, writing in The Saturday Evening Post, as a close friend of the president, predicted just the opposite. He wrote that Mr. Roosevelt will permit his New Deal friends to loom even larger in the picture during the next three years and that his old line Democrats will be gradually eased out of the picture. It is true that Dr. High may be mistaken in some of his premises, and certainly he got a gentle repudiation from the White House calculated to soothe the ruffled feelings of old line Democrats. At the same time there are many people who believe that there is considerable weight to what Dr. High has to say.

Certainly the president's recommendations for speeding up the federal courts and adding to the number of appointments to be made in the United States Supreme Court do not seem to bear out the prediction of that class of prophets which says that the administration is going to assume a more conservative complexion from now on. It is true, of course, that many liberals as well as conservatives have disagreed with the president's court plan. At the same time it is generally believed by the majority of observers that the most important function of the plan, if it goes through, will be permitting the chief executive to add to the Supreme Court enough new justices to make a revision of opinion on many New Deal measures which have been held unconstitutional. The thing which might be expected to follow an enlarged court will be a new NRA and another AAA, as well as legislation to permit regulation of hours and wages of labor, commodity prices, etc. If this program is carried out it is difficult to see where the second New Deal administration is going to move to the right. Of course nobody knows yet what will happen along political lines in the next few months, so it is well nigh impossible for any political expert to write an advance history at this time.

THE PRESIDENT'S PROPOSAL

Mr. Roosevelt has asked congress to give him the power to pack the Supreme Court of the United States with six new men of his own choosing in order to obtain the validation of legislation which the present membership of the Court has declared unconstitutional. That is the inescapable conclusion to be drawn from his message to congress.

The effect of the president's proposal would be to destroy the independence of one of the three co-ordinate branches of our government, set up by the authors of the Constitution to check and balance one another—a device that has proved its profound value scores of times in our history. That is, henceforth, the judiciary would be not a branch of the federal structure answerable only to its own conscience and judgment, but subject to the executive branch.

A mere stating of the proposition is to condemn it.—St. Louis Post Dispatch.

HIDES REAL REASONS

Nobody, unless an unreasoning partisan of the New Deal, will fail to recognize that President Roosevelt, in his proposals to congress, is reaching for control of the courts, and more particularly the Supreme Court. Nobody will fail to know that if the legislation he asks for is enacted he will appoint to the federal court including the Supreme Court, men whose view concerning legislation that he wants coincide with his own. That will be the test of their qualifications.

This is the significance and the keynote of the president's message, and they cannot be obscured by the plausibility and the soundness of much else that he had to say.—The Portland Oregonian.

A BLANKETY BLANK JOB

Life for the average business man these days has become a blankety blank job. Blanks to be filled out are being sent out by federal and state hirelings by the thousands to Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Q. Public. The following documents, that read like legal tomes, have already reached our desk:

Capital Stock Tax Blanks.
Old Age Pension Tax Blanks.
Unemployment Tax Blanks.
Federal Corporation Tax Blanks.
Federal Income Tax Blanks.
State Income Tax Blanks.
Compensation Insurance Blanks.

This is only a starter—no telling what tomorrow's mail may bring.—Anoka Herald.

A movement is afoot in congress to increase the wages of government employees, now said to average $1,400 a year. Perhaps they will be voted extra compensation. Were 80 per cent of the government employees to stage a sit-down strike, the country would not suffer. —Charleston News and Courier.

DR. TUGWELL'S BARGAIN BOOK

Authors of worst sellers must be sorry they haven't Uncle Sam for a publisher if the Resettlement Administration's book, which constitutes Dr. Tugwell's farewell to Washington, is any criterion. The volume, containing 175 pages, with many pictures and lavish color work, costs $1.07 a copy to produce, and is sold for 40 cents.

The first edition of 4,000 proved so popular that a second printing of 750 has been ordered. Criticism of the cost has been bipartisan.

But Mr. Tugwell won't worry. He has gone into another business, although it may be a bit doubtful that he will offer customers $1.07 worth of molasses for 40 cents.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Since the government must look to the country's gainfully employed workers for the revenue to pay its bills, this group is particularly concerned with the rise in government expenditures. In the last 20 years government expenditures per gainful worker have increased from $8.00 per month in 1915 to $26.33 a month in 1935, a rise of more than 200 per cent.

Chilton County High School News

(By Carlis Wyatt and Cecil Wilson)

Mr. Hicks Returns

The school is glad to have Mr. Hicks back with them. He has returned from his trip. He and Mr. Little attended the National Educational Association at New Orleans.

We are also glad to have Mr. Varnell back with us. Mr. Williams is also back with the school. This makes the faculty complete again.

While Mr. Hicks was absent Mr. Searcy was left in charge with full authority to punish any way he saw fit when punishment was needed and to his estimation some few needed it. Some of the students seemed to think that school was held other places than at the school house. But when Mr. Searcy went to meet their class they changed their minds.

Major Bowes Program

The Major Bowes program will be held at the High School auditorium at eight o'clock Friday night, March 5. The public is cordially invited to attend. The admission will be fifteen and twenty-five cents.

Miss Colley Absent From School

Miss Colley has been absent from school attending the wedding of her brother in Troy, Ala.

Senior II Play

The Senior II Class is going to put on a play before long and we expect it to be a very good one. Miss Simpson is sponsring this play. We will have more about it later, so watch for further announcements of "Murdered Alive."

Old Age Pension

Although the other boys of this school are ready and waiting to leave this school there is one young boy who seems contented just to stay and keep on staying. He says he has been here ever since this building has been built, (1914), and expects to be here a long time yet. Even tho "Mac" says that in one more year he will be old enough to draw his old age pension, we hope that he will have many more successful years as janitor at this school.

Mr. Little States

Mr. Little stated the other day that the school would run long enough to give the Seniors their diplomas and to let the others be able to pass and be promoted if they make the grades sufficient. This is the best news we have had for four years and we hope that this will hold true for the years to come.

Sports

The base ball propects are very good. Every one is in good hope of a good season and we sincerely believe that we will have a good line up of players. Mr. Varnell stated that the school had bought new equipment for the other sports and he also expected the school to do the same for baseball.

Some of the boys have already started practicing; they play catch during the noon period and they look as though they might play good baseball. But you can't judge by that so come see their first game. The time will be announced later. The entire team will start regular practice in a few days.

The C. C. H. S. Cagers won a most interesting game from Verbena Wednesday night, Feb. 24, the score being 26 to 14. The teams both played a hard game but Verbena just couldn't hit the ring as well as Clanton.

The second team also won a hard fought game from Thorsby Jr. High by the score of 30 to 23. This game was a very interesting game and also a very tight one. Both teams kept the ball rolling fast throught the entire game, and that is what it takes to make a ball game interesting.

The second team also played two interesting games on Friday of last week. They played the second team of Verbena High Friday afternoon winning the game with all ease. The second game was played Friday night against Thorsby Jr. High at Thorsby. This was very interesting game showing great sportsmanship from both of the teams.

FAIRVIEW 4-H CLUB

This program on poultry was very helpful and enjoyed very much. Mr. Ivey also explained certain points on the program.

There being no other business the meeting adjourned until next month.

MAPLESVILLE 4-H CLUB

The Maplesville 4-H Club met at 10:15 Wednesday, February 24. The president called the meeting to order and the secretary called the roll. The members stood and repeated the club pledge.

The program was about diseases among chickens, the santitation of houses, the preventions of disease and disinfectants. James Latham gave the first part; Thomas Gaddy the second part; Andrew Loyd Dennis the third part, and James Smith gave the fourth part.

Mr. Ivey gave a talk on the hog contest, the TCI contest, and the national contest. He gave out project record books and 4-H club calendars and the meeting adjourned.

The Union-Banner—1 Year, $1.00

West Chilton

Bro. Scott's recent article in the Union-Banner seemed short one item, while it was quite interesting, he might have added that there was no one on relief at that time. It was in the days of Garfield, Arthur and Cleveland's administration.

Well, the eclipse has passed, and the "Man in the Moon" shines brighter than ever. No wonder his opposers can't stand before him. He always stands on a firm foundation. His last contribution was a clincher. Ah! how we have noted the "child's play" of our State legislative bodies. We recall the last Constitutional Convention in Ala. That looked like child's play. Now see where Ala. is, under a Democratic and New Deal government. Now it is tax, tax, tax, from the "cradle to the grave". How we do need a change, but we will never get it as long as we keep going to the same party for our officials. The New Deal has performed one good deed in the south, it has forever hushed the old time cry of White Surpremacy. It never can take that up again.

So, we vote on whiskey March 10. The tax eaters are still hungry. That is putting us back 50 years. Away back in the early eighties we adopted local option by Beats, and Counties, just as we are now going to do; going back to do our work over. We know there is an argument on both sides, but as all people know whiskey is an evil. Then why legalize an evil? What good will it do? We get the revenue says one, but who wants revenue from an evil? We hold no feeling for the habitual drinker, his weakness controls him and doubtless many whose appetites are abnormal would be glad for the sale of it to be entirely removed. Then it would be a noble experiment to remove it's sale as far as the East is from the West. Then would it be a noble experiment to legalize it's sale? No. We recall the days of the bar room, with it's drunken brawls. Let's never go back there. For the sake of suffering women and children, for the sake of safety of people in this time of highpowered transportation, for the sake of morality, for the sake of lifting up weak and fallen humanity, and making our homes and country peaceful. Our vote will be against its sale.

COUNTY COUNCIL SPONSORS MEETING ON "WORLD PEACE"

The County Council of Home Demonstration Clubs held a meeting on "World Peace" in connection with installing its officers, Saturday p. m., February 27, at the Exchange Hotel. The spacious dining room of the hotel was decorated with bowls of white narcissus and vases of red but interspersed with pots of ferns here and there. On entering the guests registered at the door.

The meeting was presided over by Mrs. Anna Phalin, County Council president. The program was as follows:

Song, America; Welcome Address, Mrs. Anna Phalin; Special Music, Mrs. L. C. Ross; mtces heces haonn Percy Pitts; Enstallation, Miss Mary Baily; Dance, Miss Myrtle Pitts; Address on "World Peace," Dr. Rosa Lee Walston.

Miss Bailey was substituting for Miss Ruth Dobyne, who was ill and could not attend. Miss Bailey in enstalling the officers stressed their responsibilities, duties and opportunities for service. Miss Bailey and Dr. Walston, was introduced by Meta E. Grace, Home Demonstration Agent. Dr. Walston in her address discribed the true conditions of war and related the causes and results of war. The realistic discription of the true methods of fighting as given by Dr. Walston show that the masses are made to suffer horrible tragedy for the benefit of capitalists. She handled her subject in a forcible way, saying in conclusion that today the people should write their congressmen and Senators saying they don't want war and please ask them to use their influence in preventing America from entering the war.

Senator Earl Thomas, present, commented on facts stated by Dr. Walston and also expressed himself as being very interested in the growth of Home Demonstration work in Chilton county.

Following the program a social hour was enjoyed at which time the guests were served delicious refreshments consisting of rolled olive and raisin sandwiches, cake and punch.

Fifty ladies and club officers attended the lovely affair. Hostess for the afternoon were: Mrs. Anna Phalin, Mrs. Chas. Howard, Mrs. Maggie Wilson, Mrs. Jim Roper, Mrs. G. E. Stutts, Mrs. Tom Littlejohn, Mrs. Horace Popwell and Miss Meta E. Grace.

Mr. Alex Hayes, a student of the University of Alabama, spent the week end here with his parents, Dr. and Mrs. J. P. Hayes.

Beware The Cough

From a common cold

That Hangs On

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your cough, chest cold or bronchial irritation, you can get relief now with Creomulsion. Creomulsion not only contains the soothing elements common to many remedies; such as, Syrup of White Pine Compound with Tar, fluid extract of Licorice Root, fluid extract of Ipecac for its powerful phlegm loosening effect, fluid extract of Cascara for its mild laxative effect and, most important of all, Beechwood Creosote is perfectly blended with all of these to reach the source of the trouble from the inside. Creomulsion can be taken frequently and continuously by adults and children with remarkable results.

Thousands of doctors use Creomulsion in their own families as well as in their practice knowing how Creomulsion aids nature to soothe the inflamed membranes and heal the irritated tissues as the germ-laden phlegm is loosened and expelled. Druggists also know the effectiveness of Beechwood Creosote and they rank Creomulsion top for coughs because you get a real dose of Creosote in Creomulsion, emulsified so that it is palatable, digestible and potent for going to the very seat of the trouble.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs, chest colds and bronchial irritations and especially those stubborn ones that start with a common cold and hang on for dreadful days and nights thereafter. Even if other remedies have failed, your druggist is authorized to guarantee Creomulsion and to refund every cent of your money if you are not satisfied with results from the very first bottle. Don't worry through another sleepless night—phone or go get a bottle of Creomulsion right now. (Adv.)

Easy To Teach New House Dog Proper Manners

"You may not be able to teach an old dog new tricks, but you can teach a new puppy proper manners," says A. H. Leonard, dog authority of the Purina Mills, who believes that a complete understanding between master and animal may be worked out if a little care and time is taken in 'breaking in' the new pup.

"A strange child coming into one's home wouldn't feel particularly familiar with his surroundings for a day or two, so how can a puppy, who has far less powers of reason be expected to settle right down," Leonard points out. "Treat your puppy as you would a person—give him some quiet and peace and some time to get himself adjusted."

Watch Feed Carefully

"And don't," Leonard cautions, "stuff the little newcomer with greasy table scraps, meats, sweets and other feed that his system is unable to care for. Feeding has a lot to do with a satisfactory start of a pup. Give him a food suited to his needs. For young puppies compressed dog food in small checker form is ideal. These checkers fed with water will give a puppy just what he needs for growth and health."

Housebreaking

"Housebreaking is easy if puppies are taught from the very beginning the meaning of cleanliness. Fresh newspapers should be spread out and the puppy taught that they are to be used at all times. Sometimes at first it may be necessary to cover the entire floor with newspapers, gradually reducing the covered area to one newspaper pad. Dogs are intelligent animals and are quick to understand what is expected if some member of the family will take time to deal with them sympathetically," Leonard says.

A Busy Day With Fred Astaire

OUR cameraman had to get up early and stay around late to follow Fred Astaire, versatile song-and-dance man, through a busy day. GET HOME ALMANACS FROM CLANTON MOTORS

Brimful of useful facts and information and other material of human interest, the Ford Home Almanac for 1937 goes to the homes of the United States this week, distributed free by dealers of the Ford Motor Company.

Readers of the booklet will find that, in addition to the time of sunrise and sunset, adjusted to each latitude, moon phases, eclipses, and the usual other information given in almanacs, the Ford Home Almanac is replete with interesteing reading material dealing with ancient and modern prophecies, some of which shaped the destiny of different countries; sea mysteries that generations of research have not solved, and other miscellany.

There are also short articles dealing with the views of Henry Ford on various subjects, as well as an article showing in detail what he has done with the $13,000,000,000 which the public has paid for Ford cars and trucks since the Ford Motor Company began business in 1903. Most interesting are the facts that, of this vast sum, the Ford Motor Company retained for itself only 6.4 cents out of every dollar, spending the remainder, totaling nearly $12,500,000,000 for wages, taxes and materials.

While such information about one of the modern world's greatest industries will be found interesting by students, teachers and economists, the housewife and mother will also find the book handy because of the reliable information it brings for first aid treatments in many different kinds of emergencies, hints for the kitchen, and care of the garden, and a well planned garden chart. The motorist planning a trip to any part of the United States will find in the almanac a chart giving accurate mileages between important cities.

WHY HE WENT CRAZY?

An inmate of a lunatic asylum, on being asked by a visitor, how he got that way? replied:

It all started when I married a widow with a grown daughter, then, my father being a widower, married the daughter, that made my step daughter my step mother, and my father became my step son, my wife also became the mother-in-law of her father-in-law; then my step-mother had a son, who was my brother, being my fathers son; but as the boy was the grandson of my wife, he was also my grandson; then my wife and I had a son; my father's wife is my son's half sister; and also grandmother; now it is easy to see that my father became my step son by marrying my step daughter, Therefore being my own grandfather.

The visitor was satisfied as to the reason for the lunatic being crazy.

ABOUT LIQUOR STORES

Montgomery.—Gov. Graves will adhere to a strict hands-off policy in the selection of personnel for the operation of state liquor stores when they are established shortly after the county referendums are held March 10, he announced this week, explaining that the responsibility for employing store managers and clerks would be left entirely up to the control board and the administrator, John D. McNeal.

Amplifying his statement that patronage will have no part in the administration of the state liquor stores, the governor told newspaper men that all applications for jobs are being forwarded speedily to Administrator McNeal, who has full authority to hire and fire.

However, the governor explained that careful consideration will be given to recommendations by county and municipal officials to assure satisfactory personnel selections.

Meanwhile both wet and dry forces were busily engaged in appealing to the voters' reason or prejudice when they go to the polls March 10 to decide whether their particular county shall repeal or retain the 22-year-old prohibition laws.

LIFE HERE AND HEREAFTER THROUGH CHRIST

LESSON TEXT—John 14:1-15.

GOLDEN TEXT — I am the way, the truth, and the life: no man cometh unto the Father, but by me. John 14:6.

PRIMARY TOPIC—In the Heavenly Father's House.

JUNIOR TOPIC — Many Mansions.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Why We Need Christ Always.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Life Here and Hereafter through Christ.

It was the night before the darkest day in the world's history. On the morrow the Son of man was to hang on Calvary's tree for the sins of the world—for your sins, and for mine. But for the moment he was alone with his disciples. The last Passover had been eaten together, the betrayer had been discovered, and the Lord has told them that he was soon to go where they could not follow. Peter had, by his bold self-assurance, brought forth the prophecy of his denial. The disciples were disturbed. Then came from the Saviour the words of comfort, assurance, and power which have been the strength and solace of his people through all the centuries. Our life both here and hereafter is in His mighty hands.

I. Comfort (vv. 1-3).

Troubled hearts are everywhere—in the palace and in the cottage, on land and sea. There is a place of rest, thank God! There is One who still speaks the majestic words, "Let not your heart be troubled, ye believe in God, believe also in me."

His comfort is one which covers the future life, for he says:

1. "I go to prepare a place" (v.2). Concern about future destiny is settled at once when Christ Jesus becomes our Lord and Saviour. We need worry no longer. He has gone on before to the Father's house to prepare a place for his own. When we come to that ever-peaceful shore we shall not come as strangers, but as sons and daughters to a prepared place in our Father's house.

2. "I will come again" (v.3) is the word that gives present meaning to the future promise. He not only prepares the place, but he it is who brings us there. The glorious hope of his coming again is the Christian's greatest comfort and mightiest incentive to useful, holy living.

II. Assurance (vv. 4-11).

The doctrine of Christian assurance is one of vital importance, and should be taught in all its scriptural power and beauty. Unfortunately it has so suffered violence at the hands of some of its friends that others have not only come to fear it, but even openly to oppose it. This is most regrettable, for it is manifest that until one has assurance he will make but little progress in Christian usefulness.

The believers assurance rests fundamentally on Christ himself. Two grounds are given in the text.

1. "I am the way, the truth, and the life" (v. 6). These words are their own best commentary. Read them again, slowly, weighing the meaning of each word. If we are in him who is the way, how safe we are! If we are not in him? Read his own solemn words in verse 6, "No man cometh unto the Father but by me." (v. 11).

In Christ dwells all the fullness of the Godhead. He is not only a supernatural being, he is God. How can anyone deny that and read his words in these verses? To do so is to make Jesus a liar and blasphemer.

III. Power (vv. 12-15).

His followers are not left in a world of sin and need as a little group of hymn-singing weaklings, thinking only of the day when they shall be in a brighter land. Ah, yes, they sing hymns and rejoice in them; they look for a better land; their weapons of warfare are not carnal—but weaklings? Oh, no! God uses them to do great and mighty things for his glory.

1. "He that believeth" (v. 12). This army of God carries the royal banner of faith.

2. "Greater works . . . shall he do" (v. 12). Jesus only began his work on earth. Its greatest development was to be the joyous privilege of his followers.

3. "If ye ask . . . I will do" (v. 14). Someone has called this a signed blank check on all the resources of God. Faith fills it in, under the guidance of the Holy Spirit. Moody knew how to use it. So did Mueller, Livingstone, J. Hudson Taylor—the list might go on indefinitely. Shall we dare to trust God and add our name as one of those who ask in faith?

The Man of Wisdom

He is a wise man who does not grieve for the things which he has not, but rejoices for those which he has.—Epictetus.

Thoughts of Good People

The thoughts of some people live so near to God, that to ask them to think of us is to ask them to pray for us.

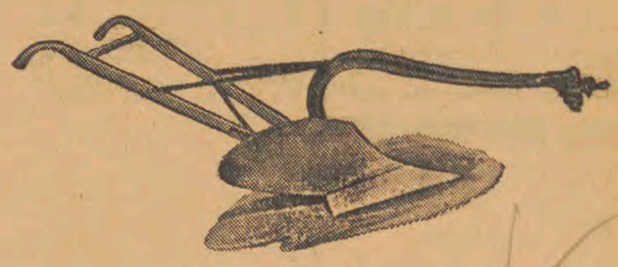
HORACE KENDRICK WRITES ON PROHIBITION QUESTION

Since the time to vote on the prohibition question is growing near, I would like to drop a few thoughts to the voters of this county.

I want to ask one question. Is there any man or woman with a sound mind that believes that the State can stand on a foundation made of sand? I don't believe that the liquor business, either legal or illicit, will be substantial enough for Alabama to rest upon.

One of the chief arguments is that the revenue will reduce the taxes, which is absolutely false, because the police reports from some of the northern large cities shows that the revenue alone doesn't pay for the enforcement of the wet laws. (These reports can be secured from the mayors of the different cities).

Those who let this influence them in voting for the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment will sell the Souls of men for a promise that will never materialize. In the Birmingham Post of February 17th, Mrs. J. H. Craig, secretary of the Old Age Pension Club, asked that everybody vote for liquor because 20 per cent of the revenue would go to the old age pension. How many fathers and mothers are willing to push their children out in sin in order to sit down and take it easy?



Another argument is that it would put wheels of industry into motion and that the surplus fruits and grains would advance in prices, that it would put a large per cent of the unemployed to work. The distillery employes a very few to operate it. If you will compare the rise in prices of grain and fruit with that of the rise in crime and accident, you can see that the crime and accident has out scored considerably.

What does Proverbs 23: 20, 21 say? "Be not among winebibbers; among riotous eaters of flesh: For the drunkard shall come to poverty; and drowsiness shall clothe a man with rags." Poverty and not prosperity, rags and not robes. If the individual fails in such undertakings, isn't it reasonable that the State will come to the same end, if it indulges in such. I want you to turn to Matthew 24: 45, 51 and read. In verses 50 and 51 you wet voters and Legislators can see yourselves already condemned. The law makers of our State have sold the safety and security of highways and households for a political advantage. Not only people talk of social security, it only shows that they are short sighted or insincere. Can there by any social security from making brutes of men and robbing their wives and children of food and clothing?

Our office holders were put there to help give people feed "in due season" but instead they have betrayed and cause them to eat and drink with the drunken even if they themselves have not indulged in such. I wish that everyone would take notice to what God says, "The Lord of the servant shall come in a day when he looketh not for him and in an hour that he is not aware of, and shall cut him asunder, and appoint him his portion with the Hypocrites; there shall be weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth."

A man that is wise enough to make laws and enforce them knows that no good can come from such. If he doesn't know it he could easily find it out by a careful study of social and moral consequence of sales and distribution of beers and liquors. People that can't see such should be replaced by wise, sympathetic, sincere citizens.—Horace Kendrick.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS ARE SAYING ABOUT REPEAL

By now about all the guarantees given by prohibition repealists have become just so many scraps of paper. The saloons are back, drunken driving is on the increase, taverns are cashing pay checks, police again look for the crooks in tap rooms, and the good old days are back. The amazing increase in drinking is a natural sequence of making it easy to buy drinks. Unless the people come to their senses shortly, one may expect someone to propose as a national slogan: A Bottle In Every Home. — Harrisburg (Pa.) Patriot.

Whiskey caused my downfall! Thus spoke Roy House, of Garland County, only 22 years old, as he was strapped in the electric chair at the Arkansas prison farm and electrocuted for killing an aged recluse of his home county. Whiskey caused my downfall!—just ponder over that powerful sermon and justify, if you can, the Thorn liquor control act which restored saloons to Arkansas. — Conway (Ark.) News.

Only disgrace can come from entering into the liquor business for profit. Liquor can never produce enough revenue to pay for broken spines.—Upton G. Wilson, in Winston-Salem (N. C.) Journal.

Money spent for liquor but needed in the home is worse than wasted. It takes the food from the mouths of babies; it clothes them in rags. The situation is all the worse when husband and wife both indulge.—Altoona (Pa.) Mirror.

We're headed hell bent to disgrace and degradation unless we chase the dames out of the saloons. It's bound to make trouble. We are suckers to let the old saloon get to be the kind of a dump it was, and now we are sticking out our neck all over again.—Old Time Saloon Keeper, quoted by Edwin C. Hill in his syndicated column.

Iowans spent more than $26,000,000 for beer, more than $11,000,000 for cigarets, and more than $6,000,000 for hard liquor in the last year. Wonder what the food bill was?—Iowa Falls (Ia.) Citizen.

The police court's saddest cases since repeal are those wherein men, women and sometimes even young people just out of their teens are charged with being common drunkards.—Pasadena (Calif.) Independent.

Drunken children of teen age are a common sight even in our small towns. Drunken drivers are causing death on our highways in increasing number. The people will find a way to stop this. —Shenandoah (Ia.) Sentinel.

Those enjoying the occassion were: Mr. and Mrs. J. I. Bice, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Bice and son, Winston, Mr. and Mrs. Vester Bice and son, James Allen, Mr. and Mrs. John Nelson, Mr. and Mrs. Clem Billingsley and sons, Charles and Wilbur, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Billingsley, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Nelson and children, Frances, Buster, James and Billy, Misses Eloise and Louise Keen, Emma, Mable and Mary Nelson and Mr. L. C. Cagle.

Indications are that potato prices will continue upward during the next two or three months, owing to the small supply of late potatoes that went into storage.

END THE BOOTLEGGER'S REIGN IN ALABAMA!

Restore Respect for Law

Prohibition has failed in Alabama.

Unless we shut our eyes to the overwhelming evidence available on every hand we must admit the fact that an intolerable condition now exists in our state with respect to the illicit sale of alcoholic beverages.

Throughout our state bootleggers ply their illegal trade. Caravans of cars bring liquor daily into Alabama from Florida and other nearby states, which have legalized its sale. Roadhouses sell it by the drink or the bottle. In many of our cities, stores are actually advertising "beer for sale" with flaunting signs and displaying rows of bottles in their windows. Juries are refusing to convict for liquor violations. In fact it has been estimated that the bootleg business in Alabama has grown to the proportions of a $25,000,000 industry!

This is an appalling situation whose greatest menace is the disrespect it breeds for all our laws.

Alabama is today the only state which still fosters the bootleg racket. It is the only state which has not legalized the sale of alcoholic beverages in some form. It is the only state which lets the sale of alcoholic beverages go tax-free.

Prohibition has failed in Alabama—not because of lack of diligence on the part of our law enforcement officers—not because of lack of law to restrain its sale, for Alabama has long had the strictest laws of any state upon its statute books—but because it is impossible to control the sale of liquor in Alabama unless a system of control shall be established to achieve that end.

The Alabama Beverage Control Act provides that system—a system which has been proved sane and sound in many other states and Canada, where crime is at a minimum and there is real respect for government and law.

Prohibition has failed in Alabama. Let's now try constructive control of the liquor question—the new way and modern way which has contributed so much to the solution of this age-old problem.

Vote March 10th to end the bootlegger's reign in Alabama and to restore respect for law. Vote for constructive control!

TAXATION IS CALLED EVERYONE'S PROBLEM

Increases in Costs of State and National Government Disclosed as Burden on All Classes

The increase of taxes, both Federal, state and municipal throughout the nation, is an outstanding public problem from which no class of our people ultimately can remain exempt, the recent convention of the American Bankers Association declared in its resolutions. They said:

"While a large portion of the increase in the burden of taxes since the depression has been caused by efforts to relieve misfortune resulting therefrom, it is also a fact that, apart from this, the costs of our multiform government have in many cases long been unduly increasing. Factors in this have been the increase in functions and activities assumed by government, the relatively high costs of such operations when performed under government auspices, the inevitable wastefulness of bureaucratic organizations and the increasing demands of the public upon government.

"Unless the upward trend of taxes is curbed, they will constitute such a heavy burden as to repress individual initiative and enterprise, and thereby increase the very types of human misfortunes which they in so large part are aimed to relieve. In the long run the burden of taxes must fall not upon any one class but upon all classes and they therefore constitute a problem and a menace for all our people."

Her Sea Shal Be Legion

NEW YORK, (Special).—Miss Liberty, of the statue in New York Harbor, is already playing in her newest role. An artist's impression of her graces the official seal of the New York World's Fair of 1939. Thus, from the vantage point of news columns, mail stickers and innumerable other decorated devices she carries the torch of invitation to every corner of the world and into every home in the United States.

Dairy First Aids

"Cold weather brings with it many discomforts to the dairy herd," says D. H. Van Pelt, prominent dairy authority at Purina Mills. "Every dairyman should keep on hand the aids he needs in caring for his cows.

"To thoroughly heal chafed or cracked teats, wash with a dilute chlorena solution. Apply to the raw surfaces a solution made up of one ounce of collodion, glycerine, and iodine. The application should be made every milking until healed. Chlorena has a definite place in every dairyman's medicine kit. It has a thousand uses as a disinfectant in the dairy herd."

Cuts and Scratches Need Care

"Cuts and scratches should be taken care of promptly," Van Pelt points out, "and unless they are, costly infections are likely to result. In case an animal steps on or cuts her teats, disinfect thoroughly with chlorena solution. Allow to dry and apply collodion to affected parts. Should it be the end of the teat, insert teat dilator tappers to hold duct open. The greatest trouble from cuts on teats is the dirt and foreign matter that lodge in the open sore."

COW IS "MILK MACHINE"

"The cow is simply a machine for converting feed into milk. She can't add anything herself," says D. H. Van Pelt, dairy authority with Purina Mills. "As an efficient machine she simply compounds the ingredients of feed to make milk. If she runs short of any one ingredient, her production naturally drops. Of course, there may be some reserve of that ingredient stored up in her body, which she can call upon. But if she is compelled to draw on her body to supply it for any length of time, her condition becomes run down and complications set in.

"On the other hand," says Van Pelt, "if she is fed too much of any one ingredient, it is simply left over. What's left over is turned into body fat or wasted. That's the reason for a 'balanced' ration, which means balancing up the different ingredients in a dairy feed so that the cow has enough of each one."

Practical research on how to handle male birds shows that they develop better if kept by themselves on free range through the growing season and into late fall. Various pens of birds should not be mated until two weeks before eggs are to be saved for hatching. Males should be kept where there is little likelihood of their combs freezing, since this definitely reduces fertility and lowers the hatch.

1939 World's Fair Has New Ideas About Amusement Features

NEW YORK, (Special).—"Only seeing will be believing," says President Grover Whalen of the New York World's Fair 1939 Corporation, as he tries to envision what the Fair is planning, more than two years in advance, in the way of facilities for recreation, entertainment and amusement.

Every man, woman and child in the United States, he says, has an interest in the 1939 Fair and to some degree or other has a part in the building of that Fair. The exposition, therefore, will surpass all previous fairs, not only in the demonstration of the wonders of the world or present-day life and in the projection of the World of Tomorrow, but also in providing the utmost varfety of entertainment and amusement for every man, woman and child.

The entire world will be tapped for every amusement possibility. The tiresome mediocrity of stunts and side shows—the stock-in-trade relics of the amusement world of yesterday—will give way to a new and modern standard of excellence The plan of the New York World's Fair has anticipated the requirements for entertainment and is making them a part of the general scheme of the Fair, rather than allowing them to spring up as an appendage or an afterthought. Even the tiny children will have a playground reserved exclusively for their own use.

"EASY MONEY"

Get your auto and your pockets in a jingling shape so that you can see "Easy Money", presented by Verbena High School Senior Class, March 26, at the high school auditorium.

You must see how "easy money" is made, and also the romances following in the play; especially that of "Uncle Jim,, and "Aunt Sue", is screamingly humorous.

STEEL FIRMS BOOST WAGES

Birmingham, Mar. 9.—Pay increases estimated at $4,000,000 annually will become effective a week from today for more than 23,000 Alabama steel and iron employees. Steel fabricators today had joined basic steel and iron manufacturers in announcing pay boosts. CHILTON TEAMS PLACE IN SELMA DISTRICT BASKET BALL TOURNEY

Maplesville Wins Second Place and Chilton County High Fourth

Maplesville High and Chilton County High School won distinction in the district basket ball tournament held at Selma March 5 and 6.

There were 18 teams from over the district vieing for the coveted honor of representing their district in the state tournament to be held at Tuscaloosa.

The strong Jemison team, also a Chilton County entry, was nosed out in the third round of play by Selma, the score being 19 to 18; Selma continued through to place first in the tournament.

Our own Chilton High boys are to be commended for their efforts. No team from C. C. H. S. has shown a finer spirit of loyalty than the team of 1936-37. The boys received compliments upon their fine team spirit and their well timed offensive work.

The outstanding play of Captains Maurice Thornton and Clive Aldridge was inspiring to little Bucky Armstrong, J. L. Littlejohn, Windol Massey, Kermit Jones, Durwood Williamson and Morris Woodfin to form a team with a never-give-up spirit. The boys from C. C. H. S. were real Tigers in spirit, and won the respect and favor of the fans. Only two members of this team were experienced in tournament play. Bucky Armstrong was high point man in the play for C. C. H. S.

Maplesville lost their first game to Selma and continued through to win second place and the right to go to the state tournament. Jemison High and C. C. H. S. were eliminated by Maplesville.

Much is expected of Maplesville, and all Chilton County wishes them well in their approaching conquest.

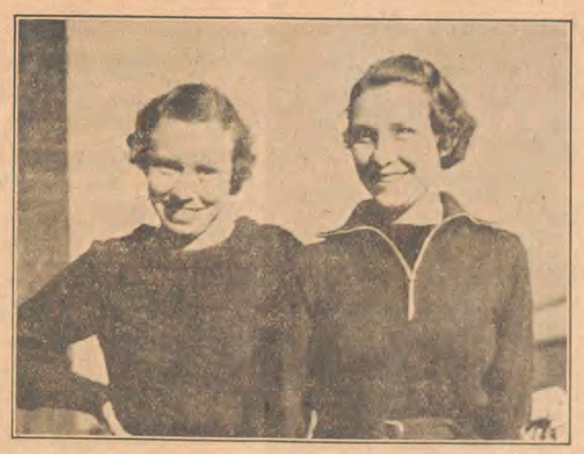
The 56th annual convention of the Alabama Education Association convenes in Birmingham on March 18th. Headlining the list of speakers for the 3-day session are Paul McNutt, former governor of Indiana, and recently appointed high commissioner to the Phillipines; Stuart Chase, renowned economist and sociologist; Howard Odum, eminent student of the South and its problems; Carlton Palmer, apostle of art; Dr. Belmont Farley, recognized authority on school publicity.

In addition to these figures of national importance, state school problems will be discussed by Gov. Bibb Graves, State Superintendent J. A. Keller, Garland S. Smith, president of the Alabama Education Association, and Mrs. James Fitts Hill, president of the Alabama Congress of Parents and Teachers.



Four general sessions are scheduled on Thursday and Friday, March 18 and 19. The major part of one day will be devoted to meetings of specialized groups. Thirty or more such gatherings have been planned involving more than 50 individuals who will discuss classroom technique and such questions as curriculum revision, improved methods of administration, and teacher welfare.

The social side of the convention will not be neglected. Beginning on Wednesday, the day before the formal opening of the convention, a series of breakfasts, luncheons and dinners are listed to continue through Friday. Birmingham is expecting more than 6,000 teachers, and is making elaborate preparation for their entertainment.

CITY PURCHASES NEW TRUCK.

The city of Clanton has recently purchased a new Ford truck, which it will use for hauling trash and gravel. The truck has an automatic dump. Mayor Jones reports that the City paid cash for the truck.

Smiler Succeeds Smiler

To the left is Mrs. Gladys Roberts, smiling cashier of the Clanton office of Alabama Power Company, who is retiring to "take life easy" doing her housework. Beside her is Miss Mary Lou Robinson, who, judging from the picture, has the kind of a smile Clanton customers will like. Mary Lou succeeds Mrs. Roberts.

THIRTEEN ARRESTS MADE DURING THE PAST WEEK

During the past week there have been thirteen arrests made by Sheriff Hardy and his deputies. Two are out on bond, and will answer the charge of driving while intoxicated. Two were arrested for public drunkenness, both out on bond. One for forgery is still in jail; so is one already sentenced for first degree murder, awaiting transfer to the penitentiary. The rather unusual charge of casting stone in a house is preferred against one defendant; he remains in jail.

There have been five people placed in jail for violating federal statutes; all remain in jail. One man was committed to jail Tuesday morning on account of insanity. He will be carried to the insane asylum within a day or so.

The jail register shows that there are now a total of twenty-two prisoners in jail—fourteen white men and eight negroes.

OPERATED ON TUESDAY

Mr. George Wilson, old gentleman of Friendship community, was carried to a Birmingham hospital and underwent an operation for appendicitis Tuesday. The operation was performed at Highland Avenue Baptist Hospital.

ANY F. D. R. PLAN TO WIN, FARLEY SAYS IN ADDRESS

Three Talks Delivered By Cabinet Member At Gadsden

Gadsden, Ala., March 11.—"The people of America will support President Roosevelt in any program he undertakes," Postmaster General James A. Farley forecast in his talk before a Democratic "victory luncheon" held Monday at the Riech Hotel.

Mr. Farley made no specific mention of the president's Supreme Court proposal, or of other pending matters.

Mr. Farley on his brief visit to Etowah County Monday, spoke three times. He dedicated the $200,000 annex to the Federal Building and recounted the remarkable growth of America's postal system; he addressed the "victory luncheon" of Gadsden's leading business and professional men and spoke before the annual convention of the Alabama Postmasters Association.

Among the speakers before the postmasters were Gov. Bibb Graves, Wiley West, president of the University of Alabama.

Budget Believed Balanced

"No administration in the history of the nation has done as much as the Roosevelt administration," said Postmaster General Farley. When he was inaugurated four years ago, people had lost confidence in the country because they had lost confidence in its leader. In 48 hours he restored confidence because he gave evidence that he intended to lead us.

"His second administration has started and he has indicated what he wants to do. If what happened last November is any indication, the people of this nation will see that he does what he wants to do."

Wm. J. HEADLEY IMPROVING SOME

A card from Mr. Wm. J. Headley, written at Hot Springs, Ark., on March 5, says: "I received The Union-Banner today, and was glad to get the 'Letter From Home'. I am still taking a bath every day, and am feeling some better. I would be glad to hear from any of my friends at any time.

"The city here is very crowded with people from all over the U. S., who have come here to see the races. It is lovely weather here at the present time."

BOY SCOUTS HAD CHARGE OF SERVICES AT BAPTIST CHURCH

The Clanton troop Boy Scouts had charge of services at Clanton Baptist church last Sunday night, where the other churches of the city worshiped together. Scout Executive C. G. Lackey was in charge of the proceedings for the evening.

Mr. Lackey spoke briefly but impressively of scouting, after which the members of the troop gathered around the camp fire and went through their ritual.

Prominent in scout work in Clanton are: Reese Mullins, Jr., scoutmaster; Edwin Mullins, assistant scoutmaster; J. Mell Martin, Luther E. Little and Percy M. Pitts.

Scouting is certainly a worthy undertaking, and the organization in Clanton is bound to make noticeable and worth-while strides under the management of the above-named gentlemen. This organization and the officials behind it deserve the whole-hearted support of the citizens of Clanton and the county. Let us all enourage it all that we can.

CONCERT AT UNION GROVE

This concert is for the benefit of Union Grove School. Admission will be 15 and 25 cents.

CITY RECEIVED RUSH ORDER FOR PART FOR FIRE TRUCK

Mayor C. Fenn Jones believes in expediting business. A part was needed for the city fire truck, and it was dangerous to have the fire truck out of commission. So, Mr. Jones sent a telegram to the factory at Elmira, N. Y., at 10 o'clock in the morning. The part was sent by air-mail and arrived back here on No. 9 the next morning. It required only 23 hours for the part to arrive after the order left Clanton.

Chilton Deciding On Liquor Wednesday

Fair Weather For Second Vote On Liquor In Two Years; Chilton Dry Before

With fair weather in evidence, Alabamians are maching to the polls Wednesday by county divisions to determine whether they prefer legal and taxed intoxicants to continuation of the present prohibition laws.

Just a little over two years ago Alabamians went to the polls as a statewide unit and determined that they preferred prohibition to legal and taxed liquor, and they made their preference plain by more than 8,000 majority against repeal. In this election Chilton County polled 630 for repeal of the present prohibition law, and 1,557 against repeal.

The campaign which closed Tuesday evening with last minute appeals from both the so-called wets and the so-called drys, was marked by less bitterness than any wet and dry campaign that has ever been completed in Alabama. There seemed to be a disposition on the part of the speakers for both sides to eliminate personalities.

Fair weather Wednesday meant a smaller vote in rural communities than bad or wet weather would have meant due to the fact that the farmers have been delayed in ground preparation because of wet weather in the immediate past. In the old days wet weather would have prevented a big farmer vote because of boggy roads. Nowadays farmers own automobiles, and with good roads they go to the polls on election day in bad weather because they cannot work on their farms. Rainy and unseasonable weather always prevents a full turnout of the city vote, and fair weather always means a relatively larger city vote.

FARMERS CONTRACTS FOR 1937 TO BE READY IN NEAR FUTURE

The 1937 Agricultural Conservation Program has been completed, and the county office will be ready soon to take applications for work sheets.

During the week of March 15-20, meetings will be held in the different communities for the purpose of electing community committeemen to help administer the 1937 program.

Each farmer who expects to co-operate in the 1937 program will be eligible to vote in this election, and should be present at the meeting held in his community. The exact date and place for each meeting will be announced by letter to each farmer in the county.

Clarence Hawkins is the son of T. C. Hawkins, of Cordrey Old Mill, and has been doing custom hauling with his own truck.

News reached Clanton Wednesday that Hawkins died about 6:00 o'clock Wednesday morning. Martin & Sons went to Birmingham to bring the body here for preparation for burial. Burial will be at Poplar Springs Thursday afternoon at two o'clock.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by J. W. Fant, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County

AAA PROGRAM OFFERS IMPORTANT BENEFITS

Auburn. — Some of the most important benefits farmers will receive by cooperating under the 1937 Agricultural Conservation Program are outlined by Walter L. Randolph, administrative officer in charge of the program in Alabama, follow:

1. Farmers will receive conservation payments.
2. The diverted acres produce conserving crops, some of which may be used for food and feedstuffs.
3. Soil fertility is conserved.
4. The cost of producing cotton on diverted acres is saved.
5. Cotton is produced more economically.
6. A better price for cotton is assured if all producers cooperate.

COTTON RUST

Recent experiment station results show that cotton rust, from which farmers lose millions annually, is not a disease but is a condition resulting from inadequate amounts of potash in the cotton fertilizer. Therefore, many progressive farmers are changing from complete fertilizers carrying three, four, and five per cent potash to mixtures carrying eight or 10 per cent potash, or they are using extra potash as a top dresser along with some quick acting nitrogen like nitrate of soda.

Mr. F. H. Jeter of the North Carolina State College has stated that rust causes a marked decrease in the size of cotton bolls, in weight off seed, and in the amount of lint. On the basis of boll size alone, agronomy field workers of the North Carolina Experiment Station found that rust caused 28 per cent decrease in probable acre yields.

In speaking of cotton rust damage the Clemson Agricultural College says that on the basis of these tests we may expect one pound of potash to increase the yield 10 to 20 pounds of lint cotton. In other words, an investment of 60 cents to $3 would give $10 to $24 per acre increased value, if lint cotton is worth 10 cents per pound.

The Georgia Coastal Plain Experiment Station said in its 15th annual report that on land where cotton has a tendency to rust, the potash in the fertilizer should be increased to eight per cent, or an application of potash should be applied as a top dresser just prior to the blooming period.

As regards potash costs, Mr. R. P. Bledsoe of the Georgia Experiment Station says it should be remembered, in considering the results obtained from potash, that 16 pounds of this element now costs only about 55 cents. In fact, a farmer must obtain a gain of but four pounds of lint cotton per acre to pay the cost of doubling the amount of potash in his fertilizer, if he is using 400 pounds of fertilizer containing four per cent potash.

STATE FARMERS GETTING BETTER PLANTING SEED

Montgomery. — Because of the effective seed testing work of the State Department of Agriculture, Alabama farmers are receiving much better planting seed this spring than they received a few years ago, reports R. J. Goode, state commissioner of agriculture.

Alabama ranks second to no state in the equipment and effectiveness in seed testing and seed control work, according to L. N. Allen, state seed analyst, in calling attention to the fact that the seed are tested in the laboratory, in the greenhouse, and on the farm. This is done to assure the farmers good planting seed.

The effectiveness of Alabama seed enforcement work is so well known throughout the United States that seed salesmen often make sales talk of the fact that they can ship seed into Alabama without violating the Alabama seed law.

ROTTEN SWEET POTATOES HARMFUL TO LIVESTOCK

Auburn. — Sweet potatoes make good livestock feed, but farmers should be careful not to feed their livestock rotten or moulded potatoes.

During this period of the year many Alabama farmers have occasion to dispose of old sweet potato residues; many of these potatoes are rotten or moulded, and capable of producing death to livestock. Last winter a large number of valuable cattle died in the state, after being fed old, rotten potatoes.

COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

The writer read the following startling figures recently. These figures tell their own story. "Taxes were paid on 114,887,916 gallons of domestic liquor in 1936, compared with 90,618,171 gallons in 1935, and on 14,713,257 gallons of imported spirits, against 7,222,909 in the previous year. Rectified liquors totaled 21,394,161 proof gallons in 1935, and 33,870,667 in 1936. Beer and other fermented malt liquors increased from 45,207,080 barrels in 1935 to 53,197,820 in 1936. Stamp tax sales indicated the country smoked 153,166,336,093 cigarets last year, compared with 134,607,741,257 in 1935. There were 400,000 more packs of playing cards sold in 1936 than in 1935."

"Don't you think a girl has as much right to smoke cigarets and drink cocktails as a man?" somebody asked the writer recently. In the sight of God, sin is sin. Anything that will send a woman to hell will send a man to hell. God has one standard for men and women alike. That is true. But as far as world consequences are concerned, it is worse for women to do wrong than it is for men. Nicotine and alcohol have a worse effect on women than they do on men. Women are made of finer clay. No nation can go to hell until women open the door. Women, to a great extent, have neutralized the influence of wicked men as generations have been born into the world. Paul wrote Timothy something like this: "I know you are a good man, Timothy, you had such a good mother and such a good grandmother." Young people may go to hell in spite of the influence of good mothers, but the influence of a good mother is the greatest single restraining human influence in the lives of young people. The writer must admit that he has a feeling of despair about the future of our country when he goes into dining rooms and hotels and finds scores of women, young and old, drinking cocktails and smoking cigarets. Thank God for the thousands of good Christian girls and women who have refused to bow their knees to this false god of "do as you please".

RURAL GIRLS AND WOMEN PRODUCED $8,217,414.79 WORTH FARM PRODUCTS

Auburn. — Products valued at $8,217,414.79 were produced by 49,959 Alabama rural girls and women working with 60 home demonstration agents in the state during 1936, reports Helen Johnston, state home demonstration agent.

Of this amount, $1,684,227.45 worth was sold for cash, while $6,533,184.34 worth was consumed at home.

A report by Miss Johnston shows that $324,270.45 worth of products was sold on 16 curb markets; $175,032.00 worth of vegetables sold from home gardens; $26,977.00 worth of food preservation products sold; $325,221.00 worth of dairy products from home dairies; $770,169.00 worth of poultry and eggs; $11,703.00 worth of home industries; $12,344.00 from prizes; and $28,511.00 earned in other ways.

Products produced and consumed at home include $23,379.00 saved by dry cleaning in the home; $294,150 saved on garments made at home; $64,265.00 saved in home management and house furnishing program; $2,019,300 worth of fruit and vegetables consumed at home; $1,265,210 worth of dairy products consumed; $1,119,316 worth of poultry products consumed; and $1,747,516.34 worth of fruits, vegetables and meats conserved for home use.

COWPEA IS WELL-KNOWN CROP OR STATE FARMERS

Auburn. — The cowpea is a well-known crop which Alabama farmers can use to advantage in 1937 for hay, soil improvement, grazing, and for cash, advises J. C. Lowery, agronomist for the Alabama Extension Service.

Experiments show that turning under cowpea and soybean stubble after hay is cut increases the succeeding corn crop by four to five bushels of corn per acre on thin land, and eight to 10 bushels on better soils. If the peas or beans are not cut for hay and are turned under, the corn yields should be increased by eight to 20 bushels per acre, depending on the fertility of the soil—the richer the soil the greater the increase.

Cowpeas can be planted in narrow rows or broadcast from cotton planting time to July. They need 400 to 600 pounds of basic slag or its equivalent. The Brabham and Iron are the best varieties for the section of the state infested with cotton wilt, while the Whippoorwill is very popular in the non-wilt sections.

University News

Much discussion regarding utilization of southern woods in paper manufacturing was reported by Dean Stewart J. Lloyd, of the University of Alabama's School of Chemistry, just returned from a meeting of the Technical Association of the pulp and paper industry in New York City.

Dean Lloyd, an authority on the subjust of paper chemistry, instructs classes in pulp and paper chemistry at the University of Alabama.

Dissenters are valuable citizens and their expression of opinion should be in every way encouraged, was the opinion of Prof. William P. Hepburn, of the University of Alabama Law School at the initiation banquet of O. D. K., here recently.

Himself an honorary member of O. D. K., Prof. Hepburn took as a parallel case the importance of dissenting opinions, attacked by many who believe that unanimity of judges lends prestige to the law.

Proposals to unite University of Alabama religious organizatoins into a federation for the purpose of better understanding and a more effective program were accepted recently by groups representing the Episcopalians, the Methodists and the Presbyterians.

Meeting in a joint forum sponsored by the University Wesley Foundation, Methodist Students Association, these groups held another of a series of open discussions on the subject: "The Proposed Union of all Protestant Churches."

HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Mt. Pleasant Home Demonstration Club met Tuesday, March 2, at the home of Mrs. W. H. Gillispie.

The meeting was called to order at two o'clock by the president, Mrs. Emmett Smith. A song, The Little Brown Church in the Wildwood, was sung by the club members. This was followed by the roll call and reading of the minutes by the secretary, Mrs. Stanley Kennedy. The attendance totalled 15 with 14 old members and one new member.

The Bible reading, the Psalm, was given by Mrs. Emmett Reid. This followed by a song, "Follow the Gleam."

Four very pretty poems were read: "The Trick," by Mrs. Emmett Smith; "A Wayfaring Song," by Mrs. J. B. Parrish; and "If All the Skies," by Mrs. Amos Smith; "No Time," by Mrs. W. H. Kennedy.

The game, My Father is a Merchant, created much laughter, and several rounds were played before every one caught the trick.

Chairman were elected for the three new objectives as follows:

Farm Bureau Chairman, Mrs. Emmett Reid; Scholarship Chairman, Martha Kennedy; Citizenship Chairman, Mrs. Emmett Smith.

It was suggested and adopted that we have a birthday fund to make money for the treasury. Everyone agreed to cooperate 100 per cent to make this a success.

The next meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. Amos Smith, Tuesday, April 6, 1937.

Mrs. W. C. Robinson was a visitor in Montgomery Monday and Monday night.

THE 60-horsepower Ford V-8 engine was first developed for Europe, where fuel costs are high. Two years' usage there proved its unusual economy.

When the "60" came to this country this year, the Ford Motor Company made no mileage claims—waited for facts, written on American roads by American drivers.

Now Ford "60" owners are reporting averages of 22 to 27 miles on a gallon of gasoline. That makes it the most economical Ford car ever built!

Best of all, the Ford "60" is just as big and roomy—just as handsome, sturdy and safe—as the famous 85-horsepower Ford V-8. And it sells at the lowest Ford price in years.

If you want a big car for a small budget—a car you can drive with pride and profit—see the thrifty "60" soon!

NV POTASH
TRADE MARK REGISTERED

Congratulates the Winners
OF THE South Carolina Five-acre Cotton Contest

CONGRATULATIONS TO: Mrs. C. B. Smith, Mr. P. M. Arant, Mr. J. F. Hopkins and other prize-winners in the contest . . . . NV POTASH SALUTES YOU!

CLEMSON COLLEGE EXTENSION SERVICE awarded first prize in South Carolina's Five-acre Cotton Contest to Mrs. Carrie B. Smith of Johnston, Edgefield County. Mrs. Smith's yield on five acres was 6,640 pounds of lint, with a staple length of 1 1/32 inches. This was the largest yield produced during the 11 years of the contest in which approximately 9,000 farmers have taken part. Second prize went to P. M. Arant of Pageland, Chesterfield County, S. C., who had a yield of 6,265 pounds of lint. J. F. Hopkins of Mayesville, S. C., stood high in the contest, winning first prize in the middle district with a yield of 6,080 pounds of lint, which was the third largest yield. The winners were announced February 26, 1937. The contest was inaugurated in 1926 to improve the staple length of cotton and produce cotton more economically through improved fertilization, cultivation and boll weevil control.

B. R. ("Uncle Bob") SMITH, husband of Mrs. Carrie B. Smith, who won first prize, with a yield of 6,640 pounds of lint on five acres, says: "Mrs. Smith planted Coker's Cleve-wilt No. 4 seed and used 1,450 pounds of fertilizer per acre, 300 pounds of which was NV MURIATE OF POTASH. She used part of the nitrogen as a top-dresser and the remainder of the fertilizer before planting, putting it down in three bands. She sure made me keep a close eye on that patch of cotton. For years I used 6% potash in my regular cotton fertilizer, but Clemson College said I was short on potash, so I started using 10% potash. I made larger yields and the 10% potash completely prevented Rust."

B. R. SMITH
Johnston, S. C.

P. M. ARANT, Pageland, S. C., winner of second prize, with a yield of 6,265 pounds of lint on five acres, says: "My five acres got a ton of my regular fertilizer at planting and then 2,800 pounds of top-dresser composed of Nitrate of Soda and NV MURIATE OF POTASH in equal parts. On my general crop I put down 300 to 400 pounds of complete fertilizer per acre at planting, chop out and then put 100 pounds of Nitrate of Soda and 100 pounds of NV MURIATE OF POTASH per acre around it with a distributor. I work it fast and with any kind of a decent season, we always make a good crop of cotton."

P. M. ARANT
Pageland, S. C.

J. F. HOPKINS, Mayesville, S. C., who had the third largest yield, which was 6,080 pounds of lint on five acres, says: "My five acres received 800 pounds per acre of 9-4½-5½ (PNK) fertilizer at planting and just after chopping, 150 pounds of top-dresser made of equal parts of Nitrate of Soda and NV MURIATE OF POTASH. I put my fertilizer out about 15 days ahead of planting and got a good stand. It was very dry for a long time but really turned out to be a good cotton year. We find that a nitrogen-potash top-dresser is fine for small grains and the land improves from year to year. We use this top-dresser on corn also."

You may not aspire to produce record yields; however, you certainly are interested in the best method of profitable cotton production. Plenty of NV POTASH in your fertilizer and top-dresser prevents Rust, helps control Wilt and produces strong, vigorous plants with less shedding, larger bolls that are easier to pick and better yields of uniform, high quality lint . . . . NV POTASH PAYS!

Auto Crash Claims Life Of E. F. Cauthen, 70; Linden Man Hurt

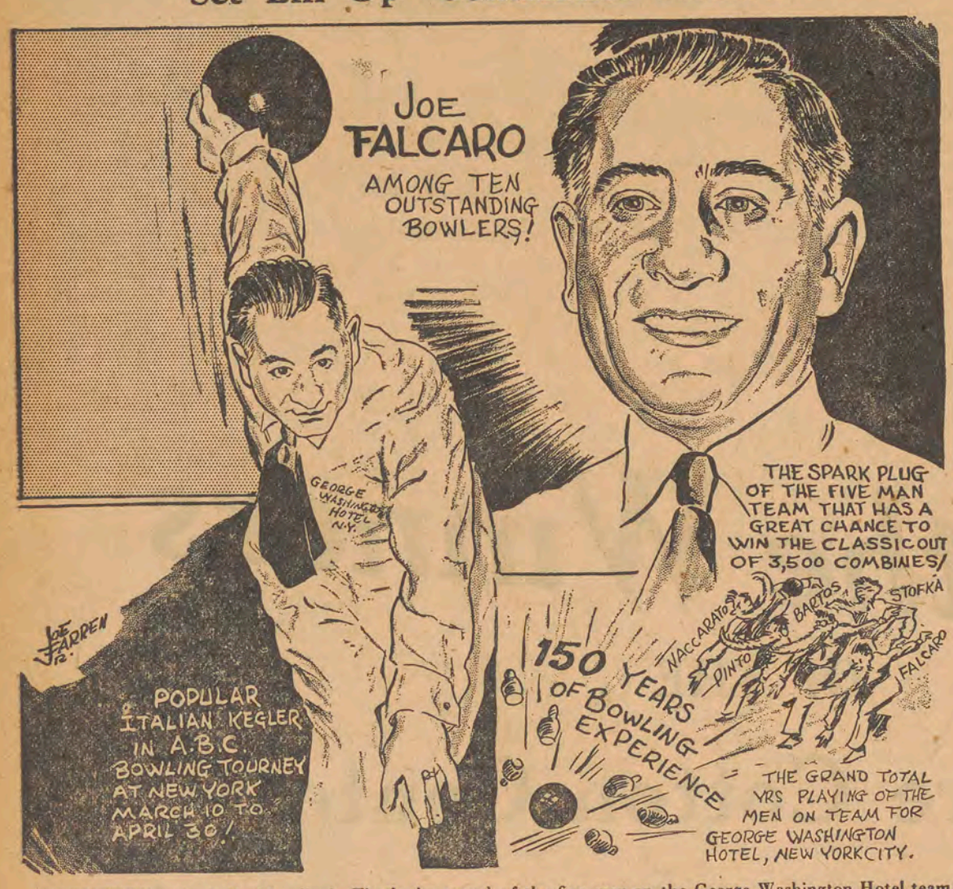
Montgomery, Ala., March 9.—Collision of two automobiles on the Selma Highway, 18 miles from here, Tuesday resulted in the death of E. F. Cauthen, 70, former Alabama Polytechnic Institute professor, and serious injury to H. E. Scott, Linden banker.

Cauthen died at a Montgomery hospital a few hours after his automobile crashed with one driven by Scott president of the First National Bank of Linden. Scott suffered severe head and chest cuts, but physicians said he probably would recover.

State Highway Patrolman Wilson Armstrong said Cauthen was en route to his Lowndes County plantation from Auburn when the accident happened. Scott was unable to give a coherent statement regarding the cause.

Cauthen retired from the Auburn faculty about 10 years ago. He was a graduate of Cornell University.

He is survivied by his widow; a son, John Couthen, a member of the U. S. Navy, who was sent to set up a wireless station at the American legation in Addis Ababa during the Italio-Ethiopian War; two daughers, Miss Frances Cauthen, of Auburn, and Mrs. Herbert Westernhaver, Montgomery.



HUNTINGDON PRESIDENT TO SPEAK HERE NEXT SUNDAY

Dr. Walter D. Agnew, president of Huntingdon College, will speak at the 11 o'clock hour Sunday morning at the Methodist church in Clanton.

Dr. Agnew is well known throughout Alabama and the South. For the past several years he has been president of Huntingdon College, formerly Woman's College, a Methodist institution for girls. Dr. Agnew is a very interesting speaker, and is sure to have a good message. The members of the Methodist church extend a most cordial invitation to everyone.

"Set 'Em Up" Commands Falcaro

A CENTURY and a half of bowling! That's the record of the five men on the George Washington Hotel team, who are competing in the American Bowling Congress Tournament to be held in New York City March 10th to April 30th. And when a man's been rolling 'em for over thirty years—boy! he's gotta be good! Joe Falcaro, listed among the ten best bowlers in the country is one of the quintet. The popular Italian kegler has bowled more than thirty, three hundred games. He held the National match game title four years. He defeated Joe Schribner in Detroit in total pins for 80 games in 1929. Joseph V. Bartos who captains the team, was a member of the combine that won the Chicago championship in 1924, and on the team that finished third in the A B C championship in Peoria in 1920. John Stofka is known to be the most consistent spare bowler in the East, in forty years of competition. Tony Naccarto is Falcaro's partner in the doubles, and Tony Pinto, the youngest member of the combine, winds up the quintet. These boys have a good chance in the big ten-pin event!

METHODIST CLASS ELECTED NEW TEACHERS

Hon. Omar L. Reynolds and Dr. J. E. Edgar have been elected teachers of the Wesley Fellowship Class of the Clanton Methodist church to succeed Mr. Eric Hart. Mr. Hart has been associated with the class for the past 18 months, and because of business connections and his removal to Greenville, had to resign.

Mr. Reynolds is a new member of the class, and they feel indeed fortunate in securing him as teacher. His teaching should prove a great inspiration to everyone.

Dr. Edgar, also president of the class, has been instrumental in building this class to the biggest membership of any class in the Methodist church. Under the leadership of these able men the class will continue to be not only one of the best in the Methodist church, but one of the best in our city.

Every Sunday there is an interesting program presented under the direction of Miss Alice Polk and Mrs. Luther Bean, program committee, and Miss Emily Sawyer, pianist.

Mr. Reynolds will speak at church school hour next Sunday morning at 9:45. If you are a Methodist you are urged to be present every Sunday morning. All of you who do not attend Sunday school are extended a most cordial invitation to be present next Sunday.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.

Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

SUNDAY DINNER Suggestions

By ANN PAGE

POULTRY and veal are the most reasonable of meat choices. Lamb is higher, beef continues firm but pork, both fresh and smoked, is moderate in price. Cod steak and fish fillets are unusually inexpensive. Eggs are a little higher but still reasonable and their quality at this season is excellent.

The first carloads of Valencia oranges arrived last week. Bananas are an inexpensive year round fruit most appreciated at this season when fruits in variety are scarce.

Green and lima beans, peas and asparagus are very high. Broccoli is lower while beets, cabbage, carrots and spinach are cheap.

Here are three dinners built around foods which are well distributed and moderate in price.

LARGE RESEARCH BUDGETS PLANNED

New York, Mar. 9.—American industry will spend more than $250,000,000 for research in 1937, out of which will come new jobs and a higher standard of living, according to Dr. Edward R. Weidlein, president of the American Chemical Society and director of the Mellon Institute of Industrial Research.

In 1936, he revealed, the steel industry spent $9,200,000 on the development of new products and the search for new uses of old products, an increase of $500,000 over expenditures for the same purpose in 1935. Other large industries, including the chemical laboratories of the country, likewise spent large sums last year and will put increasing emphasis on research work in 1937.

During the last few years, he revealed, the number of research laboratories in the United States has grown from practically nothing to over 2,000. Since 1870, science applied to manufacturing has created 18 new industries that furnish direct and indirect employment to over 10,000,000 people. Since 1790, science has effected a four old increase in the American standard of living, Dr. Weidlein pointed out.

THE WEAK AND THE STRONG

If the Supreme Court and the Constitution are undermined, where in the future are the weak to find protection against the aggressions of the strong?

In any form of government, the strong will always take care of themselves. In drafting the Constitution, our forefathers saw this and they wrote in protections for the weak. Then the Bill of Rights was added to the Constitution, further guarding the lives, liberties and rights of the less powerful.

But rights enumerated in the Constitution are worthless unless there is some court of appeal, a temple of refuge. The Supreme Court is that enternal guardian.

When in Georgia a negro Communist voiced political sentiment repugnant to loyal Americans he was tried and convicted under an ancient state law. His only appeal was to the Supreme Court.

Time after time in our history when the right of free speech has been abridgd, unjust imprisonment inflicted, it has been the courts that were the temple of refuge. If the religious freedom, the right to worship as one pleases, is ever denied to any person or group in this coutry, the final recourse is to be the Supreme Court.

So long as the Constitution and the Supreme Court remain living instruments, "it can't happen here." When they perish, the end of human liberties is near. The weak have lost their sanctuary.

SIT-DOWNERS, TAKE NOTICE!

The inevitable revolt of public opinion against the sit-down strike is beginning to manifest itself all over the country. The result, it is hoped, will be to make this type of wholly unlawful, unjustifiable seizure of private property so unpopular that the sit-down strike will immediately act as a boomerang against that irresponsible element which employs it.

Millions of fair minded citizens applauded Gov. Cross of Connecticut as he told a group of labor delegates recently that the sit down strike, constituting a trespass on the property of others without restraint or eviction, seemed a fantastic idea to him. Bluntly serving notice that the law of his state would be upheld to the letter, Gov. Cross told the delegates there would be no sit-down strikes in Connecticut while he is governor.

Following closely on the action of Gov. Hoffman of New Jersey, in serving public notice that he would absolutely countenance no sit-down strikes in New Jersey plants, Gov. Cross's action typified the stand which law abiding officials are taking against the sit-down strike.

Fresh proof that the law provides ample facilities for dealing with situations of this kind was furnished by officials of Santa Monica, Calif., in handling the sit-down strike in the Douglas Aircraft plant. Here 350 officers, clearly meaning business, marched grimly into the plant, arrested the 343 strikers who had thrown 2,000 loyal employees out of work and marched them off to jail. No bloodshed, no rioting, no destruction of property. To law enforcement officers to whom the enforcement of the law is a sacred duty, the sit-down strike seems to offer no difficulties whatsoever.

THE FAITHFUL DEPART

One by one the faithful have been slipping out of Washington and away from the New Deal. It is not, apparently, that they have lost faith in the New Deal, itself, but somehow or other they have found greater attractions in other lines of endeavor. A few weeks ago it was Dr. Tugwell who took his leave—to go to work for a molasses company with offices in the heart of the New York financial district. Now it is Morris L. Cooke, who has resigned as head of the Rural Electrification Administration, to go on an extended trip out of the country.

We no longer hear so much as we once did of the celebrated brain trust—which proved neither particularly brilliant nor united in its philosophy. Some of the members of this exclusive circle of presidential advisers were progressive in their views but conservative in their methods. They did not like to step too briskly or incautiously along untried paths. It is a significant commentary upon the Roosevelt administration that some of these advisers, persons like Raymond Moley, for example, were the first to retire from the New Deal stage. The other members were the experimenters. They belonged to the school that believes we ought to learn by doing. Youthful and ambitious for the most part, they drove ahead, rarely stopping to reckon the social or financial cost.

But now even the learn-by-doing enthusiasts have for the most part left the Washington scene. Here and there may still be found a few who belong to that school. Yet they as well have lost much of their enthusiasm. Mariner Eccles, head of the Federal Reserve Board, nowadays speaks but seldom of his plans for pumping credit into business, while Harry Hopkins, the relief administrator, no longer talks about spending our way back to prosperity. In truth, the president, himself, seems to be the only honest-to-goodness experimenter left in Washington. — Baltimore Sun.

THERE OUGHT TO BE A WAY

The most costly maritime strike in American history, a 98-day walkout on the Pacific coast, ended recently with the return of 40,000 men to work. Concessions were made in settlement of the strike by both ship owners and the seven unions involved, but in neither instance were the gains of very great importance.

It is estimated that the cost of the strike to ship owners and strikers aggregates more than $700,000,000. This does not take into account the cost to other concerns indirectly affected, nor the great inconvenience suffered by the general public.

Meanwhile, the great automobile strike in Michigan, directly affecting five times the number of workers, and indirectly a proportionate number of other people, has finally reached settlement. The cost—loss to strikers, plant owners and others directly involved—is even proportionately greater. So also is the loss to others indirectly involved, plus equally great inconvenience to the general public.

It seems inconceivable that in a country that has made the social progress everywhere evident in America, means and methods cannot be found to prevent these disastrous labor disputes and prolonged strikes. There must be a way, and one that is fair to all concerned.—Kock County Herald, Luverne, Minn.

Well, this Supreme Court fight makes very strange bed fellows. It does look queer to see LaFollette and Wheeler playing on opposite teams, and Amos Pinchot pitching and Carter Glass catching.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

An outstanding bit of international news, of real concern to every American, but which has been somewhat overshadowed by the burning Supreme Court issue in the United States, is the recent announcement by Great Britian that John Bull is going to arm to the teeth with a 5 year plan which contemplates the expenditure of no less than seven billion dollars. In its first installment of the program it is announced that Britain will start the biggest and most extensive naval construction program ever undertook in time of peace. In fact, the new military program will provide for the expenditure of twice as much money as it took to run the entire British government in the last financial year before the World War.

The naval program is said to include three new battleships at about $40,000,000 apiece, seven new cruisers of various sizes, and two new naval aircraft carriers of 18,000 tons each. The cost will be something like $250,000,000 in all, and of course there will have to be a lot of new officers, gunners and sailors added to the navy.

The army will not fall behind the navy in expansion, although in Great Britain the navy is of course the first line of offense and defense. There are to be two new army tank battalions, four new infantry battalions, two of which will be raised at once, and new and ultra-modern equipment will be provided, while the reserves of ammunition are to be greatly increased.

The air force will not be neglected, and it is planned to create 75 new training stations and airdromes for military purposes throughout the empire. The personnel of the air force was increased to 50,000 last year, and it is announced that it will be increased still further. In the aerial force there will be 10,000 machines, and at least 1,200 new first line planes.

Of course this tremendous increase in expenditure for the army and the navy means an additional heavy burden on the British taxpayer. But the government evidently believes it will be worth what it costs, and so far there has been no audible complaint from the rank and file of the British public. It is said that perhaps the most painful impression of this proposed military and naval increase has been created in the minds of Hitler and Mussolini, and many observers think that the announcement is made more especially to impress the dictators of Germany and Italy. Hitler recently asked for return from France of the colonies taken from Germany at the end of the World War, as the price of peace. There has not yet been any evidence of British compliance to the demand, and the new rearmament plans may be taken as some sort of an indirect answer.

British statesmen have purportedly been in favor of limitation of armaments, and some observers believe that the present ambitious program has been announced in the belief that other nations who are building up their armaments may see the light and agree to some limitation. If this is true, then it is possible that an agreement can be reached and the entire outlay of seven billions may not become necessary.

But what about the United States? The British naval expansion announcement was received in silence by official Washington. We had announced our intention previous of keeping up with Great Britain in the construction of new battleships. Whether we shall now do so remains to be seen, although there are many who believe we will fall still farther behind in the naval race. One point ought to impress the average American painfully. In all this talk about spending seven billions, there has been no mention of the defaulted billions which John Bull owes to Uncle Sam. Evidently Britain is too poor to pay her debts, but not impoverished enough to forego spending seven billions for military and naval expansion. There seems to be a lesson here for us in European politics and finance. Wonder if we will be clever enough to see it.

PARTING OF THE WAYS

Reduced to its simplest terms, Mr. Roosevelt is trying to get through congress a piece of legislation which will make it possible for him to pack the Supreme Court in such a way as to insure its approval of virtually any law he manages to have passed. Those are the raw facts, and we are frank to say that we don't like them. We have supported Mr. Roosevelt heretofore in many of his purposes and objectives, but we certainly cannot go along with him on his latest proposal. We earnestly hope that congress will have the intestinal fortitude to vote it down.—Richmond (Va.) Times-Dispatch.

It is now up to the Republicans in congress to prove that this is one time where quality is more potent than quantity.

Chilton County High School News

(By Carlis Wyatt and Cecil Wilson)

Last Wednesday night, March 3rd, the Verbena first and second teams came to Clanton and defeated both teams in two very exciting games. Both games were very exciting and showed great sportsmanship of the four teams. The final score of the second team was 23-21.

Senior Two Play

If you want to see one of the best plays you have ever seen you should come to the auditorium of the High School on Friday night, March 26, and see "Murdered alive," a mystery comedy in three acts. This play is being put on by the Senior II Class and sponsored by Miss Simpson. Everyone is cordially invited to see this play.

The Tournament

Last Friday at ten o'clock the basketball boys went to Selma to enter the tournament. In drawing for the games they were to play. they drew Ft. Deposit first, one of the best high school teams of the state. Although they drew a fast team they played a fast game and won. The boys took fourth place in the tournament. They were able to do this because they cooperated with each other and demonstrated some splendid pass work. There were eighteen other strong teams they had to play against and it is a good team that can win fourth place in a tournament with so many good teams.

School Talent

There was splendid talent shown in rendering the program last Friday night. Everyone seemed to enjoy it very much. There was much talent shown in every kind of act being rendered from imitations to pleasing orchestra music and good songs. All this was done by the school students and other amateurs, but it sounded like professionals at work. Those winning prizes in the contest were:

First prize, $5—Pearl Henley, a reading.

Second prize, $3.50—Helen Hayes, a song and dance.

Third prize, $2.00—Ella Ruth Walton, a reading.

Those deserving honorable mention were: Bill Hodges, imitations; Betty Hollis, tap dance; Myrtis Baker, song.

The Verbena High School is going to have an amateur night next Friday night, March 12. If you wish to enter write Hollis Hiten, Verbena High School.

The Beta Club News

The Beta Club is a new thing in this school, however, since it got its start it has been going fine. In order to belong to this club a person must be a student of high standing, and keep his dues paid. The club has been doing some splendid work and we expect to hear from them before long. We expect them to put on a program in assembly.

The women faculty of C. C. H. S. will play the girls in a friendly basket ball game Friday night, March 12.

ORATORICAL CONTEST

There is much interest in the county oratorical contest on "Jefferson and Hamilton" to be held in Chilton County on or before March 12th. The following are the contestants: Mr. William Creighton Ruddick, Stanton Jr. High School, Stanton, and Mr. Therman Woodrow Milford, Isabella High School, Route 1, Maplesville.

The winner of first place will represent the county in the congressional district contest to be held in March or early in April, exact date and place for holding to be announced later.

State finals will be held in Birmingham in April, with the state championship and cash prizes to be awarded. The state finalists and chaperons will be guests of The Birmingham News-Age-Herald, sponsors of the contest, while in Birmingham.

GET HOME ALMANACS FROM CLANTON MOTORS

Brimful of useful facts and information and other material of human interest, the Ford Home Almanac for 1937 goes to the homes of the United States this week, distributed free by dealers of the Ford Motor Company.

Readers of the booklet will find that, in addition to the time of sunrise and sunset, adjusted to each latitude, moon phases, eclipses, and the usual other information given in almanacs, the Ford Home Almanac is replete with interesteing reading material dealing with ancient and modern prophecies, some of which shaped the destiny of different countries; sea mysteries that generations of research have not solved, and other miscellany.

There are also short articles dealing with the views of Henry Ford on various subjects, as well as an article showing in detail what he has done with the $13,000,000,000 which the public has paid for Ford cars and trucks since the Ford Motor Company began business in 1903. Most interesting are the facts that, of this vast sum, the Ford Motor Company retained for itself only 6.4 cents out of every dollar, spending the remainder, totaling nearly $12,500,000,000 for wages, taxes and materials.

While such information about one of the modern world's greatest industries will be found interesting by students, teachers and economists, the housewife and mother will also find the book handy because of the reliable information it brings for first aid treatments in many different kinds of emergencies, hints for the kitchen, and care of the garden, and a well planned garden chart. The motorist planning a trip to any part of the United States will find in the almanac a chart giving accurate mileages between important cities.

PREACHING

There will be preaching at the home of Lee Moates Saturday night and Sunday night, March 13 and 14. Conducted by the writer. This home is near the Verbena graveyard. Everyone has a welcome.—Jesse Mitchell.

PLETCHER-ALPINE HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Pletcher-Alpine Home Demonstration club met on Tuesday, February 23, at the home of Mrs. Albert Hill. Our leaders, Mrs. J. L. Abbott, Mrs. Albert Hill and Mrs. C. J. Chandler gave the demonstration very nicely, which was a well balanced supper. For this supper our menu consisted of creamed field peas, mustard with eggs and white sauce, cranberry salad, celia pudding, spoon bread, and cocoa. For our social hour songs were sung and two contests were given. Mrs. J. L. Abbott and Mrs. Albert Hill won the prizes. We were proud to have two visitors and three new members join us.

We invite all ladies in the Pletcher-Alpine communities to come and join our club. Besides being an educational advantage, we come in contact with friends and neighbors whom we probably wouldn't see otherwise.

Mrs. J. K. Miller was hostess at a miscellaneous shower Thursday afternoon from 2 to 4, honoring Mrs. Jerrell Miller, who before her marriage was Miss Mozelle Hilyer. Miss Velma Jones presided over the bride's book; 54 guests registered during the afternoon. Games and contests were features of the afternoon. A salad plate was served by Mrs. B. U. Miller and Mrs. J. L. Downs.

MT. PLEASANT 4-H CLUB NEWS

The Mt. Pleasant 4-H Club met March 3, at eight o'clock. Miss Grace met with us on Wednesday, of this month with an interesting program. We first had the minutes of the last meeting read by the secretary. Then some jokes were read. We then elected a new reporter. Having no more business we turned the meeting over to Miss Grace. She then showed us how to make and roll sandwiches and how to serve cakes. She talked to us about the 4-H club rally to be March 18, at nine o'clock. The meeting then adourned until April 7, 1937.

PRESIDENT REVIEWS COURT PLAN

Washington, Mar. 9.—Pres. Roosevelt called for swift enactment of his court reorganization bill tonight to "save the Constitution from the Supreme Court and the Court from itself".

In outspoken fashion, the chief executive asserted the high tribunal had "improperly set itself up as a super legislature," and had read into the Constitution "words and implications which are not there and which were never intended to be there."

At the same time he disavowed any intent to pack the court with "spineless puppets who would disregard the law" and decide cases as he might wish them decided, and asserted the processes of constitutional amendment were too slow for the pressing problems of the day.

His address, a "fireside talk" delivered from the small oval room on the ground floor of the White House, was the second devoted to a fighting appeal for passage of his bill to permit the enlargement of the court unless justices over 70 retire.

Wants Court To Be Free

"We must find a way to take an appeal from the Supreme Court to the Constitution itself," he said. "We want a Supreme Court which will do justice under the Constitution—not over it. In our courts we want a government of laws, not of men.

"I want—as all Americans want—an independent judiciary as proposed by the framers of the Constitution. That means a Supreme Court that will enforce the Constitution as written—that will refuse to amend the Constitution by the arbitrary exercise of judicial power—amendment by judicial say-so. It does not mean a judiciary so independent that it can deny the existence of facts so universally recognized."

A major section of the address was devoted to answering the three most frequently heard criticisms of his proposal—that it is an effort to pack the court, that it would create a precedent which a future president with dictatorial ambitions could turn to his advantage and that the solution of the problem lies rather in a constitutional amendment.

Of the packing charge, the president said:

"If by that phrase the charge is made that I would appoint and the Senate would confirm justices worthy to sit beside present members of the court who understand modern conditions—that I will appoint justices who will not undertake to override the judgment of the congress on legislative policy—that I will appoint justices who will act as justices and not as legislators—if the appointment of such justices can be called packing the courts, then I say that I, and with me the vast majority of the American people, favor doing just that thing—now."

ENTERPRISE CLUB NEWS

The Enterprise Home Demonstration Club met Wednesday afternoon, March 3, at the home of Mrs. W. W. Broadhead. There were several members present, also Miss Grace. Some of the women brought work they had done since last meeting to show and exchange ideas. Several brought embroidery, and one a shuck hat.

Songs were sung at the opening of the meeting. Roll called, and minutes read by secretary. The money made at the plate, which was $9, was put in the hands of the treasurer. The Club agreed to give the school one-third of amount received.

Miss Grace made a very interesting lecture on New Orleans, one of America's most interesting cities. She also demonstrated making rolled sandwiches.

After attending to all the business we adjourned, to meet again April 7, at Mrs. Leo Taylor's. The Club at Enterprise is beginning to work now, and we would be glad to have more women join us.

Lesson for March 14

JESUS PRAYING FOR HIS DISCIPLES

LESSON TEXT — John 16:5-7; 17:14-26.
GOLDEN TEXT — That they may be one, even as we are one. John 17:22.
PRIMARY TOPIC —When Jesus Prayed for His Friends.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Did Jesus Pray for Me?
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Jesus Praying for Us.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Unity with God and One Another.

The assurance that someone is praying for us is an anchor in a time of storm. Many a man or woman has been on the point of giving up in despair, of yielding to temptation, and has been carried through to victory by the intercession of a godly mother or father. Just to know that someone prays for us is to find strength for the knees that have weakened and for the heart that has all but failed.

Infinitely more precious is the truth of our lesson, that the Lord Jesus himself prayed for each one of his followers. John 17:20 makes clear that while he prayed for those who were with him at the time, he also included in his petition all who since that day have come to believe on him because of their testimony.

Before entering upon his inexpressibly precious and beautiful prayer, the Lord gave to his followers a promise which was of vital importance.

I. A Promise (16:5-7).

Persecution is coming, and Jesus will not be with them to meet the trying hour. He is about to enter upon that final scene in his earthly life, which will bring it to its end in "a place called the place of a skull."

How then can he say to them that it is expedient for them that he go away? Because he will send the Comforter, the Holy Spirit. Students of the Scriptures recognize in the Holy Trinity an inscrutable mystery, but receive the teaching of the Bible concerning the ministries of the three persons in the one Godhead with glad and thankful hearts. It is a subject which cannot be entered into here, but which richly rewards careful study. Suffice it to say that while the Holy Spirit has always been active in the earth, he did enter upon a ministry of a special nature when Jesus had gone to be with the Father.

The essence of the work of the Holy Spirit is to glorify Christ (16:14), and in so doing he convicts the unbeliever of sin and guides the believer into all truth. The mark of a Spirit-filled Christian is that he permits the Spirit to glorify Christ in him and in his service for God.

II. A Prayer (17:14-26).

When one enters the sacred precincts of John 17 he feels that he has come into the holy of holies, and that he would not only loose the shoes from his feet, but also stand silent in worship and in praise. He prayed for me—for me!

Each student of this lesson will wish to enter fully upon the meaning of these words as he re-reads them, in the illumination of the Holy Spirit. May I suggest three things which Jesus sought for His children?

1. Consecration (vv. 14-16). No one is Christ's child without regeneration, but, sad to say, there are many children in his blessed household who are not obedient, not spiritually well and strong. They are in the world, they must be here, but alas too many of them want to be as much like the world as possible. He prayed that we might be kept from evil, separate from the world, kept by God even in a world that hates him and his truth.

2. Sanctification (vv. 17-21). This means to be set apart and cleansed for God's service. How is it accomplished? Through the truth. His Word is the instrument of sanctification. Little wonder that there is so little holiness of living when the Word has so little opportunity to touch and cleanse the life.

This separated life brings God's people into that unity of love—all in Christ, and he in the Father—all bound up in that "one great bundle of love."

3. Glorification (vv. 22-26). When Jesus came into the world in the flesh he voluntarily laid aside the glory which was his, and which still is his, and which he prays that we may behold. "But we all, with open face beholding as in a glass the glory of the Lord, are changed into the same image" (II Cor. 3:18). Thus in beholding his glory we also may enter into his likeness.

City Versus Country

It cannot escape even a casual observer that the Bible begins with a scene in the garden to end in a city: one may be "nearer God's heart in a garden than anywhere else on earth"—but certainly "the dwelling-place of God is with men."

Giving and Taking Orders

He who will not accept orders has no right to give them; he who will not serve has no right to command; he who cannot keep silence has no right to speak.—Hubbard.

AN INTERVIEW WITH ADMIRAL RICHARD E. BYRD

Hollywood, Calif. — How motion pictures served to keep the tempers of lonely men on an even keel when books, games and conversation had been exhausted as entertainment mediums in the icy solitude of Little America, was told in an interview yesterday with Admiral Richard E. Byrd.

The famous explorer and aviator who is passing a month in Los Angeles between lecture appointments, revealed for the first time that the pictures he took with him on his last expedition to the South Pole played a major part in the success of his venture. He also let it be known that his observations at the time led to his present keen interest in the motion picture as the number one agency for the promotion of good will among the nations.

"What motion pictures did for my men in Little America," Admiral Byrd said, they are now doing for people throughout the world. In my opinion the screen is the greatest single instrument of recreation that we have. I know this from observations in many parts of the world and particularly from my experience at the South Pole.

One has only to watch the faces brighten; to see care and worry fade and to observe how completely the drama on the screen can shut out the outside world, to realize what the motion picture means to mankind. I have seen my companions in Little America sit through the same picture for the tenth time and still enjoy every minute of it. I don't know what we would have done without those films and I am confident that they played a very important part in keeping all of us in the right mental state.

On our way back we reached civilization at New Zealand. The first thing from home that we saw was an American motion picture and the first thing we found out was that the American picture was the most popular thing in New Zealand.

On another occasion, I traveled throughout South America. Everywhere I went I found the motion pic ture cementing cordial relations between nations. The screen in its present form can do more than any other agency to bring the peoples of the world together.

FOR BETTER FARMING

In order to produce the best paying crops, we need good tools and implements, good seed, and good fertilizers, suited to our crop and land.

Fertilizers must be in the best mechanical condition in order to maintain regular distribution, and must have a balanced ration of the major plant foods, as well as be rich in the minor and secondary plant foods.

If you are in doubt, let me assist you in working out your seed and fertilizer problems in line with the latest recommendations of the Experiment Station. Let's work together to "make every acre do its best".

Now is the time to seed and fertilize pastures.

FARM OWNERSHIP

Montgomery, Ala., Mar. 11—A concerted attack on farm tenancy and further aid to Alabama farmers at the bottom of the "agricultural ladder" to farm ownership is indicated in the President's recent tenancy message and legislation now before Congress, according to R. W. Hudgens, regional director, Resettlement Administration.

Alabama has 176,247 tenant farmers comprising 64.5 per cent of all farm operators in the state. Tenancy in the nation is increasing at the rate of about 40,000 farmers per year, due largely to the recent agricultural depression, mortagages based on inflated land values, erop failure, drouth, and floods.

Lack of opportunities for farm ownership and evils resulting from instability of land tenure can only result in a rapidly increasing depletion of soil resources and growing farm poverty. Farmers in temporary occupancy, knowing that any improvements they make will automatically revert to the landlord on termination of tenure, have little interest in the future of the land.

An important beginning in halting increasing farm tenancy and in laying the basis for increased farm ownership has been made through the rural rehabilitation program. More than 15,000 farmers in the state, the majority in the tenant class, are being assisted through loans, supervised farm and home plans, cooperative services, and farm debt adjustent, laying the basis for future farm ownership.

Tenancy, with its attendant land abuses and rural poverty is a serious threat to the permanent agricultural welfare of the state.

THORSBY WOMEN'S MISSIONARY SOCIETY

The Thorsby Women's Missionary Society, observed the week of prayer on Friday, March 5th, at the home of Mrs. G. F. Harper, with Mrs. M. I. McLeod and Mrs. G. F. Harper in charge.

A large number of our ladies and several visitors were present. It was the most inspirational and the great need of Christ being our real guide in all that we do, was so plain that surely everyone felt that God was with us. The topic was "Home Mission." Most everyone present had a part on the program. All in all it was a day spent close to our Saviour, and with renewed strength to live still closer to him who died for us, and to let him be our guide in all that we do. We know that He is able to keep us if we do our part. Because of this days service God has lifted up and given us new strength to go forward in his work.—Mrs. W. H. Raybon.

Mrs. Renfro Mullins and son, Edwyn, have returned from a recent trip to Huntsville.

"It's pretty hard to beat NATURE"

Mighty Mules Hitched to a dynamometer (a strength testing machine) these powerful mules record their strength for the photographer.

HERE is a famous pair of mules—mighty creatures with the pulling strength of a pair of four-legged giants. At a recent university test, they threatened the world's pulling record.

What makes these mules unusual? Mother Nature gave them something—her own natural balance of many elements; strength, staying power, the willingness to work. So in actual value, these sturdy mules stand out from ordinary mules —there's just no comparison.

And Nature gave a natural balance to Natural Chilean Nitrate, too—a natural balance of many elements that combine to make this nitrogen fertilizer a reliable food for your crops.

Natural Chilean is known for its quick-acting nitrogen, of course. But nitrogen is only one of its vital elements. Because of its natural origin, Chilean Soda also contains, as impurities, such elements as iodine, boron, magnesium, calcium and some 28 others. And always remember that these vital elements are present in Chilean Soda in Mother Nature's own wise balance and blend.

For better crops... Natural Chilean Nitrate.

Alabama Gave Drys Lead In Referendum

Final State Canvass Results In 2,423 More Drys Than Wets In Alabama

A tabulation of the complete vote from the state's 67 counties in Wednesday's local option repeal election left 24 counties in the wet ranks, but gave a margin of exactly 2,423 to the drys in the state total.

Gov. Graves' announcement followed canvass of county returns by the state canvassing board, which confirmed unofficial reports on the number of counties voting wet. The vote for the state was: For repeal, 98,051; against repeal, 100,474.

State stores will sell wine and liquor in the 24 wet counties, and possession of bottled goods purchased from them will be legal in the dry communities.

Hotels, restaurants and clubs will sell wine and liquor in unbroken packages in cities and towns of more than 4,500 population in wet counties.

Birmingham, Montgomery and Mobile hotels rushed plans for cocktail lounges, many on an elaborate scale.

A survey of Birmingham's six largest hostelries revealed accommodations for the thirsty would be ready shortly after April 1.

One large Birmingham hotel has been working night and day for several weeks in preparation for prohibition's demise. More than $20,000 has been spent in decorations and equipment. An orchestra will be on daily duty after the grand opening, set for April 3.

The Alabama Alcoholic Beverage Control Board has announced it had secured free use of warehouses at the state docks in Mobile for storing of wine and liquor to be sold in state-owned stores located in counties voting wet in Wednesday's local option election.

The State Docks Commission offered free usage of sufficient warehouse space to store all beverages to be sold by the control board.

Products will be shipped to the docks warehouse largely by water, and then distributed to state stores, the board's announcement said.

CHILTON COUNTY GIRLS WILL SING OVER STATION WAPI

Tune in and hear some home talent "over the air".

The girls who compose this chorus are as follows: Evelyn Robinson, Mildred Johnson, Amie Easterling, Annie Pearl DeVaughn, Marjorine Clackler, Effie Mae Easterling, Hersie Ree Easterling, Annie Belle Bice, Martha Easterling.

These girls will be directed by Prof. Ed L. Glasscock and accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Marjorene Henley.

COCHRANE BRIDGE AT MOBILE PURCHASED BY THE STATE

Mobile.—Cochrane bridge, the 10.5-mile structure spanning Mobile Bay, and the last toll bridge in Alabama, is now toll-free.

The bridge has been turned over to the state, which is to buy it from the Mobile Bay Bridge Corporation for $2,146,323.56, and motorists can cross without paying the toll of $1 a vehicle plus 10 cents each additional passenger which has been charged since the span was opened in 1927.

A total of 2,447,644 vehicles crossed the bridge during this period.

Horace Wilkinson, Birmingham attorney, who represented W. H. Garlington, bridge bondholder, in the proceedings which resulted in the sale agreement, will receive a fee of $45,000. The price to be paid for the bridge was fixed in an order by Presiding Judge Claud A. Grayson, of the Mobile Circuit Court, who denied Garlington's petition for appointment of a receiver for the bridge.

CITY LETS CONTRACT FOR BORING NEW WELL

The Layne-Central Company, of Memphis, Tenn., have been awarded a contract to bore one and probably two wells for the city. Machinery is already on the scene at the city water works, and work will begin on the boring at an early date.

Layne-Central Company is said to be the largest concern of this kind in the world. They have bored wells in a number of foreign countries and all over the United States. They bored most of the seventeen wells which furnish Montgomery with that city's water. The very latest methods will be used in boring and equipping Clanton's well. The new well will be about 8 or 10 inches in diameter, and will be fitted with the newest devised metallic piping and screens.

STATE'S LAWYERS OPPOSE ROOSEVELT PLAN

FISHING LICENSE LAW BECOMES EFFECTIVE APRIL 1

Enforcement of the resident fishing license bill, passed by the recent legislature, requiring rod and reel and artificial bait users to purchase a $1 annual license, will become effective on April 1, according to announcement by Commissioner I. T. Quinn of the Department of Conservation of Game, Fish and Seafoods.

Under provision of the Toomer resident fishing license bill, all Alabama residents over the age of 16 years fishing with rod and reel or artificial bait, lure or fly are required to purchase the $1 annual license. The cane pole or doodler fisherman is exempt from payment of the license, as are persons under 16 years of age. Penalty for violation of the law upon conviction is placed at not less than $10 nor more than $25 for each offense. Statewide in nature, the license permits its holder to fish in any public stream or lake in Alabama.

Now being printed, the new fishing licenses will be distributed to Judges of Probate prior to April 1 and their sale to fishermen upon receipt and prior to that date has been authorized by Commissioner Quinn.

WIDE DRY MARGINS SHOWN IN COUNTIES WITH BIG G.O.P. VOTE

Five Alabama counties possessing heavy Republican votes again rallied to the bone dry cause in Wednesday's local option election, polling a net combined dry majority of 8,516 votes, a majority considerably higher than they yielded in the 1935 referendum.

Heading the dry procession for the entire state was the Republican party's banner county, DeKalb, which voted dry about 7 to 1 Wednesday, where two years ago the county voted dry about 5 to 1.

The other four counties in which the Republicans are in control or have a heavy vote bloc, including Winston, Marshall, Chilton and Jackson, likewise gave impressive majorities for retention of the bone dry laws.

Official returns in Wednesday's election showed that in DeKalb 4,192 voted against repeal with only 645 voting for the state's store plan. Winston voted 1,250 no and 324 yes; Chilton 1,483 no and 747 yes; Marshall 2,307 no and 1,045 yes; Jackson 1,859 no and 754 yes.

In the 1935 referendum, DeKalb voted 845 for repeal and 3,642 against; Winston, 249 for and 1,251 against; Chilton 644 for and 1,587 against; Marshall 900 for and 2,429 against; Jackson 680 for and 2,068 against.

CHILTON COTTON REPORT

Census report shows that there were 16,091 bales of cotton ginned in Chilton County from the crop of 1936, prior to March 1, as compared with 13,004 bales ginned to March 1, crop of 1935.

Messrs. Vernie Teel, Shux Clackler and their families spent last week end with relatives and friends in Clanton. These two gentlemen, former Clanton printers, are now operating a paper at Lanett, Ala.

REPUBLICANISM AND PROHIBITION

(AN EDITORIAL)

I have always been proud of owning up to being a Republican, and since the last liquor election in Alabama, I am still prouder of the fact than ever. A dispatch published in the State papers says all counties in the State where Republican voters are strong went strongly against legalizing liquor on March 10th. I am glad that Chilton County was numbered in this list of counties. And in passing I want to congratulate DeKalb, the county with probably more Republican votes than any other county in Alabama, and it rolled up a ratio against repeal of seven to one. That is really showing Bibb Graves and his dripping dribsters at Montgomery where to get off at. And Chilton's two-to-one speaks in no uncertain terms too.

And in passing, I cannot refrain from touching up just a little bit those of my good Democratic friends (and I say "friends" not sarcastically either, because I have hundreds of good Democratic dry friends) who always swallow the Democratic list of office-seekers whole, when they know all the time that they are voting just as straight for whiskey as they possibly can. Then, when a repeal fight comes up, they then are able to see the right way and vote against the very thing that they virtually voted for in helping elect certain Democratic nominees. But I will pass this up by saying that it is better for them to vote right once than never at all.

And then I want to commend and if possible emphasize the idea which Judge Reynolds brings out in a letter in this week's paper. That idea is to put on a strong and relentless campaign of educating our young people regarding the ill effects of alcohol. This is exactly what we need to do, and not do it just for a few weeks and then quit, but just keep on keeping on. I firmly believe that herein lies an opportunity for the present generation to do a deed of untold value to the rising generations. And Judge Reynolds mentions the preachers. Well, we can depend on the preachers staying on the right side of the question; but we might urge them to join a little more forcefully in this educational program against whiskey. And the school teachers have an important part to play too—in fact the school teachers nearly hold the very key to the entire situation. The evil effects of whiskey should be drilled into the minds of our school children so indelibly that it would remain with them always. When this is done, you will see a noticeable difference in the deportment and demeanor of our young people.

The big papers say that the death knell to prohibition has been sounded in Alabama. We do not see exactly how they figure that, when 2,400 more voted against repeal than voted for it. But what else could we expect from these saturated sheets who would blindly follow Roosevelt and Graves to the ends of the jumping-off place? No, prohibition is not dead in Alabama, and you mark what I say—This State and this nation are going to get awfully sick of legalized liquor within a few years; and when they do, you will see the pendulum swing back further than it did twenty-two years ago. And when prohibition really comes back, the enforcement part of the scheme will have teeth in it. It can be enforced when it is gone at right; and I believe lots of us will live to see the day when we will have prohibition and it will be enforced.

BOY SCOUTS

Troop one met last Friday night, at the city hall, with nine scouts and two scouters present.

The Owl and Fox patrols competed in a knot-tying contest, using the two half hitches and the slip or running knot. The contest was for speed and accuracy. The Owls proved that they could tie these two knots with more speed and accuracy than the Foxes.

Be sure to read this section each week for announcements of Troop One's radio television broadcast which will be given in the first part of April.

Troop One will meet next Friday night, at 6:30 o'clock, at the city hall.

L. H. RENOLDS WRITES

We have just had a great election in which 2,400 majority of the qualified voters of Alabama said they did not want liquor of any kind sold in Alabama. I congratulate the voters of Chilton County in that they voted two to one against the legal sale of liquor in our county. It is clear to my mind that the most people in our county who complain of blind tigers being so prominent in our county are the ones that are patronizing and supporting them. If the people of our county will quit buying liquor from bind tigers, we will soon starve them to death and if we are to have liquor, I had rather oppose it being sold by a blind tiger than a tiger that could see. We must all remember one thing, that liquor is liquor and the same grade of liquor will have the same effect on the human being whether it came from tigers or whether it was sold out of the churches of our county. Now if we do not want any blind tigers in our county, let's everybody quit patronizing them and they will soon go out of business for it is only the money that is to be made in the liquor business that causes people to make and sell it.

Let all of us try in the future to educate the young people away from liquor and if we could get liquor out of our county, just think what a citizenship we would have. I believe we ought to have more temperance lectures to our young people than we have been having for the last ten or fifteen years.

I heard some criticism in the last campaign of the preachers of our county because they took a stand against the legal sale of liquor. Let me ask you one question: What would this county be without preachers? If we had no preachers, we would soon have no church or church organization and our county would not be fit for a respectable person to live in. We would be better off if we had more preachers that would always come out in the open against liquor. It is my opinion that if it had not been for the preachers in Alabama that a large majority of the voters in this State would have voted for liquor in the last election. I would be glad to see our people take more interest in their church and support our preachers better than they have in the past and I believe if we fully realized the value of their service and what they are doing for good citizenship, that we would support them better in the future than we have in the past.—Respectfully, —L. H. RENOLDS.

County Farm Agent's Notes

FRUITS NEED SPRAYING WITH SUMMER SPRAYS

Auburn.—Freezing weather during February made it most important for Alabama farmers to use summer sprays in carrying to maturity fruits which were not killed, advises Prof. L. M. Ware, head of the horticulture and forestry department of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

Effective control of diseases and insects requires that the proper materials be used at the proper time and that the spraying be done thoroughly. The season for summer sprays is here again.

Plums and early maturing varieties of peaches usually require three applications of sprays, while late-maturing peach varieties require four applications. The first peach spray should be applied when two-thirds of the petals are off, and the second when three fourths of the shucks have fallen from the fruit. These first two applications should contain one pound of arsenate of lead and four pounds of hydrated lime for each 50 gallons of spray.

The third summer spray, applied two weeks after the second spray, should contain four to six pounds of wettable sulphur per 50 gallons of spray, or the standard self-boiled lime sulphur mixture. Several commercial brands of wettable sulphur are now sold. They require no preparation, and are easily mixed.

The fourth summer spray, applied one month before the fruit ripens, should contain in 50 gallons of spray, one pound of arsenate of lead, four pounds of hydrated lime, and four to six pounds of wettable sulphur. For varieties ripening before the Carman, the third spray should be omitted and the fourth spray substituted.

4-H CLUB NEWS

Light will be turned on rural electrification by 4-H club members in nearly every state this year, according to acceptances of the second national contest for clubsters.

Club members will repeat the work they did so well in last year's initial contest which brought new laurels to the 4-H movement. They will gather data on costs of bringing current to communities through government financed co-operatives and private utilities, arrange local educational demonstrations on the wiring, appliances, and allied subjects, map out a wiring plan for their own farm, and stage exhibits and demonstrations at fairs.

Nothing has gripped the fancy of rural youth or promises such a rich field for their endeavor as rural electrification.

Club members must submit their reports prior to November 1 to county agents who will award a gold medal of honor to the winner. The best county report within the state, to be chosen by the state club leader, will receive a $50 merchandise certificate and be eligible to compete for sectional honors. The 10 best state winners will be awarded all-expense trips to the 16th National Club Congress to be held in Chicago the first week of December. To the three highest rating trip winners the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company in addition will award cash college scholarships of $400, $300 and $200.

Local leaders may obtain full particulars of the contest from their county extension agent.

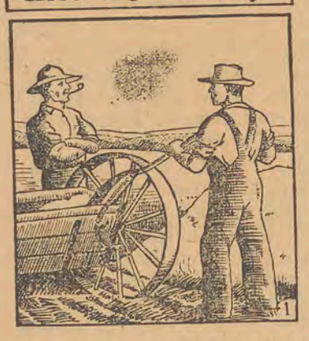
BOYS INTERESTED IN COTTON IMPROVEMENT



Auburn.—Hundreds of Alabama boys are entering two contests being conducted in the state by the Alabama Cotton Manufacturers Associations, and the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation, announces J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist. The contests are designed to encourage the economical production of better staple cotton in Alabama.

Farm boys, ages 10 to 20 years inclusive, are eligible to enter the Better Staple Cotton Contest sponsored by the Cotton Manufacturers Association. Contestants must enroll with their county agents not later than April 1. Fifty prizes ranging from $12.50 to $50 will be awarded the winners in the contest.

The 4 H Cotton Improvement Essay Contest is being sponsored by the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation and the Alabama Cotton Cooperative Association. All boys who are regularly enrolled in a 4-H club are eligible, provided the 4-H club member's father is engaged in the production of cotton. Essays must be in the hands of county agents by May 1, 1937. Three educational trips to New Orleans will be awarded the state winners. In addition, cash prizes of $12.50, $10, $7.50, $5, and $2.50 will be awarded in each of three districts.

In addition to stimulating interest in the production of better quality cotton, the essay contest is designed to encourage better preparation of cotton for ginning and better methods of ginning, and to encourage marketing of cotton on the basis of staple length as well as grade.

Uncle Jim Says

On most farms lime and legumes help build up the land, boost crop yields, and cut production costs.

CROTALARIA VALUABLE SUMMER LEGUME CROP

Auburn.—Crotalaria is a valuable summer legume crop for Alabama farmers to use in improving their soil, advises J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist.

Corn following crotalaria produced 40 bushels per acre on the Tennessee Valley SubStation, compared with only 12 bushels per acre on similar land with no legumes. On the Sand Mountain Sub-Station the yield was 44 bushels per acre following crotalaria compared with only six bushels on similar land with no legumes.

Early Spectabilis is the most commonly grown crotalaria in most sections of the state. Late Spectabilis, however, is grown in the extreme southern part of the state. It can be planted in alternate rows with corn at corn planting time, or broadcast in the corn at laying-by time. Phosphate is probably the best fertilizer to use.

RA LOANS APPROVED FOR 8,000 FAMILIES

Auburn.—Rehabilitations loans have been approved by the Rehabilitation Division of the Resettlement Administration for approximately 8,000 low income or destitute farm families in Alabama, and it is anticipated that this number will be increased to approximately 12,000 within the next 30 days, reports Julian Brown, state director.

These loans average about $225 per family. This is slightly more than the average loan for 1936, and this increase is due to the policy of gradually improving the position of the family by enabling them to purchase better work stock and farming tools. Repayments by these families during 1936 were such as to justify this increased faith and the additional loans.

FORESTRY NEWS

Naval stores operators who wish to co-operate with the government in the 1937 Naval Stores Conservation Program will be allowed until March 29 to file work sheets, according to an announcement made by Regional Forester Joseph C. Kircher today. The final date previously set for receipt of work sheets was March 15, but because of the increased interest in the program during the past week, resulting in many requests for additional information, it has been decided to extend the time until March 29.

Producers who comply with the requirements will receive benefit payment amounting under some conditions to four cents per cup for cups removed from trees under nine inches in diameter and one cent per cup for those operated in accordance with the terms of the program. The Forest Service is administering the program under the general direction of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

Work sheets will be furnished upon request to the Regional Forester, U. S. Forest Service, Atlanta, Ga., or to one of the district supervisors stationed at Savannah, Ga., Jacksonville or Pensacola, Fla.

WILDLIFE FEDERATION NEWS

Dr. Walter B. Jones, of Tuscaloosa, was elected one of the three vice presidents of the General Wildlife Federation and regional director for the states of Alabama, Georgia, Florida, and Mississippi at its St. Louis meeting March 3. J. N. (Ding) Darling, Des Moines, Ia., was re-elected president. Dr. Jones, state geologist, was in February elected to the presidency of the Alabama Wildlife Federation, co-ordinating agency of the state's 67 county conservation councils.

BOB JONES COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

In a recent issue of a religious journal I noted the following:

"Over 500 students of the University of New York cheered the address of Earl Browder on behalf of Communism on October 23, 1936. The meeting was held under the auspices of the Karl Marx Society of the University.

"A poll taken at Harvard University shows that there are at least 105 Communists and Socialists among its students. Similar polls elsewhere show 270 students at the University of California, 121 at Yale, 102 at Dartmouth, 64 at Princeton, 513 at Brooklyn, 197 at Columbia, 411 at University of Chicago, 122 at Idaho College".

America is the greatest country in the world. We are not perfect. Our form of government has faults. The fall of man compels all of us to live in this dispensation under imperfect conditions. However, the average man has a better chance for human success on American dirt than he has anywhere else in the world. All of this Communistic agitation is a satanic influence to uproot and unsettle civilization. Fathers and mothers should be careful about where they send their children to colleges and universities and intelligent American citizens will be careful of the institutions they are supporting.

NITRATE OF SODA TESTS

The Georgia Experiment Station has over a four-year period conducted a test comparing old style Chilean nitrate of soda with Arcadian nitrate of soda. Based on the guaranteed analysis, the soda was applied at the rate of 32 pounds of nitrogen per acre, or 206 pounds of old style Chilean compared with 200 pounds of Arcadian.

The average yields over the four-year period were 1,034 pounds of seed cotton per acre from the Arcadian nitrate of soda plots as compared with 1,013 pounds from the old style Chilean nitrate.

The difference in yield was only 21 pounds of seed cotton per acre in favor of the Arcadian nitrate of soda. This small difference is attributed to experimental error.

The South Carolina Experiment Station reports a similar experiment conducted at the Pee Dee Experiment Station. In this experiment the yields were practically identical, the difference being only 4.6 pounds in favor of the Chilean nitrate of soda.

The Mississippi Delta Experiment Station has also conducted experiments with different kinds of sodium nitrate. Here the difference in yield was nine pounds of seed cotton per acre in favor of the Arcadian nitrate. Again this slight difference may be attributed to experimental error.

The New Jersey Experiment Station has conducted experiments comparing the old style Chilean nitrate of soda and chemically pure nitrate. Moving pictures of these experiments have been shown in this state. These experiments were conducted in mater cultures or sand cultures, and the results do not apply to field conditions.

Except for the fact that the Arcadian nitrate of soda contains about one-half per cent more nitrogen, the above results show that the two kinds of nitrate of soda are of equal value under field conditions for growing cotton.

FOREIGN TRADE SHOWS DECLINE

Washington, Mar. 15. — A just-completed Department of Commerce analysis shows that America's foreign trade continued to dribble away in 1936.

Wheat imports rose nearly 800 per cent in value from 1932 to 1936, while exports dropped 62.2 per cent.

The value of fruits and nuts imported rose 30.9 per cent, while that of exports increased only 4.3 per cent.

Cotton manufactures, including yarn imports increased 74.3 per cent, while exports dropped 4.1 per cent.

The value of packing house products shipped into this country increased 280.4 per cent, while that of exports dropped 26.5 per cent.

For the year 1936 our export trade was seven per cent larger in value and five per cent larger in quantity. Imports for consumption gained 19 per cent in value and were 11 per cent larger in quantity in 1936 than in 1935.

HOLC EXPECTED TO CALL LOANS

Washington, Mar. 15.—The HOLC, established to keep home owners from losing their homes, expects to foreclose on 160,900 homes in the next 18 months.

These figures were given to a congressional committee by John H. Fahey, chairman of the HOLC, when he asked 30 million dollars to pay running expenses of the federal agency.

The Home Owners Loan Corporation was established at the depth of the depression because so many mortgages were being foreclosed. The argument advanced then was that the federal government could carry the home owners through the depression.

Already, though, thousands of mortgages have been foreclosed by HOLC. Fahey told the committee that 105,900 foreclosures would be authorized by July 1, and an additional 55,000 probably would be authorized in the following year.

No more loans are being made. The 30 million dollars approved by the House committee and now pending before the Senate, would be used to finance regular HOLC operations, for the foreclosures completed and contemplated will make the federal government the biggest owner of small homes in the country.

Eighteen months from now, the value of all homes seized by the HOLC will far exceed $100,000,000.

The Inconsistency Of President Roosevelt

Mr. Roosevelt's expressed desire to have all U. S. Supreme Court judges who are seventy years old retired is not consistent with his past actions and his present argument. Mr. Roosevelt says in one breath that, last November he was given the mandate of the people and in the next breath he pleads with the people not to take advantage of their right to settle this important issue at the polls. During Mr. Roosevelt's candidacy of last year he did not at any time come out in the open and tell the people plainly and unmistakably, by assertion or by promise that, if elected president, he would at once use his every effort to have these present judges who are seventy years old removed. He kept such intentions hidden and well cloaked in secrecy until after he was elected. He knew then, as he knows now, had he made his intentions clearly understood by the people millions who voted for him, not knowing his hidden intentions, would not have done so.

If, as Mr. Roosevelt claims, the government is of the people and not that one man's ruling and dictates, why is he so unwilling to submit this very serious governmental question to the government's own people for settlement?

Now that the people understand Mr. Roosevelt's real desire to bring about changes in the judiciary, if they agree with him, which Mr. Roosevelt seems so certain they do, why should he have any fears in having the issue left to the people to decide as provided for them in the Constitution it'self, and in the way all amendments to the Constitution have been decided in the past? In Mr. Roosevelt's "Fireside Talks" he tells the people of the great injustice they have been done by these seventy year old judges. How they have over-reached their right and authority, as well as their incompetency, to determine the constitutionality of his setups, which are supported by a number of intimidated senators and congressmen, but, does Mr. Roosevelt call to the attention of his hearers the fact that, there are among these senators and congressmen some fifteen or twenty who are seventy years old or older? These senators and congressmen are, of course, fully capacitated to make laws and hold their jobs, but a seventy year old judge of the Supreme Court who does not agree that Mr. Roosevelt's setups are constitutional is in his dottage, incompetent to pass on laws other seventy year old men have made and he must therefore, be removed. "CONSISTENCY, CONSISTENCY THOU ART A JEWEL".

Mr. Roosevelt, in his "Consistent" argument to have all power unto himself, has not told the people one time, that I have seen or heard, by printed message or by radio assertion that, he, Mr. Roosevelt, is placing the government in a very dangerous position, according to his own argument.

Has Mr. Roosevelt at any time, in his "Fireside Talks" or otherwise, told the people that, should he in the course of events, drop dead tomorrow, next week or at any time while president, and that should John Nance Garner remain alive and succeed him as president, America would have a president who was over SEVENTY YEARS OLD? Where, oh, where is Mr. Roosevelt's consistency. Of course Mr. Garner would be an exception. He, like the prospective new judges, would be of Mr. Roosevelt's fold. A case of "Heads I win and tails you lose". As long as Mr. Roosevelt is president however, Mr. Garner will be a "YES MAN," as the prospective young judges would be after their appointment. Back in 1934 Mr. Roosevelt appointed Charles P. McClelland, at the age of eighty years, presiding judge of the Customs Court. Is this CONSISTENT with Mr. Roosevelt's "Fireside Talks" at the present time, in which he contends that, Supreme Court judges should be retired at the age of seventy? Such an argument is not based on logic or reason. "There is a nigger in the woodpile" and he is too plainly seen by the American people who think for themselves, for them to submit to so grave a blunder as a change in the judiciary, to make a political football of the greatest masterpiece which was ever conceived and born of human brains.

Remember the president's kinsman, "Teddy", who could not have his own way with Mr. Taft? What was the result? Everyone knows that he tore his own party to pieces and that the opposing party candidate, Woodrow Wilson, was elected president. It is said that "History repeats". Will Mr. Roosevelt risk disrupting a solid democracy to have his own way?

"Our great big school-boy lost his marbles in a fair game with another boy who knew the game better than he did, but, since he lost, the boy who won by virtue of his greater knowledge of the rules and laws of the game, was "absolutely unfair, incompetent and therefore, he should be kicked out and expelled from school". What an attitude on the part of our president. What a poor looser.

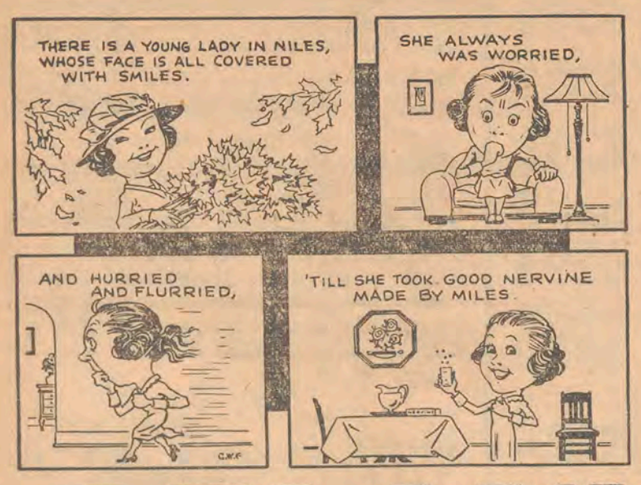
On occasions Mr. Roosevelt has admitted that he has really made some mistakes all of which, is natural and only human, but how does he know that the result of his desired change in the judiciary would not be another mistake? It is too grave a matter to risk to chance. How do the American people know that it would not result in a terrible blunder? Mr. Roosevelt may be perfectly honest and sincere in his belief but, there is a vast throng of others who are just as honest and sincere in their beliefs as he but, they differ with him in their beliefs. Is Mr. Roosevelt not big enough to yield such a right and privilege, instead of desiring to take all power unto himself? As president of the U. S., he is supposed to represent the will of the majority of the American people. Why then, is he so opposed to all of the people expressing their rightful will and desire at the polls in determining a change in the judiciary? Why does he take unto himself all power and right and ignore the power and right of the people?

Personally, I am of the opinion that, had these Supreme Court judges agreed that all of Mr. Roosevelt's setups were constitutional, they would have been, in Mr. Roosevelt's estimation, one hundred per cent in possession of all their mental and legal faculties and that no question of their ages would have arisen which is only an unfair and dangerous excuse to remove them.

Should Mr. Roosevelt succeed in packing the judiciary with his so-called "young blood" judges and should a majority of them be so bold as to rule that some of Mr. Roosevelt's setups were unconstitutional, no doubt, Mr. Roosevelt would then contend that the age limit of Supreme Court judges should be a few years younger than the youngest one of these judges and make the effort to have them removed. Mr. Roosevelt seems to be trying to establish a precedent which has for it's foundation disappointment and revenge rather than safety, fairness and justice. I am not alone in reaching this conclusion, for we read similar expressions of beliefs from men throughout the U. S. who admired and supported Mr. Roosevelt at the polls. If this is the foundation of Mr. Roosevelt's motives and desires, it can not stand for long, for revenge has never accomplished anything but contempt, disappointment and ruin.

If the backbone of the depression is broken, if business is on the upturn, if good times have returned, as it is claimed throughout the country, it has certainly done so without a change in the judiciary system, so why have any change made whatsoever in the system?

If this country has reached the proportions of being the greatest and richest country in the world under a judiciary system which had it's birth with the creation and beginning of our government and it has functioned successfully for all these past centuries, I believe the American people had rather it would continue to function under that system. No one man is big enough or broad enough to shoulder upon himself the great responsibilities vested in that system. No one man should desire to have or should he be allowed to have the power to tear down so great a system which is the product of master minds of statesmen who had at heart the interests and rights of American generations to follow, when it was created.



Submit the decision to the American people as provided for them in this original masterpiece which, for all these years has stood the test, has safe-guarded their rights, that America might not disintegrate. Let the people vote their convictions at the polls and that will settle the question as it should be settled. Why have three branches of government if one man is to usurp all power? Why have a Supreme Court, senate and congress, if any questions, in it's last analysis must be settled by the decision of one man?

If Mr. Roosevelt is the great democrat that he claims to be, regardless of his own personal ideas and desires though he may be entirely sincere, he should be big enough to bow gracefully to the will of the people, the principles of the democratic party, MAJORITY RULE. He should be big enough to rise to the greatness and dignity of the office he has been given by the majority of the American people and recognize their rights.

ANTI-SALES TAX NEWS

Montgomery, Mar. 15. — Far from being discouraged because of the enactment of the two per cent general sales tax bill by the House and Senate after executive amendments proposed by Gov. Bibb Graves had been accepted, N. L. Walker, President of the Alabama Independent Merchants Association and member of the executive committee of the Consumers Anti-Sales Tax Association of Alabama, this week called on merchants and consumers alike to stand united in their fight against unjust and unnecessary tax measures.

Pointing to the fact that the association had saved Alabama merchants and consumers from five to seven million dollars annually for five years in its fight against a sales tax, Mr. Walker said that the investment made to wage this long campaign was the best his organization had ever made.

"And the association will not fold up because of this defeat," he said. "It will continue to function as a live and active agency opposing greedy politicians who seek to rob the poor and others, in the name of the schools".

At the same time he warned that an attempt will be made to raise the sales tax rate from two per cent to three, four or five per cent in the near future.

"The foundation for this move has already been laid," he said. "These same politicians now are crying that the revenue derived under this bill is inadequate.

"If they can get the poor teachers and school children, the barefooted and freckle-faced kiddies we heard so much about during the past few weeks, out in front again, we will have another so-called 'school crisis' to contend with. And that is what they intend to do.

"This sales tax bill automatically expires October 1, 1939, and this 'crisis' will have been built up in the meantime. Instead of merely asking that this tax be continued, they will ask that it be increased.

"Therefore, I say we all should begin looking around for the right gubernatorial and legislative candidates, men who will live up to their campaign pledges and not be swayed by jobs and political patronage, such as we have witnessed here in Montgomery during this last special session of the legislature.

"The schools will be little better off under this tax bill than heretofore. This is because the politicians sold the school people down the river and took the major part of the tax money for other purposes.

Martin Johnson's Camera Snaps Wife In Housekeeping Mood on Last Safari

Martin Johnson's life that ended so tragically as the result of an airplane crash on a lonely snow-covered mountainside near Los Angeles on Jan. 12, though full of adventure was an extremely happy one because of the enjoyment he and his wife derived from their experiences while making motion pictures of wild life in the tropics. One of Mrs. Johnson's functions on these trips was to make life home-like and comfortable no matter how far away from civilization their camp might be.

The above photograph, taken by Mr. Johnson toward the end of the expedition in Borneo, where they spent most of last year in the jungles, shows Mrs. Johnson in a characteristic scene. The Johnsons lived on a bamboo raft that was moved up and down the Kinabatangan River, where the climate is said to be the hottest in the world. Strange as it may seem, modern refrigeration played a big role in the Borneo expedition. Two Servel Electrolux refrigerators (operated with kerosene) were part of the scientific equipment of the expedition. One of these was installed on the back veranda of the raft. Without the refrigerators, the Johnsons could not have withstood the heat of the jungles, they stated upon their return from Borneo.

Mrs. Johnson is telling the little jungle maiden what they do with fruit and vegetables in America and how good the big pineapple will be when it gets cold. The small native boy is laughing at Mr. Johnson's antics in manipulating his motion picture camera.

HOBSON, HERO OF MERRIMAC, DIES SUDDENLY

Alabamian Who Bottled Up Spanish Fleet Is Victim Of Heart Attack

New York, March 16.—Rear Admiral Richmond Pearson Hobson, the Spanish-American war hero who bottled up the enemy's fleet in Santiago Harbor died suddenly today of heart disease. He was 66.

The retired naval officer, who had devoted his energies in latter years to an unremitting war against the use of narcotics, was stricken as he prepared to leave his Lexington Avenue home for his office.

Statesman, author, lecturer, and advocate of worldwide prohibition, Admiral Hobson shot into international prominence as a young naval lieutenant when he ran the dismantled collier Merrimac into the entrance of Santiago harbor and sank it amid a hail of gunfire.

With his crew of seven volunteers he was fished out of the water by an enemy ship and made a prisoner of war.

So audacious was the feat that it excited even the admiation of the Spanish commander, Admiral Cervera, who sent his chief of staff to Hobson's superior under a flag of truce with a letter extolling the prisoner's bravery.

A month later, Hobson and his gallant men were released in an exchange of prisoners arranged Col. John Jacob Astor, of the United States general staff.

Four years ago, Admiral Hobson's exploit was recorded indelibly on the pages of history when President Roosevelt presented him with the congressional medal of honor.

Congress may have been tardy with its recognition, but the public was not. For years he was the subject of public adulation.

"They dragged me off trains in the middle of night to make speeches, and young mothers ambushed me because they wanted their infants to 'touch the admiral's sleeve'" he related.

"All this was fun for awhile, but too much of it would destroy any man, I finally had to ask for a transfer, and the government sent out to the far east. It was a year before I could return and complete my work."

He was the first to introduce in Congress and advocate a prohibition amendment to the constitution. He believed prohibition should be worldwide. He believed America should lead an international movement for world peace.

In 1935, when Col. Charles A. Lindberg, took his family to England, Admiral Hobson said he sympathized with the decision; that "one of the basic evils of hero worship is its effect on a private career."

In recent years, Admiral Hobson devoted much of his time to organizations he founded to stamp out narcotics.

He wrote many books, in addition to lecturing and taking an active part in many movements.

Born at Greensboro in 1870

Richmond Pearson Hobson, hero of the Spanish-American War and onetime Alabama congressman, was born at Greensboro, Ala., Aug. 17, 1870, the son of James Marcellus and Sarah Croom Hobson.

After attending Southern University, a Methodist school since consolidated into Birmingham-Southern College, he was graduated from the United States Naval Academy in 1889.

WASHINGTON'S ADVICE

It is important, likewise, that the habits of thinking in a free country should inspire caution in those intrusted with its administration, to confine themselves within their respective constitutional spheres, avoiding in the exercise of the powers of one department to encroach upon another.

The spirit of encroachment tends to consolidate the powers of all the departments in one, and thus to create, whatever the form of government, a real despotism.

A just estimate of that love of power, and proneness to abuse it, which predominates in the human heart, is sufficient to satisfy us of the truth of this position.

The necessity of reciprocal checks in the exercise of political power, by dividing and distributing it into different depositories, and constituting each the guardian of the public weal against invasions by the others, has been evinced by experiments ancient and modern.

To preserve them must be as necessary as to institute them.

If, in the opinion of the people, the distribution or modification of the constitutional powers be in any particular wrong, let it be corrected by an amendment in the way the Constitution designates.

But let there be no change by usurpation; for though this, in one instance, may be the instrument of good, it is the customary weapon by which free governments are destroyed.

The precedent must always greatly overbalance in permanent evil any partial or transient benefit which the use can at any time yield.—From Washington's Farewell Address.

Really about the nicest thing to be is a prize Persian kitten. It sleeps around the house, gets three square meals a day, and doesn't give a tinker's dam about anybody.

The old fashioned man who worked 72 hours a week to support his family now has a married son who boasts how much speed his wife has in shorthand.

THE BACK DOOR NRA

Congress, it is understood, is about to be asked to enact a new wage and hour law—in short, a new NRA. It should be pertinent, therefore, to take a brief glance at experiences under the Walsh-Healey Act, which the New York Times calls a back door, sporadic NRA, so as to make sure that the mistakes of that Act will not be repeated.

The last day of the last session of congress, the Senate passed the Walsh-Healey Act, without a record vote. Provided that any contractor bidding for a government contract of $10,000 or more must agree to pay prevailing wage, must not employ workers more than 40 hours a week without paying overtime rates, and must perform the contract without child labor and under sanitary and safe working conditions.

The sanitary and safe working conditions stipulations, and the child labor stipulation, caused no difficulties. But the other phases did. The steel industry, for example, generally is geared to a 48-hour week. It is doing more business than it has in years. Its wage scales are the highest ever.

But if the steel industry were to furnish the 25,000,000 pounds of steel needed by the navy, it would have to upset its complete working arrangements. One might think that 25,000,000 pounds of steel is a big order, but by comparison it is almost infinitesimal. Why some employees in steel mills are paid not by the ton but by the hundreds of tons.

As the New York Times pertinently remarks: "Government contracts form a very small percentage of the total business done by the country. This back door, sporadic NRA cannot mean any general increase in wages or improvement in working conditions. If it raises for short periods the wages of small groups here and there, it does so at a high price in delay, red tape, government control and espionage."

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

If one were to glean all his information regarding economic America from those demagogic speech-makers who seem to take delight in arousing class consciousness and even class hatred, he would perhaps come to the conclusion that the United States is a nation with just two strata of economic society—the idle and predatory rich and the distressed poor, who have to depend either on national or local charity for relief. And the less fortunate members of our society from an economic standpoint are told that their distress is due almost entirely to the machinations of the man at the top and the failure of our government to take from him his ill gotten wealth and to distribute it among those who have little of the world's goods.

As a matter of fact, however, the United States is not a nation of probletariats or aristocrats, if we may be permitted to use two old world terms. This still is and has always been a middle class country. And it is because this middle class has been the determining influence in our government that we have been able to maintain a representative democracy. Politcal control by the aristocracy or the proletariat always means autocracy of one kind or another. For an illustration of this fact we have only to look at Russia under the czar and then under Stalin.

Under the emperor most of the property of Russia was owned or controlled directly by the aristocracy. Under communism it is theoretically the property of the state, but the state is not the mass of workers but the dictatorship, which is now represented by the rulers at Moscow. There is no great middle class of Russians and never has been. If the reverse were true then there could have been no revolution until such middle class was destroyed.

In our own country we hear a great deal about idle wealth—dangerous wealth which is controlled by a few unscruplous men. Yet there is no corner on wealth in our country. There are more than sixty millions of life insurance policy holders in the country, and more than forty million savings banks accounts. There are millions of home owners in the city and in the country, and all the agitators to the contrary, the majority of these threaten a transfer of ownership. In addition homes are not covered with mortgages which there are hundreds of thousands of small businesses in the city, and in the town, which are owned not by the plutocrats but "common folks".

Last but not least, and this is really important, there are millions of small holders of securities in our great public utilities and other corporations. These giants of industry are not owned by a few plutocrats, but by small investors all over the country. As Mr. Hugh S. Magill, president of the American Federation of Investors, said in his recent annual report:

"The great industries of this country are actually owned by millions of thrifty citizens who are investors in their securities. Our vast railroad systems are no longer owned by a comparatively few rich men, but by millions of citizens who have worked and saved, and invested a part of their savings in the stocks and bonds of these companies. The same is true of the utility companies, representing an invested capital of approximately 13 billion dollars. And it is no less true of the great industrial corporations, whose stocks and bonds are owned by millions of middle class citizens, whose average investment is estimated at approximately $2,000. General Motors Corporation, with its more than 200,000 workers, is reported to have approximately 350,000 stockholders, with a large majority of its stock owned by comparatively small investors".

Now there seems to be a lesson in these observations. If this is a middle class country, and we want to keep it a representative democracy, let us see to it that the so-called average citizen doesn't become the forgotten man, to be crushed between the plutocrats at the top and the have-nots at the bottom. He pays most of the taxes, although he doesn't seem to get credit for that fact from the politicians. Why not give him a little consideration.

A case is before the court. A selection of a jury follows. Says the attorney for one of the litigants: "I demand the privilege of selecting the jurors". Chilton County High School News

(By Carlis Wyatt and Cecil Wilson)

Chapel Visitor

Monday morning we had the Rev. Truett, pastor of the Methodist Church, present to give a very interesting talk on "Success Of The School Boy Or Girl." In his talk he stressed character, obedience and honesty. We enjoyed his talk very much and invite him to visit us anytime he wishes.

Short Vacation

School was in session only three days this week owing to the Alabama Educational Association meet being held in Birmingham Thursday and Friday. But, alas! boys, a two-day fishing trip will just get us in the mood to take a long vacation.

School Sick List

We are sorry to hear that Mrs. Coplin is on the sick list this week. There are several students absent due to sickness. We hope that the flu and colds will soon be over and school attendance will be better.

Dr. Kimmey Visits

Dr. Kimmey came to the school last Friday and gave a very interesting talk on the health of the boys. He gave out some literature. He also agreed to come back some other time and give us another talk. We enjoyed his talk very much.

Rehearsals Continue For "Murdered Alive"

Members of the cast of the Senior II class play, "Murdered Alive," continue rehearsals and will present their play March 26, in the High School auditorium.

All sorts of thrills, excitement, mystery and comedy abound in "Murdered Alive." Action Chance, the detective, disappears right in the midst of his investigation of the murder; the inmates of Hillcrest receive threatening letters warning them that they are about to be murdered alive; clocks strike; doorbell and telephone ring; lights go out and many other strange things happen. However, they are all fully explained before the curtain falls at the end of act III.

Members of the cast are:

Tillie Meek, the maid—Geraldine Hollis.

Action Chance, the correspondence school detective—Marshall Lee Ware.

Mrs. Libby Ryder—Anne McCrary.

Arden Ryder, a charming young girl—Dewey Rene Eubanks.

Warner Melton, in love with Arden—Morris Johnson.

Iris Alda, who gets messages from the spirit world—Elizabeth Hogan.

Luverne Speed — Mildred Popwell.

Stella Bachus, who rules the roost—Nell Jones.

Frank Bachus, her weaker half—Guy Alred.

Otis Marvin, the lawyer—Guy McKee.

Arline Ivans—Nell Marcus.

Library news

Recently we received a shipment The mysterious stranger—Ted Reynolds.

of new books for our library. Among these are books of travel, adventure, fiction, bography and reference.

THE BOOK
By Emily Dickinson

There is no frigate like a book
To take us leagues away,
Nor any coursers like a page
Of prancing poetry.
This traverse may the poorest take
Without oppress of toll;
How frugal is the chariot
That bears a human soul!

Most of the students agree with Emily Dickinson about books. They are reading much more than they did. An average of sixty books are checked out every day.

Girls Win

The teachers may rule in school but it is no reason they should rule on the basketball court. The teachers and girls played a very exciting game here Friday night. Although the teachers played a good, fast game of excitements, thrills and spills, the girls won by a score of 19-3. The outstanding players for the girls were Thelma Arant and Clarice Thornton. Most outstanding players for the teachers were Grace Plyler and all the teachers. Evidently the teachers liked to fall on the court than run on it as they stayed on the ground a good bit of the time. If you ever hear of the faculty playing the girls come and we promise you that you will enjoy yourself thoroughly.

Thorsby vs. Clanton

The C. C. H. S. boys played a very fast and exciting game. The game was a grudge game and this may account for it being so rough. Buckey Armstrong and Morris Woodfin played a very good game. Buckey shot fourteen points and the final score was 30-23 in favor of Clanton. This game ended the season for both first and second teams. We have prospects for a great team next year as no one of the team graduates this year.

Baseball

Mr. Varnell announced in chapel Friday that if nothing happens we will buy new material for baseball. The boys have started practing and some good material is on the line for this year.
